HIGH HAT FASHION IS 100 YEARS OLD

BIT OF INTERESTING HISTORY CONNECTED WITH IT.

The high hat is celebrating its centenary this year.

It was in 1805 that the cocked hat of colonial times began to disappear, coincident with the passing of small clothes, and the long brocaded waistcoat of the eighteenth century.

The credit of introducing the "topper," as the beaver was nicknamed, has been credited to the celebrated Beau Brummel, but that arbiter of fashion of the early nineteenth century can only be credited with having introduced a change in its shape. The idea from which the modern high hat evolved came undoubtedly from the headgear adopted in the days of Henry of Navarre by Huguenot officers who wore cone shaped arrangements of hard felt with rolling brims. The hat passed entirely out of use until the revival at the opening of the nineteenth century attacked men's dress.

In 1805 the first high hat appeared in Paris. It had a cone shaped crown with straight, converging edges and a narrow, rolling brim. A wide band decorated with a buckle in front finished the first hat. In eleven years the topper underwent considerable change. The crown became decidedly belled, but the brim, band and buckle remained much the same.

By 1840 the real Beau Brummel hat came into fashion. It was a cumbersome affair of heavy, rough beaver that made the wearer look decidedly topheavy. The buckle hung on for eight years, when the crown assumed almost a modern shape, but the brim became flatter. The crown grew in height as years went on until 1860, when the sartorial monstrosity with a tall, straight crown and a narrow flat brim afflicted mankind.

Fortunately the "war time" topper was short lived. It had undergone a radical change in shape in five years. The hat of 1865 was more like that of today than the silk hat of 1870, when the brim became narrower once more. In thirty years the silk hat has undergone few changes until today, when the tendency appears to be again toward a flat brim and a tall, slightly belled crown. The silk hat of the present time is not much unlike its ancestor of the period of 1816.

The crowd was a thoroughly representative one of Union county's best people.

"The white dove of peace" is a little soiled just now, but better things are hoped for.

Editor Baxter, of the Hoboken Inquirer, was among those who smiled with Plainfield.

Assemblyman Randolph Perkins also expressed his pleasure over the auspicious opening.

Nine hits, including a two bagger, is something to be proud of. Waller could not stem the tide.

There were not little "black men" about the Plainfield team. Manager Daab had them cut out.

Manager Denman failed to smoke his "pipe of peace." Wonder if it had any effect on the game?

Cosgrave will be here for the second battle. With his coaching the contest will be a lively one.

A crank bet Cregan wouldn't make a hit. "Pete" repudiated the distinction of being a weak batter.

Manager Daab was well pleased with the opening, and he wore the "smile that won't come off."

The glad hand was extended. Over the wagon entrance to Recreation Park was a sign, "Welcome, Plainfield."

Now for the second game on Crescent Oval. May the day be as perfect as on Saturday and the result as Satisfactory.

"Jack" O'Neil left Montreal Friday and rode all night to be here in time for the game. His work was of the best behind the bat and with the stick.

"Kid" Dalton made good, and he will undoubtedly be a fixture. He has the proper action. His fielding was perfect and with the stick he had the goods.

Manager Denman states that the series is now on for fair, and he intends to come to Plainfield next Saturday and win. He says that he will present the same lineup as on Saturday, having every confidence in his team.

It was the first opportunity that the fans had of seeing "Willie" Deegan put on steam, and he pitched magnificent ball. He was one of the idols of his many admirers, while the rest of the team received its share of praise.

The West Ends, a newly organized ball team, comprised of lads living in the West End of the city, played a team from Scotch Plains on Saturday, the home aggregation being defeated by a score of 6 to 1. Randolph and Boyle formed the battery for the West Ends, and Johnston and Duffy for Scotch Plains.

They Know the Town.

The proprietors of the Sautelle-Welsh Brothers shows are aware of the fact that Plainfielders will pay almost any price to see a circus. When the aggregation exhibited here last week the price of admission for adults was fixed at fifty cents. At Bayonne and Elizabeth, where it appeared Friday and Saturday, the highest price was a quarter.

The Next Excursion.

The next excursion to Asbury Park will be that of the First Baptist church and Faith chapel on Thursday. A clear day is promised and everyone will enjoy the refreshing sea breezes off the Atlantic.

Just at present we envy Peary more than Rockefeller.

By the way, where was Waller's "third-rail delivery" on Saturday?

Congratulations to Philip Daab and his aggregation. May they make it ten straight!

At any rate, give credit to the Trenton State Gazette for doing the best it can to prevent the people giving Colby the praise he deserves.

Two more donations to the King's Daughters' baby camp were received by The Daily Press today. One is from the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church and the other from three little misses who gave a lawn party to help the cause. The contributions to date will be found on page one.

Little girls or boys who wish to help in the baby camp work can do so in no better way than by holding a porch party. Adorn the porch with Japanese lanterns and make the place look inviting. Ask your parents to contribute ice cream, cakes and lemonade and then invite the neighbors. The names of all girls and boys conducting these parties will be published and their contributions to the camp will be acknowledged.

There's a cure for the troubles which the New Brunswick Home News recites in the following editorial:

One of the annoyances which managers of newspapers have to contend with is for people to rush to the office of the newspaper when any of their friends get in trouble and request that no mention be made of the matter, or that the names of the accused be left out. One such instance occurred in this city this week, where, at the urgent request of prominent people, the names of four young men were omitted out of consideration for their aged parents or for some other reason. After this the names of the offenders appeared in a Trenton paper, with all the particulars of their offense. Then people ask why the New Brunswick papers were so slow? In Elizabeth this week a lady committed suicide in her bathroom, and the papers there the next day came out saying that the lady had died suddenly, with no other particulars. Reporters were refused information, and even the authorities delayed issuing the usual death certificate. Now the details of the suicide are being printed, and the news which the public had a right to get is being doled out. Newspaper managers are not hard hearted, but their duty is to print the news. Suicide is a crime against society, and there is no good public reason for suppressing the facts, even though the suicide is demented at the time of the commission of the crime. Some people delight in throwing every possible obstacle in the way of the reporter who is sent out to investigate and secure the facts in such cases.

Remedy—Publish everything that's news and is fit to print, and tell your friends that if their requests were granted there wouldn't be any newspapers. If they try to suppress the information desired, "spread" on the story.

ANXIOUS TO BETTER CO. K'S MARKMANSHIP

TO GIVE SPECIAL ATTENTION TO THE LESS PROFICENT.

Notwithstanding the high place in rifle practice heretofore held by Company K, the officers have determined to do all in their power to better it this season by a new method.

The plan generally followed by company officers is to get the men of their command who show a natural proficiency in shooting, down to the State range as much as possible each year so that they can qualify as many as possible for the higher grades, as sharpshooter and expert.

This scheme has the defect of passively discouraging the man who, it may be has no objection to target practice other than the low score he usually makes, an objection which is weakened by every day's honest practice and which is bound to disappear in time. A man who knows that he is liable to make a low score at Sea Girt, it is said, is much less interested in sparing the necessary time from his regular business that the fellow who is used to seeing the figure 5 marked up for most of his shots.

There is another point to sending every man in the command to Sea Girt at least once during the season, and it lies in the fact that the percentage of the company is figured by the department of rifle practice on the basis of 200 points for each expert in the company, 150 for each sharpshooter, 100 for each marksman, 75 for each first class marksman, 50 for each second class marksman, and 10 for each third class marksman; the only man who has a rating that doesn't count something is the fourth class marksman, the fellow who doesn't care enought about the standing of his company to boost it ten points by going to the State range once each season. In other words, if fifteen men out of a company see fit to neglect target practice during the summer, they are costing the company 150 points on their percentage and that is equal to the loss of a sharpshooter. Every man who goes, even though he fails to qualify as a second class marksman, is rated as a third class man and helps the company by ten points.

In addition to this there is always the chance that among the apparently unpromising material, there are one or two good shots in disguise, waiting for a little persistent practice to show them what they are really capable of.

Special Music at First Baptist.

The special musical service attracted a large congregation to the First Baptist church last night. Prior to the sermon by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, the choir rendered special selections, with solo parts by the mixed quartette. After the sermon a portion of the oratorio Elijah was given, in which a quartette comprised of Miss Louella C. Harris, Mrs. Robert Giddes, sporanos; Mrs. F. M. Ward and Miss Nan Randolph, contraltos, sangs some of the parts, and George Smith and William Holmes also had solos. The choir was under the direction of E. J. Fitzhugh, with Howard Case at the organ. The work of the choir was fully up to the standard, showing careful training.

To Administer Wallace Estate.

J. Herbert Case, treasurer and a director of the Plainfield Trust Company, has been appointed substitute administrator of the estate of the late Samuel A. Wallace, of North Plainfield. Judson Voorhees, of Cranford, who was nominated and who qualified under the will, died very suddenly before executing the trust, and Mr. Case's appointment was the result of a petition to the court by the widow and legatees for and administrator to qualify and administer the estate under the original terms of the will. Mr. Case has given bonds to the court for $2,500.

With a gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, funeral services were held yesterday afternoon over the body of Miss Harriet R. Rockwell at the home of her parents on East Front street. Rev. Arrangements are now on for matches for the Cedar Brooks against the Park Club, Plainfield Country Club and the Westfield Club. These matches will be both in singles and doubles. IN THE METROPOLIS

"BATTERY DAN FINN" ON POLICE COURT BENCH.

SOME QUEER CHARACTERS

New York Justices and Magistrates—Old Leaders of Tammany Physical Giants—Columbia College and Her Professors.

NEW YORK.—New York, which dearly loves a "character," will hail the advent upon the police court bench of "Battery Dan Finn." With "Bat" Masterson as a deputy United States marshal, "Big Bill" Devery as an unofficial critic and commentator upon all things, the leader of the "Paul Kelley gang" writing for the papers, and "Tom Lee," mayor of Chinatown, rendered for once voluble by the pistol feuds among his people, the "picturesque local color" men on the daily press will have no lack of opportunities.

Mayor McClellan has been a plenty criticized for appointing a man like "Battery Dan" to any kind of a judgeship; really he might have done worse. His honor has lived a lifetime down among the rough and ready roustabouts that load ships for far voyages, and what he doesn't know about human nature is hardly worth knowing. In common with the other Tammany leaders, he has a wonderful memory for faces, and an invincible kindliness for the erring. Upon his first day on the bench he announced his "policy" in a "message" to the court attaches and personal friends, who had piled $300 worth of rare orchids on his desk. He said that he thought when a man had been locked up over night for drunkenness he had been punished enough; at any rate, that further punishment would fall upon his family, rather than himself. Nineteen times out of twenty that is true.

A city magistrate in New York gets $7,000 a year. A municipal court justice, practically a justice of the peace, gets $6,000 a year. These are good salaries for obscure men. The justices must be lawyers; the magistrates need not be. But they are supposed to have common sense and knowledge of men.

There is apt to be some queer character of strongly marked personality upon both benches. Before "Battery Dan" was the great "Pat Divver." Pat was the champion beefsteak eater of the city, with a record of 11 pounds at a sitting. Ex-Mayor Van Wyck once ate seven pounds. Divver was a mountain of a man, rich from saloon keeping. The salary of the post was nothing to him. It is nothing to "Battery Dan." The honor and the chance of showing mercy occasionally to an erring mortal are dearly prized.

How Divver Met His Waterloo.

DIVVER forgot to show mercy once; hence his fall. It was when some men of his district were threatened with jail for voting not wisely but too well and often upon one day. The case against them was pretty strong, and the hounds of reform were on their trail. It was "Pat's" duty as a district leader to succor the poor lads who had "done nothin' but help a friend win an election." It was his duty as a magistrate to frown on lawbreaking. He went to California. Then the present Senator Foley, younger, less wealthy, less capacious of steak, slipped into the breach and helped the men all he could, which was not enough. But he got the leadership of the district, and Divver was never able to get it away from him again, though he spent money like water. The murderous riotings and shootings of the rival Eastman and Kelley gangs in that part of the city rose from these exciting and profitable contests for party supremacy.

Well, that was the end of Divver. But before Divver was Hogan, a kindly man with an accent which his admirers never called a brogue; and before him was Duffy, of Goatville. Harlem was Goatville in Duffy's day. Since the Subway ran, Harlem is covered with ten-story flats, and the goats have "moved on."

The Leaders of the Gang.

THE average Tammany district leader is a mountain of a man physically. When Edward M. Shepard, the ablest democratic leader in the state, was nearly ruined politically by being run for mayor by Tammany, it was a mirth-provoking sight to see his slight and slender figure sandwiched in consultation among the giants of the Tammany general committee. Physical strength and daring counted with all these men in the beginning. Croker beat out the beginning of his political fortune with his fists in the old "gas house gang." By a curious coincidence, Murphy, the present boss, is the leader for the gas house district, the eighteenth.

The gang leader of the present day is a different kind of man. The old, open, free-fighting ways of the Bowery when it was an Irish street are gone, and for the worse. Modern methods are more to the knife and the pistol. I suppose that people who have read the realistic stories of "Chuck" Connors," the self-styled "white mayor of Chinatown," imagine him as a plug-ugly fellow six feet tall, and half as wide and thick. In fact, he is a little weazened fellow of perhaps five feet, three or four, weak in physique and "nuttin' on de scrap." He does talk like his published "interviews," and he is the original of "Chimmie Fadden," so far as that gentleman needed an original.

Paul Kelley and Monk Eastman are the leaders of the two most famous gangs of to-day, each bearing its leader's name. Each is a small man, though full enough of desperate fighting pluck. Neither will ever shine politically. Kelley is a full-blooded Italian, with a long name too cumbersome for the firing line of gangdom. Once in his boyhood he was hauled into a prize fighting club and pitched out upon the stage. "What is your name?" his introducer asked. The lad had a ready wit. "Paolo Kelley," he replied; the latter name stuck, especially after he "licked" his opponent; the former was simplified. "Monk" Eastman is a native American, but degenerate. The most famous fight these two gangs ever had was in the early morning, following the great primary in which the "regular" Tammany champion knocked out Bill Devery's man for leader in the "Pump district," where Devery lives. One gang was repeating on one side, the other gang on the other—a thing not possible, by the way, at election. When it was all over both gangs, full of rum and loaded with money, rolled down toward the east side, where they live. There was bound to be a collision. It was a battle. Every man was armed; the wonder was that no more than one man was fatally hurt.

The Deed of a Young Man.

THE Pierreponts are a quiet, land-owning Brooklyn family. One of the finest streets on the Heights is named for them. They were landowners in the days when sixteen families of patrons owned the greater part of New York colony. The town where "Eben Holden" lived is named for them.

A young man of this stock, Rutherford Stuyvesant Pierrpont, has just given to Columbia college $500,000 to build a college hall. He has a very few millions in his own right from a Stuyvesant grandfather. He is 23, a good scholar, although also a good athlete. Fifteen years ago I might have written "because a good athlete," but scholarship and athleticism have both grown more exacting. The gift was to have been anonymous, but there are few young men with $500,000 to spare. The fiction of anonymity is kept up, however. No notice is taken of the published accounts of the young man. He is flooded with begging letters, but no notice has been taken on Columbia campus of him more than of others.

Columbia, with more money than almost any other college, is always poor. It costs $2,500,000 to add a modest slice of land to its campus. It pays its professors from $4,000 up to $10,000 a year, the latter figure going to such men as Brander Matthews and Harry Thurston Peck, who really is an excellent Latin teacher, in spite of writing so much outside. It gives its professors the "sabbatical" seventh year of full vacation, and pensions them when old, without waiting for Mr. Carnegie. Its chemist, Prof. Chandler, its international law expert, John Bassett Moore, its engineering experts, are known the world over. In number of students it lags behind only Harvard.

Devotion to an Ideal.

STETH LOW, not a rich man as things go nowadays, when he was president of Columbia, gave it $1,000,000 to build its great library, one of the finest in the world. This was, perhaps, one-seventh of Mr. Low's fortune. The Pierreponts have been friends of the Low family for years in Brooklyn. The Lows are Salem Yankees, the Pierreponts Huguenot French. Mr. Schermerhorn, who gave Schermerhorn hall, is Dutch by descent. The donor of the only professorship of the Chinese language in the country is of English stock. He gave the money, $100,000, in the name of his Chinese servant, at the time of the outrages committed by the allied powers in and against China in more than retribution of the Boxer outbreak.

Two years ago another young man, Marcellus Hartley Dodge, with his aunt, gave $300,000 to Columbia to found the first great dormitory. Its walls are rising now. Is there any other great university in the world that has to build ten-story dormitories to save space on the campus?

Rich men of New York shamefully neglect Columbia, but so long as it owns leasehold real estate that grows rapidly in rental value, and so long as it has alumni like Low, Pierrepont and Dodge, and modest friends like the Milbanks, unknown among the great donors of the Carnegie and Rockefeller class, it will somehow escape the sheriff that always threatens the American college—if you will believe its president.

Notable Women

The Patriotic Wives and Mothers of Japan

The little women of Japan love their country so passionately that for it they would sacrifice every being and every object they hold dear—husbands, brothers and sons—and their own lives first of all and count it joy. There are several instances on record in which in the present war Japanese women have disguised themselves as men and joined the army, their sex only being discovered when they were killed or wounded. One of these heroines served her country as a spy, in this capacity being most successful and fearless. At last she was captured by the Russians and hanged. She met her fate wearing a glorified smile, as though she knew heaven itself was waiting to receive those who died for their country. After her death it was discovered that the body being prepared for the grave was the body of a woman. This was told to the Russian general. In despair, likewise admiration, he exclaimed:

"Great heavens! How can we expect to conquer a people like this?"

Marchioness Oyama.

Japan is today more really democratic socially than the republic of America. Ladies of the highest nobility have none of the top-loftical snobbery that characterizes many of the women of the "new rich" here. Mme. Oyama, wife of the Japanese field marshal, is as single hearted in her patriotism as the humblest woman laborer in the rice fields and thinks herself no greater than this sister in the work for the soldiers at the front.

Stematz Yamakawa, now the wife of General Oyama, was a child during the war which finally drove the shoguns from the throne of Japan. The older sisters of Stematz actually wore armor, prepared to defend their home, which was besieged during the war.

Later brave little Stematz was sent to America to be educated. She was in our country eleven years and was graduated at Vassar. Marchioness Oyama is at the head of an organization formed to collect and forward useful gifts to the beloved soldiers in the field.

Mme. Ioko Okumura.

The mother of Japanese women patriots may be said to be the venerable Ioko Okumura, known and loved through the length and breadth of her native land. She appears to have been one of the first Japanese women to feel a call to modern philanthropic work. Before the war between China and Japan Mme. Okumura went to Korea to do missionary work among the ignorant people of that out of date land.

At the outbreak of the Chino-Japanese war Mme. Okumura returned from Korea and went where she could serve her country directly. She, already a gray haired woman, was in China during the Boxer uprising and was actually with the Japanese advance against the rebels. When a soldier was killed this pious and loving woman attended his funeral and prayed for his departed soul, according to the custom of her people. To see her kneeling in prayer beside the bier of one of their comrades brought tears to the eyes even of rugged Japanese soldiers. After the Boxer rebellion was put down Mother Okumura, as she was now called, went home and organized the Japanese Ladies' Protective association, a national society to take care of the families of soldiers.

Shige Nagai Uriu.

One of the most active of Japan's army of patriotic women is Mme. Uriu, wife of Vice Admiral Uriu. Both Mme. Uriu and her husband were educated in America. Her maiden name was Shige Nagai, and she was the schoolmate of Marchioness Oyama. At the same time Shige Nagai was a Vassar student her future husband was a cadet in the Naval academy.

Day and night the women of Japan work at home for the men in the field. The Ladies' Protective association now numbers 40,000. Instead of bewailing the fact that her husband is called to fight for his country, the brown woman is glad and proud to toil like a slave to support her children while he is away.

MARCIA WILLIS CAMPBELL.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

The men of the house, Frost and Garrison, were accustomed, when the latter was at home, to breakfast together quite early. Then the colonel would drive off to the Ayuntamiento in the walled city, and Frank would mount his pony and ride away to his long day's duties. Later the sisters would have their leisurely breakfast, secure in the protection of the guard, would give their Chinaman chef his orders for the day, and send him off to make such purchases as were possible in the now scanty market. Then reading, writing, receiving callers of their own sex would fill up the morning. There would be a brief siesta after luncheon, an hour or so on the broad veranda overlooking the sparkling bay, then dress and the inevitable drive. Of Armstrong they had seen nothing, heard next to nothing. He was busy with his men over toward East Paco. Of Billy Gray of late they had seen rather too much. On one pretext after another he was now forever coming to the house, and Witchie was beginning to wish that Canker had had his way; but Canker had failed dismally. The witnesses he counted on proved dumb or departed, and it had pleased the general-in-chief to send him with a regiment of infantry and a brace of guns to garrison an important point on an adjacent island, and to tell him that in view of the impossibility of his substantiating his charges against Gray the youngster had some shadow of excuse for his violent outbreak. Rather than bring up a scandal it was best to drop the matter entirely. Gray had been sent to duty with the—teenth before he was thoroughly well, and a good-hearted battalion commander, taking pity on his obvious change for the worse, had found occasion after the first ten days at the front to send him back to quarters in Malate, instead of incessantly on duty along the threatened line toward Singalon church; and while he seldom came in the evening when numbers of visitors were present, the boy had a way of dropping in between three and four, when he could generally count on a few moments, at least, alone with Mrs. Frank. She had nursed him well in his slow convalescence, had made deep impression on his boyish heart, lacerated as he conceived it by a disappointment at home. She had won him to her service, as she thought, until she felt sure he was ready to do almost anything for her sake, then she had put him to the test, and he had failed her. Believing, as she did, that the boy well knew the whereabouts of the alleged deserter, Morton, and his friend, Nita's reckless lover, she had counted on him to wring from them the letters poor Latrobe declared he still possessed; but the three weeks had passed without a sign, and it was becoming evident to her that Gray had lost track of them entirely.

One brilliant afternoon, as she lay on the broad, cane-bottomed bedstead with its overhanging canopy of filmy netting, she drowsily heard the corporal posting the new sentinel in the marbled corridor below, and then marching the relief to the rear gate opening to the beach. Nita was already up and moving about in her room. Margaret heard the rustle of her skirts and the light patter of her tiny feet as she sped over the hardwood floor of the main salon. She heard her throwing back the sliding shutters that kept out the glare of the sun in the morning hours, and knew that she was gazing out over the tree-dotted lawn toward the gate where the guard lounged through the warm afternoon. All of a sudden, quick and stirring, a bugle sounded over on the Calle Nueva, where the North Dakotas had a strong detachment. The call was repeated, and, army woman though she was, she did not recognize it. She could not remember ever having heard it before. Then up the street, from the engineer barrack, there came thrilling echo, and there was a sound of movement and excitement along the dusty thoroughfare. She heard Nita calling her name, and then the child's quick, nervous step along the hallway toward the stairs. Then came a sudden stop, a gasping, wailing cry, and, springing from her bed and to the door, Margaret found her sister cowering before a tall slender man in the rough dress and field equipment of a private soldier. With a little packet—letters, apparently—held forth in one hand, while the other grasped her wrist, Rollin Latrobe stood sternly gazing at the girl shrinking at his feet.

The tableau was over in another second. Springing up the broad marble stairs came Billy Gray, the corporal of the guard at his heels, and Latrobe saw his danger in a flash. Throwing little Gray aside as he would a terrier, the young athlete whirled on the stalwart regular. There was the sound of a crashing blow, followed by a heavy fall. The corporal went rolling down the steps with Latrobe bounding over the tumbling form, and the next instant he had vaulted over the ledge of the open window on the lower floor, and vanished through the gateway to the beach. And now all along the Calle Real the bugles were sounding "To Arms!"

CHAPTER XVI.

That was a wild day in Manila. Far over near the Escolta somebody shot at a vagrant dog lapping water from a little pool under one of the many hydrants. The soldier police essayed an arrest; the culprit broke and ran; the guard fired; a lot of coolies, taking alarm, fled jabbering to the river side. The natives, looking for trouble any moment, rushed to their homes. Some soldiers on pass and unarmed tumbled over the tables and chairs in the Alhambra in their dash for the open street. A stampede sergeant told a bugler to sound to arms, and in the twinkling of an eye the call was taken up from barrack to barrack, and the news went flashing out by wire to the extreme front. The shopkeepers hastily put up their shutters and bolted their doors. Cabs, carts, quilez and carromattas—even the street cars—were instantly seized by the soldiery scattered all over town, and utilized to take them tearing back to join their regiments. In five minutes the business streets downtown were deserted. Chinese cowered within their crowded huts. The natives, men and women, either hid within the shelter of their homes or fled to the sanctuary of the many churches. All over the great city the alarm spread like wildfire. The battalions formed under arms, those nearest the outer lines being marched at once to their positions in support, those nearer the walled city waiting for orders. Foreign residents took matters more coolly than did the Asiatic; German phlegm, English impassiveness and Yankee devil-may-care-ishness preventing a panic. But those who had families and owned or could hire carriages and launches were not slow in seeking for their households the refuge of the fleet of transports lying placidly at anchor in the bay, where Dewey's bluejackets shifted their quids, went coolly to their stations and, grouped about their guns, quietly awaited further developments. In an agony of fear Col. Frost had bidden his driver to lash the ponies to a gallop and go like the wind to Malate; but the appearance of the long ranks of sturdy infantry resting on their arms and beginning to look bored, measurably reassured him before he reached his home. Once there, however, the sight of Nita, clinging hysterically to her sister and moaning on her bed, was sufficient to determine his first move, which was to wire for his launch to come around to the bay shore and take them off to the fleet. The next was to send and ask for an officer and 20 men from the Cuartel, on receiving which message the major commanding, standing on the dusty roadway in front of his men, grinned under his grizzled mustache and said: "Frost's got 'em again. Here, Gray, you go over and tell him to keep his hair on, that it's nothing but a fake alarm." And Gray, glad enough of the chance to go again into the presence of the woman who so fascinated him, sped on his mission. He was in a fury over his recent humiliation in her very sight—he, a commissioned officer, tossed aside like a child and outwitted by this daring intruder in the shape of a private soldier—he and his guard brushed away and derided by a young fellow in some strange regiment—who had easily escaped along the beach to an adjoining inclosure into which he darted and was no more seen. The streets were full of scurrying soldiers, and it was the simplest thing in the world for him to mingle with them and make his way to his own command. Of course, Gray well knew who the man must be—Nita's troublesome lover of whom Witchie had told him so much. There was his chance to recover the letters and claim the reward; but man and letters both had escaped his grasp; and when he pulled up, blown and exhausted after fruitless chase, he was brought to his senses by the sight of his own men falling in "for business," and he had to scamper for his sword and join them.

Start for North Pole.

New York, July 17.—While every form of craft whistled a godspeed, and hundreds of men, women and children lustily cheered it and its crew, the polar ship Roosevelt lifted anchor yesterday afternoon off West Thirty-fourth street and steamed gayly down the bay. Commander Peary, with a delegation of the Arctic Club, stood amidships bowing to the plaudits that came fro mall sides of the river. It was exactly 3:15 o'clock when she lifted anchor, and less than two hours later she had passed Quarantine.

STREET CAR SANITATION
Disease Spread by Lack of Proper Ventilation in Cars.

In the course of his inquiries as to the possible spread of diseases over the country through the unsanitary condition of railroad passenger and street cars, Surgeon General Wyman, of the United States Marine Hospital Service at Washington, has received a large number of letters from health officers of the various states and cities. From these letters it appears to be the almost unanimous opinion among health officers that many diseases are contracted by the traveling public through breathing vitiated air in the cars, or by the reception into their systems of disease germs from others infected. Especially is this said to be true of the "white plague."

From these letters it also appears that health boards and health officers in almost all parts of the country are making strennous efforts to remedy this great evil, but that they are hampered in their efforts by the lack of legislation. Only one or two states have laws giving authority to the health boards to enforce sanitary rules and regulations on the railroads. In some other states the health officers have undertaken this good work without waiting for legislation.

All of the health officers who have written upon this question recognize the importance of the subject and express an earnest willingness to aid in every possible way to protect the public health by enforcing rigid regulations. On the question of the ventilation of street and passenger cars, Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the Indiana tSate Board of Health, writes:

"Its importance can hardly be exaggerated. Indianapolis has good street cars and very satisfactory service, but the ventilation is not good. I never think of riding in the inside of the cars, but always stand out on the platform, even in cold weather, because the air inside is always so extremely foul. It is my opinion that the people are more to blame for this condition than the street car company. As you know, the only method for venitlating street cars is by the ventilators in the roof and by the windows and doors. No passenger will permit a window to be lowered, and if doors are held open for even a moment, some one will rise and close them. The same is true in regard to the ventilators in the roof. I have repeatedly opened these ventilators only to see them immediately closed again by some other passenger. The street railway authorities will give orders to their conductors to keep the ventilators open, but passengers will close them.

"The problem of car ventilation is a most difficult one. Cars have been termed 'houses on wheels.' In these moving houses space is at a high premium, and to keep them supplied with sufficient pure air for the crowded occupants is a matter of extreme difficulty. Indeed, so difficult is the problem, I do not believe that cars can be thoroughly ventilated without creating drafts and without, in cold weather, lowering the temperature below comfortable endurance. Passable ventilation will doubtless be some day secured."

IN THE SHOPS.

"Jack" Collins, of the West End, has secured a position in a shop at Carteret.

Ferdinand Meyer has resigned his place at the Rushmore shop in order to take one at the Pederick & Ayer plant.

Harry Keen, of the Levering & Garrigues plant, is kept from work by a crushed finger, sustained in an accident last week.

Jens Claassen, an employe at Ponds, has a crushed finger through getting it caught in gear teeth. He will be detained from work for a short time.

SNAP SHOTS.

Nobody needs to be urged to take front seats in theatres, but the tendency among church goers is to get as far away from the platform as possible. How unwise this is, is shown by W. J. Moser in the following meaty paragraph: Take front seats. They may be a cross to some, but it will bring its reward. It is the place for listening, and it commits one to a definite testimony before men and devils. It helps to stimulate one to a bold and aggressive spiritual position, it encourages the leader, it makes room for late comers and timid people who are not accustomed to church-going. The back seat often means physical timidity, then spiritual cowardice, then a backslidden state, and at last the withdrawing from the church entirely.—Ex.

J. B. Corey Bothered by People Who Seek Rockefeller's Aid.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 17.—"I am in almost daily receipt of letters from ministers and others asking me to use my influence to procure them an audience with Mr. John D. Rockefeller, or to get them some of that so-called 'tainted money.' I have known Mr. Rockefeller for thirty-five years, and have just written him a long letter explaining the peculiar requests that I am receiving, but assuring him that I will do nothing toward bringing any of these persons close to him. I am opposed to fakirs, whether they be preacher fakirs or other kinds."

J. B. Corey, of Braddock, made this remark at his home yesterday when asked for information regarding his long acquaintanceship with Mr. Rockefeller, whose recent attempts to give large sums of money to church affairs have brought forth much comment.

The selection of the machines is not limited to the kind now in use, and any machine which presents advantages in construction or price may receive the contract.

IN LETTER TO REPUBLICAN CLUB RUNYON ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY

City Judge Consents to Stand For State Senatorial Nomination.

STATES HIS POSITION

Wants No Factionalism — Club Has the Right Ideals, He Says— Its Constitution Adopted.

Meeting for the second time in the rooms of the Arion Club on North avenue, last night, a large number of local voters completed the organization of a Republican club and had read to them a letter from City Judge William N. Runyon, in which he joins with them in their stand for clean politics and becomes their candidate for the Senatorial nomination. His acceptance was greeted with applause and the enthusiasm of the gathering was almost doubled. The letters is as follows:

HENRY L. HALL,
President Plainfield Republican Club.

CITY JUDGE WILLIAM N. RUNYON.

"Mr. Henry L. Hall,
"Plainfield, N. J.

"My Dear Mr. Hall:

"I beg to submit herewith a statement regarding my position with reference to the Union county Senatorial nomination, and an outline of my views concerning the Republican organization effected Friday evening last.

"In the matter of the Senatorship, I should have been extremely glad to do all in my power for Mr. Fisk or Mr. Gilbert, had either gentleman decided to accept Plainfield's support for the nomination, because I, in common with all others, regard them both as pre-eminently qualified to discharge the duties of the office with great credit, not only to themselves, but to the county and State. Inasmuch, however, as both gentlemen have declined the honor, leaving the field practically open, and inasmuch as I have been repeatedly and sincerely urged to allow the use of my name in this connection, I have decided to accede to the many requests which have been made, announce my candidacy for the nomination for Senator, and leave all else in the hands of those who may desire the accomplishment of this end, asking of my friends, both in and out of this organization, but one thing, that my candidacy be carried out upon absolutely fair and square lines, and that whether success or failure attend your efforts, no slightest suggestion of taint or trickery attach to our actions.

"To the objects of the new organization as explained by you I most heartily subscribe. I believe that a well managed association, having in view only the highest and purest motives, and resolved to accomplish them only by the highest and purest means, must command the respect and support of every right-thinking citizen of Republican preferences, and I shall be very proud to join and help further, so far as I can, the interests of such an organization in my native city.

"I agree with you entirely, however, that this organization must not start with the idea of engendering factionalism in Plainfield, but have for its avowed and sole object the nomination and election of the best men for every office. An association espousing any sort of factionalism will soon become a house divided against itself, and worse than useless, whereas, if continued along the lines as now projected in your association, it cannot fail to militate toward making our Plainfield Republicanism akin to that which existed when the party was formed.

"Thanking you most heartily for the confidence reposed in me as implied by your committee's message, and with a firm resolve to prove myself at all times worthy of it, I beg to remain,

"Very truly yours,
"WM. N. RUNYON.

"Plainfield, N. J., July 17, 1905."

The new organization is to be known as the Plainfield Republican Club and on Friday evening of this week, the enrollment of members will commence. According to the constitution as adopted last night, its objects are: To advocate, promote and maintain the principles of Republicanism as communicated by the Republican party; to direct and interest in politics those who have more or less indifferent to their political duties; to encourage attendance at the caucus or primary meetings, in order that honest and capable men may be nominated; to guard and defend the purity of the ballot box, and to perform such other work as may best conserve the interests of the Republican party, nationally and locally, thereby exerting the most potent influence in behalf of good government.

The meeting was in charge of Henry L. Hall, of Netherwood, elected president last week, who told of the committee calling upon Judge Runyon to secure his consent to stand with the promotors.

"We told him," said Mr. Hall, "that the organization was not formed for the purpose of promoting factionalism, as stated in Saturday's issue of the Courier-News, but to purify politics. We also said that his candidacy for the Senatorial nomination would have to stand on lines as broad as those of the organization, that we wanted clean politics to represent the young men of Plainfield and the best men of Plainfield. He told us that he was under obligations to no one and suggested that he write the letter giving his views."

Following the reading of the letter, the following motion was made by C. T. Elliott and unanimously adopted: "Resolved, That Judge Runyon's letter be accepted and that he be our candidate for senator and that we pledge our hearty support to his candidacy."

The remainder of the session was devoted to the transaction of general business, during which Joseph M. Shellabarger was appointed a member of the executive committee.

TESTING THE AUTO LAW

Mr. Rushmore Arrested For Not Stopping Machine When Nearing Balky Horse.

TRIAL ON FRIDAY.

A. C. or A. May Back Him—C. K. Vincent, the Complainant— In Justice Clark's Court.

Taking advantage of the sixth section of the new automobile law, which states that the failure of a person to stop running a machine when signalled to by an officer or driver of a spirited horse may be construed as a violation, the Scotch Plains authorities will arraign S. W. Rushmore, of this city, on Friday night before Justice Clark on that charge. It is the first time in Union county that this section has been enforced, and the outcome will be watched closely by auto owners.

The specific complaint against Rushmore, who is the head of the dynamo works on South avenue, is preferred by Charles K. Vincent, of Fanwood. He alleges that while out driving with his family on July 4 he was compelled to stop on Westfield avenue, Graceland, because of one of his horses throwing a boot. While fixing it an automobile loomed up in the distance, going at record-breaking speed, and Vincent's team began plunging about. He signalled the autoist to stop, but his warning was ignored, the machine flying by him, scaring his horses almost beyond control and endangering the lives of the carriage occupants.

Mr. Vincent did not know the identity of the machine driver, but he caught the registry number and determined to follow the matter up. The Secretary of State furnished Rushmore's name and the warrant for his arrest was secured. When brought before Justice Clark the defendant asked for an adjournment of the hearing, and it was put over until Friday night at 7:30.

The case promises to rival the famous legal wrangle between Fanwood township and Hermann Unger, the Newark millionaire, who was fined $25 by Justice Clark for exceeding the speed limit for automobiles. An appeal was taken and the matter dragged along for many months, Unger losing in the end. It is said Mr. Rushmore belongs to the Automobile Club of America, and that it has a fund ready to test the legality of the new law.

SPEAK-EASY MAN GETS 7 DAYS AND $20 FINE

RECORDER DOUD PUNISHES MARGENTINO IN RIGHT FASHION.

Chief Marshal Weiss' crusade against illegal liquor selling in the borough led to the arrest of Frank Margentino, of Somerset street, on that charge yesterday. He was arraigned before Recorder Doud last night and pleading guilty, was fined $20 and given seven days in jail as an added reminder that "speak-easies" are not wanted over the brook.

Margentino, who recently returned to the borough from Westfield, conducts a peanut and fruit store on Somerset street opposite Manning avenue. His place has been under surveillance for several weeks, and yesterday Chief Weiss landed a couple of drunks who had bought their "red eye" of the proprietor in the rear part of the store. They agreed to stand by their testimony, and the arrest followed.

HEAT ALMOST UNBEARABLE

Thermometer at Pond's This Morning Stood at One Hundred Degrees.

FEW PROSTRATIONS.

Temperature Yesterday Afternoon Was 97 Degrees—Moulders Compelled to Quit Work.

Despite the unusual torrid condition of the weather during the past days from which Plainfield is suffering with the rest of the country, there have been very few cases of heat prostration. The only place reported where it was necessary to stop work is in the foundry at the Pond Machine Tool Works. Yesterday there were seven slight prostrations from the heat and this morning three more men were similarly affected. Owing to the very heavy casting work in the foundry the one hundred moulders were obliged to quit this morning. The other men in the foundry, as well as the entire force in the main shop, have had no trouble in working, although the heat has been bad. The thermometer at Pond's this morning showed a temperature of almost 100 degrees.

No trouble has been experienced at the Potter Printing Press Works or the Walter Scott Printing Machine Works, the full force being employed. At Potter's shop at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the temperature was 97 degrees.

All during the night the temperature remained at an uncomfortable height and there was little sleep or rest for humanity. The weather reports gave no hope of a change today and today the conditions fairly exceed those of yesterday for extreme heat. At the drug store of Cadmus Brothers, Watchung and North avenues, the mercury reached 92 degrees. The one at Armstrong's drug store at Park and North avenues showed 96 degrees, and at Schreiner's drug store at Park avenue and Second street the highest record was shown, 98 degrees. All of these records were taken in the shade, and fairly indicate the intense heat. The official record was a few degrees lower than 97, but it is the temperature in the street that interests and affects most folks, and they give little thought to official figures.

The physicians, who have been so busy treating cases of summer complaint and dysentery, still advise everyone to be extremely careful what they eat and drink while the unusual weather conditions prevail. During the past few days there have been but very few deaths from summer complaints, and the physicians are hoping that the epidemic is about over. There are still many severe cases requiring constant medical attention and in some instances the services of trained nurses are employed.

The plant of the Manganese Safe Company also closed down this morning because of the heat.

Several of the carpenters employed at the new theatre building adopted a novel means of keeping cool while at work. Stationed inside, the heat became unbearable until they divested themselves of all clothing with the exception of trousers and shoes. In this manner they were enabled to continue on the job while other workmen had to quit or suffer.

It was the record breaker of the season for intense heat at Elizabeth. The mercury reached 102 in the shade at Oliver & Drake's signal service station. Nearly all outdoor labor was suspended at noon because of the torrid weather, and in several of the industrial establishments at Elizabethport business was likewise suspended.

The U. S. Weather Bureau last night announced that there was no prospect for several days at least of a let-up in the extreme heat. The entire country from the Mississippi Valley eastward to Southern New England and the Florida coast is in the midst of a well marked midsummer hot spell. The maximum temperatures reported yesterday were as follows: Philadelphia, 96; Chicago, 94; Cincinnati, 94; New York, 94; Detroit, 94; Washington, 93; St. Louis, 92; Pittsburg, 92; Boston, 90.

The thermometer in front of Dudley Miller's pharmacy held the record rise yesterday afternoon. It registered 103 in the shade between 2 and 3 o'clock.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the thermometer registered 98. This is the highest for July 18. In 1893 it was 94; in 1894, 90; in 1900, 97; in 1901, 90.

Overcome by the Heat.

While returning from New York on the Jersey Central last evening Martin B. Stutsman, of East Sixth street, was suddenly overcome by the heat. A physician was summoned and late last night Stutsman was resting easily. Today he has a high fever.

ASSEMBLY POSSIBILITIES

Tillman and Perkins Likely to be Renominated by Republicans.

THE SHRIEVALTY.

Kirkland, Wright, Lawrence and Adams All Have a Chance of Being Nominated for Sheriff —The Outlook.

Warm weather and politics don't go very well together but nevertheless there nas been much discussion concerning the probable candidates of the Republican party in Union county for the Assembly and shrievalty. Plainfield will have no nomination to seek for either of these positions and will support those, it is said, whom the county leaders choose to elect.

Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of Rahway, and Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, will be without opposition but the third man is not decided upon. The Elizabeth regulars selected former City Attorney C. Addison Swift, of that city, but Mr. Swift prefers to hold down his berth on the county election board and will not accept the nomination. Robert M. Kellogg has asked for the nomination but there is considerable opposition to him.

The McKinley Club, of Elizabeth, has a candidate in Lawyer Charles Arthur Trimble. The club is very anxious to have Mr. Trimble, although its president, Robert B. Cissel, has been suggested. Mr. Cissel, when seen by a reporter, said that his name had been suggested without his knowledge and that he had never mentioned the matter to any one. He further stated that he had never given it the least consideration.

There are four candidates for sheriff. They are Captain Robert J. Kirtland, of Elizabeth, William H. Wright, of Rahway, Dr. William H. Lawrence, of Summit, and Freeholder Emmor K. Adams, of Cranford. Elizabeth wants Captain Kirtland, but a local leader thought Dr. Lawrence would be named.

If Captain Kirtland was not a shrievalty candidate, it is very probable Frank C. Stutzlen, of Elizabeth, would be an Assembly candidate. A down-town politician is advocating him at present for coroner.

HIS HEAD IN A WHIRL, GOT BADLY TANGLED UP

TOO MANY MAMIE TAYLORS CAUSE MAN TO BELIEVE HE WAS IN WEST END

Under the impression that he was in West End, near Long Branch, Andrew Currin, of the former place, landed in town from a New Jersey Central train yesterday and engaged a cabman to take him home. His head was in a whirl from a score or more of Mamie Taylors imbibed in New York and he gave the cabby a half dozen different addresses as his destination. When none of them panned out, he discharged the driver and went into a saloon to think it over. Somebody there set him right as to the town he was in, and he started back for the depot, but his feet got tangled so badly that a cop took him in.

To Judge Runyon this morning he said he had gotten on the wrong train at Jersey City and mistook the Plainfield station for the one at West End on the Long Branch road. Currin is an exceedingly dapper looking man under ordinary circumstances, but his night in a cell and the sense of his humiliation made him a sorry appearing figure.

"Judge, your honor," he exclaimed, waiving a little cane about his head, "I was never arrested in my life before, only once, and that was as a suspect in a South American revolution."

He got off with a suspended sentence, and after getting a clean collar at a nearby store, made a hurried dash for the depot.

"BUCK" MARTIN KILLED.

Run Over by a Train and Body Found Near Tracks.

The body of "Buck" Martin, well and unfavorably known to the Somerset county authorities, was found alongside the tracks of the Jersey Central at Somerville about 4 o'clock this morning by the conductor of a westbound freight train. The man had been run over by a train, possibly while stealing a ride.

Martin gained notoriety some time ago when he broke jail at Somerville, being captured afterward in North Plainfield. He had been in jail a number of times.

The body was removed to an undertaking establishment and was there viewed by County Physician S. O. B. Taylor, who issued the necessary burial permit.

CAVE-IN AT NETHERWOOD TUNNEL BURIES GANG OF EIGHT WORKMEN, INJURING FIVE

Jar of Express Train Loosens the Ground, Causing Tons of Earth to Drop.

VICTIMS AT HOSPITAL

Prompt Work of Section Hands Prevented Loss of Life—Remainder of Laborers Refuse to Continue Excavating.

Jarred by the passing of an express train, the earth above the tunnel being excavated under the Jersey Central tracks at the Netherwood station, caved in this morning, burying eight Italian laborers working beneath it. But for the fact that assistance was near at hand several of them would have been killed, the tons of loose sand and gravel hiding them from sight. As it was, five received injuries of more or less consequence that necessitated their removal to Muhlenberg Hospital.

The victims are John Romano, aged twenty, of New York, factured ankle and contusions; Francisco Casado, aged forty, of this city, severe contusions about the hips and possible internal injuries; Zepple Umborto, aged twenty-four, of Elizabeth, abrasions and a slight wound of right elbow; John Manjanco, aged twenty-seven, of Fanwood, abrasions and Agnellow DeLamo, of Elizabeth, contusions and crushed toe. All were suffering from shock but Manjanco and DeLamo left the institution after receiving treatment. The others will be detained at least several days.

The tunel work is being done by the McCloud-Brennan Company, of Elizabeth, and at present is in the early stages. The Italians started boring in from th north side of the tracks, shoring up as they went along. It has been their custom to dig in several feet or more and then jar down the greater part of the earth above, trimming to the height desired. The tracks are at a high elevation at this point and a great deal of ground has been left above, forming an arch. It was this part that dropped suddenly, just where there was no shoring, catching the eight men beneath.

Several other laborers on the outside yelled for assistance and Section Foreman James Hannon's gang, working a short distance away, were hurled to the spot. They soon extricated all but Casado, who was the last one taken out and who was but partially conscious. The three most severely injured were hurried to the hospital in the ambulance and the other two went by trolley.

The cave-in caused a suspension of the tunnel work as the remainder of the Italians refused to continue because of fright. An accident of this nature always means the securing of another gang as without exception, the injury of one will cause the others to quit.

ITALIAN FESTIVAL IS ON

Annual Celebration of Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel.

THREE DAYS' EVENT.

Services at St. Joseph's — Concerts and Fireworks— Street Parade.

With the arrival of Guiseppo Fulcho's Red Roman Band from Brooklyn this morning, the three days' celebration of the Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel was begun in the style which is customary among the sons of Italy.

Hardly less important, and if anything, more eagerly looked for, was the arrival of the fireworks expert from Hoboken. This man brought with him the materials and paraphernalia necessary for the display of tonight and tomorrow night at Concert Park and can be relied upon to handle them with skill and discretion.

The programme of this year's observance includes a procession through the city on the morning of each of the three days covered by the festival. Special services will be held at St. Joseph's R. C. church today and tomorrow, followed by the display of fireworks, during which a varied musical programme will be rendered by the band. On Thursday night a windup in the shape of a third concert will occupy the entire evening, as the fireworks will be used up by that time.

Watchung avenue and East Front street have been decorated by a number of arches which will be illuminated with hundreds of tiny varicolored lamps and under which the procession is to march headed by the band on the way to Concert Park on Watchung avenue.

Arrangements have been made to provide for the comfort of those who choose to come in carriages and automobiles, and they will be placed at as good a view point as they could enjoy from the grand stand itself.

HEAT MADE HER DRINK.

Mrs. George Moore's Load so Heavy She Couldn't Navigate.

With a crowd of at least 100 children hooting and yelling behind her, Mrs. George Moore, of West Fourth street, reeled along East Front street last night, unable to hold up under the effects of too much liquor. She finally sought rest in a hallway, from where she was taken by Chief Kiely and Patrol Driver O'Gorman. Judge Runyon suspended sentence on her in the city court this morning, her plea of extreme heat being responsible for the drinking, receiving credence. Mrs. Moore has been in court several times, one one occasion getting sixty days for drunkenness.

Runaway on Somerset Street.

While driving to their home in Washington Valley yesterday afternoon Mrs. Henry Apgar and her daughter had a narrow escape from serious injury. The women were returning from Plainfield and were going down Somerset street. When in front of the Arlington Hotel the horse made a sudden leap toward a post in front of the hotel and with one jerk freed itself from the harness, breaking loose from the wagon. The horse continued on its mad way down Somerset street. It was caught back of the golf course in the borough. The women were not hurt except for a little shaking up. The horse was badly bruised.

Children to Have Outing.

Miss Sara Curry, matron of the Netherwood Home, went to New York this morning to bring out some more children for the camp. It is thought that about sixty or seventy children will be added. Those who are here now will return to New York as soon as the month is over, to give some other children a chance to get the fresh air.

—Don't think too much about the heat. Spare a little of your thoughts for those delicious Georgia peaches, California, Rocky Ford and Maryland Gem melons at Neuman Brothers.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

After an illness of over a year, Miss Ivy Marsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Marsh, passed away quietly at her home on Myrtle avenue, yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. Her death, while not unexpected, came as a shock to her many friends here who had known her since childhood, loved her for herself and admired her Christianlike character and patience during her long illness. During her residence here she was an active worker in the Baptist church, especially in the Young People's Society. The family has the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement, for Ivy will not only be missed in the home, but among a large circle of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. W. Johnston have returned from their wedding trip, which was spent in New York State, and are living for the present with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Johnston, of Forest avenue.

Briars and underbrush completely cover many of the graves in the Baptist cemetery. Something should be done towards starting a fund to keep this old historic cemetery in a presentable condition.

Mr. and Mrs. James Moffett, who have been residing in the Cook house on Westfield avenue for the past year, have removed to Westfield.

Mrs. William Sharp, of Front street, is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Stephenson, of Oklahoma, for a week.

The local ball team is trying to arrange a game for Saturday with the Somersets, of North Plainfield.

The Misses Shackleton, of Park avenue, have been entertaining out of town friends over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meyers and family removed Saturday to their new home at Watchung.

Ernest Clark, of Bartle avenue, has been detained at home with illness for the past week.

Miss Sadie Lee is entertaining friends from Paterson for a week.

NINETY MINUTE TIME MAY BE IMPACTABLE

IT MEANS 78 MINUTES ACTUALLY BETWEEN PHIA. AND JERSEY CITY.

There is a feeling among some railroad men that the proposed plan of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad to operate hourly trains between Jersey City and Philadelphia on an ninety minute schedule, will not prove a success. They say that allowing twelve minutes for crossing the ferry, leaves but seventy-eight minutes for the run to or from the Quaker City.

According to the present schedule 120 minutes is allowed for the run between the two cities, and eliminating the twelve minutes for the ferry, 108 minutes is taken for the trip. If the new schedule is adopted it will mean a cutting off of thirty minutes in the run, and there are railroad men who look upon the matter as impracticable, yet President Baer, of the Reading, has always been anxious to make the run in ninety minutes.

GEN. MURRAY 42.

Friends Assembled at Sea Girt to Force Him to Celebrate It.

Quartermaster-General C. Edward Murray was forty-two years old yesterday, and in commemoration of the anniversary of his birth he was surprised last evening, when a party of his friends gathered at Sea Girt for the purpose of forcing him into a pleasant celebration of the event. The surprise party was arranged by a party of his friends. Upon arrival at Sea Girt the party saw the daily dress parade of the troops.

Ex-Assemblyman Parslow Dead.

From Saranac Lake, N. Y., word was received at Hoboken yesterday that William N. Parslow, three times coroner of Hudson County and twice a member of the New Jersey Assembly and a leading Democrat, was dead at that place. He had been in poor health for som etime, and he was with his family in the mountains. He was prominent in Masonic and other secret orders.

RUSSIA MAY FIGHT FOR YEARS, WITTE

FEARS JAPAN'S TERMS WILL BE TOO SEVERE.

St. Petersburg, July 18—M. Witte, the senior Russian peace plenipotentiary, received a correspondent at his villa on Yelagin Island at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

After greetings the conversation gravitated quickly to the high mission with which the Russian statesman is charged and the disposition of the foreign press to interpret his appointment as an indication that Russia has decided to make peace at any price.

"No! no!" he said, straightening up in his chair and speaking slowly and distinctly. "In the first place, I have ben designated by the Emperor as his Ambassador Extraordinary for pourpalers with the Japanese plenipotentiaries to ascertain whether it is possible to conclude a treaty of peace. My personal views are of secondary importance, but my ideas are in entire accord with those of my friend, Count Lamsdorff.

GIRLS' HOME MANAGERS HAVE ADOPTED PLANS

ADDITION WILL BE 130 FEET LONG, ACCOMMODATING 30 INMATES.

Plans for the addition to the State Home for Girls, at Trenton, were adopted by the managers of the home at a meeting Saturday afternoon at the summer residence of Mrs. Welling G. Sickel, Spring Lake. Mrs. Sickel is a member of the board, and the managers met at her home by invitation, as several of them are spending the summer in that vicinity.

The plans were drawn by George E. Poole, assistant commisioner of charities and corrections. They were adopted as presented, with the exception of a few minor changes. The new structure will be 130 feet long and built of brick. It will provide accommodations for thirty girls, besides the necessary rooms for administration purposes. The building will cost $45,000.

At the close of the meeting Mrs Sickel entertained the members at luncheon. Those present were President Thomas P. Fay, Long Branch; Mrs. Frederick Johnson, Newark, vice-president; John D. Rue and Thomas B. Holmes, of Trenton, and Mrs. Elizabeth V. Mansell, superintendent of the home.

GOVERNOR STOKES A BAD JUDGE OF WATER

DECIDED ON MERIT OF WRTER FROM TWO SPIGOTS

"I do believe the new water is the colder," said Governor Edward C. Stokes, after sampling drinks from two spigots, labeled "new water" and "old water," at the cigar store of Mark Smith, in Millville.

There has been some contention between the Millville Water Company, which furnishes rain water to the city, and its rival, the People's Water Company, which draws its supply from artesian wells. The product of the former company is known as "old water," and that of the latter as "new water."

When the Governor made his observation, after trying a drink from each of Smith's spigots, a smile went the rounds of the bystanders.

The executive was puzzled until he was told that both spigots tapped the same barrel of ice water. That was Smith's joke.

Battin School Head.

William F. Little, of Stamford, Conn., was elected principal of the Battin High School, at Elizabeth, at a salary of $2,000 a year by the Board of Education Thursday night. Although no provision was made by the board of school estimate in the budget for a principal, the school law permits the Board of Education, according to one member of that body, to use money set aside for one purpose for another appropriation, and under this clause the Board of Education was empowered to cut down some of the expenses for several purposes, and apply them to the salary for the principal of the High School.

High Price for Rare Quarto.

A perfect copy of the fourth quarto edition of Shakespeare's "Tragedie of King Richard the Third" has been sold at Sotheby's, in London, for $8,750 to A. Jackson, and it is understood that it will come to America. The book was printed in 1605 by Thomas Creede, and was sold by Matthewe Lawe, "dwelling in Paule's Church Yard at the signe of the Fox, near S. Austins Gate." It consists of forty-six leaves.

Auto Record Smashed.

Summit House, Mt. Washington, N. H., July 18—Bertholand, driving an F. E. Stanley steam automobile under a pressure of 1,000 pounds of steam, scored wonderful time up Mount Washington yesterday, traveling the eight miles over the wet path and through blinding clouds in 31:06 4-5. This broke the record for cars of that type made by a similar machine last year, and was second in time only to the Harkness record of the last climb, when the road and weather were perfect.

ADOPT PART OF THE COLBY PLATFORM

ESSEX COUNTY COMMITTEE REFUSES REQUEST FOR CANVASS OF VOTERS.

The Essex County Republican Committee, with Chairman Lentz in charge, has refused to give Everett Colby and his committee a copy of the canvass of the Republican voters by a large majority vote. The committee has adopted the resolutions, given below, which were offered by Assistant Attorney General Duffield:

"Whereas, It is not within the province of the Republican county committee of Essex county to endorse candidates or formulate party platforms; and,

"Whereas, The attitude of the Republican county committee of this county on the question of limited franchises and other matters has been misrepresented; and,

"Whereas, Speakers from other counties have been brought into Essex county to instruct its voters how to vote at the primary election; and,

"Whereas, The county commitee is convinced that for the best interests of the Republican party of our county its position in these matters should be made known; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we recommend to the Republican voters of Essex county to elect at the coming primary election delegates to the county convention who are in favor of and will sustain in the convention the following principles:

"First—That a law be enacted at the next session of the Legislature which shall prohibit the granting of franchises for a longer period than twenty-five years, unless the people of the municipality or municipalities affected shall decide otherwise by vote.

"Second—That all franchises shall be taxed on their gross receipts for the benefit of the local municipalities, and we await the report of the franchise commission for such further action as the interest of the people may demand.

"Third—All railroad property, with the exception of the main stem, the personal property used to operate the same and the franchises thereof, is now taxed at local rates and for local purposes. This has been brought about by a Republican Legislature. We favor that the main stem (being no more than 100 feet), the personality to operate the same, and its franchises, shall be taxed by the State as the needs of the State may require, and that taxes so collected shall be used for the public schools of this State. The board of equalization of taxes of New Jersey has had the question of rate referred to it by the Legislature for action, and recommendation. We await their report for further action in that matter.

"Fourth—We are in favor of the abandonment of the Morris canal, upon such terms as will protect the State's and all private interests.

"Fifth—We are in favor of some action to clean the Passaic river and prevent pollution.

"Sixth—No municipality in this county shall be destroyed by annexation except upon the vote of the people of such municipality, and that upon a vote adverse to annexation being given there shall be no further vote until after the expiration of five years.

"Seventh—We recommend that the county convention name its choice for United States Senator, so that the people may express their choice through their votes for the Legislative ticket."

LITERARY.

We hope there will soon be fewer with salaries like those of Senator Depew, and fewer corporations which seek to have their lawyers in the Legislature. "Old-fashioned honesty," Mr. Cleveland says, but he must be referring to some period before the Civil War. Americans are now endeavoring to halt a plunging commercial practical activity of the nation after '65. In a sense we are a new nation from that date. President Elliot has spoken of business as one of the learned professions, and so, in many of its divisions, it is coming to be. Miss Tarbell, in the latest of her Rockefeller studies, draws some graphic features of the most discouragingly successful money-grabber in the world. It is not a pretty picture, composed as it is of greed, cruelty, and disgusting piety. "According as you put something in," he observed to a Cleveland Sunday-school, "the greater will be your dividends of salvation." But he is not the type of business man who represents the future. His like are on the wane. The responsibilities and opportunities of money are becoming more widely understood, and its mere rapacious accumulation tends every day more to become a source of shame.—Collier's, July 15, 1905.

Mr. and Mrs. John Turner, of Newark, former Plainfield residents, have been visiting local friends.

Miss A. E. Lincoln, of West Fourth street, will return Friday after a two weeks' stay at Asbury Park.

Mrs. David Bowden, of West Fourth street, left yesterday for Asbury Park to spend two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Watts, of West Sixth street, have gone to Lake Placid, N. Y., to spend their vacation.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION

The County Situation.

The death of Assemblyman E. S. Corne ended a promising career and removed one of the most popular figures in Republican organization circles in Union county. While his career as member of Assembly had not been brilliant and while he was not of the class of legislators who could be regarded as statesmen, he was nevertheless a careful, conscientious representative and was broader and more liberal than the average Union county Republican who succeeds in securing office. The effect of his untimely death on the political situation in the county is a problem that will probably require some weeks to solve. He was regarded as in line for promotion to the Senate, and while he was not an avowed aspirant for the nomination, the wide circle of friends desiring to honor him would almost certainly have necessitated consideration of his name when the time comes for nominations.

As the situation in the county is at present Dr. Lawrence appears to be far and away in the lead for the nomination for sheriff. The duplicity of the local machine, that is backing his fight for the nomination may result in his being defeated, but at the present time his chances for the coveted nomination are brighter than those of any other candidate suggested. In referring to the duplicity of the machine we do not mean a possibility of a break from Dr. Lawrence, for that is out of the question, but its double dealing with John A. Hicks last year seems certain to result in a division here that may injure Dr. Lawrence's prospects.

Had the machine and those who put Franklin forward as its spokesman in last year's convention been straightforward and honorable in its dealings with Major Hicks there is little doubt that this year the party could have gone into the fight for Dr. Lawrence or any other candidate agreed upon so strong and united that the success of that candidacy would be practically assured. On the question of a Senatorial candidate the Republicans seem to be still at sea, and of the three or four names seriously considered thus far each has declined to stand for the nomination.—Summit Record.

Gambling in Union.

Judge Vail declares that he is determined to put a stop to gambling in this county. That such a determination is needed to successfully handle the situation has been painfully evident for many moons. The county may lay claim to quite a number of roadhouses conducted principally for the purposes of affording the gaming element an opportunity to play their sport. Nor can it be said that these practices have been carried on very quietly. Usually, the entire neighborhood and, in some cases, it seems, the local authorities are fully aware of what is going on. If the neighbors are complaisant, easy going individuals, and the local ojcials no less so, those who run these resorts are enabled to do so without interference until the county intervenes directly. The next Grand Jury could well devote a very busy session to a special investigation along these lines. It used to be necessary for the gamesters to travel to Newark or New York to enjoy their particular kind of recreation. That is no longer necessary, provided they are satisfied with playing for comparatively small stakes. But Union county can hardly afford to be known as a comfortable abiding place for even the petty characters.—Elizabeth Evening Times.

Mr. Crane's Error.

Sam Crane, one of the most prominent baseball writers in the country, suggests that if Jack Warner, catcher of the St. Louis team, desires to do the "kangaroo," he need "only cross the river to Daab's club." In this Mr. Crane is in error. The Hoboken Club is not an outlaw organization and has no intention of becoming one. Jack O'Neill is the catcher and can remain such as long as he cares to, for his excellent work is greatly appreciated by the local fans as well as by the management.

Hoboken is not a haven for disgruntled players, as Mr. Crane terms those who have just grievances; neither is there any desire or need for the Hoboken Baseball Club to harbor blacklisted or ineligible men on its team. At no time did the Hoboken team contain ineligible ball players. Linderman's case has always been misunderstood. He never should have been placed on the ineligible list, and if it were not for the expense a law suit would have entailed, this matter would have been made plain several years ago.

Baseball law is one thing and so long as ball players subscribe to it they must adhere to its rulings. Organized baseball is an excellent thing; in fact, a necessity, but for independent clubs the protection guaranteed is something no national commission under existing rules are able to give.

Owing to the lack of proper protection, the Hoboken Club's management resigned from the National Agreement, but not for the purpose of stealing players from the ranks of "organized baseball." The ball team is intact and if it continues playing the excellent game it now plays, it will remain so for the rest of the season.

—The general appearance of the Trenton-Jersey City trolley cars is disgraceful. They look as though several coats of paint were needed to put them in good condition.

Owing to an injury to his foot, Jimmie Beisel is detained at home.

Westfield played good ball, but was just a little outclassed in the finer points of the game.

Joe Wall, formerly of Hoboken, is now covering first base for Lowell, of the New England League.

All the tickets were sold out at Recreation Park on Saturday and the old ones had to be used over again.

The "knockers" who said that Plainfield-Westfield games were fixed, have dropped into oblivion, likewise the local cranks who bet on Westfield.

Baseball experts declare that Lewis, of the Brooklyn Nationals, is a second Hans Wagner, and one of the finest players that has come to the league in years.

Madison, of the Lackawanna League, is down and out. This team formerly played at Phillipsburg, was recently transferred to Madison and now cannot get proper support. The team has won one contest and lost twelve.

The Philadelphia Nationals has signed Ritchie, of Williamsport, the best twirler in the Tri-State League. His best point is his perfect control. He does not average a base on balls a game and uses high speed with a variety of curves.

To really appreciate the kind of baseball Plainfield is enjoying this season, the fans should see some of the Lackawanna League contests. On Saturday, Orange A. C. made thirteen errors, four of which were charged to Freedburg on third base.

DEVILTREE DISQUALIFIED.

Committed No Foul, but Was Disqualified Because Her Mate Did.

Not more than once or twice in the last twenty years has it come to pass that when a horse commits a palpable foul and is disqualified, the punishment includes another horse innocent of any wrong. But that is what occurred at the Brighton Beach track yesterday. Snow, racing in the name and colors of W. H. Snyder, fouled Voorhees, and he was disqualified by the stewards. The officials at the same time ruled that Deviltree be disqualified also. Esoteric won the race.

This happened in the Sunchine Stakes, a race for two-year-olds at five and a half furlongs. Deviltree was not among the original entries sent out, but she was made an added starter early in the afternoon. Both she and Snow are trained by Snyder. The latter owns Snow, but has only a small interest in Deviltree, which races in the name and colors of W. B. E. Lockwood.

Pardon Court Sits Tomorrow.

The court of pardons has completed the preliminary work of examining into the applications for pardon which are to come before it, and the meeting of the court for the June term will take place at Sea Girt tomorrow. It is generally believed that if there is a full attendance at the session a parole will be granted to Libbie Garrabrandt, who is serving a life sentence for murder. Assuming that the seven members of the court who voted on the case before have not changed their views, the deciding vote will be cast by Judge James B. Dill, and those most intimately associated with him are of the opinion that his sympathies are with the woman.

Plainfield, N. J., July 18, 1905.

Peter Tillman, of Rahway, and Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, are looked upon as "dead certainties" so far as the Republican Assembly nominations are concerned, and it is said to be up to Elizabeth to select the third man.

In giving an Italian "confectioner" seven days in jail as well as fining him for running a "speak-easy," Recorder Doud did the proper thing. The magistrate has the right idea. You can't punish that class of lawbreakers by simply imposing a fine, although Judge Vail seems to think that way. Give it to 'em, Mr. Recorder!

In response to the demands of his friends, William N. Runyon has decided to become a candidate for the Republican State senatorial nomination. This the popular city judge announces in a letter to the Plainfield Republican Club, which was organized primarily to boom him for the nomination. The letter itself is a dignified one and is couched in the judge's characteristic way. As for his chances of obtaining a nomination, the general opinion seems to be that they are very good. Although somewhat tardily, the administration forces have come to his support, and it is pretty well assured that there will be no active opposition to him. At least, that is the way it looks now. Mr. Runyon deserves the nomination. He has all the qualifications that are necessary for the discharge of the duties, and there is no reason why Plainfield should not send a solid delegation to the county convention in his behalf.

TWO MORE STORES.

Building Improvements for West Second Street.

Stephen O. Staats, of West Second street, has decided to improve his residence by building two thirty-foot stores on the ground floor and converting the upper part into flats. Yesterday he sold twenty-five feet of his property at the corner of Pruden's alley to Charles W. McCutchen, who will move his brick building there. This building was formerly occupied by Charles Schanz on Park avenue. This structure will have one store on the ground floor and flats above when remodelled.

Mr. Staats has not prepared plans for his improvements. It is his idea to make his building conform somewhat in style to the one to be placed next to it by Mr. McCutchen.

Charles W. McCutchen, who purchased twenty-five feet of land from Mr. Staats, through the agency of William Jeffery, the real estate broker, paid $140 a foot, of $3,000 for the whole tract. In real estate circles this is considered a good price.

PASTOR SUPPORTS THE FAIR DIVORCEE

SAYS ALL VICE CHANCELLORS CAN'T CONVICT MRS. MEYERS.

Rev. Dr. Charles Herr, the pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of Jersey City, who championed the cause of Mrs. Clara E. Meyers, from whom George Morehouse Meyers, the envelope manufacturer, obtained a divorce on Friday, which was followed next day by the suicide of Louis J. Apgar, who was named corespondent, made some illusions to the case at Sunday morning's service. According to several parishioners, he expressed the opinion that Mrs. Meyers was an innocent woman, who had been greatly wronged. Mrs. Meyers was a regular attendant and actice worker in Dr. Herr's church.

When seen by a reporter after the service, Dr. Herr said:

"I have declared by views in the statement made yesterday. I have said all I'm going to say."

Mrs. Meyers didn't go to church Sunday. She remained home all day.

The funeral of Mr. Apgar took place at his hom,e 94 Sip avenue, yesterday. The service was private.

The statement about the case which Rev. Dr. Herr made Saturday is as follows:

"I do not doubt that Vice Chancellor Garrison did his duty as he saw it, but there was one thing that he was not clear-minded enough to see—namely, the self-evidencing simplicity and innocence of Mrs. Meyers' character. It is lamentable that he did not find a category in which to place a woman who is childlike in her purity, naturalness, truthfulness, openness, goodness, modesty and unsuspiciousness of evil; but all the vice chancellors in Christendom could not make Mrs. Meyers guilty of the crime with which she was charged. The result of the trial will not in the least disturb the faith and loyalty of those who know her. She has from the first confidently left her case to the righteous decision of the public, and I have no doubt that the confidence has not been misplaced."

DE VOE IS UNDISMAYED.

His Storms for Yesterday and Today Astray.

Hackensack, July 18 — Though Weather Prophet De Voe predicted terrific storms for Sunday and yesterday, which seem to have been lost in the shuffle, he announced Sunday two more bits of interesting information. He said:

"I expect a big storm tonight or tomorrow over Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York. This storm will produce a cool wave over this vicinity for a day or two. After that there will be a drought in the Eastern States and I would warn the people in New York and vicinity to be careful with their water. The reservoirs in New York and New Jersey will run very low and the wells in out section will dry up."

De Voe departed from his usual vein of information when he offered the following:

"At last I have discovered the pest that for several years has been ruining our fruit trees. Professor Smith, our State entomologist, when in Bergen County lecturing some time ago, said a scale was doing all the damage. During the past few days I found swarms of very small insects on my fruit trees. They are about the size of a pinhead and have legs about an eighth of an inch in length. A funny thing about this insect is the fact that the longer they live the smaller they get and finally disappear or vanish. I have had some of them under close observation and noticed them diminish in size. Having discovered the true pest, I will now discover a way to get rid of them."

GERMAN FAIR.

Gesang and Turn Verein to Hold Bazaar in October.

The members of the Gesang and Turn Verein have decided to hold a fair for one week in October, the date to be decided upon later. At a meeting held recently this committee was appointed: A. Wolf, chairman; R. Blyer, corresponding secretary; Joseph Haurand, financial secretary; Frank Gelig, Sr., treasurer; Fred Schmidt.

This committee will meet with the ladies' section in a few days, when a similar committee will be appointed by the women and further arrangements will be completed.

LAWSON BRINGS BOOM HOME.

Wants Gov. Johnson for President—Sure People Will Follow His Advice.

Boston, July 18—Thomas W. Lawson came into town last night after his swing around the circle, delighted with his trip and bringing back a boom for Gov. Johnson, of Minnesota, for President.

"The thing that impressed me most," he said, "was the terrible earnestness of the people. My trip convinced me that it is not the personality of Lawson that has aroused the people, but my subject—finance. Each of the audiences, when I was through, saw plainly that selling stocks and bonds was simply incidental to my work. Another thing that I cleared up in the West was the false impression that I was advising people to make runs on the banks.

"My trip convinced me that no one in any of my audiences will touch a share of stock or a bond until after my remedy is out, and that each will be an active agent in urging others to sell stocks if they have any and to keep out of them if they have not."

$10,000 FIRE AT RARITAN.

Somerville Fire Department Stopped Flames Spreading.

Fire broke out this morning in Thomas Richardson's barn at Raritan, and threatened to make a clean sweep of the town until the Somerville fire department turned out and got it under control. About $10,000 damage was done. The fire is supposed to have started in some new hay in the Richardson barn and which may have been insufficiently cured, thus admitting of spontaneous combustion.

Almost before the Raritan firemen were at work, the flames had laid hold of several other nearly barns, five of which were totally destroyed. The Roman Catholic parochial school was also slightly damaged, but the prompt response of the Somerville fire laddies checked the spread of the conflagration before the school and Ammerman & Reger's store were in serious danger.

NEW JERSEY STATISTICS AT LIEGE EXPOSITION

MANUFACTURERS IN FRENCH TRANSLATION, OF INDUSTRIAL BETTERNENT.

The New Jersey State Bureau of Statistics has a large exhibit at the exposition now in progress at Liege, Belgium, and James T. Morgan, deputy chief of the bureau, stated yesterday that it has attracted much attention and received the highest commendation.

The exhibit consists of large sheets showing the methods pursued by the bureau in collecting statistics, its tabulation methods, a large collection of photographs of the betterments and improvements in Jersey factories and other similar material. A special part of the exhibit is devoted to two documents issued by the bureau, which have been translated into French for the purpose. One is the book on "Industrial Betterment Institutions in New Jersey Manufacturing Establishments." This describes what has been done in the factories in this State for the benefit of the employes. It is splendidly illustrated and the English edition attracted much attention in this country and Canada.

The other work is a compilation of articles published in the twenty-seventh annual report of the bureau. It includes a complete digest of the New Jerse ylabor laws. The American exhibit, of which the New Jersey branch forms a large part, has been pronounced by the judges second only to that of France.

FIFTH CENSUS BULLETIN.

Trenton Passes Camden in Population.

On the publication of the fifth census bulletin from the office of the Secretary of State yesterday, the fact is revealed that Trenton leads its old-time rival, Camden, in population by a majority of 1,235. As a result, Trenton takes fourth place among the cities of New Jersey.

Officials figures show that in Franklin township, Somerset county, the population, according to the 1900 census, was 2,398; by the census of last month the township numbers 3,577, or an increase of 1,171 in the past five years.

In 1900 Springfield township, Union county, numbered 1,073; by the last census this same township had 1,123 people, showing an increase of 50 in the past five years.

OVERCOME IN BURNING HOME.

Caretaker's Wife Found Unconscious by the Firemen.

The Cranford home of the late Noel R. Parke, who was a member of the New York Coffee Exchange, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. Since Mr. Parke died, three years ago, the house had been in the charge of a caretaker, Benjamin A. Doyle.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad passes close to the house. It is supposed that a spark from a locomotive was carried to the roof and set it on fire.

Mrs. Doyle, in an effort to save some of the furnishings, was overcome by the heat and collapsed. She was found unconscious in the burning house by the firemen when they arrived, just as the flames had nearly reached her. The loss was about $6,000.

TOO HOT FOR BATHING.

Land Breeze Makes Thermometer Bubble Over.

A blistering land breeze prevailed at Asbury Park yesterday and sent the thermometer soaring toward the century mark. For the first time this summer it was difficult to find a cool spot on the beach. There were few bathers until late in the afternoon, when thousands sought the surf to obtain relief from the heat. Last night the beach was crwoded with loungers, many of whom tarried until midnight. Two heat prostrations were treated at the Emergency Hospital.

Ready for emergencies.

It is fortunate for Union county Republicans that they have one so worthy as Assemblyman Perkins to don the mantle surrendered in the death of Assemblyman Coyne. The county will be represented ably by the solon from Westfield, and some day he may be in line for Senator. —New York Press.

The Senatorship.

Those who want the Republican nomination for Senator from Union county are having hard work to get it, while those who don't want it, have to take positive steps to avoid it.—Westfield Standard.

GIVING AN ALLOWANCE.

The Spread of the Custom Would Greatly Decrease Unhappiness.

Can you think of a man placed in the position of the average woman? Let us imagine him living with a rich brother, dependent on the said brother for every cent he spends. He may not be in actual want, but he must ask that brother every time he needs a dollar. Is not the position unbearable?

It's funny that so few men realize how humiliating it is for women to ask continually for necessary money. Of course some of them now and then ask for money they could do without, but even the fault of extravagance would be done away with if a woman realized that she had so much a month to spend and no more, and that if all the allowance were expended on a silk gown there would be nothing left for hats and shirt waists and gloves.

Then take the case of children. Why not accustom the little ones early in life to have a sense of responsibility? Take the girl who has always had her clothes bought for her. Suddenly she is compelled to do all this for herself. Is it wonderful that she makes mistakes, glaring mistakes, which cause her much worry and anxiety?

We waste a good deal of time and money teaching our daughters useless frills—things which they will almost immediately forget and which wouldn't help them to live happier lives if they did remember them. Why not bring comparative peace into their future by teaching them the management of money?

The mother can begin by doling out the munificent sum of 5 cents a week to the infant pupil, gradually increasing the amount until it is sufficient to buy all the clothes and pay all the expenses of the child who has by this time grown up.

A girl who is thus taught the value of money will make a good housekeeper and a good wife, because she will expend every cent to the best advantage and never make one part of the household suffer for the other.

A girl may forget cube root and algebra, but she will never forget the course in practical arithmetic which she learned while managing her own allowance. The benefit of that will last her during her whole lifetime.

JULIA LISTER.

ELABORATE WOODWORK.

It Is Characteristic of Some of the Finest Modern Houses.

While wall papers never were more brilliant in design and artistic in coloring than they are now, in many cases they are left out altogether. Painted walls are a fad with some people, while others delight in wainscoting and panelings in wood.

The picture shows a large entrance hall which may also be used for a sort of living or reading room.

The walls are of oak stained a greenish tone. The high fireplace is especially worthy of notice, as it is ornamented with fittings of brass. Family portraits lend an air of dignity to the walls. If there are no family pictures the walls should be bare. The carved oak furniture is not so expensive as it looks, because it is only a very clever imitation of the antique. The rug is a rich mixture of dark red and green harmonizing with the green tone of the woodwork.

R. DE LA RAUME.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

That was a miserable evening. Margaret Garrison was the only member of the household who seemed to have her wits about her and her nerves under control, for Frank, her liege lord, had his duty elsewhere, and not until hours later trotted slowly home. Margaret plainly let Gray understand how he had fallen in her estimation at being so easily tossed aside. A warning finger was laid upon her lip. "Not one word of what has happened while he is here," she muttered; and a nod of her fluffy head toward the perturbed colonel told plainly that the chief of the household really had no place in the family councils. To the sisters that alarm was a blessing in disguise. It was all sufficient to account for Nita's prostration. To the rash and reckless lad, who, claiming to be an orderly with a letter from the colonel, had been passed by the gate guard to the open stairway, it afforded ample cover for escape, when, alarmed by Nita's cry, Gray and the corporal came springing to her aid. To Gray himself it gave only a few minutes' forgetfulness of his trouble, for, smarting under the sting of a woman's only half-hidden disdain, he would have welcomed with almost savage joy some fierce battle with a skillful foe, some scene in which he could compel her respect and admiration. He was still smarting and stung when at last that opportunity came.

Long will Manila remember the night! It followed close upon the heels of warnings that for weeks held every officer and man to his post of duty. Day after day the strain increased. The insurgents, crowding upon our outposts in front of Santa Mesa on the north and of Santa Ana on the south side of the Pasig, had heaped insult and threats upon our silent sentries, compelled by orders to the very last to submit to anything but actual attack rather than bring on a battle. "The Americans are afraid," was the gleeful cry of Aguinaldo's officers, the jeer and taunt of his men. The regulars were soon to come and replace those volunteers, said the wiseacre of his cabinet, therefore strike now before the trained and disciplined troops arrive and sweep these big boors into the sea. And on the still, starlit night, sooner perhaps than his confederates within the walls intended, the rebel leader struck, and, long before the dawn of the lovely Sunday morn that followed, the fire flashed from 40,000 rifles in big semicircle around Manila, and the long-expected battle was on.

Hours after dawn, hours after the attack began, the —teenth were in extended battle order to the south of Malate confronted by thickets of bamboo that fairly swarmed with insurgents, yet, only by the incessant zip and "whiew" of their deadly missiles and the ceaseless crackle of rifle fire, could this be determined; for with their smokeless powder and their Indian-like skill in concealment nothing could be seen of their array. Over to the westward on the placid waters of the bay the huge Monadnock was driving shell after shell into the dense underbrush across the abandoned rice fields and the marshy flats that lined the shore. Over to the east resounding cheers and crashing volleys, punctuated by the sharp report of field guns, told that the comrade brigade was heavily engaged and, apparently, driving the enemy before them. To right and left their volunteer supports were banging into the brush with their heavy Springfields; and still there seemed no symptom of weakness along the immediate front, no sign of yielding. If anything the fury of the insurgent volleying increased as the sun climbed higher, and all along the blue-shirted line men grit their teeth and swore as they crouched or lay full length along the roadside, peering through the filmy veil that drifted slowly across their front—the smoke from the Springfields of the volunteers. To lie there longer with the bullets buzzing close overhead or biting deep into the low embankment, sometimes tearing a stinging path through human flesh and bone, was adding to the nerve strain of the hours gone by. To rush headlong across that intervening open space, through deep and muddy pools and stagnant ditch, and hurl themselves upon the lurking enemy in the bamboo copse beyond, had been the ardent longing of the line since daylight came to illumine the field before them. Yet stern orders withheld: Defend, but do not advance, said the general's message; and the whisper went along from man to man: "There is trouble in town behind us, and the chief may need us there."

But, as eight o'clock passed with no word of uprising in the rear, and the cheering over toward Santa Ana grew loud and louder, the nerve strain upon the —teenth became well-nigh intolerable. "For God's sake, can't we be doing something instead of lying here firing into a hornet's nest?" was the murmur that arose in more than one company along the impatient line; and the gruff voices of veteran sergeants could be heard ordering silence, while, moving up and down behind their men, the line officers cautioned against waste of ammunition and needless exposure. "Lie flat, men. Keep down!" were the words. "We won't have to stand this forever. You'll soon get your chance."

And presently it came. The cheering that had died away, far over to the left beyond the wooded knolls that surrounded Singalon and Block House 12, was suddenly taken up nearer at hand. Then crashing volleys sounded along the narrow roadway toward the east, and a bugle rang out shrill and clear above the noise of battle; and then closer still, though unseen in the gloom of the dense thicket in which they lay, the men of the Second battalion, strung along a Filipino trail that led away to the rice fields, swung their big straw hats and yelled for joy. A young officer, his eyes flashing, his face flushing with excitement, came bounding out from the grove at the left of the crouching line and made straight to where the veteran battalion commander knelt in rear of his center. It was Billy Gray, adjutant of the Third battalion, acting that day as adjutant to the regimental commander. The bullets whistled by his head as he darted springingly along; and in their joy at sight of him even old hands forgot the reserve of the regular service and some man shouted: "Now we're off!" and the popular query: "What's the matter with Lieut. Gray?"

At any other time, under any other circumstances, both questioner and respondents who gleefully shouted: "He's all right," would have been promptly and sternly suppressed. But the senior captain at their head well knew the excitement tingling in the nerves of that long-suffering line, and only smiled and nodded sympathy. He saw, too, that Gray was quivering with pent-up feeling, as the boy halted short, saluted, and, striving to steady his eager voice, said:

"Captain, the colonel directs that you open sharp fire on the woods in your front and occupy the enemy there. He is about to charge with the Third battalion and drive them out of the trenches we've located over yonder;" and Billy pointed eagerly to the left front—the southeast.

The captain's grizzled face took on a look of keen disappointment. "You mean we've got to stay here and see you fellows go in?"

"Only for a few minutes, sir. The colonel says that for you to charge before he's got onto their flank would cost too many men. You'll get the word as soon as he's got the works."

"Well said, Billy boy! That sounds almost epigrammatic. Hullo! You hit? Stoop down here, man. Don't try to get perforated."

"My hat only," was the answer, as the boy stooped quickly to hide the irrepressible twitching about the muscles of his lip. A Remington had ripped from side to side, tearing a way through the curly hair at the top of his head and almost scoring the scalp. To save his soul he could not quite suppress the trembling of his knees; but, steadying himself by great effort, he continued: "The colonel says to commence firing by volley the moment our bugles sound the charge. Now I must get back."

"All right, youngster. Tell the colonel I savey, and we'll do our level best—only, let us into it as quick as you can."

But Gray heard only the first part of the sentence. He was panting when he reached his placid, gray-mustached chief, and could only gasp out: "The captain understands, sir." And then the regimental commander simply turned to the battalion leader, standing silent at his left in a little clump of timber—another veteran captain grown gray as himself in long, long years of service:

"Now's our time, old man! Pitch in! Gray, we'll go with him."

AMUSEMENTS.

The New Amsterdam Aerial Theatre and Gardens are proving the most popular summer evening resort in New York. They are crowded every evening by people who delight in a clever sho wand bright music 120 feet above the curb line on a hot summer night. The attraction is John J. McNally's new local skit, "Lifting the Lid," in which his chief characters are District Attorney Jerome with his axe, and other notable public men. This is followed by another skit by Mr. McNally called "The Whole Damm Family." This presents a second company of comedians headed by Stella Mayhew, Maude Lambert and D. L. Don.

Since the return of Frederic Thompson from Europe last week, the shows have been booming in Luna Park and many changes have already been made while others are contemplated. Mr. Thompson's flying trip across the water each season is productive of many new ideas and schemes, the installation of which in Luna Park have served every to make it more attractive. Then, too, the wear and strain of the opening of the Hippodrome has passed away and the young showman can now spend all his time on working out amusement plans which he had in mind, but which were laid aside temporarily to make way for other more pressing calls on his time.

F. F. Proctor is determined to maintain his prestige as the purveyor of high class vaudeville, and to accomplish this purpose he has set a pace which heretofore has never been equaled in vaudeville circles. In mid July he is putting together programmes of unrivaled excellence, composed of the best acts to be found in vaudeville, and by going outside and taking, one by one, the favorites who have catered to the public in the dramatic and musical fields. The patrons of the Twenty-third Street house appreciate the efforts made for their entertainment, and Mr. Proctor has been rewarded with crowded houses, the like of which is unprecedented in the summer season. The quality of the attractions and the well known reputation of the Twenty-third Street Theatre for coolness and comfort, makes it the "Mecca of Shoppers," these warm summer days, where they may rest and enjoy a hearty laugh and go home refreshed and contented. Under such conditions shopping becomes a pleasure.

LITERARY.

A special million for Yale ought to make him about as tactful in the future as President Harper, or any other good, wise educator that knows his business." T. Roosevelt, of Harvard, was barking also, just before those $10,000,000 appeared upon the scene. Perhaps some conspicuous scion of that noble university now clamors for attention long enough to make a speech on the habits and duties of famous financiers. As for us, we cand o nothing to stem the tide, but you will kindly let us sulk. Moreover, we believe that the universities would do well to cavil a trifle longer, for rather than not acquire a restful silence Mr. Rockefeller would come out with a hundred million. So why not get as large a graft out of his predicament as we can?—Collier's, July 22, 1905.

A Boat Tour of Jersey Coast.

The time has come when even the most dilatory can no longer postpone their flight to the beaches or suburban resorts. It is now that people have nothing but good to say of New Jersey as they seek sanctuary from the terrors of the "man-stifled town." Once on the swift Sandy Hook boat and every discomfort of the overheated city is left behind. Atlantic Highlands, an imposing bluff forming the northern end of the Highlands of Navesink, is about an hour's sail from New York. There is splendid anchorage which is always alive with craft from one end of the season to the other. The New York Yacht Club has a sub-station here and it is the home of the Pavonia Yacht Club. From the Highlands there is an extensive view in all directions. Sandy Hook points toward the north like an index finger, with its lighthouse, life saving and signal stations, fort and barracks. The Narrows are plainly discernable and the sandy shore of Long Island stretching east. The blue hills of Staten Island are seen to end abruptly at Raritan Bay. Toward the south lies a fertile farming country, prettily divided by streams and marked with groves. The resorts along the shore run the gamut of all attractions, so that to the fastidious it is only a matter of a short search to find the heart's desire. There are romantic scrambles over the hills; beautiful drives through the back country; still water bathing from the long piers, and fishing and yachting. Transient visitors and tourists may hoose their quarters from among hundreds of well kept hotels. There is an all rail line to the Jersey coast besides the Sandy Hook route. Upon application to C. M. Burt, General Passenger Agent, Central Railroad of New Jersey, New York, a hotel book and seashore time table will be sent free to any address.

—Wood Titsworth, of the West End, has completely changed his appearance by the removal of his moustache and whiskers, for the first time in twenty years. A few days ago a close personal friend talked with him for fully ten minutes before he knew who he was.

This year's automobile meet at Poughkeepsie will be a national circuit affair with the usual championship race open to all. Announcement is made that there will be seven events on the programme for the meet, which will be held on Friday, September 29, the last day of the big fair. The events will include a five-mile national championship, five-mile Poughkeepsie handicap, three-mile tourists', quarter-mile obstacle race, one-mile open to stock cars, and a special match race to be arranged.

Arrangements have been made by the American Automobile Association with the Survey Map Company, of New York, whereby members of the A. A. A. can obtain the complete set of automobile maps, eighteen sections, which the company is publishing, for a little over half price. These maps cover a territory embracing New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine. The entire set will consist of 170 individual maps.

During the summer months the club house of the Automobile Club of America will close at 7 o'clock. The Morris Park Motor Racing Club has extended the privileges of its club house at Morris Park to the members of the A. C. A. on all days except when race meets are scheduled.

GOLF.

Two names were omitted yesterday in the standing for the golf committee cup at the Plainfield Country Club—Morris J. Dumont, who has 5 1-2 points, and J. F. Raymond, who has one point.

A golf expert, in commenting on the recent performance of Marty O'Loughlin, the Plainfield Country Club professional, in the professional tournament at Van Cortland Park, has this to say: "Although Marty O'Loughlin did not get in the money at the recent open professional tournament, still Plainfield golfers should be proud of his remarkable performance. Although the youngest professional in the business, being but seventeen years of age, he returned a score of 78 strokes for the first eighteen holes. This remarkably low score led the field for the first round. The field included the cream of the professional ranks of America, many of them having played the game for thirty years. Charles Kirchner, of this city, and the originator of the successful tournament, was chairman of the executive committee, and in a speech to the professionals at the banquet given afterwards, complimented O'Loughlin for his remarkable work and said that he was confident that within the very near future he would figure in one of the United States Golf Association's open championships, the greatest event of the year for professionals."

Mr. Kirchner, in speaking of O'Loughlin's exhibition, said that had it not been for the lack of experience in having a gallery follow him he would have made a much better showing. Everyone who watched the young player was surprised at his long drives and his wonderful play with the brassie. Mr. Kirchner also stated that he considered O'Loughlin the future Harry Vardon of America.

THREATEN TO REVOKE WATER CO. FRANCHISE

DUNELLEN COUNGIL DECIDES ON DRASTIC ACTION.

As a result of the conditions arising from alleged miserable service given the borough of Dunellen recently by the Watchung Water Company, a special meeting of the Council was held last night to call on the company for a remedy.

On the recommendation of Mayor Wyckoff and Councilman Frederick the Council decided to call upon the water company to take immediate steps to insure proper and sufficient service for fire and household purposes. To clinch the official demand, the letter contained a statement to the effect that failure to comply would result in the revoking of the company's franchise.

At the time the meeting was in progress it was impossible to obtain water from the mains, and although the service was in operation this morning, no one could tell how long this state of affairs would last.

JERSEY DENTISTS MEET.

Davis and several others. Headquarters of the society will again be at the Hotel Columbia. Some of the lecturers down on the programme are Sinclair Tousey, of New York, who will give a demonstration of the X-ray in dentistry; Dr. Robert H. M. Dawborn, of New York; Dr. A. W. Harlan and Dr. B. F. Luckey are other lecturers.

The convention will close Friday night with an entertainment and smoker at the Columbia. Saturday morning there will be an election of officers.

Gowns for All State's Courts.

The determination of the judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals to wear black silk gowns, similar to those of the Federal jurists, has resulted in the decision to wear gowns in all of the State courts. Chief Justice Gummere declared the effect will be especially beneficial in criminal cases, where the aim is to impress the criminal classes with the dignity and majesty of the law.

—Voorhees Laing, of East Front street, has been removed from Muhlenberg Hospital to his home. His condition remains about the same.

PLAINFIELD PEOPLE AT ASBURY PARK

RESORT IS NOW ENJOYING A GREAT SEASON RUN.

Asbury Park seems now to be in the height of its mid-summer season and to be enjoying a popularity never before experienced. The trains are filled with people and very few visitors are leaving town. In spite of the large number now making the Park their summer abiding place, however, the hotels seem amply able to furnish all necessary accommodations, for their number as well as their capacity has been increased since last year.

Among the late arrivals at the St. George are Miss Lizzie M. Dunham, Mrs. S. A. Dunham and Miss Bessie B. Dunham, who recently arrived from Plainfield and are here for the rest of the summer.

Among the late Plainfield registrations at the Normandie are J. A. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hubbard, Miss Dorothy Hubbard, Miss Ethel L. Titsworth and Miss Bertha Van Noise Willis.

HYDE BANKRUPTCY CASE ADJOURNED FOR A WEEK

C. L. SPIER'S APPLICATION OPPOSED BY CHARLES A. REED.

Hearing in the petition of Charles L. Spier, of Asbury Park, to have Charles L. Hyde, of this city, declared a bankrupt, was continued for one week when brought before Judge Cross in the United States Court at Trenton yesterday. The motion to put the matter over was made by Lindabury, Depue and Faulks and was opposed by Charles A. Reed for Mr. Hyde.

Spier claims that Hyde owes him $50,642.70, and that he committed an act of bankruptcy. This is denied by Mr. Hyde's counsel, who has filed a list of his creditors, which includes the following: Mack Scudder Company, Smalley Brothers, Neuman Brothers, Frank T. Ostrom, Frank Linke, Boice, Runyon & Co., Van Zandt & Voorhees, L. M. French, Charles L. Stanley, T. S. Armstrong, F. L. C. Martin Auto Co., Mrs. Charles F. Abbott, Peter Neuman, Union County Investment Co., Francis DeL. Hyde and Reed & Coddington. Mr. Reed asked that the petition be dismissed on the ground that Spier had attempted to buy up creditors for the purpose of securing enough to make the application.

HEAT AND JAG CAUSE BROTHERS TO SCRAP

WILL HAD THE JAG AND A PISTOL TOO —MOTHER AND SONS IN COURT.

Thomas and William McGrath, brothers, residing on South Second street, got into an altercation yesterday afternoon, that led to the appearance of both in the city court this morning. William contracted a good-sized jag somewhere and with a blank cartridge pistol held over from the Fourth of July, started to clean house. Thomas objected to being chased out to the pavement where the sun was sending down its blistering rays and a hand-to-hand combat took place, the pistol refusing to do execution. Mrs. McGrath sided with William and the contest became so hot, neighbors sent for the police.

William was among the missing when the patrol wagon arrived but Thomas was taken back to the station. He was not intoxicated and was allowed to prefer complaint against his brother. William was arrested later and from his testimony both were held. When arraigned before Judge Runyon, it was shown that William was the aggressor but sentence was suspended in each instance. Mrs. McGrath, who was in court, got a lecture from the magistrate for her part in the affair.

LIQUOR BAN ON CLUB

The Revenue Department of the Federal government, it is said, has placed a construction upon an act of Congress that may bring sorrow to social and athletic clubs.

It demands the payment of a special tax on clubs selling liquor at a picnic or ball. The text of the ruling is as follows:

"Where a club giving a dance, a ball or a picnic every year, hires a hall or grove or park for this purpose and conducts a bar for the sale of its own liquors, it is required to pay special tax and take out stamp required therefor. The stamp (license) held by proprietor of grove, hall or park will not answer for bar connected with the club."

For the violation of this statute, the ruling being based upon the Revenue Department's interpretation of the law, a fine of not less than $200 or more than $500 and imprisonment of one to five years may be imposed, at the discretion of the Federal judge.

In effect this rulings says, that unless a projected "outing," picnic, dance, ball or any other form of amusement is conducted upon strict lines of absolute prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors, the Federal revenue officers will collect $25 from the "committee," even if the proprietor of the hall, park, grove or excursion steamer has a license. In the future no club can escape. After paying $25 the club committee must hang the revenue stamp in a conspicuous place that everyone may see the government toll has been paid.

In does not make the slightest difference if the club renting the hall, park or steamer for that day brings even one quart of whiskey or half a dozen bottles of beer and sells them to thirsty persons, they must pay their $25 or be liable to the penalty.

Thus in estimating the cost of a ball or "outing," all social clubs should add to the expense budget the sum of $25, due and payable to the Federal government, or else retain counsel to contest the constitutionality of the statute. None the less, the matter is interesting in that the special revenue tax will aid in lessening a treasury deficiency, while the social clubs will have an opportunity, if they see fit, of making a fight against what appears to be legislation of a purely sumptuary character.

W. S. Campbell Hurt.

Willian S. Campbell, of West Front street, had a bad fall on Park avenue a few days ago. One of the iron sidewalk doors in front of Craig A. Marsh's building, turned up at the corner and Mr. Campbell caught his foot under the door and was thrown to the pavement. Although he suffered only a few bruises and the tearing off of the sole of his shoe, he was mortified at his fall and his friends are trying to persuade him to bring suit against the owner of the building for damages to body and feelings.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The quartette choir of the First Presbyterian church will take its vacation during August.

The choir of the First Baptist church has disbanded for the rest of the summer, to resume early in September.

"The Folly of Partial Trust" will be the subject of the prayer meeting at the Congregational church tomorrow night.

Announcement will be made next Sunday of the supplies engaged to occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church during the vacation season of Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss.

In his sermon at the First Presbyterian church Sunday night, on the subject of "Unlovely Piety," Rev. C. E. Herring pointed out the importance of doing the so-called "little things" of life in a Christlike way. His talk, while brief, was replete with forcible illustrations, for some of which he chose Thomas Carlyle's proverbial shortcomings in this particular. He spoke of the apparently contradictory elements of the nature of the man who could white such inspiring words as are found in Carlyle's "Heroes and Hero Worship," describing and showing the keenest appreciation of all that is finest in human character and expressing a healthy loathing for what he termed "flunkeys" and then turn round and prove himself the leading exponent of flunkeyism at the earliest opportunity. Such qualities are all very well on the heights but for the purposes of everyday, Christian living we should be able to keep the breath of life in our ideals without leaving them outside the less exalted atmosphere of the workshop and the home, where they are most needed. In this connection Mr. Herring spoke of a well known mountain climber who, after ascending the Matterhorn and other world-famous peaks, experiencing in his adventures many narrow escapes without once being injured, finally broke his leg at Birkenhead, England, while landing from the steamer.

Voehl Residence in Ashes.

The residence of William Voehl, at Dewey Park, was totally destroyed by fire on Saturday night. The cause of the fire is attributed to an oil stove that was left burning in the kitchen near a window. On the window sill lay a newspaper, which the wind blew on top of the stove, causing a blaze that quickly caught the window shade and woodwork. The members of the family were sitting on the front porch, and when the fire was discovered the blaze had spread over the entire kitchen. The fire department of Dunellen responded to a call from the residents of that community, but the house was located beyond the limits of the water supply system and nothing could be done. The loss is estimated at $2,500, which is partially covered by insurance.

LOCAL GOLF TEAM WON.

Mrs. Rogers and Marty O'Loughlin Take Series from Westfield Pair.

The third of a series of golf matches between Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers and Marty O'Loughlin, of the Plainfield Country Club, and Miss Noe and David Patrick, of the Westfield Golf Club, was played yesterday afternoon on the Cranford Golf Club course, and the Plainfielders won by 6 up and 5 to play, taking two of the three matches.

The first match was played at the Plainfield Country Club, when the local pair won by 8 up. The second match was at Westfield, when Miss Noe and Mr. Patrick were victors by 3 up. At that time O'Loughlin was suffering from a very sore foot, which handicapped him greatly. It was arranged to play the deciding match on neutral ground and for that reason it took place at Cranford.

Abram VanCleef, of Elm place, is spending some time in Hunterdon county.

SMITH TO BE CHAIRMAN

Plainfielder Decided Upon to Head the Republican County Committee.

KEAN FAVORS HIM.

Choice of Leaders is Register of Deeds and Was Formerly Tax Collector in this City — Personally Popular.

It has been practically decided by the Union County Republican political leaders that Frank H. Smith, of this city, register of deeds for the county, will be elected chairman of the Union County Republican executive committee to succeed Assemblyman Edward S. Coyne, who died last week.

Senator Kean, it is understood, favors Register Smith, who is now vice chairman of the committee, and this is regarded as an intimation for the smaller fry politicians to fall into line for Smith. The latter told a Newark News reporter yesterday that Senator Kean wanted him to take the job and if there are no objections he is ready to assume to the county leadership.

FRANK H. SMITH.

Smith's knowledge of county affairs is considered his strong point in this matter. He has been a member of the county executive committee of the Republican party for a number of years and has mingled with the big and little fry in all sections. His services as vice chairman have attracted the favorable comment of the politicians and there seems to be no opposition to him for the place.

Previous to becoming register of deeds, to which office he was chosen as the first appointee when the bill creating the office was made a law, Mr. Smith was tax collector in this city. Both offices have been lucrative ones and the holder has enjoyed the friendship of a host of politicians and people generally.

$8,000 FOR VAULTS.

Trust Company to Install Herring-Hall-Marvin Vaults.

The contract for the vaults to be used in the Plainfield Trust Company building has been awarded to the Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Company, of New York, and the papers were filed today in the office of County Clerk Howard, at Elizabeth. The contract price is about $8,000.

The vaults are to be of the latest and most approved pattern, and aside from the space reserved for the regular banking business there will be provision made for safe deposit boxes. This has become quite a feature of this popular institution and it will be the aim of the company to encourage this business. The vaults will be provided with the time-lock appliances and will be equipped with all the latest improvements.

CENSUS COST CO. $4,000

Plenty of Funds With Which to Pay Supervisors and Enumerators.

NO BOND ISSUE.

Men Engaged in the Work Will Get Their Money When They Present Their Bills—In Other Counties.

The cost of the census to Union county has been set at close to $4,000, but is not expected to go beyond that amount. In Hudson county the cost is about $7,500. There the Board of Freeholders is considering the issuance of bonds to pay the enumerators for their services, as there was no provision made for that purpose in thel ast budget. If bonds are not issued the enumerators may have to wait till next December for their pay, when the new budget is made out.

No temporary loan bond issue will have to be contemplated by the Union County Board of Freeholders to pay the enumerators.

An official of the Union county board said today: "We don't need any bond issue. We have money enough left over from various accounts to pay the enumerators, and they will get their money when they present their bills. Besides, a bond issue would be a useless waste, for it would cost about $300 to get it out."

Secretary of State Dickinson, who is at the head of the census taken recently, is disappointed over the results of the enumeration throughout the State. In conversation with a newspaper man he said that an increase of not quite 14 per cent. had been attained. This is less than half that of the previous decade, when a 30 per cent. increase was recorded. The increase counted on at the last census was 15 per cent.

Trouble is brewing in various sections of the State because of the fact that some cities think that justice has not been done to their population. This is especially true in Camden, where the population is set at about 1,200 less than that of Trenton. Camden has always had a bigger population than Trenton. The Camdenites are now asking that another census be taken in their city. They urge that there has been a better showing than indicated.

Secretary Dickinson intimated that the census showed either a poor increase throughout the State, or else the enumerators had done their work poorly.

Escapes the Reform School.

Charles Matthews, colored, long since branded as an incorrigible by relatives and the police, escaped the Reform School today by promising Judge Runyon to go to Bridgeport, Conn., and work with his father. He was arrested by Patrolman McKeon last night, who found him loitering about Liberty street, an old habit. Matthews has frequently been in the city court and has made many promises to behave himself, but failed to keep them.

And the Equines Sigh.

Former City Judge W. A. Coddington is the latest to join the automobile forces. He has purchased a Searchmont touring car, No. 11921.

FIGHTING OVER A NAME

Original Silverware Concern Seeks to Restrain Plainfield Company.

"ROGERS" AN ASSET.

Supplemental Proceedings Against William H. Rogers—Injunction Granted Recently.

Papers were filed in the Court of Chancery at Trenton yesterday in a suit to restrain William H. Rogers, of this city, from using the name Rogers on silverware. The action is supplemental to the original cause begun by the International Silver Company, of Hartford, Conn., against the William H. Rogers Manufacturing Company in 1901, which resulted in a permanent injunction granted by Vice Chancellor Stevens and affirmed by the Court of Errors and Appeals.

In the original cause the decree was directed against the use of the name "Rogers" as part of the defendant's corporate title, or as its trademark on silver plated ware.

The International Silver Company proved that it was the successor of the William Rogers Manufacturing Company of Hartford, and that it had used the name "Rogers" on its silver plated ware as a trademark for many years; that it had spent large sums of money in advertising the "Rogers" goods, and that it had established a reputation for the "Rogers" silver plate, which was recognized as a standard. It was further brought out that the Plainfield corporation had from very small beginnings acquired an enormous business, mainly, it was claimed, by the use of its trademark and corporate title. The complainant charged that the trade thus secured had been fraudulently obtained, and in the court's decree this charge was confirmed.

The present supplemental bill is directed against William H. Rogers as an individual and prays that he be enjoined permanently from the use of his own name on silver plated ware or from doing business under that name in that branch of industry. The affidavits accompanying the bill are signed by George H. Wilcox, vice-president of the complainant corporation, and others, who have recently bought the defendant's goods on sale at different places. All these puchases are designated as exhibits to be used at the hearing next September. Edward A. & William P. Day, counsel for the complainant, asks that so much of the bill of complaint filed in the original cause may be used in the present suit as the court finds convenient and permissible. The allegations contained in the bill are in many respects identical with those in the original bill.

Application for a rule to show cause was made at Vice Chancellor Stevens' home, in Morristown, but because of the vacation period the court made the return day September 12.

COLORED GIRL BABY LEFT IN VACANT LOT

POLICE HAVE CLUE THAT MAY LEAD TO IDENTITY OF THE MOTHER.

The local police are making an effort to find the mother of a six-months-old colored girl baby abandoned last night in the vacant lot at East Sixth and Richmond streets, backs of the Dunlap row. It was found at 10:30 by Charles Sauerackker after it had been there fully an hour as its cries had been heard that long by people in the vicinity but who thought it was in one of the Dunlap apartments. Chief Kiely was notified and the infant was taken to headquarters. It was afterward placed in charge of Overseer Aleck Ayers, who found a home for it with a colored family on West Third street.

The abandonment of the child had evidently been carefully planned as it was neatly dressed and extra clothing of good material had been placed beside it. The police have a clue that may lead to the arrest of the mother.

Made a Lawn his Bedroom.

Overcome by the heat—not from the sun, but from fiery liquids—Joseph Donnolly picked out a nice cool spot on a West Seventh street lawn last night and proceeded to make it his boudoir. He removed a good part of his clothing and his snores were mingling with the buzz of insects when somebody called the police. In the city court this morning Donnolly paid $3 in preference to going to Elizabeth for ten days.

ICE MAY GO UP TO 50 CENTS A 100

LOCAL DEALERS MAY TAKE CONCERTED ACTION.

It was reported today that the local ice dealers are planning to hold a meeting on August 1 for the purpose of considering the advisability of raising the retail price of ice from forty to fifty cents a hundred. When President McDonough, of the Plainfield Natural Ice Company, was questioned concerning the report he denied it on behalf of his concern, although he said that the other two dealers in town might be considering such a move.

It has been supposed that the three local dealers are in a combination owing to the fact that they all get their ice supply from the same source, Watchung Lake. This is also denied by President McDonough, who says that the Plainfield Natural Ice Company controls the ice output from Watchung Lake and that the other two dealers, F. T. Ostrom and John Morton, purchase ice from his company because they can get it at a more advantageous price than elsewhere.

Andrew Wilson, of the same company, informed Mr. McDonough a few days ago that if the present high temperature continued there would not be enough ice in the houses at Watchung to last a month, but it is not expected that the present heat wave will remain for any length of time.

Mr. McDonough, in explaining why the retail price was thirty cents a hundred last year, said that the crop during the preceding winter was a very large one and the summer being coll the dealers fixed the price at thirty cents to get rid of it. He claims that no ice dealer will get rich selling frozen water at forty cents a hundred. He says that he has known dealers to get as high as sixty and seventy cents a hundred, and yet they were unable to make much profit. Furthermore, he states that each one of the three local dealers are privileged to charge what they please for ice, and it is just a coincidence that they are now asking forty cents.

Mr. McDonough says that for the last two years he has not harvested any ice from the lake at South Plainfield, that he lost the rights to this pond when H. G. Runkle acquired them by lease, after the failure of the Plainfield Hygeia Ice Company. Mr. McDonough afterwards abandoned his ice houses at that place.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS OFF TOMORROW FOR CAMP

TWENTY-FIVE TO SPEND TWO WEEKS IN CONN.

A party of twenty-five or more boys from the junior department of the local Y. M. C. A. will take the 7:55 train for New York tomorrow morning, en route for a two weeks' outing at Tuxis Island, Connecticut. In charge of the party will be Boys' Secretary Kenneth Robbie, L. T. Lindholm and E. K. Allen, a classmate of Mr. Robbie's.

A special car will be attached to the 7:55 train. The party will leave the Grand Central depot, New York, at 10:02 on the New York, New Haven and Hartford road for Madison, Conn. Tuxis Island, controlled by the New Haven Y. M. C. A., and which lays off shore from the town of Madison, has been secured for the party's exclusive use for the next two weeks. The surroundings are ideal for a camping place, Madison being a strictly temperance town and one of the most popular places of summer residence along the Sound, many New York people owning cottages there.

It is Mr. Robbie's intention to give the boys an opportunity of going through Yale University as sightseers while in New Haven and by the courtesy of the gymnasium authorities there, those of the party who wish, will be allowed the use of the magnificent swimming-pool.

Those who will go in the party are W. Woodruff, A. Woodruff, S. H. Karr, L. Edgar, George M. Rittenhouse, R. P. Morris, Rowland P. Slover, W. B. Caldwell, S. F. Freeman, T. S. Sperry, Edgar Freeman, Clarence Steiner, R. H. Bellows, W. P. Kennedy, Julius J. Linke, W. B. McDougal, Arthur Perrin, N. Neilson, Milton St. John, L. Leland, S. Mackey, L. REPUBLICAN CONFERENCE

Leaders in the Four Wards Meet to Discuss the Senatorial Situation.

RUNYON THE FAVORITE

Impression Seems to Be There Will Be no Organized Opposition—Who Were at the Conference.

That Judge William N. Runyon will have little or no opposition in obtaining a solid delegation from Plainfield favorable to his candidacy for State Senator, it is said, was shown at a meeting of active workers of the Republican party last night. The conference was held in the city clerk's office and was attended by representatives of all the wards without regard to faction. It is reported that the subject was clearly threshed out and the position of the local administration forces unequivocally stated.

Among those participating in the caucus were these: First Ward—Mayor James F. Buckle, Counellmen William L. Gloak and R. I. Tolles and Horace G. Adams. Second Ward—William N. Runyon and Henry L. Hall. Third Ward—Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, former Assemblyman Roger Murray, D. E. Titsworth and John W. Murray, Jr. Fourth Ward—Former Assemblyman William Newcorn and Register of Deeds Frank H. Smith.

D. E. Titsworth suggested that in the interests of harmony that both Judge Runyon and Ernest R. Ackerman, who has also been prominently mentioned for the nomination, withdraw from the race. In reply to this suggestion, Mr. Hall, who is president of the Plainfield Republican Club, an organization pledged to Runyon, stated that this was impossible, for the judge could not comply without incurring the displeasure of every man in the club and those friendly to it.

Mayor Fisk, it is said, suggested that the candidates fight it out for delegates, and the one obtaining the most be given a solid delegation. It is reported that while Mr. Fisk is not taking sides in the contest, but merely desires the avoidance of a fight, he is more or less attached to Judge Runyon and would not dislike seeing him nominated.

Mayor Buckle put himself on record for Runyon, and so did City Clerk MacMurray, who repeated that he is for the judge "first, last and all the time." How former Assemblyman Roger Murray feels in the matter is not exactly known, but he is a strong supporter of Mr. Ackerman.

It was said on good authority today that Mr. Ackerman would not make any contest for the position.

Each State Senator who is elected next November will have a vote for the successor to United States Senator John F. Dryden, who will be balloted for in 1907, and this lends additional interest and importance to the election. Eight counties will choose Senators this year, as follows: Camden, Essex, Gloucester, Monmouth, Salem, Somerset, Union and Warren.

MR. AND MRS. BEECHING LOSE A SECOND CHILD

LITTLE DAUGHTER DIES FROM DYSENTERY AS DID HER BROTHER.

For the second time within a week and from the same cause, Mr. and Mrs. Beeching, of Grandview avenue, lost a child by death last night. Their little daughter Myrtle, aged three years, succumbed to the dread dysentery, as did her seven-year-old brother Nelson last Friday. The boy was buried Monday afternoon, while the little sister was stricken just before the interment.

Another sad incident in connection with the deathes is the fact that Myrtle recently sustained a broken leg by falling from the porch at her home. It was set by Dr. Cooley, and she was getting along very nicely when the fatal illness began.

Death of an Infant.

Lizzie, the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac White, of South Second street, died early yesterday afternoon. The funeral will be private and will take place tomorrow afternoon from the home of the parents. Interment will be made in the M. E. cemetery.

Rev. Dr. Buchanan Seriously Ill.

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, of Duer street, has been called to Pemberton, N. J., by the severe illness of his father, Rev. Dr. Buchanan.

Women on Outing.

The women's bowling section of the Gesang and Turn Verein left this morning to enjoy the cool sea breezes at Rockaway Beach.

PLAINFIELD SIZZLING

No Let Up in the Hot Spell and No Immediate Relief Promised.

SOME PROSTRATIONS.

Thermometer Started to Climb at 8 o'Clock This Morning, and This Afternoon It Is Near the 100 Mark.

"Weather Prophet" John Nagle furnishes the following official temperature of the weather today:

	Deg.
At 8 a. m.	84
At 9 a. m.	87
At 10 a. m.	90
At 11 a. m.	93
At 12 noon	95
At 1 p. m.	97

The official weather predictions are: Fair and continued warm tonight; Thursday, scattered showers and thunder storms and not quite so warm in the afternoon or by night.

With the mercury striving to beat the highest record for any July day since 1901, when, on the 2d, the thermometer showed 99 degrees, the people of Plainfield are beginning to show the effects of the continued hot wave which is sweeping the country. The official figures show a slight difference from those on the street, for in some cases yesterday afternoon temperatures of over 96 were recorded, but these were chiefly where the sun's rays had some effect on the thermometers.

Late in the afternoon it grew cloudy and it looked as though Plainfield would be blessed with a shower. It was otherwise ordered, however, and the water fell in New York and other points, but not enough to bring much relief.

After the shower passed around the people began to adjust themselves for another sleepless night. There was practically no rest, and with the morning most folks arose feeling more tired than when they went to bed. The relief promised yesterday for today did not arrive this morning, and humanity prepared to stand the worst as best they could. They could get little comfort in the weather predictions in the morning papers, which stated that it would continue to be fair today and tomorrow with continued high temperature.

The soda water fountains in the city have been doing a land-office business during the past few days, and one thing is noticeable, that patrons are very careful as to what they drink, preferring the more simple concoctions to the real sweet and non-satisfying drinks.

Muhlenberg Hospital has been particularly fortunate in not having any cases of heat prostration. In nearly every city in the East these institutions have been very busy with such cases. Some of the local physicians have been more or less busy with slight cases. Dr. A. H. Dundon treated a young man in the borough this morning. He walked into the doctor's office, showing all the signs of being prostrated with the heat, but he responded to the treatment given and was able to go home soon after.

A report that there are twenty-five cases of dysentery in Fairview avenue was denied by a physician this morning. He said that he is employed by several families on that street, and would surely know if there were so many cases.

Bertram S. Rockwell, of East Front street, was overcome with the heat yesterday, but is much improved today.

An unknown man fell, overcome by the heat, at Front street and Park avenue. He was revived in a nearby store.

William C. Smith, of Grandview avenue, the contractor, was overcome with the heat Monday afternoon while at work at the new theatre building in West Second street. He was obliged to go home for treatment. Although he suffered considerable all of Monday night, he recovered sufficiently to return to work yesterday morning.

Two deaths as the result of the heat were reported in Elizabeth, last night, where the temperature reached 102 degrees and is continuing at those figures today. John Colland, aged 70 years, of Marshall street, was found dead in bed, having been overcome with the heat, and August Halforn, aged 30 years, a Swede, was found dead in his room at a hotel in Second street, Elizabeth, having succumber to the intense heat.

At 1 o'clock the thermometer at Armstrong's drug store indicated 99 degrees.

David R. Weaver, of Manning avenue, is still unable to be at his place of business on account of illness.

TO ELECT A FREEHOLDER

Special Meeting of Common Council Called For Tomorrow Night.

IT IS IRREGULAR

Technicality May Cause Postponement Until Monday Night—Four Men Mentioned for Job.

As stated in The Daily Press, the Common Council is compelled by the city charter to elect a successor to the late Captain Hubbard on the Board of Freeholders before next Wednesday and with that in view a special session has been called for tomorrow night. It will not take place in all probability for it is reliably reported that the call is not made out properly. A technicality will be the means of postponing the election, it is said, until Monday night.

COUNCILMAN R. I. TOLLES.

The call set the time of meeting as 8:15, but according to the rules of the Common Council 8 o'clock is the only hour at which a session can be convened. The members will assemble, however, but owing to the fact that some question might arise as to the legality of the election no freeholder will be chosen at that time.

There are four men prominently mentioned for the berth. One of these is Ralph I. Tolles, a member of the Common Council and its former president. Another is Samuel P. T. Wilbur, a former councilman and now a member of the sewer commission. F. A. Pope, whose father was "it" in Plainfield politics in days of yore but who himself has never been active politically, is also mentioned, as is J. F. MacDonald.

It is said that a majority of the councilmen favor Mr. Tolles for the place, but this cannot be confirmed and they will not commit themselves at this time.

WATER NOT CAUSE OF DYSENTERY CASES

DR. DUNDON MAKES ANALYSIS FOR HEALTH BOARD.

Because of the numerous deaths in North Plainfield from dysentery and various forms of summer complaint, the Board of Health decided to investigate the sources of water supply, where pumps were used, as well as the supply from the Plainfield Water Supply Company. In consequence, Dr. Dundon, secretary of the Board, obtained samples of both kinds of water, especially in the sections of the borough where deaths had occurred, and he made an analysis.

As a result, the water was found to be all right and nothing suggested that it was responsible for the cases of illness reported in the borough. It is the opinion of the health authorities that the illness, which is chiefly among the children, has been and is due to what they eat. It has been learned that there are a number of cases where children have been allowed to eat all sorts of things, any one of which would cause bowel trouble. And this together with atmospheric conditions, due to the extreme heat, has caused what some physicians term membraneous colitis, which begins with a fermentation in the stomach. If permitted to go on without prompt treatment, it is very apt to result fatally.

The Board of Health feels assured that the illness cannot be traced to the drinking water, as tests show it to be pure and perfectly safe.

Dysentery Cases.

Dr. D. C. Adams has twenty-five cases of dysentery in the city and borough and two in Dunellen. This morning he had four slight cases of heat prostration. Dr. T. S. Davis reports having several cases of dysentery among elderly persons.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The report circulated that the Black Diamond Express had been taken off the Lehigh Valley Railroad schedule, is untrue. The train leaves here at 12:50 o'clock in the afternoon, going west, and the trip east is made on the same schedule that has been in force for some time. This summer the company put on an extra train between New York and Buffalo to accommodate the heavy traffic.

The Lehigh Valley Coal Company plant here is a scene of great activity these days. Large shipments are constantly being received and stored away for further use.

The regular meeting of the citizens of South Plainfield to discuss matters relative to the advancement of the interests of the borough, will be held tonight.

Miss Giles, of Dunellen, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Ida Harris.

GOVERNOR STILL HAS SIX UNSIGNED BILLS

FEELING THAT HE INTENDS VETOING ALL OF THEM.

Trenton, July 19—Governor Stokes still has in his possession and undisposed of six bills passed by the last Legislature, although the law provides that the laws of each session shall be acted upon and the pamphlet laws published by July 1. Among the laws unsigned is Senate 243, providing for an increase of the salary of Comptroller Parkinson, of this city, to $2,500.. At present his salary is $1,500.

The bills unsigned besides this are: Assembly 312, the famous Jersey City Water Works bonding bill. It authorizes cities of the first class to provide for the payment of water works by issuing bonds secured by mortgages upon said works and other property of the city. The bill was introduced by Assemblyman Duff.

Assembly 273, by Mr. Robbins, providing for six additional Circuit Court-judges to be appointed by the Governor at an annual salary of $7,500 each.

Assembly 308, supplement to the 1903 school law, providing that no principal or teacher shall be removed or dismissed, or subjected to reduction of salary, except for just cause, after written charges and trial by the Board of Education.

Senate 79, by Mr. Lee, amends the general city corporation act of 1900, under which Atlantic City is operating, by making it unnecessary to have stable and provender for horses to obtain license to retail liquor.

Senate 131, by Mr. Hutchinson, of this city, amends Section 90 of the borough act, revision of 1897, by requiring consent of property owners for the purchase of water plants. A peculiar situation surrounds this bill, in that if the Governor signs it, it cannot take effect until July 4, 1906. The bill contains no section stating when it shall become effective, and under a State law all such become laws July 4. The Governor having failed to act on this bill before July, this year, it cannot become a law until next year.

There is a general feeling about the State that Governor Stokes intends to veto all these measures.

THEIR TERMS EXPIRING.

Seventeen Sheriffs to Go Out of Office Within Two Months.

The terms of seventeen of the twenty-one sheriffs of New Jersey will expire within the next two months, and successors to the present incumbents will be chosen at the coming election. Of the retiring sheriffs, nine are Republicans and eight Democrats. The nine Republicans are: Samuel E. Kirby, Atlantic; Joseph G. Bower, Burlington; Frank C. Somers, Camden; Charles G. Diament, Cumberland; Thomas H. Thropp, Mercer; William Carman, Middlesex; Abraham Ryerson, Morris; Courtney C. Carr, Ocean; B. Frank Cotiell, Union. The Democrats are: William C. Nicholl, Essex; William T. Jones, Gloucester; John Zeller, Hudson; Jacob Dilts, Hunterdon; Obadiah C. Bogardus, Monmouth; William Johnson, Salem; Joseph C. Andrews, Sussex; William J. Barker, Warren.

None of these men can be re-elected this fall, as a sheriff is prohibited by law from holding two terms in succession. Their successors, except in the counties of Essex and Hudson, will continue to be compensated by fees. A law passed last winter puts the next and succeeding sheriffs of Essex and Hudson on a salary basis.

RESULTS AT BRIGHTON.

Out of Reach Won the Fifth Race—Beat a Fast Field.

Out of Reach, a race horse bred by the King of England, won the fifth race at Brighton yesterday. He beat a fast field and proved the truth of the old adage, "Blood will tell."

Out of Reac his by the English Derby winner Persimmon, and first saw the light of day in the royal paddock. His dam is that grand brood mare Sandfly.

Like most English thoroughbreds, Out of Reach improved as he matured. Twice he has started this year and twice he has won. His race yesterday was of the first class. He picked up 110 pounds, made all his own running, showed a fast clip all the way and finally stood off a determined challenge in the last quarter by Race King.

These two horses raced into the stretch head and head and for a furlong it was a question of which would stop first. Out of Reach stood the strain, however, and in a driving finish won by a length and a half with Race King four lengths in front of Monsieur Beaucaire.

Load of Dishes Crashed.

While transferring a load of dishes and cooking utensils from the place of G. Pastormi, on North avenue, yesterday, to a house across the road, the driver of the cart made too short a turn, and all the dishes fell to the ground and were smashed.

Get the Sea Breezes Cheap.

The people of Plainfield and vicinity will be given an opportunity on Saturday of spending a day at the seashore with Franklin and Somerset Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M. The excursionists will remain at the shore until 9:30 o'clock at night.

SOME FAMOUS NAMES IN THE TWIN CITIES

OCEAN GROVE AND ASBURY PARK HAVE PRESERVED MEMORIES.

Asbury Park, July 19—Brimful of significance to Twin City visitors are the names of the streets and avenues here and in Ocean Grove. With few exceptions all the thoroughfares save the numbered avenues bear the surnames of men and women who have helped make the Methodist Episcopal church the power in the world that it is today, and the mere calling out of the streets by the trolley car conductors should bring to mind bishops, preachers and pulpit orators, many of whom made gigantic sacrifices in the olden days that the church which they served might live. It is fitting that Ocean Grove, the seat of Methodism in New Jersey, should thus keep alive memories of great men of the denomination. James A. Bradley, founder and formerly sole proprietor of Asbury Park, is, and always has been, a Methodist and being closely allied with the interests of Ocean Grove, it was natural for him to pattern after the sister resort, and on the north side of the north side of the lake that divides the two cities, continue the roster of illustrious followers of John Wesley.

Every true Methodist who lives on or near Benson avenue, in Ocean Grove, should know that the late Joseph Benson, a Methodist minister for whom the avene is named, published a "Commentary on the Holy Scriptures" in five volumes, which is highly esteemed to this day, although the author lived and wrote a hundred years ago.

Then there is McClintock street, a contraction of MacClintock. The Rev. Dr. John MacClintock, after whom that Ocean Grove thoroughfare is called, was an eminent scholar and divine, born in Philadelphia in 1814. He was made editor of the Methodist Quarterly Review in 1848, and conducted it for eight years. In 1857 he was appointed pastor of St. Paul's church, in New York, where he acquired a reputation as a pulpit orator. In 1860 he accepted the charge of the American Chapel, in Paris. During the Civil War he rendered great service to the Union cause with his voice and pen, and his home in Paris was known as the rallying place for patriotic Americans in France. In 1867 he organized Drew Theological Seminary. He was also famous as a writer.

Olin street brings up recollections of the Rev. Stephen Olin, D. D. LL. D., a pulpit orator who lived in the early part of the last century, and was once president of Wesleyan University. Then there was Philip Embury, generally regarded as the earliest Methodist preacher resident in America, who is recalled by mention of the avenue bearing his name. The man was born in Ireland in 1729, and became a minister in 1758. In 1760 he came to New York, working as a carpenter at first, but in 1766 he took up preaching in earnest, and made that his life work.

Dr. Adam Clark, after whom Clark avenue is named, was another Irish born Methodist minister, particularly distinguished as a Biblical commentator, who was sent to school near Bristol, England, by John Wesley. Abbott avenue is called so after Benjaman Abbott, another early preacher of that denomination, born in Pennsylvania in 1792, who, while uneducated, had wonderful powers of oratory, and took part in one of the greatest deligious epochs the country ever saw.

Stockton avenue causes Methodists to think of a famous New Jersey preacher, the Rev. Thomas Hewlings Stockton, D. D., born in Mt. Holly in 1808, who filled the post of chaplain to Congress for many years.

Mountains and hills, famous in Biblical literature, have been called upon to designate five important thoroughfares. There is Zion Way, recalling the highest hill in the city of Jerusalem, and one of the original elevations on which the city was built.

Mt. Carmel, looked upon by the Jews from earliest times as a sacred spot, where the prophet Elijah assembled the people, and where an altar to Jehovah existed before the introduction of Baal worship, furnishes a name for another "way."

Then there is Mt. Tabor Way, bringing recollections of the Bible story of how Barak, at the command of Deborah, assembled his forces on Mt. Tabor, and upon the arrival of the opportune moment, descended with ten thousand men after him" into the plain, and conquered Sisera, on the banks of Kishon.

Mt. Hermon, towering about the plains, its lofty summit surmounted perpetually with snow when the country is parched by the summer sun; the elevation where some think the Saviour's transfiguration took place, and at the base of which the lunatic boy was healed, is recalled by Mt. Hermon Way.

Then comes Mt. Pisgah Way, named after the range of hills which Moses traversed when he "went up from the plains to Moab unto Mount Nebo, to the top of Pisgah, that is over against Jericho," to die and be buried by God.

New Jersey and three of the States adjoining—Delaware, New York and Pennsylvania—are honored by having avenues in Ocean Grove called after them.

When Mr. Bradley bought the tract of land now known as Asbury Park, thirty-five years ago, and decided to make of it a summer resort, he had no idea what he should call it. He first laid out the place, then cast about him for a fitting name. Perusing a history of the Methodist Episcopal church in the interim, he was impressed with the work of Bishop Francis Asbury, the first bishop of the Methodist church in the United States. When in Baltimore a short time afterwrd Mr. Bradley visited Bishop Asbury's grave in the cemetery adjoining the old Eutaw Street Methodist Episcopal church there, and then decided to call his new resort after the first bishop of his church—Asbury. But as there was already an Asbury in the State, he had to add a second part to the name to avoid postoffice complications. Taking his cue from the dense woods the covering that part of Monmouth county, he made it Asbury Park. One of the principal thoroughfares bears Bishop Asbury's name, as well as an avenue in Ocean Grove.

The place formally designated, it was natural for Mr. Bradley to call the streets after other pprominent Methodists, and so generally was this done that as long as names of the streets and avenues remain, the pioneers of the Methodist Episcopal church will not be forgotten.

Kingsley street is named after the Rev. Calvin Kingsley, D. D., who was an American Methodist clergyman and bishop, and editor of the Western Christian Advocate in 1856. He died at Jerusalem in 1870 while on a tour of the world.

Barbara Heck, foundress of American Methodism, who formed the John Street Methodist Episcopal church, New York, the first of its denomination in America, has been honored by having Heck street, in Asbury Park, and Heck avenue, in Ocean Grove, named after her.

The memory of Bishop Philip E. Emory, an Irishman, who opened his home in New York for the first meeting of the Methodists in this country, will always be kept green if Emory street continues to exist. Thomas Emerson Bond, an American physician and Methodist clergyman, born in Baltimore in 1782, a local preacher and defender of Episcopal Methodism during the controversy which resulted in the organization of the Methodist Protestant church, inspired the name of Bond street. Dr. Bond was editor of the Christian Advocate and Journal for many years before he died, in 1856.

Cookman avenue was named after the Rev. George G. Cookman, an eloquent divine, who was twice chaplain to Congress. In 1841 he embarked for Europe on the steamer President, which was never heard from after she left her American port.

Hiram Hattison, for whom a business street is named, was an American preacher, belonging at first to an independent Methodist organization. He was a prolific writer on religious themes and noted for for hospility to to Roman Catholics and slavery. He died in Jersey City in 1868.

The Rev. Nathan Bangs was an American minister of the Methodist denomination. He was president of Wesleyan College.

WITTE'S HAND CALLED.

Hope of Peace Small, Says Baron Hayashi, and as to Terms——

London, July 19—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Minister here, said yesterday that Russia had appointed good men as peace plentipotentiaries. Nevertheless, even M. Witte and Baron Rosen had not inspired Japan with confidence in a favorable outcome of the negotiations.

It was suggested to the Minister that the general opinion was that the Japanese terms would be moderate. Baron Hayashi replied:

I cannot see where the people get such an idea. The public evidently mistakes the Japanese for angels.

Minister Hayashi intimated that Japan was ready to continue the war unless she got suitable terms. He called attention to the fact that practically the entire sum realized by the last two loans was unexpended. The capture of Saghalien was not precipitated by the approach of the conference, but was a natural sequence of the Japanese campaign, the plans for which had not been altered since Russia acceded to a conference. An earlier attaek on the island was not undertaken principally because of the severe winter and because the summer season was preferable for campaigning and the establishment of a new government.

Miss Tessie Mead, of High Bridge, is spending two weeks here with relatives.

Miss Euphemia Demarest, of Park avenue, has been visiting friends in Somerset county.

Harry Lunger, of the West End, has returned from a visit with relatives at Whitehouse.

Miss Freda Gray, of Wset Front street, has returned from a visit with relatives in Brooklyn.

Miss Addie Weaver visited at the home of her sister, Mrs. Vincent L. Frazee, of East Front street, Sunday, leaving yesterday for Rockville, Mass., whehe she will spend the summer.

HOT WEATHER CAUSES A SCARCITY OF MILK

HEAT AND PLAGUE OF FLIES HINDERS COWS IN GRAZING.

From various sections of the country, where hundreds of cows are kept as milk producers for Plainfield families, come reports of a scarcity of milk. The intense hot weather of the past few days has been a source of great discomfort to the cows. Added to this a plague of flies has interfered with grazing.

A number of dairymen in the vicinity of town are trying the experiment of bathing the legs and bodies of the cows with a preparation recently discovered, which is said to work like a charm. It produces no bad effects whatever, and is said to be a good preventive of attacks from flies, which are said to be unusually numerous this season.

There is also a scarcity of water in many parts of the country. A famine is threatened in Brooklyn, where the storage reservoirs are being gradually depleted of their supplies, owing to lack of rains. The Delaware River and other streams in New Jersey and Pennsylvania are reported low.

At the local water office, it was said today, that there was not scarcity of water for use in this city yet, but that so much was being used by lawn sprinklers and through hosepipes for outdoor usage that there would probably be a reduction in the pressure.

Cregan and Connolly did not have a single fly ball in the opening game.

Pitcher Doescher, of the Brooklyn Nationals, has been turned over to Atlanta.

"Rube" Oldring is playing a fast game at short for the Montgomery, Ala., team.

Dalton, Plainfield's new second baseman, is improving and will be in the game Saturday.

The many friends of "Warry" MacLaughlin are glad to know he is meeting with such success this season.

The question has been raised that if "Red" Waller can successfully pitch two games a week, Saturday and Sunday, "Willie" Deegan should be able to do the same thing.

It is not known whether Beck will be able to pitch on Saturday or not. He was at the game last Saturday, but was not well enough to play, although he covered right field a part of the contest.

Walter Clarkson, of the Jersey City Eastern League Club, is pitching remarkable ball. A few days ago he struck out fourteen batsmen in a game with Montreal. He will remain with the Skeeters this season.

A well-known baseball fan wished Manager Denman the greates success, with fine weather, for the opening game, and then expressed the hope that it would rain next. Saturday And this man lives in Plainfield.

Manager Denman says, by way of explanation, that his team had a case of "stage fright" last Saturday. There was evidence of nervousness on the part of several Westfield players, realizing that they were up against the real thing.

The fans are anxiously waiting for the second try-out on Saturday, when it is hoped the Daabsters will repeat their performance of last week. In many cases even money was not to be had on the first contest, and now Westfield is asking big odds.

The real rivalry that some of the fans have been asking for is now on between Plainfield and Westfield and a big crowd should greet the teams on Crescent Oval Saturday. Test the grounds to its fullest capacity and show your appreciation of the high class ball being played.

GOLF.

Play in the women's clock golf competition at the Plainfield Country Club has been concluded for the season.

The rest of July and August is sure to be quiet at the local golf clubs, as so many of the members take this time of the year for their outing. Interest will be revived in September when the play will continue until snow flies.

The race for the Golf Committee cup at the Plainfield Country Club is close and exciting, more interest being taken this year than ever before.

The interest in golf continues at the Park Golf Club. Nearly every day members visit the course and enjoy the game. Among the most ardent players is Alexander Gilbert, who scarcely misses a week in the club competition.

Plainfield, N. J., July 19, 1905.

"No matter what the subject, if you want the attention of the people in general attracted to it the best way is through the newspapers," says a Pennsylvania politician. "While it appears to be an innovation, I believe that political advertising will become indispensable in making the candidates known and familiar to the people as by posters, letters, charts, cards, buttons, etc., and that money spent in that direction is well spent. One particular advantage in newspaper political advertising is that your announcement to a high office in the gift of the municipality reaches practically every fireside within the city's limits and can be seen by that class of voters who do not take an active part in politics or get to places where they are discussed and other advertising devices are displayed or passed around. They see the announcement and pledges in their own homes."—Press and Printer.

GEN. F. E. PINTO DEAD

Father of William A. Pinto Passes Away in His Home in Brooklyn.

A MILITARY MAN.

Served in Mexican and Civil Wars — Member of New York Produce Exchange—Funeral Tomorrow.

General Francis Effington Pinto, one of the best known veterans of the Civil and Mexican wars, and father of William A. Pinto, of West Eighth street, died on Monday at his home, 105 State street, Brooklyn. He was the son of William Pinto, who was a private in the New Haven militia during the Revolution, and took part in the defence of New Haven in 1777, with other Yale students. His mother was Lauretta Packard, of Dartmouth, Mass.

His mother died while he was quite young and he removed very early to his grandparents, in New York city. The Mexican War, in 1846, attracted his attention and he enlisted, accepting a commission as second lieutenant in the First Regiment, New York Volunteers. He served during the war, taking an active part in all battles, and was with the storming party which placed the first flag on the walls after the battle of Chapultepec.

Upon the return of Lieutenant Pinto with the First Regiment to New York, in July, 1848, the city accorded the men a great welcome. General Pinto was the last surviving commissioned officer of the regiment. He was brevetted captain for gallant service in the Mexican War.

Lieutenant Pinto remained in New York until December, 1848, when he went to California, at the time of the discovery of gold. He remained in California until 1856, taking an active part in the early history of the State and associating himself with the Vigilance Committee of San Francisco. His military training was of much advantage to him and he acquitted himself with great credit. Lieutenant Pinto returned to New York and joined his family at Amsterdam, N. Y. He had married Miss Jessie Laimbeer a few years previously, and had two sons and two daughters. He devoted himself to farming for the next few years. When the Civil War was approaching, Lieutenant Pinto prepared to enter the struggle and assisted in recruiting the Thirty-second Regiment, New York Volunteers, in which he was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel. This regiment went through the four years' struggle, participating in all the important battles, and was attached to the Army of the Potomac.

Lieutenant Colonel Pinto became the colonel of his regiment in September, 1862, and continued with it in active service until it was mustered out, June 9, 1863. The regiment was reviewed by the Mayor upon its return to New York, and was received with great enthusiasm on account of its excellent record in the field.

General Pinto has written a very interesting history of the Thirty-second Regiment as well as the history of the First New York Regiment in the Mexican War. He was lately brevetted brigadier general for meritorious service during the war.

General Pinto afterward engaged in the grain warehousing business in New York city. He was a member of the Produce Exchange. During the later years of his life he enjoyed meeting his old comrades in arms and fighting over again the battles of the Mexican and Civil wars, and recounting the struggles of the early days in California.

General Pinto left a widow and four children, Mrs. I. Osgood Carleton, Mrs. Arthur Hart, F. E. Pinto, Jr., and William A. Pinto. He was a member of the Loyal Legion, New York State Commandery, Sons of the Revolution, Military Order of the Foreign Wars, Aztec Society and Army of the Potomac.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning, at 10:30 a. m., from 105 State street, Brooklyn.

ATLANTIC CITY HORSE SHOW.

R. A. Fairbairn One of the Exhibition's Judges.

The seventh annual horse show was opened at Atlantic City yesterday and despite the fact that the weather was the hottest that the popular resort had experienced in many years, there were over fifteen hundred persons present to make the opening an auspicious one. There were no local horses at the show, but nearly all of the out-of-town stock exhibited at the Plainfield show are on the card, and are having but little trouble in taking the prizes in the various classes. Robert A. Fairbairn, of Westfield, is one of the judges chosen for the show.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt attracted the most attention, as this is the first time he has shown his horses at Atlantic City. He appeared in the ring in several classes and, while his entries did not win all the blue ribbons in sight, he captured enough prizes to make the first day encouraging. The contests for the prizes were between New York and Boston horses, and one of the surprises of the day was the excellent showing made by the entries of E. D. Jordan, who captured three blue ribbons and one third prize, representing $235.

P. S. C. SINGLE END CARS

A Decided Improvement is Adopted by the Trolley Monoply.

WHAT IT MEANS.

Makes It Easier For Employes—Betters the Schedule Time—Convenient to Patrons.

The Public Service Corporation is adopting the single end operation for the cars on all lines in New Jersey. This will be an advantage in many respects. It will be an immense saving to the corporation in equipment of cars, it will facilitate the operation, make it easier for motormen and conductors, improve the running schedule and assure the public other conveniences, comforts and accommodations.

The "single end operation" is to run cars one way, never turning them. Cars running always in one direction require only one motor, the bearing work better and the brushes do not need much adjusting. The motormen and conductors have no fender to change and no trolley pole to shift. A car needs only one controller, one brake handle, one headlight and one register.

The motormen and conductors have always objected to being obliged change fenders and to shift trolley poles at the terminus of each route. This had to be done in all kinds of weather. It is not a pleasant duty, it is not an easy task, and it is dirty work, getting their hands greasy and black, and soiling their clothes. The new system does away with all this, and the men who run the cars are enthusiastic for the change.

When the roads are equipped with the "single-end cars," the stove in each car will be in front, near the motorman. This will give more space in width of car and better circulation of air.

There being no controller nor brake handle on the back platform of the "single-end cars" there will be a greater space for people who are disposed to stand on the platform, especially smokers, and there will be a rail to prevent crushing at the door by passengers getting in and out. The rail will make a division, so that there will be an entry and exit, passengers avoiding the pushing and crowding when the traffic is heavy.

The front platform will also be arranged so that passengers can enter and alight.

In case of open or "summer cars," there will be one running board, which will lessen the danger of accident to persons getting on and off of the cars. In operating these "single-end cars" the company will be required to have loops at every terminus, and it is acquiring the lands for that purpose.

The company will get many new cars of the pattern described, and will alter all of the present equipment. It has expended half a million dollars in concentrating and establishing repair shops. It has reduced the number of repair shops from twenty to five.

Y. M. C. A. TENNIS.

Results of the Tournament in Singles So Far.

With the exception of the game between C. B. Koons and Arthur Aalholm, the trials in the Y. M. C. A. singles tennis tournament have been played off. The results follow:

Colliner defeated Doane, 6—3, 6—2; Spicer defeated Hoffman, by default; Rockwell defeated Robbie, 6—2, 6—2; T. O. Gavett defeated P. L. Phillips, 6—1, 6—0; VanArsdale defeated Henckel, 6—2, 6—2; C. J. Hand defeated Stutzman, 6—3, 6—2; and M. H. Long loses to V. Miner, by default.

While none of the contestants have played a phenomenal game so far, the general opinion among those who know the players is that Collier is the good man and that he may meet C. B. Koons in the finals.

TIMELY TOPICS DISCUSSED BY PLAINFIELDERS

—WRITTEN BY REQUEST FOR THE DAILY PRESS—

No. 6—The County Election Commissioners and Their Duties.—By John W. Murray, Jr.

Though its duties are as numerous and probably far more important than those of several other county organizations familiar to every one, it is surprising how few people outside of political circles know anything about the County Election Commissioners, or County Election Board, as it is generally called. Four out of every five men asked will reply in a vague sort of way that it deals with the elections, but beyond that no further information can be elicited. The fifth one may be able to tell something of its duties, but it will be because he has some particular reason for it.

The commissioners in Union county are four in number, and they are appointed by the Governor for a term of two years. At the present time the members are John L. Crowell, of Rahway; Robert H. McAdams and C. A. Swift, of Elizabeth, and John W. Murray, Jr., of this city. They have more or less work to do all through the year, but the time when they are especially busy is immediately before and directly after election.

To begin with, they have to appoint the various election boards in every city, borough, town and township in the county, and it is no small task to see that all are fully prepared to go to work at the proper time. In the case of a newly created municipality it has to assume all charge of the election as if it were the governing body, issuing the primary calls, apportioning the various wards or districts and supervising the smaller details. This has frequently given the commissioners all they could conveniently take care of, Westfield's change of government being a recent example.

With the vote counted in every district, the ballots, still in the boxes, are forwarded to the commissioners, and they make the official count. The first is for the benefit of the expectant public, the second, to make certain that it has been done right and that no man takes office who is not entitled to it. This official count is an extremely methodical proceeding, but is made interesting by the gathering of lawyers and politicians that generally watches every move, the former appearing for defeated candidates, who are always certain that a mistake has been made if the vote happens to be close. With the recount completed, the list of successful candidates is official announced.

In addition, the board meets the Thursday and Saturday previous to an election and adds to the registry list the names of voters that have been omitted for some reason or other. Those who appear for this purpose have to make affidavit as to the cause of their not attending to the registration at the proper time.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The hot weather interferes somewhat with the comfort of all, and those whose duties require them to be out find the scorching sun almost unbearable.

At the prayer meeting at the Baptist church last night unnecessary lights were dispensed with and familiar hymns were sung from memory.

Maple avenue has received a top dressing of fine stone and has been watered and rolled.

Mrs. William Mellick, of Mount Pleasant, is improving from an attack of dysentery.

Mrs. Harry Campbell, of Oak Tree, is seriously ill with an attack of dysentery.

The health of the residents here is at present more than ordinarily good.

AEROPLANE FELL 3,000 FEET.

Daniel Maloney Killed Before a Throng at California College.

Santa Clara, Cal., July 19.—In the presence of more than 2,000 persons on the grounds of the Santa Clara College yesterday Daniel Maloney plunged 3,000 feet to death by the collapse of Prof. John J. Montgomery's aeroplane. This flying machine, which had been tested several times successfully by the aeronaut, had one wing injured by a guy rope as the start was made, but Maloney did not notice the damage. The result was that when he cut loose from the big balloon that bore him upward the aeroplane collapsed.

Prof. Montgomery, who is an instructor at Santa Clara College, had arranged the ascent as a benefit for cadets who were encamped near by.

TIRE BURST, AUTO UPSET.

Accident Marred the Pleasure Trip of Philadelphia Party.

E. C. Williams, of Philadelphia, an electrical contractor, had his auto wrecked near New Brunswick, on the Cranbury Turnpike, Saturday night. The party, consisting of Williams, his uncle, his chauffeur and another guest, were on their way to Hartford, Conn., and were going at a fast rate, intending to get to New York and spend the night. Near the city poor farm the machine struck a hole and a bursting tire upset the car.

Another auto coming up behind narrowly escaped running into the wreck. The second auto brought the party to New Brunswick, and Williams' uncle, who would not give his name, was taken to the hospital.

ROOT TAKES OATH TODAY.

Washington, July 19.—Elihu Root arrived here last night from New York, and today takes the oath as Secretary of State. He was somewhat fatigued as the result of his journey and the intense heat.

He said that his coming at this time was formally to take his office. He will remain in the city only one day.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION

Fad Has Reached Paulsboro.

Several of our Paulsboro people are taking their summer vacations.—Paulsboro Sun.

Applies as Well to Camden.

Not all the census enumerators did their work as carefully as they should.—Trenton State Gazette.

Painful News for Senator Kean.

A dispatch from New London, Conn., says that United States Senator Kean's daughter was injured in a trolley accident there. This will be painful news to Senator Kean, who is a bachelor.—Trenton State Gazette.

Fairly Well.

All this talk about bankruptcy isn't worrying some people in Paterson. It is to be noted that the two locomotive plants there are paying out $82,000 in wages weekly, and the silk mills are doing fairly well, besides.—Newark News.

Some Consolation.

Come to think of it, the Board of Health is not the most harmonious body in the city. But we know that we have a body of men who call themselves a Board of Health, anyway, and that is more than we used to know.—Perth Amboy News.

Put the Tramps at Work.

Now, why not put the tramps to work on the meadow turnpike? The Press doesn't believe in the chain-gang system of doing business, but the tramps might be sent to the turnpike under guard and compelled to work out their "keep." The chances are that the tramps would soon fight shy of Atlantic county, but we might get a little use out of those now here.—Atlantic City Press.

We Don't Need Him.

Down in Monmouth county they have a freeholder who put in a bill to the county board for 31 working days in February. That man should move to Passaic county and try to get on the Republican machine ticket here next fall. Some of the old gang are surely going to be nominated, and they would welcome such an addition to thier ranks.—Paterson Guardian.

Not Successful Financiers.

Conditions in Ocean county are nearing the point where the voters will take a hand in affairs, if the Grand Jury does not. The Board of Freeholders adjourned on Wednesday without transacting any business because there is no money available for the payment of outstanding bills. The balance in the treasury is $104, and there are outstanding $34,000 in notes and several thousands of dollars of obligations for which bills have been presented. The new crowd that has come into control of the county's affairs are not successful financiers.—Trenton Times.

What's "Scotty's" Game.

Gotham fights shy of "Scotty," the "Croesus of Death Valley," who spent money lavishly on a railroad record-breaking journey East. New Yorkers whenever they see a man putting out good coin without getting some return, immeditly ask, "What's his game?" They suspect "Scotty" of some fell design to unload a Death Valley "salted" mine or bring some other form of a Western gold brick into Wall street. The record-breaker is certainly getting a vast amount of free advertising and if he doesn't turn it to account, Gothamites will be greatly disappointed.—Camden Post Telegram.

Sinews of War Needed.

The Atlantic City Hotel Men's Association will hold an important meeting tonight to devise ways and means for the creation of a fund for the purpose of securing the attendance of conventions in Atlantic City. The failure of the joint committee in Buffalo, instead of having a discouraging effect, should be utilized as an object lesson and should spur the hotel men on to the evolution of a system and method in accomplishing the results that have not been attained purely from a lack of system and method. The scheme suggested by Messrs. Bell, Phoebus and other aggressive members of the association to raise the sinews of war is an eminently practical and equitable one, and deserves the support of the entire membership at tonight's meeting.—Atlantic City Press.

Tribute to Coyne.

Assemblyman Coyne, of Union, whose death occurred last Wednesday, was very popular as a candidate, but very conservative as a legislator. Whenever he ran for office in the county he led his ticket, and this was true even in 1903, when he and all the others on the Republican ticket were defeated, partyl because of the bolt of the Plainfield Republicans, but mainly because the voters of the party throughout the county refused to support a ticket upon which a colored citizen was running for coroner. During Mr. Coyne's first term in the Legislature he introduced only a single bill, but last spring he introduced ten, six of which were passed, four were defeated, and one, the Plainfield garbage bill, was vetoed by Governor Stokes. The two laws for which Mr. Coyne is likely to receive most credit are the one permitting cities of the second class to appropriate $2,000 to provide music in the public parks during July and August of each year, and the act providing for an agen to assist convicts on parole from the State Prinson. It has been intimated that Union county may have to call a special election to fill the vaeancy caused by Assemblyman Coyne's death, as was done in the case of the death of Assemblyman-elect Embree. But there is no necessity for expending another $19,000, the cost of the recent special election. The Legislature is not at all likely to be called in special session, and if it is Union county still has Assemblyman Tillman and Assemblyman Perkins. It has not State Senator, however, and if not special election is needed to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Judge Cross, none will be required to fill that caused by the death of Assemblyman Coyne.—Newark News.

Chance for the Methodist Girl.

The Asbury Park authorities have raised the ban on women's bathing suits, and they may now wear any old color they like. In other places the femal form divine—and otherwise—has been more or less displayed in all the gorgeous hues of the rainbow, but the good Methodist damsels at Asbury and Ocean Grove have been compelled to wear sombre hues and look demure, and the textture of their mermaid garments had to be such that it could not by any possibility adhere to the person when emerging from the sea. Now the emerging from the sea will be more on the Venus order, for with mohair and silk and other clingy stuff graceful curves are not obliterated as by loose hanging folds of blue flannel. The attractions of the beach will now be more attractive than ever. We always thought it an imposition on the Methodist girl to be compelled to give the impression that she was less symmetrically formed than the girls of other denominations. So here's good luck and long life to the authorities who have lifted the abnoxious ban from the female bathers of Asbury.—Paterson Call.

How Our Navy Grows.

In the next twelve months the splendid battleships New Jersey, Connecticut, Nebraska, Vermont, Georgia, Virginia, Rhode Island and Lousiana, eight in all, together with the armored cruisers California and South Dakota, Washington and Tennessee and the protected cruisers Charleston, Milwaukee and St. Paul, will be completed and placed in commission, and the navy will be reinforced by the best type of war vessels afloat. With these additions, our actual sea power will be second only to Great Britain. For the national defense of the stretch of three thousand miles of Atlantic Ocean between America and Europe is worth a score of modern battleships. No European power could employ against us more than a fraction of its navy, because of the necessity of keeping ships in home waters, or for the protection of colonial interests, or for service at vital strategic points. And the American navy is the most modern of all navies. Begun late, its construction has been in accordance with the latest and best ideas in marine architecture and naval armament.—Newark Advertiser.

Defect in Weather Predictions.

There is one annoying feature of the official weather forecasts. They make no mention of temperature. Every day we are told that showers are likely, and which way the wind may be expected to blow. What most people are anxious about is the prospect of relief from the hot and humid spell, but neither "cooler," nor "continued high temperature" is vouchsafed by the forecasters.—Paterson Press.

Advertising the Police.

It is quite practicable to cleanse a city of houses of ill fame, especially such a suburban place as Newark, without dragging women to that light of publicity which destroys the last vestige of self-respect. Every police official knows this, and theatrical displays by public raids are counted by them as advertising for the police official directly concerned. The suppression of actual vice is never accomplished except by a quiet determination, which is communicated to the offender. When actual arrests are necessary, the person incharge should be taken into custody and punished vigorously. The object should be to cleanse, not to advertise police efficiency—and not to kill the last spark of decency in unhappy and wretched womanhood.—Newark Call.

Three Great Stories.

The New York Sunday World is publishing as high-class fiction these days as the quarter magazines. In next Sunday's World are three great stories, "The Boscombe Valley Mystery," by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle; "The Dwarf's Spectacles" by Dr. Max Nordau, and "A Midsummer Night's Dream," by America's new humorist, O. Henry. "Things New Yorkers Stand For," by Anna Steese Richardson, is mighty interesting reading, too. Any girl who reads one of Margaret Hubbard Ayer's "Little Sermons to Girls" wants to read the others. There is another one in next Sunday's New York World.

Faults of Women

The Girl Who Is Always Late—Familiarity In Families

Of all the nuisances the girl who is always late is the worst. She certainly has no pride and no sensitiveness.

The woman who has self respect is never late twice. Once is a sufficient lesson. She is conscious that she has kept every one waiting for dinner, for instance. The soup is cold, her hostess is put out, and all the others who were tired and hungry look at her reproachfully. She feels she would like to climb a post or crawl into a hole, and in future she allows plenty of time for possible delay and accident in keeping her engagement.

But the ever tardy woman is an entirely different proposition. She is as cool as a cucumber about it, and her skin is so thick that no amount of innuendo will pierce her armor of selfishness.

She always reaches the scene of action from twenty to thirty minutes behind time, wearing a sweet smile and gurgling an "Oh, I'm so sorry!" that atones for everything in her eyes.

She swears it is the last time she ever will be late, and she commits the same offense the very next time!

Now and then the friends of the tardy woman rebel and play a trick on her. This is what happened to an acquaintance of mine: She was invited to the theater and was asked to meet the rest of the party in the lobby.

They waited, and they waited, and they waited. Finally mademoiselle turned up when the first act was almost over. Nothing was said, and the enraged victims filed in to hear what was left of the play. To the culprit's surprise, she was invited again by the same people the following week. This time she was only five minutes late; but, lo and behold, they had all gone in, leaving no ticket for her, and with the sound of applause and the distant orchestra in her ears she had nothing to do but turn about and go home.

"Familiarity In Families."

I heard a very original lecture the other day. It was given by a woman, and the title was "Familiarity In Families."

The speaker went on to say that the good old proverb "Familiarity breeds contempt" could be applied to families just as much as it could to strangers. If the respect that was due strangers were paid members of the same family, she concluded, there would be fewer quarrels, fewer misunderstandings, and the atmosphere of such a home would be much more pleasant both to its members and to the visitor. Then in the case of a woman who married into the family the lecturer spoke feelingly of the way her "in-laws" took advantage of her and began running in at all hours to borrow things or make use of her in any way they could. A little less familiarity would certainly give the newcomer a much better opinion of her husband's people and an opportunity of liking them for their own sakes instead of tolerating them for the sake of her husband.

"OH, I'M SO SORRY!"

There certainly is need of such a dissertation. I know of one bride whose husband's sister tried to borrow money from her before she had worn her wedding ring six months. And how many families are there where a knock on a closed door is considered superfluous and where consequently there is no more privacy than in the public square?

Mlle. Melancholie.

"The woman whose conversation is always melancholy is bad enough, but she who writes depressing letters is the human limit," said a friend of mine. "We have one such female Schopenhauer in our family. When we receive a cheerful note we mark a red cross on the calendar and rejoice, but the calendar is not marked very often. First we get her presentiment that something is going to happen; then it almost happens; then there is a third stage sometimes—when it does happen. So we get the benefit of them all anyway.

MAUD ROBINSON.

(Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.)

All along the line from right to left there ran the cross-country road connecting the broader highway, from Malate to San Rafael and Paranaque on the west, and from Paco by way of Singalon to Pasay. In front of the right wing all was swamp, morass or rice fields. In front of the left wing all was close, dense bamboo and jungle, save where the broad, straight roadway led on past Block House 13, or the narrower cart track stretched southward, overarched in places by spreading branches, and commanded at its narrowest path by the swarm of dusky fighters in Block House 14. A year before the blue shirts stormed these forest strongholds from the south, and took them from the troops of Spain. Now they were compelled to turn and storm them from the north; for, just as Stanley Armstrong said at San Francisco, the Filipinos had turned upon their ally and would-be friend. Aguinaldo had bearded Uncle Sam.

And while the volunteers and regulars to the right could only remain in support, it fell to the lot of the left wing of this brave brigade to assault in almost impenetrable position an enemy armed with magazine rifles or breech loaders, and entirely at home. The bugles rang the signal; the officers in silence took their station, and, stepping into the narrow pathways through the jungle, crouching along the roadways or crashing through the stiff bamboo, the blue shirts drove ahead. Two, three minutes and their purpose seemed undiscovered. Then suddenly Block House 14 blazed with fire and a storm of bullets swept the road. The earthworks in the thicket to the right and left seemed to be crowded with a running flame; and down on their faces fell the foremost soldiers, their gallant leader shot through and through, plunging headlong, yet in his dying agony waving his surviving men to get to cover. Vengefully now the "Krags" opened in reply to Remington and Mauser. The blue-shirts struggled inch by inch through the network of bamboo. Still the storm swept up the roadway, and no man could hope to face it and live. But, little by little, the low-aimed, steady volleys, driven in by squad and section through the canebreak, or by company and platoon across the westward swamps, told on the nerve and discipline of the little brown men in the bamboo. Their shots flew swift, but wild and higher. Then a daring lad, in the rough field uniform of a subaltern of infantry, sprang like a cat into the fire-flashing lane, and, revolver in hand and a squad of devoted fellows at his heels, dashed straight at the wooden walls ahead. In frantic haste the occupants blazed shot after shot upon him and his heroic followers. One after another three went down; but in another instant, the lieutenant leading, they reached the block house and darted through the open doorway, the last of its garrison fleeing before such unheard-of daring and determination. And then came the rush of comrades cheering down the lane, tumbling over the earthworks and the luckless gang that, still crouching there, held to their position, and all the southward leading road was ours.

But, over along the next lane, a parallel track through the timber, there had been as stern a check; and the fury of the fire from the trenches in the thickets forced brave men to cover and dropped others in their tracks. "By God, we must have it!" almost screamed a tall captain, pointing with his sword to the flashing block house half hidden in the trees. "Hear those fellows on the other road? Don't let them beat us. Come on, lads," and out he darted into the open, an instant target for a score of Mausers. Out, too, leaped half a dozen men, one a tall, lithe, superbly built young athlete, with a face aflame with resolution and rage of battle. Out leaped Billy Gray from the corner of the crossroad, and, cheering madly, called on others to follow. Down went the captain, shot through the knee. Down went the nearmost man, the tall youth who was first to follow. Down went a brawny sergeant, who had stopped to raise his fallen captain; but on swept a score of others while the bamboos blazed with the fierce volleying of the Krags. Forward in scores now, yelling like Apaches, rushed the regulars; and somehow, he never just knew how it happened, Gray found himself a moment later straddling an old field gun in a whirl of dust and dirt and smoke and cheers, was conscious of something wet and warm streaming down his side, and of being tenderly lifted from his perch by brawny, blue-sleeved arms, given a sip from a canteen, and then, half-led, half-supported back to where the surgeon was already kneeling by the tall young soldier on whose brow the last dew was settling, on whose fine, clear-cut face the shadow of the death angel's wings was already traced. The poor fellow's eyes opened wearily as he sipped the stimulant pressed upon him by eager, sympathetic hands, and glanced slowly about as though in search of some familiar face; and so they fell on those of Billy Gray, who, forgetful for the moment of his own hurt, threw himself by the stranger's side and seized his clammy hand. A half smile flitted over the pale face, the other hand groped at the breast of his blue shirt and slowly drew forth a packet, stained and dripping with the blood that welled slowly from a shot-hole in the broad white breast. "Give to —Gen. Drayton— Promise," he gasped, and pushed it painfully toward Billy Gray. Then the brave eyes closed, the weary head fell back; and Gray, staring as though in stupefaction into the placid face, found himself drooping, too, growing dizzy and faint and reeling, but still holding on to his trust.

"Don't some of you know him?" asked the surgeon. "He's past helping now, poor lad. Here, you drink this, Billy;" and he placed a little silver cup at Gray's pallid lips.

"He came a-runnin' from over at Block House 12 with a note from division headquarters just as we went in," said a veteran sergeant, drawing the back of a powder-stained hand across his dripping forehead, then respectfully stepping back as a young officer bent down and glanced at Gray.

"Much hurt, Billy, old man? No? Thank God for that! Look at who? Where? Why, God in Heaven, it's Pat Latrobe! Oh, Pat! Pat! dear old boy —has it come to this!"

WHY SO MANY AT REFORM SCHOOL!?

PUBLIC AROUSED BY STATEMENT THAT SCHOOL IS OVERCROWED.

The recent announcement in the Home News that the Jamesburg Reform School is overcrowded has caused considerable comment about the State and calls are being made upon Commissioner Wright, the new charities official, to look into the charge that some parents simply send their children to the institution to be relieved of their care. The Camden Courier News prints the following about the situation:

"There is an unfortunate condition of affairs at the State Reform School at Jamesburg, where they have sixty more boys than the authorities can properly accommodate and more are daily arriving. Middlesex county has three candidates for the school, and the sheriff telephoned to the Jamesburg officials for some blank forms, only to be informed that they did not have one in the institution and that the man who looked after the printing of them was away on his vacation, with the concluding emphatic bit of information that they did not want any more boys, being overcrowded now.

"It is certainly astonishing with what rapidity the penal and correctional institutions have been filled beyond their legitimate capacity of late years, and it should be one of the incidental duties of Commissioner Wright to endeavor to find out the reason for the same. In the case of the Reform School for Boys, it is estimated that some parents send their children there on the plea of incorrigibility and inability to control them for the purpose of being relieved of the responsibility of caring for them. There is no doubt much truth in that statement, and the ferreting out and punishing such frauds on the State's benevolence would be better work for the New Jersey Charities Aid Association than endeavoring to furnish additional 'coddle-orums,' such as the proposed woman's reformatory.

"That there is a lamentable increase in the number of bad boys is too true, due to the negligence and indulgence of parents seeking their own enjoyment without care for their children or how they may be acquiring wicked ways. If it should prove too true that there are parents who simply make use of the reform school to provide subsistence for their children, a law should be enacted compelling such parents to pay for it besides paying a penalty for the fraud. The cost of maintaining the State's penal and correctional institutions is increasing annually at such a rate as to demand attention from the Legislature, in order to ascertain if some means cannot be devised to limit it within reasonable proportions.

"Perhaps when Commissioner Wright has become thoroughly familiar with the conditions he may be able to suggest a remedy to relieve the State of the drain upon its treasury to support the class of institutions referred to."

A Blaze of Beauty.

The Valley of the Lehigh is one of the most delightful places of refuge at this sweltering time of year. The name alone is enough to conjure up—if not an invigorating mountain breeze—at least a vision of grand mountain scenery. Not only is it an ideal country for a summer vacation, but it repays a hundred-fold the time given to the most fleeting visit. Many points of supreme interest, in fact, are within the reach of a single day's excursion from New York. Notable among these is Mauch Chunk.

Both from historic interest, this being the place where anthracite coal was first discovered and mined in the United States, and on account of the wonders of the natural scenery. Mauch Chunk is one of the most remarkable localities in Eastern America. The whole trip is charming in the highest degree. First one traverses the beautiful rolling country of Western New Jersey, studded with splendid groves and picturesque old farm buildings. Beyond Easton the railroad runs along beside the Lehigh River and the old canal and the scenery becomes more varied and striking. At last Mauch Chunk is reached, where it lies hidden in the heart of the hills.

The feature of greatest interest at Mauch Chunk is the old "Switchback Railroad." Built in early times to bring the product of the mines down to the barges, it has of late years been used solely for the recreation of visitors. It affords a thrilling ride. From the summit of a mountain commanding a view of the wide region bounded by distant mountain ranges, the car starts gradually until, gaining speed from its own momentum, it rushes along wildly through the forests by old mines and mining settlements, across high pasture lands and along the hillsides, until at last the circuit of eighteen miles is completed and the car has returned safely to the foot of the mountain whence it started.

The New Jersey Central will run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk on July 23, 1905. Round trip $1.50. Special train leaves Plainfield at 9.20 a. m., and there is sufficient time at Mauch Chunk for a day of rare enjoyment.

Arthur Jeffery, a clerk at the City National Bank, is spending a part of his vacation at Lake Hopatcong.

In New York State the bank accounts of non-residents are subject to an inheritance tax at the death of the depositor.

It will therefore be seen that it is greatly to the advantage of non-residents of New York State to keep their savings or checking accounts in the same state in which they reside.

WESTFIELD ANXIOUS TO REDEEM ITSELF

TO COME HERE SATURDAY DETERMINED TO TAKE SECOND GAME.

Every baseball fan was anxious to see how the Plainfield and Westfield teams would measure up in the first game at Recreation Park on Saturday, and the defeat of the Denmanites by a score of 4 to 0 afforded them great satisfaction, proving their assertion that the locals are stronger than the down-the-line aggregation. This seemed to be the general impression here, but at the same time it should not be forgotten that Westfield will come here on Saturday to win. In fact, Manager Denman and every member of the team declare that victory will perch on their banner after the next contest. On the other hand, Manager Daab is just as determined that it shall come here, and he is counting on getting number two, the same as he did number one. That both managers have full confidence in their players goes without saying, and they announce that their lineup will be practically the same as last week.

There may be one or two changes. Smithson, who has been playing short stop for Westfield, goes back to Fargo, and his place will be taken by Eddie Daly, the old Crescent player. However, Daly cannot put up any better game than "Hub," and some fans don't think he is as good. Otherwise, Manager Denman says his team will be the same.

Manager Daab is not sure who he will send to the firing line. From present indications Beck will hardly be able to pitch. He is in bad condition, and it may be that "Willie" Deegan may again be called upon to hold down Westfield. If he is he can be depended upon to do the trick, as he has never been in better condition. Dalton, the second baseman, will probably be all right by Saturday, but "Tuck" Turner will be on hand in case anything happens. Cosgrave will also be back in his position at center and will put lots of ginger in the game.

Everyone knows that Plainfield's team did not suffer by Manager Denman's comparison prior to the opening contest, and in the finer points of the game the locals showed superior strength both in the field and at the bat. It was gratifying to both managers to see the loyal support given last Saturday from fans throughout the county, and the attendance this week should even exceed that. Plainfield has never had better baseball, and a very good way to appreciate it is to attend the games and root for the home team. The double umpire system will be used throughout the series. It gave general satisfaction in the first game and there should be no trouble.

"Red" Waller, of course, feels chagrined that he lost the first go, but he told Manager Denman afterward that he would catch Plainfield yet and give them a coat of whitewash in return.

TODAY AT BRIGHTON.

Montauk Stakes for Two-Year-Olds —Winners Hard to Pick.

An interesting programme is offered today to the patrons of the Brighton Beach race track. In the majority of the races the winners seem hard to locate, but the odds will be big.

The Montauk Stakes for two-year-olds, at six furlongs, is the feature of the programme. George E. Bennett, in spite of the 127 pounds he will carry, seems to be the best. If Nicol, his regular rider, will only manage to steer clear of "pockets" this colt ought to win. Accountant may be second and Ormondale third.

Dental Congress at Exposition.

The Lewis & Clark Dental Congress has commenced a four days' session, with over 300 members of the profession in attendance. Eight Western States were largely represented, fifteen States in all sending delegates. There are also dentists present from Singapore, Honolulu, Canada, New Zealand and Alaska. The officers of the congress are: Dr. Norris R. Cox, president; Dr. Arthur W. Chance, secretary and treasurer. The honorary presidents are J. A. Hall, of Alabama, and Drs. J. M. Whitney and E. S. Talbot, of Illinois.

Helen F. Ronayne Dead.

PROPRIETOR COUNIHAN MOVES TO PLAINFIELD

SAYS NEW THEATRE WILL BE READY FOR OPENING ON AUG. 24.

Proprietor W. J. Counihan, of the new Plainfield theatre, today moved his family to this city from Philadelphia, taking possession of the house at Spooner avenue and Essex street. He will make his permanent home here and will personally manage the playhouse.

In speaking with a Daily Press reporter this morning, Mr. Counihan said the work on the theatre is progressing nicely and that without doubt it would be fully completed and ready for the opening with "The County Chairman" on August 24. The carpenters are now installing the orchestra floor and next week the plasterers will begin work. All the scenery, decorative panels and furnishings have been ordered and just as soon as the auditorium is ready they will be installed.

The policy of the management, Mr. Counihan said, would be to give the Plainfield people the very best shows on the road, and the bookings already made bear him out. He has contracted for some of the largest Broadway productions and they will show entire. Any attempt at the reduction of either company or scenery from that seen in the metropolis will mean a forfeiture of all arrangements

HOT WEATHER STORY.

Chief Doane and Chairman Bullock Surprised at Courier-News Story.

A statement in last night's Courier-News to the effect that two members of the local fire department intended making charges against another member for abusing one of the department horses appears to have been a hot weather story. The report came as an unpleasant surprise to Chief Doane, and he immediately began an investigation. Every man in the three city houses was waited on by him personally, but so far he has failed to gain any information that would bear out the newspaper allegation.

Chairman Bullock, of the fire committee, was highly incensed when the report came to him, and he also interviewed everyone of the drivers, but with the same result. Nobody could throw any light on the purported abuse, and it looks as if the whole thing originated in idle, summer-day talk.

WIFE BEATER PUNISHED.

B. Brown Gets 90 Days—Britton Sent to Reformatory.

The last of the Plainfield cases were disposed of in the Union County Court this morning by Judge Vail. Benjamin Brown, indicted on a charge of beating his wife, and who pleaded non vult, was sentenced to the county jail for three months.

Eugene Britton, colored, found guilty of assaulting Fred Sheppard, was sent to the reformatory at Rahway.

Lewis Milligan, found guilty of stealing $2 from a young man here, was put in charge of the probation officer and sentence was suspended.

Married by the 'Squire.

Frank A. Ingraham and Miss Louise Benedict, both of this city, were married in the office of Lawyer Fred J. Huff, last evening, the ceremony being performed by Justice J. E. Mosher. The young couple called upon the attorney under the impression that he was still a magistrate and made the request that the knot be tied. Not being vested with the legal authority he called upon Justice Mosher and the latter quickly complied. Mr. and Mrs. Ingraham will make their home on Liberty street. The former is a member of the New Jersey Central's park gang.

Miss A. M. Underhill Dead.

Miss Anna M. Underhill, of East Front street, died early this morning at Muhlenberg Hospital, following an attack of appendicitis. She was the daughter of the late Dr. Alfred Underhill, of New York, and had made her home in this city for a number of years with her cousin, George Underhill, of East Front street, opposite Church street. The funeral will be held from her late home tomorrow afternoon and interment will be made Friday in Trinity cemetery, New York.

—Keep in mind the fact that the hot weather has not stopped the arrivals of delicious Georgia peaches and fancy Maryland melons at Neuman Brothers'. The display is just as large as ever.

GLENNEY AND BARROWS IN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

RIVAL CONTESTANTS FOR HONORS AT PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB.

Opinions are divided as to the outcome of the play for the golf championship between W. L. Glenney and Dudley H. Barrows at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday. Both players are right on their game now and in view of the close and exciting match on Saturday in the semi-finals between Glenney and Morris J. Dumont, in which the former had a lively time defeating his opponent, and was obliged to play 19 holes to decide the match.

Considering the fact that Barrows has a deal more time to devote to the game than Dumont, he should be in better condition to meet Glenney. That the latter will give the Princeton lad all he wants to do is evident from the way he has been playing, yet he cannot hope to have an easy time of it. During the past year Barrows has improved his game wonderfully and he is sure to gain a prominent place in golf circles.

Frank O. Reinhart holds the golf championship of the club at present, but for some reason he did not care to defend his title, preferring that other aspirants should have a chance. In fact, Reinhart has devoted very little time to the game this season, much to the surprise of his friends. He occasionally visits the Plainfield Country Club and plays the course, usually making a low score, but he has kept away from the big tournaments, and he has been greatly missed.

The finals on Saturday are sure to be full of interest to all lovers of the game and the result will be awaited by many friends of the contestants.

Third Regiment Captain Arrested.

Several soldiers connected with Company F, Third Regiment, headed by Captain Walter E. Turner, and Pennsylvania Railroad ferry hands, nearly came to blows yesterday at Federal street ferry, Camden. Captain Turner was arrested. The ferry employes allege the soldiers, who held transportation from Camden to Sea Girt, attempted to cross the ferry to Philadelphia without paying ferriage. All were in uniform. The slip tender's request for ferry tickets was refused, and he called upon Policeman Lloyd and several fellow-employes to assist him. The soldiers were forced back, but not before their captain was placed under arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct.

A Priest Nearly Forty-two Years.

Very Rev. Dean Martin Gessner, rector of St. Patrick's church, Elizabethport, will celebrate the forty-second anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood on July 26. He has been rector of St. Patrick's since 1873, and previous to that was stationed at Vineland. His great work is as rector of St. Patrick's parish, which he found heavily in debt when he took charge, and where, during his thirty-two years' pastorate, he has erected and paid for a church and other religious edifices aggregating in total value about $1,000,000.

Spadeful of Earth $275.

For the privilege of turning the first spadeful of sod for the excavation that is to be made for the foundation of the new priory for the Dominican Fathers, in Newark, John J. Radel paid $275 last night at an auction held on the grounds in the presence of fully 1,200 people. The bidding for the right was spirited and was conducted by Michael J. O'Connor in a way that kept the audience amused until the highest bidder was announced.

National Guard Register.

A complete roster of the National Guard of New Jersey, revised to July 1, has just been issued by the adjutant-general's department. It is in pamphlet form, and will be distributed among the troops at once.

ITALIANS DISAPPOINT.

No Fireworks Last Night at Concert Park.

What was unanimously voted a rather disappointing programme, was rendered by the Italian band from Brooklyn, at Concert Park, last night. Last year's celebration of the Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel was remembered as far more satisfying as a spectacle and the general opinion seemed to be that what is termed a religious festival by those observing it, resembled more closely a strictly business proposition, in which the spectators were expected to satisfy themselves with the short end of the bargain.

Contrary to the general expectation, the fireworks consisted entirely of fire balloons, five of which were sent up in the intervals of the musical programme.

Tonight's programme provides for fireworks, but whether there will be any cannot be said.

Judging from the collection which was being taken up this morning throughout the business section, by members of the committee who accompanied the band, some at least, of Plainfield's money will be burned up tonight, provided the promised exhibition takes place.

ROYAL ARCANUM RATES.

Councils Said to Take More Favorable View of the Advance.

Past Regent W. Holt Apgar, of the Royal Arcanum, and a member of the Supreme Council's executive committee, is of the opinion that the present revolt of the order against increased rates will speedily become a thing of the past. He declares that he is in daily receipt of letters from councils in all parts of the country telling of the indorsement of the increase.

He thinks that possibly there has been some miscalculation in the making of the new rates, thus placing an unduly heavy burden of expense on the older members, and says if this is the case the mistake will be rectified by the Supreme Council. He finds a good deal of sentiment in favor of a revision of the advanced rates in order to place fore of the increase on the young men in the order.

John Meeker Arrested.

John Meeker, of Pearl street, was arrested by Chief Kiely for being intoxicated and creating a disturbance on Somerset street last night. A hearing will be given him this evening.

Settled Damage Suit.

Justice Hezekiah Hand, of this city, settled his suit against the P. S. C. yesterday on terms satisfactory to both parties.

The three Italians most severely injured in the cave-in at the Netherwood station tunnel yesterday were reported as doing nicely at Muhlenberg Hospital tday. All are still suffering from shock and slight internal hurts in addition to severe contusions. The contractors in charge of the tunnel work have secured a new gang of laborers and the excavating is to proceed.

NAME ELECTION OFFICERS

Republican City Committee Picks Members of Registry and Election Board.

FOR ALL THE WARDS

Executive Committee Does Little Else at the Meeting—The List as Made Up.

Aside from the work of selecting those who are to comprise the Republican members of the city board of registry and election nothing but routine business was transacted at the meeting of the City Republican Executive Committee last night. This included the payment of bills and the reception of minor reports.

The appointment of those to serve on the registry and election board is as follows:

First Ward—First district, David S. Dunavan; Second district, Horace G. Adams, Guillermo Thorn. Second Ward—First district, J. Hervey Doane, J. W. Drayton; Second district, William R. Townsend, Edward Willis. Third Ward—First district, J. M. Leonard, Theodore J. Larne; Second district, Charles A. Dixon, John Cose. Fourth Ward—First district, Daniel Force; Second district, Edward Mosher, Walter Clarke; Third district, Garret Dunham, William Craig.

There will probably be added two or three more names to the above list to complete the same.

HEALTH OFFICER GIVES HOT WEATHER ADVICE

A FEW SUGGESTIONS AS TO THE DISPOSAL OF GARBAGE.

The present hot wave has brought no end of trouble to the Plainfield Board of Health, many citizens finding it an excellent opportunity to register a "kick" of one sort or other, no matter how trivial. As a result Health Officer Leon R. Thurlow has been on the jump looking after many violations of the health code.

"This is just the season of the year and the right temperature for the propogation of bacteria," said Mr. Thurlow, "and every little nuisance is called to the attention of the Board. In many cases the complaint is a cause of 'spite work' on the part of neighbors and it results in making bad friends."

Mr. Thurlow advises all householders to be very careful these days about their garbage and not allow it to remain about the h ouse or yard any longer than possible as it will quickly produce disease when permitted to stand any length of time. He also advises that extreme care be taken to keep the house and yard clear of everything that produces germs.

Owing to the extreme heat, Mr. Thurlow has temporarily stopped the house-to-house inspection work which is being done by Inspector Robert W. Meeker. He decided that the weather was altogether too warm to continue this work and it will be taken up just as soon as there is a change in the atmosphere.

Mr. Thurlow reports that the general health of the city is excellent, and that there are very few cases of contagious disease.

Glenney, Not Reinhart, Champion.

It is W. Lester Glenney who holds the present golf championship of the Plainfield Country Club, and not Frank O. Reinhart, as previously stated. Reinhart held the championship up to last year, when Glenney captured the honors. On Saturday he will defend the title in the final play with Dudley H. Barrows. Owing to the fact that Mr. Glenney is now practicing law in New York he has little time to follow his favorite game this season, but in the finals he will make a strong bid to retain the club honors.

Gold on Golden Wedding.

Dr. and Mrs. Abraham Morrell Cory, of New Providence, who had planned to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday, were surprised Tuesday night by a number of friends who presented the couple with a purse containing a substantial sum of gold. The recipients, much affected by the token of esteem, made fitting acknowledgement. Dr. and Mrs. Cory were married in Pennington and have lived in New Providence, Dr. Cory's native place, for thirty-eight years.

We Envy Them.

The colony of Plainfielders stopping at the Felmly Farm, Lebanon, Hunterdon county, report that the weather has been quite comfortable with an absence of extreme heat. This is especially true at night.

MUSIC AND FIREWORKS

Double Entertainment Promised for Tomorrow Night's Band Concert.

ITALIANS GRATEFUL

Proffer the Pyrotechnics to Leader LaVere in Recognition of His Assistance to Them.

For tomorrow night's music fest in Concert Park, Bandmaster LaVere will have an additional feature in a display of fireworks. It will be in charge of Salvo Velardi, who conducted the celebration of the Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, and is to be given by the Italians in grateful recognition of Mr. LaVere's assistance in the box office at last night's affair. Salvo and his friends declare there will be "a big bunch" of the pyrotechnics and that they alone will be well worth the visit to the park.

Owing to the fact the funds for the concerts are becoming "shy," Mr. LaVere has decided to renew the collections as they were taken up last season. The boxes will be passed among the crowd by four of the borough's special marshals, each one displaying his shield so that there will be no mistake as to his authority, thus preventing unscrupulous persons from "working" the people. The collections have only been resorted to in order to guarantee the continuance of the concerts for the summer and will be suspended as soon as a sufficient amount is secured.

Another feature at the concert is to be the appearance of the favorite soloist, "Billy" Redmond, rightly regarded as the best of the vocalists coming to the city. He will sing several of the most popular selections. The programme in detail is as follows:

March—"Our President," Armson; overture—"Stradela," Flowto; medley—"I'm Trying So Hard to Forget You," Harris; vocal solo—(a) "Take a Car," Snyder, (b) "Yankee Doodle Boy," Cohan, William Redmond; serenade—(a) "Moonlight," Moret; (b) "A Selection by Andy," Mills; a novelette—"Wooing the Muse," Brooks; selection—"Little Johnny Jones," Cohan, by request; vocal solo—(a) "I Wonder If You Miss Me," Snyder, (b) "Good Bye Sweet Marie," Mills, William Redmond; march characteristic—"A Gay Gossoon," Kendall.

MRS. C. M. STOVER HAS PASSED AWAY

WIDOW OF PROMINENT NEW YORK LAWYER DIED YESTERDAY.

Mrs. Caroline Howard Stover, widow of Rowland M. Stover, died yesterday afternoon at her home, 122 Watchung avenue, after a lingering illness.

Mrs. Stover was a daughter of the late Nathan Howard, a prominent lawyer of New York, and editor for many years of "Howard's Practice Reports." She was born in Troy, December 11, 1833, and in 1855 married Rowland M. Stover, a member of the New York Bar, who collaborated with Mr. Howard for a number of years in his editorial work. In 1876 Mrs. Stover took up her residence in this city, and immediately became identified with church and charity work. She was a member of Grace Episcopal church and a zealous and untiring worker in the church societies, being treasurer of the Grace Church Guild for over twenty years. She was also treasurer for several years of the Plainfield Exchange for Women's Work, a member of the Relief Association and the Woman's Auxiliary of Muhlenberg Hospital, her whole life being devoted to helping others.

Mrs. Stover is survived by four sons, Louis M., of Brooklyn; Herbert W. and Charles A., of this city, and Alfred E., of New York. She also leaves two sisters, Mrs. William B. Ostrom and Mrs. George Warren, both of this city.

The funeral will take place from Grace church on Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock, and interment will be at Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

SCHOOL SCHEME HELD UP

No Likelihood of New School House at New Market Just Yet.

SAID TO BE ILLEGAL

Attorney General Balks at Approving Legality of Vote—Women Were Allowed to Cast Ballots.

Although the friends of the proposition to build a $20,000 public school at New Market were successful in their efforts at the last public meeting held in that place, there is no prospect of the structure being erected just now, owing to the manner in which the proposition was adopted. Those who opposed the expenditure of so much money at New Market have appealed to the attorney-general of the State for his opinion as to the legality of the vote and it is understood that he will not approve the action. Rather than have the work stopped by court procedure after it is once started, the school commissioners will wait until the matter is settled right.

The opponents of the proposition to build such an expensive high school at New Market, contend that the illegal part of the proceedings was that some women were allowed to vote at the meeting who had no right to do so and that ballots containing but the one proposition, "$20,000," were used at the meeting, thus preventing those who opposed this amount from casting a ballot according to their opinion.

A prominent resident of the township in speaking of the matter yesterday said that he was convinced at the time that many things were illegal and that the action would not stand law.

While the residents of South Plainfield are in a measure satisfied with school conditions, it having been decided to establish the higher grades in their public school, they will still oppose the plan to spend $20,000 at New Market, believing that one-half that amount is sufficient. They contend that if the children of that place want a high school education it can easily be arranged to have them attend the Plainfield schools, but they con see no reason why the taxpayers of the township, many of whom cannot afford it, should be burdened with a heavy tax to give the limited number of children there a higher education.

Now that South Plainfield will have higher grades, the children will be spared the tiresome trip to New Market every day. This will mean quite a saving. It is also believed that if New Market fails to get a $20,000 building other parts of the township will have a chance to secure a school building so that the children from other distant points can be saved the trip to New Market.

There is need of a school at Gallagher's Corner and one in the vicinity of Rock avenue, and the citizens in these localities are sincerely hoping that school accommodations will be provided at these points for their children.

SIXTY DAYS FOR BOY WHO BROKE HIS PROMISE

RELEASED IN CITY COURT YESTERDAY AND ARRESTED AGAIN THIS MORNING.

Judge Runyon had to rub his eyes and look twice in the city court this morning when in answer to an officer's call of "Charles Matthews" the same young colored boy who appeared before him yesterday came shuffling out from the cell room. The magistrate could hardly believe that he saw aright, and it was fully a minute before he was able to proceed. Matthews made tearful entreaties to be let go yesterday in order that he might secure work with his father at Bridgeport, Conn., and the judge consented to give him another chance to reform.

Early this morning Patrolman McKeon noticed a boy skulking along West Fifth street and at intervals disappear in yards. He followed him for some time and then discovered that he was visiting back porches and drinking milk left in bottles. Springing upon him suddenly, he saw that it was Matthews, whom he had arrested Tuesday night for loitering on Liberty street. When arraigned in court the boy had no excuse to offer and he was sent to Elizabeth for sixty days while the police make arrangements to have him put away or committed to the Reform School.

LOCAL FIREMEN ROUTED

Brooklyn's Laddies' Nine Did Them to the Tune of 8 to 0.

DINNER FOLLOWED

Pretty Game Up to the Seventh Inning, When the First Run Was Made—Feast at the Waldorf.

With the encouragement offered by first-class atendance and the promise of cooler weather as the play progressed, the baseball match between the teams of the Brooklyn Fire Department and the local fire laddies was played yesterday afternoon for the benefit of the Plainfield Firemen's Pension Fund. Plainfield lost; 8 to 0.

The local team knew they were up against as good a combination of ball players as can be found in any fire department in the country, but placed considerable confidence in their battery, Smith, pitcher, and Davis, at the receiving end. The first seven innings more than justified their trust for the visitors failed entirely for six innings, to connect with the horsehide and only scored once in the seventh, when Boyne came in with the goods on a passed ball and revived the self-confidence of the Brooklynites who had decided that if they failed to "do it" in this inning they might as well quit the job. Boyne had already shown that he had the defensive end of the game down to a pretty fine point but when he found the globule with his stick in the seventh ,he was rewarded with a large chunk of silence from the local rooters, which was, in its way the finest tribute offered any player during the game.

Smith, by the way, showed how the strike-out game could be worked also, beginning with Ward and Daly in the second and repeating it on them and Murphy in the fifth.

Davis, his partner, held about everything that came his way till the break came in the seventh and one got by him, going between the bleachers and the stand, letting Boyne home with the first run. He was criticised to some extent also for short throws to the infield but played a good game taken all through.

After the seventh the game rather palled on the local rooters, two more runs, one by Cavanaugh and the other by DuFlon, being scored in the eighth and five more in the ninth.

Cavanaugh and DuFlon repeated in the ninth, ssetting an example which was followed by Boyne, Daly and Riley.

While lack of practice prevented any star playing on the part of the Plainfield players, there is nb doubt that they could with the same amount of attention to the game, develope as fine a team as the Brooklyn men have.

Young in particular showed that he could hit, driving the leather into the outfield twice where it would have been safe if the Brooklyn men had been fielding as the Plainfield team were.

Captain Townley also, at second base, made good by nabbing several at the proper moment.

In the early part of the game a comical looking error was made by Daly at first. He muffed the ball and dropped it in the only spot on the diamond where he couldn't see it, letting the runner land safely on the sack. He immediately retrieved himself by nabbing a foul fly sent his way by Hederman and putting the visitors out, DuFlon and Cavanaugh having fanned already.

The line up for each team follows in the order which the men batted:

Plainfield—Young, ss; Townley, 2b; Smith, p; Jaeger, 3b; McCabe, cf; Pearson, lf; Clark, rf; Davis, c; Daly, 1b.

Umpire—Arthur McGinley, of the local police force.

Returning to Fire Headquarters shortly after 5 o'clock, both teams shed their uniforms, washed the marks of the fray from their features and proceeded to the banquet room of the Hotel Waldorf, where a plentiful supply of roast stuffed chicken, roast beef, mashed potatoes, vegetables and relishes awaited their onslaught.

When the hunger of the seventy-five or more guests had been satisfied, liquid refreshment and cigars were passed and song and story took up an exceedingly enjoyable hour or two.

Chief Doane, of the local department, after apologizing for the absence of Mayor James F. Buckle and Judge Runyon, who had expected to be present, introduced Captain Clifford, of the metropolitan fire department, who paid a tribute to the city and its firemen. Captain O'Neill, of Jersey City, who spoke next, said that Plainfield was the most hospitable city it had ever been his good fortune

CHARGED WITH FRAUD

Former Gov. Voorhees Defendant in Suit Over Union County Water Stock.

IN CHANCERY COURT

Washington M. Lewis, of Long Branch, Says Voorhees Appropriated His Stock.

Former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, as secretary of the Union Water company, has been made defendant in a suit in chancery brought by Washington M. Lewis, of Long Branch, who charges the former governor with fraud in connection with a certificate for 76 shares of capital stock of the water company. United States Senator John Kean is named in the bill as president of the company.

In his bill of complaint Lewis alleges that the late Sylvester Cahill, Jr., of Elizabeth, became indebted to former Governor Voorhees for $163 in July, 1893, and pledged as security the stock certificate, the value of which, it is claimed, was $650. Lewis says that no time was named for the repayment of the money or the return of the certificate, but that in October, 1897, Cahill offered to pay Voorhees. It is claimed that the former governor refused the money and also refused to return the certificate, and that he still refuses to settle.

The bill states that subsequent to Voorhees' refusal to return the stock, as alleged, Cahill assigned the stock to the complainant in this suit, and that Lewis is now the equitable holder of it. Lewis charges that on application of Voorhees the water company has issued a new certificate to him in his own name, this taking the place of the one formerly held by him as security for the claim against Cahill.

Lewis alleges that he has frequently sought the return of the stock, but that Voorhees always refuses to settle, claiming that the stock was assigned to him on account of legal services rendered by him for Cahill.

The complainant declares that the company is prosperous and the value of the stock has greatly increased while in the hands of the former governor. He says the 6 per cent. dividends which Voorhees has received for the stock while in his hands has more than repaid the claim against Cahill, and, therefore, the defendant is illegally holding the certificate. The complainant says an accounting would show that Voorhees is indebted to him. It is charged that Voorhees used his position as secretary of the company to secure the new certificate for the stock withou tthe knowledge of the complainant. Lewis asks for an accounting and that the former governor be compelled to turn the stock over to him.

FIREWORKS DISPLAY ATTRACTED THE CROWD

WIND-UP OF ITALIAN CELEBRATION OF FEAST DAY.

The Italians who have been conducting the annual celebration of the "Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel" made amends last night for the disappointment occasioned on Tuesday night. It was expected that there would be a large display of fireworks, when only five balloons were sent up and the band played its regular programme.

The display last night, while not so large as that of last year, was a good one and was witnessed by an immense throng of people from this city and vicinity. The celebration was held in Concert Park, the grounds being decorated with lanterns and the American colors. Along Watchung avenue from Front street to the park streamers of American colors were displayed across the avenue, while a brilliantly lighted sign denoted the significance of the affair.

In the display were a number of large set pieces, a feature being a mock fight between Japanese and Russian battleships made of tissue paper. Another elaborate piece was that of a dancing girl. In addition there were numerous bombs and rockets.

In connection with the fireworks the band rendered an attractive programme of music, comprising classical selections and those of a lighter character. The celebration was in charge of Salvodo Velerdi, of this city, assisted by a number of other Italians who comprised the committee.

MC CUTCHEN BLDG PLANS

Architect Marsh Submits Designs for a Business Block.

ON PARK AVENUE

Structure to be of Brick and Stone Two Stories High —General Plans.

A. L. C. Marsh, the architect, has prepared plans for the new building which Charles W. McCutchen, of the borough, proposes to erect on Park avenue, adjoining the property of The Plainfield Trust Company. They call for a handsome business block of brick and stone two stories high. The first floor will be devoted to stores of good width and depth, while the second floor will be arranged for offices.

The new structure will extend from the trust company line to the property purchased by John G. MacLaughlin and architecturally it will harmonize with the handsome banking building to be erected at Park avenue and West Second street.

While Mr. McCutchen has not accepted the plans, it is believed that he will do so. Just now estimates are being secured to ascertain the cost of construction and if these meet with Mr. McCutchen's approval it will probably not be long before the work is started.

There will be a vacant space of eighteen feet between Mr. McCutchen's new building and that of The Plainfield Trust Company, it being purposely planned by the company to allow this space on the side and in the rear of the bank building so that in the future others may be prevented from getting too close to the company property.

NOVEL POINT DECIDED IN THE JOHN STEIN CASE

JUDGE VAIL GIVES DECISION IN FAVOR OF THE VICTIM'S MOTHER.

Mrs. Catherine Stein, mother of John Stein, who was killed by a New Jersey Central train at Dunellen in December, 1903, claimed one-half of the sum recovered in a suit by the widow of John Stein at the last term of court, and she was successful this morning in having Judge Vail, of the Union County Orphans' Court, make an order that the administratrix, the widow of Stein, file a bond for $4,000 to secure the rights of the mother to the said moneys so recovered from the Central Railroad, pending the final determination of the claim, and that said bond must be filed within seven days from date. Isaac P. Runyon and Rene P. F. von Minden appeared for the mother and secured the decision in favor of the mother. George W. V. Moy represented Mary E. Stein, the administratrix.

On the return of the rule to show cause why the bond should not be increased, briefs having been previously submitted, Mr. Moy raised the point that the court had no jurisdiction to order the administratrix to give bond for money recovered under the Death Act, but the court's decision was adverse to that contention, and the rule was made absolute. This proceeding is interesting, as the average lay person does not know that money recovered by an admistrator or executor in an action for death by wrongful act must be paid over to the next of kin according to the statute of 1897, and few of the next of kin try to collect the money which they are entitled to.

HE MADE JAIL A WRECK

Crazed Man Attempted to Brain Deputy Sheriff While on Rampage.

IRON BAR HIS WEAPON

James Henderson Smashes Everything in Reach at Somerset County Jail—Taken to Asylum.

The Somerset county jail looks more like a wreck today than it ever did before, owing to a crazy man being confined within its walls yesterday. James Henderson, a brother of Officer Henderson, of the Somerville police force, was arrested yesterday morning by Officer Koch on charges preferred by his wife.

Henderson had been drinking too much lately and when he went home yesterday he knocked down his wife and turned the hose on her. As soon as he was committed to the county jail he became violent. He broke an iron bar from one of the windows and went on a Carrie Nation-like smashing tour, breaking locks, windows and everything that came in his way, until it looked as if a cyclone had passed through the jail.

Deputy Sheriff Anderson summoned two policemen to help confine Henderson in a cell. For a time the prisoner held the officers at bay with the iron bar. He attempted to brain Deputy Anderson, but Officer Holmes stayed the prisoner s arm in the nick of time. Finally the men got Henderson down and put him in a cell.

Later on he was taken to the State Insane Asylum at Trenton by Sheriff Casper and Officers Henderson, the brother, and Holmes.

WIND-BREAKS SILO; BURIES MAN AND TEAM

FRANK O. NELSON THE VICTIM OF A PECULIAR ACCIDENT ON HIS FARM.

Frank O. Nelson, the well known Piscataway township farmer who has many friends in this city, was seriously hurt in a peculiar accident which occurred at his place on the Stelton road, yesterday.

With several assistants, he had been packing corn in a large silo and had just finished putting in a wagon load when a heavy wind storm arose. The silo was directly in its path and it was lifted from its foundation before the men were able to get out of the way. A mass of timbers and green corn fell over, burying Nelson and a team of horses from sight, the other men just escaping.

They quickly sprang to Nelson's aid and got him out in time to prevent suffocation though he retained consciousness. He was removed to his home and Dr. W. J. Nelson, of New Market, was summoned. He conducted ai examination but as yet is unable to tell the result of Nelson's injuries. No bones were broken but it is feared he sustained internal hurts.

Both horses were seriously hurt and were removed from the wreckage with difficulty.

New Building Started.

Work was started today on Woodhull & Martin's new building adjoining that of the dry goods' store on East Front street. Townley Brothers have the mason work; Louis F. Beck the carpenter work, and the W. T. Kirk Co. will do the iron work. Harold Hansen has secured the contract for the painting. The plumbing contract will be awarded later. It is hoped to have the building completed by November 1.

Change of Contractors.

The syndicate which recently purchased the Cadmus property in the West End of the borough, expects to have the work of improvements started soon. A contract was made wit ha party to make the proposed changes, but it is understood that he gave up the contract and within a few days papers will be signed with another contractor, after which the work will be pushed forward rapidly.

An Alert Fire Chief.

In order to be prepared for an emergency, Chief Howard Woolston, of the North Plainfield fire department, had a line of hose laid from Pearl street to the grounds where the fireworks were being set off last night.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

At last Mr. Sanford, owner of most of the land in the vicinity of the trolley loop, has handed the P. S. C. an answer on what he will do. Mr. Sanford has men already working on a restaurant and waiting room building inside the loop. Work was begun yesterday. When Mr. Sanford leased the land to the company he reserved the right of erecting a building within the loop, but the P. S. C. promised the Dunellen council that they would see that a structure was erected there. Mr. Sanford deliberated for a long time, and has thought that rather than give the company a chance to put whoever they pleased in charge of a lunch counter and waiting room in a building which they should erect, he would build such a place and see that it was conducted properly under his own supervision. The frequent disturbances recently, especially the Kelly affair, influenced Mr. Sanford as much as anything to take personal charge of the place.

On Saturday the local nine will line up against the Imperial A. C., of Elizabeth. This team has twice trimmed Clinton Avenue and this same team held the locals to a tie game, 2 to 2, July 4. Smith, the P. H. S. pitcher, is training for the fray.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A west bound freight train left the track yesterday about noon near the coaling station of the Lehigh Valley road. The accident seems to have been caused by the heat lifting the rail at the point, enough to throw the engine off. No great damage was done. Several hours were required to put the train again on the rails.

HOW TO GUARD AGAINST A SUNSTROKE

Feeble persons, being most liable to sunstroke, should remain within doors during the hotter periods of the day. When possible always take the shady side of the street or use an umbrella.

Wear light clothing and walk slowly. Avoid hurry and worry.

Hearty meals are to be avoided, as well as spirituous liquors of all kinds.

The least sign of over fatigue should be taken as an imperative reason for immediate rest. Headache, oppressed breathing and nausea are often precursors of collapse.

Frequent bathing of head, face and hands in cold water are salutary measures.

Water, properly cooled and swallowed, is the best of all drinks. Next to this is iced milk, cold tea or lemonade.

The outside worker should be careful to protect the head and back of the neck with suitable covering. Stokers, furnace men and the like should have frequent intervals of rest.

BEAUTIFYING PRINCETON.

Cornwall House Being Removed—New Gateway Completed.

Princeton University campus is being beautified by the removal of the Cornwall house adjoining the First Presbyterian church. The house is directly in line with Alexander Hall, the most beautiful building on the university campus, and cut off the view from Nassau street to the hall. The lecture room of the First church, which adjoins the Cornwall residence, will also be removed, and the excavations will be levelled off and sodded, with a beautiful driveway leading to the hall. This has been the aim of the university authorities for a number of years.

The new Fitz-Randolph gateway which was donated to the university is also completed and is a most beautiful addition to the university.

The new class dormitory is also being rushed toward completion, but it is not thought it will be completed in time for the opening of college in the fall.

CHIDSEY'S TO RESUME.

New Corporation to Take Charge of Delivery Business.

Business men and other citizens seem pleased with the announcement that the Chidsey Free Delivery Company, of Elizabeth, will resume business within a short time. The old concern, it will be remembered, made an assignment a few days ago to the Union County Trust Company, and steps were at onc etaken to reorganize the concern on a more extensive basis.

The new concern will be known as the Chidsey Express Delivery Company. It is to be capitalized at $200,000 and $85,000 of this sum is offered to public subscribers in gold bonds at five per cent. After July 23 the subscription books will be closed. The same routes will be gone over as under the old regime. C. A. and J. M. Chidsey will manage the concern jointly.

Benjamin King Injured.

Director Bnejamin King, of the Board of Freeholders, was the victim of a peculiar accident Monday afternoon. Mr. King was passing across the main floor in the rotunda of the court house when he slipped on the smooth marble and fell full length. In falling he reached out his right arm to save himself, and, in doing so, injured his hand so severely that before he reached home Monday night the hand and arm as far up as the elbow were swollen to twice their normal size. While the injury is thought to be nothing more than the result of a bad sprain, yet it may inconvenience the director for a long time.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

None of the usual misgivings are experienced by the shipper whose freight is entrusted to Hoagland for carting. He knows how.

It is a little too hot to discuss the coal question, yet Ten Eyck & Harris are ready to fill your order for next winter's supply at low prices.

During the heated months a bicycle will give you comfort by saving you many steps. S. Frucht, of West Front street, has a full line of the best makes.

Why suffer with the heat these days when you can be refreshed at Dudley Miller's soda water fountain on Park avenue. He keeps all the popular flavors.

When you want first class life insurance consult with Harry G. Adams, the hustling representative of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Philadelphia.

The finest Turkish and Russian baths in the State are those at Brookside Sanitarium, end of Somerset trolley. Skilled attendants give electric baths and massage.

While remarking "what a warm day it is" just bear in mind that iced tea is a cool drink. It will be doubly good if made from the tea sold by W. W. Dunn, the Park grocer.

There is nothing in the line of hardware that is not to be found at Worth & Marsh's establishment on Somerset street. You may be able to save money by looking it over before buying.

Cool outing shirts, wash ties, straw hats and fine leather belts are some of the summer specialties at James R. Blair's men's furnishings store. His prices compare with the largest New York houses.

You can be sure that during the warm weather Smalley Brothers will not allow a bit of meat to leave their market unless it is cool and fresh. They pride themselves on giving the best service possible.

Charles E. Vail, the Park avenue jeweler, carries a superior stock of silverware, jewelry, diamonds, watches and clocks, and he is making a specialty of the ringless eyeglass the most comfortable on the market.

Most summer finery suffers more at the hands of the cleaner than in actual wear, but those who have their cleaning and laundry work done at M. A. Brown's West Second street laundry say there's no place like it in town.

Take no chances on such an important detail of household supply as the milk for the table. Have yours delivered by the leading local dairymen, Marchant Brothers, and rest assured that it is impossible to secure better service in any particular.

Shirley & Johnson, in the corner store of the Babcock building, will make awnings for your porch or windows at very short notice. They are experienced in this line of business and guarantee to give satisfaction. Call them on the 'phone and a representative will visit you.

"Money talks," but if you would learn how loud it can talk when it has been properly housed and cared for, secure for yours a permanent and pleasant home at the Plainfield Trust Company. Interest paid on deposits. Start now and you will have an elegant vacation fund on hand next year.

The very thought of a corset is repugnant to many women such weather as that of the past few days, but the "woman who knows" finds here at Peck's the acme of hot weather comfort, a corset cool enough to allow of neat dressing and a smart appearance without the sensation of being harnessed.

If you are dissatisfied with your groceries or meat, patronize S. Scheuer & Co., of West Front street, and satisfaction will be yours. This firm takes particular pains in selecting only reliable goods and guarantees them to be as represented. Prompt deliveries are made to all parts of the city and vicinity.

LICENSING POWER OF CITY.

Atlantic City Man to Sue Aldermen for Conspiracy.

The entire licensing power of Atlantic City will be attacked by E. M. Collotty, whose application for a place on the lower board walk was refused by City Council while they were granting the batch of city licenses under a newly passed law.

Besides certiorarying the ordinance under which the licenses were granted, Collotty announced yesterday morning that he would bring action against the councilmen for conspiracy on the claim that there was an agreement to "turn down" his application before the meeting for licensing was called.

Leading lawyers of Atlantic City have been retained and the fight is likely to be a bitter one.

Mrs. John Valiant, of Myrtle avenue, left yesterday for Shelter Island Heights, N. Y., to spend some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Townsend, of Myrtle avenue, leave today for the Adirondacks.

Miss Elizabeth Van Boskerck, of West Seventh street, will return home tomorrow from Spring Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Woodhull, of West Front street, left today for Lake Hoptacong, where they will spend several weeks at their cottage.

TO ENLARGE ACADEMY

Local Women Interested in Synodical Society's Home Mission Effort in Utah.

RAISING SUBSCRIPTIONS

Mrs. W. E. Honeyman President and and Mrs. J. H. Manning Secretary of Women's Society—What is to be Done.

Members of the Woman's Synodical Society of Home Missions in the New Jersey Synod, some of whom are Plainfielders, are making vigorous efforts to consummate their plans to enlarge the New Jersey Academy at Logan, Utah, and expect that by the fall enough subscriptions will have been raised to permit the work to be undertaken. Mrs. W. E. Honeyman, of North Plainfield, is president of the Synodical Society, and Mrs. J. H. Manning is treasurer. All that stands in the way of success now is the lack of funds, and a special appeal has been made by the New Jersey Synod of the Presbyterian church and by the Board of Home Missions for aid in the worthy project.

The career of the academy dates back to 1890, when two years after the inception of the plan the structure was completed. The money which was subscribed toward the cost of erection in no way interfered with the pledged work of the society.

Although the academy was located in a strong Mormon town, so popular did it become that in 1894, four years after its erection, a demand for accommodations for boarding pupils was so urgent that a building was secured and fourteen boarding pupils were entered. As it was impossible to obtain a lease of this temporary boarding home, in the following year the academy building was reconstructed, the upper story being set apart for a girls' dormitory, and a few rooms on the first floor appropriated for the boys.

Ten years have passed since this change was made and during all this time every available space in the academy has been occupied, while scores of worthy applicants have been turned away—sent back to Mormonism—for lack of room. Now the time has come when enlargement is a necessity.

Of the students who have gone out from this school two are professors in State universities, one in Wyoming, the other in California; one has an important position in the Logan Bank and is a ruling elder in the church; another is a prominent business man in Portland, Ore., and an earnest Christian worker; one is a successful public school teacher in Logan and an efficient worker in the Sunday school; four are teaching school in other places, and three more will take up work the present year; one is a minister in charge of a mission church in Indian Territory, while two of his sisters were long connected with our work as mission teachers. One of the most faithful and efficient teachers in the New Jersey Academy at the present time was a former pupil, and the hope of the managers is that more teachers and preachers may be turned out each year.

The plan is to erect a dormitory on the academy grounds which will accommodate fifty or sixty girls, besides teachers; and to utilize all the dormitory space in the academy building for young men and boys. The new building will cost at least $6,000, but it serection will make it possible to increase the enrollment 100 per cent. or more, while the incerase in the cost of maintenance will be not more than 10 per cent., since no addition to the faculty will be required. "It is indeed a serious matter," writes Principal I. N. Smith, "when in this Mormon region we must refuse admittance to a large number of young people, who would attend a Christian boarding school. Long before school closed this year we were obliged to refuse applications made by boys for next year. These will undoubtedly find boarding places in Mormon homes and attend the Brigham Young Academy; the same is true of scores of girls and young women, and I need not tell what all this means."

The officers of the Synodical Society are: Mrs. W. E. Honeyman, of this city, president; Mrs. E. C. Miles, Roselle, corresponding secretary; Miss Elizabeth D. Paxton, Princeton, recording secretary; Mrs. William Nelson, Paterson, secretary literature; Mrs. M. Katherine Jones Bennett, Englewood, Young People's secretary; Mrs. Francis S. Irwin, East Orange, secretary Freedman; Mrs. J. H. Manning, 413 East Sixth street, this city, treasurer.

Ghost Was a Man Hunter.

A white apparition was seen on upper New street, New Brunswick, early Sunday morning, and since then bands of ambitious ghost hunters have paraded about that section. Monday it was learned that a woman residing in New street had gone out, in summer deshabille, to find and bring home a recreant husband. It was her appearance that set on foot the stories that New street was haunted.

Marcus Doud, son of Recorder Doud, of the borough, has returned home after an absence of several years in the West.

LITERARY.

There is a growing interest among thinkers and progressive people in such subjects as drugless healing, nature cure, psychic research, practical every-day psychology, auto-suggestion, will-power, memory culture, brain building and allied subjects. Those topics are discussed in the August issue of Suggestion, a journal of the new psychology for health, happiness and success. The principle articles discuss stability, poise and determination in character building; hygiene; the cause and cure of old age, etc. Suggestion Publishing Co., 4020 Drexel Building, Chicago, Ill.

In connection with the recent change of name by which Leslie's Monthly takes a title more in keeping with its character, American Illustrated Magazine, it is interesting to remember that the first monthly periodical to be issued in this country, which was published in Philadelphia in 1741 by one Andrew Bradford, was also called the American Magazine. Bradford's paper appeared a century and a half before the days of great circulations. Periodical advertising was a thing unknown and the magazine did not live to struggle through its first year. The scheme slept for a time, but Noah Webster, the famous maker of dictionaries, revived it in 1788 and retaining the name American Magazine, published the second monthly periodical which this country has known. Its subscription price of $2.50 did not suffice it to keep it alive through more than a few volumes. Times are indeed changed in the magazine world.

From the Four Track.

Many travelers have asked the question: "Why was the measurement, four feet, eight and one-half inches, determined upon as out standard gage?" The origin of the dimension is rather obscure, but a recent authority asserts that while George Stephenson was inspecting portions of the old Roman wall upon which chariots were driven he took occasion to measure the width between the ruts worn in the stone. As he found this to be four feet, eight and one-half inches across he decided that the Romans must have learned from experience that this gage was the most practical and he, therefore, adopted that width. Since then many other gages have been tried, but none has proved more satisfactory.—From "In the Trail of the Traveler," in Four-Track News for July.

Miss Anna Warnock and her cousin, William Lawrence, of Craig place, have returned from a stay of two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. John Hayes, of Millington.

In the matter of the application of Ann E. Chapin to have a mortgage cancelled of record. Order to Show Cause.

It appearing by due proof that the said applicant, Ann E. Chapin, did, on the twenty-eighth day of March, Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-Two acquire by deed of warranty from Elias R. Pope and Hannah E. Pope, his wife, and Carman Parse and Eliza A. Parse, his wife, certain lands in the City of Plainfield, County of Union, and State of New Jersey. And it appearing further that said lands had been acquired by the said Elias R. Pope and the said Carman Parse from Charles N. Hildreth, by deed dated May 1, 1876, both of which said deeds are recorded in the Register's office of the County of Union; and it appearing further that the said Charles N. Hildreth on the twelfth day of February, Eighteen Hundred and Seventy-Four, executed a mortgage on said premises to Ayres Codington, William Mc Nabb and Augustus Codington, partners as A. Codington, Mc Nabb & Co.; Cora O. Meeker and Robert Anderson, partners as C. O. Meeker & Co.; Morgan Bird, Theodore W. Young and Abraham S. Young, partners as T. W. Young & Co.; Alfred D. Cook, partner of R. H. Cook; and James S. Carman, to secure the sum of Four Thousand and Twenty-Eight Dollars and Forty-Five Cents, which said mortgage is still open upon the records of the County of Union. And it appearing further that the said Ann E. Chapin has been in uninterrupted peaceable possession of said premises since the twenty-eighth day of March, Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-Two, and that no demand has ever been made upon her for payment of any part of the principal or of any interest on said mortgage and that she believes that the said mortgage has been paid and satisfied and should be cancelled of record. It is thereupon, on this twelfth day of July, A. D., Nineteen Hundred and Five, by virtue of an act entitled, "An act providing for the cancelling of record of mortgages by order of a circuit judge or law judge of the County," approved March 10, 1891, ordered, that the said mortgagees show cause before me at the Court House in Elizabeth, on the sixth day of September, next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, why the said mortgage should not be cancelled of record; It is further ordered that this order to show cause shall be served on the said Robert H. Cook by leaving a copy at his usual place of abode within five days from the date hereof and that the same be served on the said Ayres Codington, William Mc Nabb and Augustus Codington, partners as A. "Tuck" Turner will be an extra man in Saturday's game in case of accident.

Dunellen and New Market will play the second contest in a series on Saturday.

It was the first time that "Jack" O'Neill batted against Waller, but he touched him for two hits.

Manager Denman still believes Waller to be the best ever, and will pin his faith in him for the coming contest.

There are indications that the attendance on Saturday will far exceed that of the first contest, and may it be true.

If Westfield had a case of stage fright at home, what will be the result on Saturday away from its own camping ground?

The trolley company has promised first class accommodations for Saturday in anticipation of the large crowd sure to attend the contest.

Connolly, who was not considered fast enough for Westfield, is putting up the best game of his life for the locals in the field and at the bat.

"Kid" Nichols the star twirler, joined the Philadelphia Nationals this week, where he will greatly strengthen the pitching department of that team.

After last Saturday's game, who is there that will believe that "Mike" Rochford has anything on "Dave" Driscoll as a first baseman? The latter is one of the best in the business.

A feature of the Plainfield-Westfield games that can be dispensed with very well is the constant uttering of personal remarks which do nothing but engender a feeling of malice. Good, wholesome rooting is enjoyed, but personalities should be cut out.

AUTOMOBILING.

From Atlantic City comes the announcement that it will have a two-mile automobile track for the use of motorists who visit the resort. The sum of $40,000 will be spent to lay out the track at Chelsea, one of Atlantic City's suburbs, and it will be ready early in 1906. Not the least interested contest for the year in automobiling will be the one for tires, which it is proposed to hold in connection with the Long Branch carnival in August. It will probably be included in a 24-hour race against time, which will be a part of the proposed six-day non-sto paffair scheduled for the famous Elkwood track. To prevent any special made tires being used, the managers of the carnival may decide to buy the tires wanted by the contestants. Frank Burrelle, a New York automobilist, has offered a trophy for the event. In this connection it is worth noting that the record for changing tires is held by Henry Debberin, a New Yorker, who has made a replacement in four minutes and twenty-five seconds.

The people of Union county will elect a State Senator, a sheriff and freeholders this fall.

Prophet DeVoe will be rated as low as the United States Weather Bureau if he keeps it up.

That Ocean Grove evangelist who told the worshippers to keep their offerings for ice cream, certainly made a cheap bid for newspaper notoriety.

Perhaps it is due to the excessive heat, the thermometer in that city touching 102 degrees during the last few days, but at any rate the Elizabeth Evening Times is unintentionally ludicrous when it "opines" on William N. Runyon as a candidate for State Senator. Of course the Times is Democratic, and would naturally not like to see the Republicans name a strong candidate.

This is part of what the ponderous-thinking Times has to say:

Runyon may make a great run in Plainfield, but, to be frank with the ambitious up-county politician, he has never been taken seriously in these parts. No one doubts his popularity, for he is certainly a good fellow. But he is hardly of the calibre out of which personalities deserving of the senatorial toga are formed. No doubt he is honest, and there is no question but that he means well and, in the event of his election, would do his best to properly represent his constituency. But there is a grave question whether he would succeed.

On the other hand, ability in a man does by no means make certain the prospects of his holding faith with the people. There is a question whether it would not be better to choose the less able but honest candidate than the aspirant who, while brilliant, is tied up with machines and other organizations, corporate and otherwise, acting contrary to the welfare of the people as a whole. Runyon has stamina and the go-at-itive characteristics in goodly proportion, even though he may not measure up to the standards which Union county has been accustomed to apply when selecting its representatives in the State Senate.

But remember the hot wave struck Elizabeth with full force. The Times wasn't born when that argument that "Runyon is a good fellow, but hardly up to the calibre," was started. Some people here who believed that age is the sole test of ability used that method of attempting to freeze him out as city judge. Their argument has been shattered by the service he has rendered in that capacity. Runyon, like former incumbents of the senatorial office in Union county, is a college man, having been graduated from Yale. In addition to being a lawyer, he is gifted in many ways. Moreover, he has an exceptional personality which will make itself felt in the Senate, if he is chosen, as it has in the city in which he lives. No corporations could swerve him from the path of duty. If they could have done so he would be richer in the world's goods today.

Runyon measures up to the standard all right, although he may not seem to in the Times office, when the electric fans are not working down there.

Trolley Work.

The trolley company put a gang of laborers to work on the new turnout switch on Arlington avenue at Randolph road yesterday, and this noon the track had been swung to one side sufficiently to admit of completing the excavation. Considerable difficulty has been had with delays on this line, due to the fact that the Ninth street turnout is considerably nearer the trolley stand on Watchung avenue than it is to the terminus of the Arlington avenue line, which makes it necessary to wait on the outgoing trip for the inward bound car.

Mrs. Frank Fulton and family, of Brooklyn, have been visiting Mrs. Fulton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Mills, of East Second street.

John Dunn, of East Second street, was operated upon at the hospital yesterday for appendicitis, and his condition is very satisfactory.

BEACH IS POPULAR.

Nowhere except along Asbury Park's unrivaled beach front is the weather bearable, for except where the scarcely perceptible ocean breeze cools the air, along the very eastern edge of the town, the resort is like an inland city. The thermometer stands tremendously high, consequently the beach front has been thronged with everybody except those who absolutely have to remain away from it. For a block back from the ocean the air for the last two days has been so cool in comparison with that unaffected by the great body of water that to enter this zone has seemed like walking into an ice house.

The heated term has brought great numbers of extra guests to the shore, where, to judge by the appearance of many, their lives have just been saved by the hasty relegation to this area of cool and very pure air. The hot wave has not been accompanied by humidity, and not even at the water's edge is the air the least bit damp. But two prostrations have been reported back in town, and these cases were not serious.

The usual midweek hops at the various hotels last evening were more than well attended. The ball rooms at several of the hotel were almost crowded. No better comment upon the coolness of the nights here is necessary, although it is not denied that the days have been hot enough.

FIRE DESTROYS $3,500 AUTO AND RICH LOAD

ACCIDENT TO ELIZABETH CONCERN'S MACHINE ON THE TURNPIKE.

By an accident that has not yet been explained a handsome and valuable auto truck was completely destroyed by fire on the Chatham turnpike road, near the Canoe Brook Club, Tuesday afternoon. The auto was owned by the Rankin company, of Elizabeth, a concern that delivers goods through all the locality about Summit for a number of New York dry goods houses and department stores. It was filled to its capacity with goods for Madison and Morristown customers, and was speeding along the turnpike road, when the men in charge noticed a blaze in the rear part of the vehicle.

It spread with amazing rapidity, and before water could be obtained had gained such a headway that not even a single package could be saved. The auto was completely destroyed, and, strange to say, the gasoline tank with which it was equipped did not explode, and this and some tangled pieces of machinery are still alongside the turnpike road.

The auto was almost new and cost about $3,500, while the value of the goods destroyed can only be learned when the various stores have figured up their shipments. Those in charge of the auto were not certain whether fire resulted from the overheating of some part of the machinery from the heat, which was terrific at about that hour, or whether it resulted from some other cause.

DENTISTS AT ASBURY PARK.

Convention Will End Saturday Morning With Election of Officers.

Asbury Park, July 20—The New Jersey State Dental Society began its thirty-fifth annual session in the Auditorium here yesterday morning. After roll call and prayer the opening address was delivered by President W. G. Chase, D. D. S., of Princeton.

Dr. Charles G. Davis, of Plainfield, is among the interested spectators at the meetings.

A discussion on the address followed, and after routine business the society adjourned until evening.

The convention will last four days, the final session being scheduled for Saturday morning. Dentists are present from every section of the State, and from New York and Pennsylvania as well.

Several essays by prominent men in the profession are to be read. Dr. Walter Woolsey, of Elizabeth, is chairman of the essay committee.

The annual election of officers will be held on Saturday morning.

STRIKE CAUSED BY HEAT.

Men Refused to Work All Day on Coal Storage Plant.

Hampton Junction, July 20—The entire force of men employed by the Dodge Contracting Company, which is enlarging the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal Company's storage plant here, went on strike at noon Tuesday, because they were refused a half-holiday on account of the extreme warm weather. The Dodge people are under a penalty to complete their part of the contract in a certain number of days, and in order to do this it has been necessary to keep the men at work every day. This was fully explained to the leaders of the dissatisfied workmen, but was of no avail.

It is said the contractors will double the force they originally had on the job, and will endeavor to complete it in due time. It is also said that some of the men on strike will be permitted to return to work. The thermometer here Tuesday noon was 96 degrees in the shade.

McFADDEN BUYS THINGS FOR KELLY

DUNELLEN MAN SHOWS KEEN INTEREST IN A PRISONER.

John McFadden, of Dunellen, went to New Brunswick yesterday morning and visited the jail. He inquired about the balance of a fine which he owes. Some time ago he was fined $75 by Judge Strong for selling without a license. The costs of the suit amounted to $52.12, and a bench warrant to $2.88 more, making a total of $130 he owed the county. He has paid $119.50 of that amount and still owes $10.50. He said that he would settle it on Saturday.

He then talked with Thomas Kelly, one of the two men arrested at Dunellen on Sunday for fighting and drunkenness. Kelly and Joseph Egany bought their liquor, it is claimed, at a place in Dunellen that is not licensed. Justice Von Minden, who is a member of the Grand Jury, has the facts in the case and will probably lay them before the Grand Jury today and ask for the indictment of the keeper of the speak-easy.

McFadden showed such an interest in Kelly yesterday morning that he went down town and bought a number of articles for the prisoner, and gave the mto the fellow. Kelly seemed very grateful.

Court officers noticed his actions and commenced trying to find out the motive of the man's actions. McFadden has never been known to show such interest in any other prisoners in jail.

Egany, the other man arrested at Dunellen, has been let go with a fine, as he has promised to testify against the speak-easy keeper.

MASTER PAINTERS OF N. J. TO CONVENE

PLAINFIELDERS IN ORGANIZATION WHICH MEETS AT ASBURY PARK.

The second semi-annual convention of the New Jersey State Association of Master Painters and Decorators, of which several Plainfielders are members, will be held in the Auditorium at Asbury Park beginning Tuesday and continuing through Friday. The first day's session will be in the aftrenoon, and on subsequent days only a morning session will take place, allowing the delegates to spend their time in amusement.

The convention will be called to order by Charles E. Van Syckle, the president, of Newark, and after an opening prayer and an address of welcome by Mayor Ten Broeck there will be the roll call of officers and members of the executive board.

The session Wednesday will open with reports from the officers, the executive board and the various committees, and the delegates to the national convention will also report. Several papers will be read during the sessions. E. P. Edwards, of Elizbeth, will deliver one on "Reminiscenses;" A. A. Sippel, of Newark, one on "Exsiting Conditions in the Painting Business;" Thomas Flanagan, of Jersey City, one on "Wall Paper Sample Book Question;" B. F. Davis, of Jersey City, one on "Benefits of Attending Meetings;" F. Oscar Bode, of Orange, one on "Necessity of Organization," and A. H. Lorton, of Orange, will discuss painting in general.

Arrangements have been made to look after the comfort of those attending. The auditorium, located near the beach, is said to be as cool a place as it is possible to find in the park. The sessions of the convention will be held in the space back of the platform, the larger part of the building being given over to an exhibition of goods, tools, materials, paper, paints, ladders and appliances used in the allied trades.

The officers of the association are: President, Charles E. Van Syckle; vice president, Thomas Flanagan; secretary, Charles M. Coons, and treasurer, E. J. Thatcher. The executive board consists of F. Oscar Bode, W. A. Bogart, George Heuschel, Harold Hanson, George Peterson, H. Roolvink and A. A. Sippel.

The visitors left about 9 o'clock for home. A return game will be played at Brooklyn in the near future.

NEWLY-MADE BENEDICT GAVE A STAG PARTY

FREDERICK HUFF HOST OF THE ELEVEN O'CLOCK CLUB.

The dozen West Front street business and professional men known as the Eleven O'Clock Club, was entertained at Henry Haurand's Central Hotel by Lawyer Frederick P. J. Huff, one of its members, under whose instructions William Schorb, officiating as caterer, had prepared a tempting array of lobster salad and accompanying delicacies.

The affair was tendered by Mr. Huff to his friends as an appreciation of the hearty send-off they gave him on the announcement of his marriage recently. The guests took their seats promptly at eleven o'clock as it is their custom never to foregather much before that hour.

Those present were Sheriff B. F. Coriell, Dr. L. S. Pocock, William N. Newcorn, Charles DeGraw, William H. Griffen, Alex. Lusardi, Meyer Leichtentritt, Frank Haurand, Julius Heppel, Henry Haurand and William Schorb.

KEYPORT ROBS RAHWAY OF HONOR

RAHWAY CAN NO LONGER BE REGARDED AS THE DEADEST CITY IN STATE.

"As dead as Rahway" used to be a current phrase in New Jersey, because Rahway was the only city in this State, and also the only city in the United States, except Omaha, that had less population in 1900 than it had in 1890. "I've three brothers, two living and one in Rahway," was considered quite an appropritte joke in all parts of Union County excepting that city. But Rahway will probably take a more honorable position on the census sheet this year, and Keyport will take its place as the deadest city in New Jersey.

The population of Keyport in 1890 was 3,411. Ten years later the census gave it 3,413, a gain of only two in all that time. This year its census returns show that it has but 3,385, or twenty-eight less than it had five years ago. Just why this place should recede in population is something of a mystery. It is nicely located on the Raritan Bay, about half way between the beautiful Highlands and hustling, prosperous Perth Amboy. It has two newspapers, churches, schools, railroads, etc., but it doesn't seem to have the enterprise to build itself up.

It was overwhelming debt and bankruptcy that ruined Rahway for a time, but Keyport never was so extravagant. There ought to be a fine future for this seaside town, but at present it seems to be falling when every other place is rising. It may become popular one of these days, because it can be made easy of access to New York and Newark by boat. Then it may grow rapidly and rival Long Branch and Asbury Park.—Newark News.

GHOST NOT CAUGHT, SPECTATORS ARE

25 WAITING TO CATCH PRACTICAL JOKER PLACED UNDER ARREST.

For the past week or ten days River street, Rahway, has been the parade grounds of a white six-foot ghost. It has been seen and chased. It had the neighborhood in a state of fright.

William Saling, a florist, was much annoyed by the ghost. A plan was laid to capture it Tuesday night, and Saling, seeing a big number of persons in the vicinity, telephoned Mayor Terrill. The Mayor had heard the ghost stories, and determined to break up the fun.

He despatched Roundsman Conger and Policemen Giese and Connealy to the scene near the Church street bridge. There they rounded up about twenty-five persons, four of whom were women.

They were marched to Police Headquarters, but when that was reached the four women were missing. Chief of Police Wright lectured the prisoners, but let them go on promise not to again visit the Church street bridge again.

A few nights ago the ghost came near falling into bad hands. A woman returning from a nearby grocery was encountered by it, and to the ghost's surprise, the sheet was torn from its fastenings, and carried away by the woman. The spot was so dark the features of the ghost could not be plainly seen by the woman.

July 23: "Preparing For Our Heavenly Home"—Phil. iii, 20, 21; Heb. xi, 8-10; 13-16.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

Amid the vast uncertainties of this life some things are sure. What homes we may have and where they will be for the years just ahead we can hardly hazard a guess. Circumstances change so rapidly and possibilities open and close so mysteriously that no one can tell what will be. But beyond these horizons which shut in this present time the great mountains lift their heads, and in days when the sky is clear of clouds we may discern the distant home land better than many things nearer at hand.

What business prosperity or disaster may be ours in the months to come, what health or sickness, what family cares, perplexity and bereavement or joys and helpfulness of love, who can forecast? With all our exertion and prudence we cannot insure success to our plans, and defeat and bitter disappointment may have to be borne when we have labored so hard for the pleasant and rich prizes. When we speak of the need of faith what a vast power of faith it needs to keep us from utter discouragement in our daily struggle for existence! However worthy one may be and however bravely he may strive here, he can never be certain that the place he seeks may not be given to one less worthy and less able to fill it. Availability is often more successful than ability in getting place and wielding power.

But when we consider our new home, the heavenly one, we come to sureties. Our faith finds firm foundations on which to build our lives. We discover the eternal truth of things and arrive at certainty as fixed as laws of gravitation.

Our first need in preparation for our future home is to get rid of the dread of changing from earthly to heavenly conditions. We must recognize the place this life holds as leading into the future and that we shall be ourselves whatever the change in place. Our best preparation—indeed, the only possible one for us in reality—is to live the highest possible life, here and now, everywhere and at all times. We must get the ideal of what we would be. Place it as high as possible and make it such in nature that it shall ever recede and lift higher as we advance toward it, ever approaching but never fully attaining its fullness.

Then by patient plodding we are to shape our inner selves into the form of our purest vision of selfhood.

This is possible as we come to know the Christ as pictured in the Bible and as found in daily companionship in daily life, as we strive to conform our tastes and actions to His model.

The rush of our social and business life has well nigh banished the old time habit of religious meditation. We are in danger of substituting talk for thought and meetings for devotion and organization for human friendship, and in it all lose the companionship and inner consciousness of the Divine Helper ever present. But in the midst of all our obligations and pressure of the times we may—nay, we must—if we are to succeed and reach our home, we must live at all times the eternal life. It must be in us, increasing in power and clearness, and all our works of whatever kind must be simply its outworking.

Set the task clearly before you as a copy at the top of the writing book, and then practice persistently until you can write the lines of life as beautifully and straight as that you emulate. Such preparation will fit us for our work in the heavenly home, and whether the summons comes early or late it will not find us unfitted.

In Christ's School.

History tells of a young paint grinder in the studio of Italy's greatest master who developed striking evidences of artistic skill. When an enemy of the great teacher came to the boy and urged him to found a school of his own, saying that wealth and honors and invitations to kings' palaces might be his, the youth answered in effect, "I am not ambitious to found a school or dwell in a palace, but I am ambitious to catch Raphael's spirit and reproduce in myself his ideals."

Now, that simple thought condenses in a word the essence of the Christian life. It is an ambition to rise to the level of Christ's thoughts, to feel His throb of sympathy toward the poor and weak, to abhor evil as He abhorred it, to hunger for righteousness as He hungered for it and to walk with our Father as Christ walked with His. He is a Christian who is loyal to Christ in thoughts, sympathies, friendships, purposes and ideals.—Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis.

Sentence Sermons.

Thinking is the least exerted privilege of cultivated humanity.—Evene.

Many people expect heaven to honor their drafts when they have no deposits there.—Henry F. Cope.

There are seasons when to be still demands immensely higher strength than to act.—Channing.

Emotion is power when it is caught in the cylinder and does not escape in the whistle.—Rev. William Rader.

Truth is precious; too precious for rash distribution. There are a number of things that look just like it and are much less expensive.

The life of every man is a diary in which he means to write one story and writes another, and his humblest hour is when he compares the volume as it is with what he vowed to make it.—J. M. Barrie.

Every individual will be the happier the more clearly he understands that his vocation consists not in exacting service from others, but in ministering to others, in giving his life the ransom of many.—Tolstoi.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 23.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Preparing for our heavenly home.—Phil. iii, 20, 21; Heb. xi, 8-10, 13-16.

Christ came to bring "life and immortality to light through the gospel." He came to declare and to demonstrate by His own resurrection the absolute assurance of the future life. He became the first fruits of them that slept and thereby demonstrated that all should rise again. This is one of the most important truths revealed in God's word. Life means infinitely more since we know that death does not end all. Men had dreamed of immortality, and had hoped and longed for it, but no one was able to prove it until Christ came. He not only proved it by His testimony, as one coming from the other world, but actually demonstrated it by rising from the dead. There need be no doubt now about the future life.

The future life of the Christian has been set forth under many different figures and symbols. To describe it literally is, very naturally, impossible. It will be a life vastly different from the one in which we now live, and hence it could only be typified to us. Some facts concerning it have been revealed. There will be no sin in heaven, no death, no separation and no sorrow. A world without sin, death, sorrow and separation is almost inconceivable to us. These have been the features of this life that have been most deeply impressed upon us; hence to give us any conception of heaven, it was necessary to use types and symbols. It is called a city—"the Holy City, New Jerusalem;" it is also called a land—"the land of Canaan, flowing with milk and honey;" it has also been likened to a temple.

Perhaps of all the symbols by which heaven is represented the sweetest and best loved is that of "home"—our "heavenly home." Christ Himself thus speaks of it: "In My Father's house are many mansions." When the closing hours of life come and we are drawing near to the end of life the idea of heaven that attracts us most is not that of the splendid city or of a country, however blessed, but that of home. Then more than any other time we feel that we are absent from our real home, and, being tired and wearied, we want to go home. How often at such times we hear the words from saints about to depart: "I want to go home," "I am only waiting to go home!" Let us keep this idea of heaven before us. It is to be our eternal home. The remembrance of this fact will strengthen and cheer us amid life's active duties and greatly comfort us in the declining days of life.

Heaven being our eternal home, we should in this life prepare for it. If we were going to change our place of residence we would prepare more or less for the new home. The people in no two places live exactly alike. Houses, furniture, customs, are all different, and every one in moving takes these things into consideration. So as we look forward to a new life under vastly different circumstances we should prepare for it. In heaven we are to live in closest fellowship with God and with Christ. We should therefore commune with them much in this life. In heaven there is to be no sin; hence we should by the grace of God try to overcome sin here. In heaven we are to live in peace and harmony with all about us. Let us therefore try to know each other better on earth and live more peaceably together here. "Our citizenship is in heaven." Let us therefore strive to live here as citizens of the heavenly country.

Dr. Clark on Consecration.

If you owe anything to Christian Endeavor, fellow Endeavorer, the best way to begin to discharge your debt is to consecrate your life to the work of God through Christian Endeavor.

In the early days of the society far oftener than now we used to hear some such phrase as this at the roll call meeting: "I wish to renew my consecration to the service of God." The phrase became stereotyped, and we largely dropped it. Let us take it up again and put new life and meaning into it. Will you not say with me tonight as your name is called:

"I will consecrate myself to greater faithfulness to my covenant pledge."

"I will consecrate myself to more self sacrificing work on my committee."

"I will consecrate myself to an effort to lead some one else to Christ and into His church this winter."—Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D.

The Two Pits.

A toiler bent a patient back
Above a yawning pit,
And time and strength and love and wealth
He shoveled into it.
And still, though many years he toiled
And bitterly he cursed,
The pit remained a hollow hole,
As empty as at first.

A second workman bent his back
Above a second pit,
And time and strength and love and wealth
He shoveled into it.
And, lo, before his sun was set
The pit was brimming o'er
With ruddy gold and jewels rare,
A vast, exhaustless store!

Oh, toiler in the field of life,
'Tis not the work you do,
But where you do it and for what Means bane or bliss for you!
Alike into a yawning pit
May go your strength, your pelf,
But one pit is the church of God,
The other is—yourself.

HELPING THE SICK POOR.

It Is One of the Greatest Charities Ever Undertaken In a Large City.

The reason so many poor people die is without doubt owing to the wretched quality of the nourishment they receive. The doctor may prescribe light and strengthening diet, but what the patient gets in nine cases out of ten is a bit of stale meat from the delicatessen store or a meager supply of sour or impure milk.

To combat this evil is the work of the diet kitchen. It does its greatest good at this time of the year, and so I want to tell you about it in order that you may form a branch in your own town if you are charitably inclined.

The diet kitchen is exactly what its name implies—a kitchen that supplies absolutely free of charge invalids' food—pure milk, eggs, rice (well cooked, every grain firm and dry), custard, blancmange and light broths suitable for sick people. "The kitchen" is held in the basement of some house which is lent or hired for the purpose, and the matron in charge distributes its products from 8 to half past 10 every morning. A ticket is necessary from the house surgeon or visiting physician of a dispensary.

"Pure milk" money boxes were placed in all the drug stores in one town by the members of a diet kitchen, and the pennies collected went toward buying many a quart during the summer. The farm people all around were asked to contribute, and many people who could not afford to give money were of much aid in providing the raw material. In addition to the yearly fees of the members, two fairs were given in this same enterprising town, and much money was raised in this way.

Five kitchens in a large city assisted in one season 311,542 persons, mainly old people and children. They dispensed 308,000 pints of milk alone and 293,089 portions of rice.

In addition, some of the kitchens had an annex where comfortable garments, blankets, sheets and hot water bags for the sick were provided.

The results were in every case loudly praised both by the doctors and by the members of the board of health in each slum district. HELEN CLIFTON.

LIBRARY DECORATIONS.

French Windows Are In Great Demand For Country Houses.

Perhaps more attention is now given to the library than to any other room in the modern house. Far from being the gloomy place it was formerly, it is now filled with cheerful tints and sunshine. The popularity of the French window doubtless has much to do with this.

The illustration shows a remarkably effective scene setting from a recent play. The walls of this library are hung with red and green tapestries, although the new tapestry paper would do almost as well and cost far less. A large French window draped with silk curtains leads to the lawn or garden.

There is a Venetian fireplace with a large hood of green copper. The furniture is of carved oak, upholstered in tapestry that contains the color scheme of the walls.

In the evening the room is lighted by lamps with red shades, which cast a soft rosy glow over everything.

CHAPTER XVII.

In the fortnight of incessant action that followed the mad attack of that starlit Sunday morning, there was no place for Billy Gray. Sorely wounded, yet envied by many a fellow soldier for the glowing words in which the brigade commander praised his conduct and urged his brevet, the boy had been carried back to the great reserve hospital at Malate. The breezy wards were filled with sick and wounded, and certain of the rooms of the old convent once used for study and recitation had been set apart for officers. There were three cots in the one to which they bore him, and two were already occupied. Even in his pain and weakness he could hardly suppress a cry of dismay; for there, with his arm bandaged and in splints, his face white from loss of blood, lay Stanley Armstrong. Time and again the boy's heart and conscience had rebuked him for the estrangement that had arisen between him and this man who had proved his best friend. Time and again he had promised himself that he would strive to win back that friendship; but well he knew that first he must reinstate himself in Armstrong's respect; and how could he hope for that so long as he surrendered to the fascinations that kept him dangling about the dainty skirts of Witchie Garrison? Oddly enough, the boy had hardly bothered his head with any thought of what Frank Garrison might think of his attentions or devotions, whatever they could be called, to this very captivating and capricious helpmate. When a husband is so overwhelmed with other cares or considerations that he never sees his wife from morn till night, society seems to correspondingly lose sight of him. Down in the depths of his heart the boy was ashamed of himself. He never heard Armstrong mentioned that he did not wince. He knew and she knew that, coming suddenly upon them as Armstrong had that tropic night on the Queen, he must have heard her words, must have realized that some compact or understanding existed between them, which neither Gray nor Mrs. Frank could palliate or explain. It had not needed that episode to tell her that Armstrong held her in contempt; and yet, when they chanced to meet, she could smile up into his eyes as beamingly, as guilelessly, as though no shadow of sin had ever darkened her winsome face. But not so Gray. He moaned in secret over the loss of a strong man's confidence and esteem. He longed to find a way to win it back. He had even thought to go to the colonel with his trouble, make a clean breast of it, tell him the truth—that he had fallen deeply, as it was possible for him to fall, in love with Amy Lawrence; had hoped his love was returned; had found it was not—that she had only a frank, friendly, kindly interest in him; and that, wounded and stung, he had fretted himself into a fever at Honolulu, aided by Canker's aspersions, and then—well—any man is liable, said Billy to himself, to get smitten with a woman who tenderly and skillfully nurses him day after day; and that's just what Witchie Garrison did. But somehow the opportunity to tell him never seemed to come; and now, now that Armstrong and himself were thus thrown together with the prospect of being in the same room day and night for the best of the month, a third officer, a stranger, lay there, too, and in his presence or hearing any confidences would be impossible, even if Armstrong encouraged them, which he probably would not. In this embarrassment Billy's wish was that the colonel were fifty miles away. It was fate and a hard one, thought he, that brought him there—an ever-present reproach. It was luck of the worst kind that they should be confronted under such circumstances, since neither could retreat. He submitted in anxious silence to the keen, quick examination of the skillful surgeon in charge and to the redressing of his wound. He could have been proud and happy but for that shadow on his life, of which Armstrong's presence would so constantly remind him. He could not even think how his dear old dragoon daddy would rejoice in the congratulations that would surely greet him when the story of the brave dash of the ——teenth, Billy among the foremost, should reach the states. He could not even dream now it might affect her—Amy Lawrence. He was beginning to be ashamed now in this presence to think how that other—how Margaret Garrison might be impressed, forgetting that, to the army girl who has lived long years on the frontier, tales of heroism are the rule, not the exception. He wondered how long it could be before she would come to him to bring him comfort. Surely by this time she knew that he had been seriously, painfully wounded. He did not know, however, that at the very first sound of battle Frost had bundled the sisters aboard his launch and steamed away to the transports. Yet, what comfort could her visit bring to him with that stern censor lying there, seeing and hearing all? Billy Gray that Monday night could almost have wished that Armstrong's slumber might be eternal, never dreaming that before a second Monday should come he would thank heaven with grateful heart for Armstrong's presence, vigilance and intervention.

SOME ARGUMENTS OF COLBY FORCES

"CASE OF THE PEOPLE," THEIR TEXT-BOOK, APPEARS AND MAKES READING.

"The Case of the People" is the title and "To every man a square deal —Roosevelt" is the text of the book issued today by the Republican Committee for Limited Franchise and Equal Taxation, of which Everett Colby is the standard-bearer. In it are to be found most of the arguments used by Mr. Colby's supporters in his efforts to secure the State Senatorial nomination and are supplied for the use of orators at Colby meetings and for the mental food of limited franchise and equal taxation adherents. The little book has a picture of Mr. Colby as frontispiece and a biography of the candidate taken from the Legislative Manual.

The textbook contains the statements made by Mr. Colby when he announced his candidacy, which was published at the time and expounded in his speech at the Newark Theatre late in June. Under the head of "Conservatism Abused," the pamphlet says that there is no contention against capital as capital, but that a new situation has been created by aggregations of capital conducting public utilities and enjoying public privileges by which the conservative sentiment of the country has been abused and which is being met by the demand of conservatism that aggressions upon public rights shall cease.

Limit the Franchises.

In the matter of limiting franchises the book cites a number of cities throughout the country which have insisted upon it. In the cases quoted the public is declared to have benefited while the corporations have themselves made money. The "home rule" contention of Major Lentz comes in for a scoring and its alleged evil effects are shown.

Under the heading "The Bane of Perpetual Franchises," much space is given to an article published in February last, showing how the Public Service Corporation has $97,357,000 outstanding as stocks and bonds and collateral securities against a cost of installing their entire plant of $29,200,000. The natural sequence of the enormous burden of fixed charges involved in this over-capitalization is that the trolley service is bad and the local authorities do not enforce improvements. In this connection the Board of Works gets a lively hauling over the coals. The textbook says the solution of the problem will be found in the selection at the primaries of candidates for public office who will pledge themselves to the enactment and enforcement of laws which will restrict public utilities corporations to such conditions as will make possible good public service.

The question of equal taxation is gone into deeply, about half the book being taken up with its discussion. Concessions which have been made are declared to have been nullified and that the situation as regards discrimination in assessments is as bad as ever.

AMUSEMENTS.

One of the coolest and most delightful places in New York these hot evenings is the New York Roof Garden and Wistaria Grove. High up on top of the New York Theatre the air is particularly refreshing, and the show, it is simply immense. A novelty occurs every ten minutes and they are of the kind seldom seen at summer performances. The Red Domino is the attraction that will hold any crowd. "When we are forty-one" is of a high order. In it are Harry Bulger, who needs no introduction to theatregoers; Elsie Janis, Edith Blair and a number of other stars of the right magnitude. The Avalos and Sam Elton, in addition to many varieties, make up the rest of the bill. Performance starts at 8:20. It's one round of pleasure from start to finish.

Underlined for the week of July 24th at Keith's are Charles Guyer and Nellie O'Neill, for two years the comedy feature of "Babes in Toyland," presenting their new acrobatic comedy entitled "Watch the Finish;" John W. World and Mandell Kingston, the singing and dancing comedy duo; Emil Hoch, Jane Elton & Co., in their comedy success, "Mlle. Ricci;" the Three Navaros in one of the best balancing acts in the varieties; the Avon Comedy Four, who combine music with mirth; Yamamote Brothers, Japanese gymnasts; Orth & Fern, the clever pianist and dancing comedian; Ben Welch, the natural Hebrew character impersonator; the Baileys, America's neatest colored entertainers; O'Rourke & Burnett, clog dancers; Misses Mills and Morris, the burnt cork soubrettes; Barr & Evans, sketch team; Violet Staley, singing comedienne, and Gates & Nelson, balancers on the revolving globe.

Miss L. H. Everett, of West Fourth street, is spending some time at West Newbury, Mass.

Miss Christine Orson, of Franklin place, is going to Woodstock, Conn., to spend a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Blatz, of Somerset street, are among those at the Sunset Hall, Ocean Grove.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

It is said that George Wiltse, of the New York Nationals, denies the report that he has charge of the work of getting together a team to play Plainfield, and furthermore says that he knows nothing about the matter. It is very doubtful that a series will be played between Plainfield and Somerville, and Manager Conklin has made no move in this direction as yet and Manager Daab's dates are rapidly being filled up. It is possible that at the close of the season, Somerville may make arrangements to get a league team together for a game with Plainfield, but at present it is not the management's intention of getting any stronger team than the one now playing at the county seat and this one is not heavy enough to meet the local aggregation, and Somerville knows it.

"STONY" JACKSON SAVES FRIEND FROM DROWNING

BRINGS BEN SCHENCK TO SHORE AFTER A HARD STRUGGLE.

Seized with a cramp while in swimming at the Watchung Ice Company's pond at Watchung yesterday afternoon, Benjamin Schenck, of West Front street, would undoubtedly have drowned but for the prompt assistance rendered by Stonewall Jackson and Garret Sheppard. He was well out from shore when he suddenly became helpless and called for assistance. Jackson, Sheppard, Albert DeCamp and Albert Fritz all sprang into the water without divesting their clothing, but the last two were forced to turn back. Jackson and Sheppard kept on and after a hard struggle got Schenck to the bank.

He was unconscious when landed, but the familiar resuscitation methods were adopted and he was soon brought around. He was afterward assisted to his home and this morning, though very weak, suffered no after-effects. Schenck's rescue is largely due to Jackson's ability as a swimmer, as he himself was all but exhausted when they reached a safe point.

COOLER WEATHER COMES AT LAST

DROPS FROM 98 TO 82 IN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.

Relief from the oppressive hot spell reached Plainfield late yesterday, and for the first time in several days the people had a good night's rest. Today the weather conditions are greatly improved and life seems well worth living again. A drop of many degrees in the temperature today is greatly enjoyed by everybody, and the official weather man says that the hot wave is broken for a time at least. It started to rain at 2:20 this afternoon.

In comparing the recent hot weather of twelve days from July 8 to 19, inclusive, with the same period of time in the thirteen years, it shows that those of this year have broken the record taken as a whole. The temperature in previous years has been in the maximum, the highest being 101 degrees on July 17, 1900, and the minimum 47 degrees on July 11, 1898. This year the highest was 98 degrees, on July 18, the lowest, 58 degrees, on July 16.

The average maximum temperature this year was 90.9 and the average minimum 68.8, the average temperature being 79.8. Taking this same period of time for the previous thirteen years, it shows an average maximum temperature of 85.1, average minimum temperature of 63.0, and the average mean temperature of 74.5.

The forecast for today is: "Fair and cooler tonight; Friday, fair." The temperature today did not go much above 82 degrees, quite a contrast to that of the past few days, and the weather bureau intimates that a cold wave is rapidly bearing down on the East from the West.

While Plainfield has been suffering for the want of rain, Dunellen was blessed with a shower yesterday afternoon. The downpour was confined strictly to Dunellen, for not a drop of water fell three blocks outside of that place.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—S. J. Dixson, advance agent for the Hargraves Railroad Show, was in town today making arrangements for his circus to show here on August 3.

—John Peet, of New York, has purchased the roadhouse in Fanwood township formerly conducted by Daniel Galbraith, of this city, and is now in possesion.

—R. M. Stelle, of Central avenue, is justly proud of the quality of the sweet corn he grows for the table, and for the past few days a number of his friends have partaken of some of the "first of the season."

—Peaches from Georgia and melons from Maryland are features of Neuman Brothers' big fruit display. The hot weather has in no way interfered with the arrival of fresh consignments each day.

BAPTISTS ARE OFF AT THE SHORE TODAY

ENJOYING ANNUAL OUTINF TO ASBURY PARK.

The annual excursion of the First Baptist church and Faith chapel to Asbury Park this morning had an auspicious beginning and the day gave promise of being a fine one at the shore after a protracted warm spell of much severity. The first section, in charge of Engineer Thorp Hartzel and Conductor Thomas Flanagan, left here at 8 o'clock, with ten coaches well filled with excursionists.

The second section, in charge of Engineer John Thomas and Conductor Lester Brightman, followed soon afterward, but only four coaches were required to convey the remainder of the crowd, and at Roselle the other coaches were dropped, allowing the four coaches and baggage car to continue the journey. It is estimated that there were nearly one thousand excursionists. Frank W. Jones was chairman of the committee in charge. Instead of tickets being sold at the station this work was done on the train after it left Plainfield.

LINCOLN COMMITTEE ACTIVE.

Propositions Relative to Incorporation as a Borough.

Abram J. Gulick and George Harris, living near Lincoln, have been added to the general committee in charge of the preliminary work which aims to turn Lincoln into a borough. The committee met Monday night and received a proposition, which was denied, asking that Dewey Park be permitted to become a part of Dunellen.

A similar proposition was received from Bound Brook in relation to Beechwood Heights. This was also denied. A communication was received from a number of residents along the Raritan River road, asking that their territory be included in Lincoln borough when it is incorporated. The committee will probably meet again in two weeks.

AT NETHERWOOD CAMP.

Meetings Held at the Fresh Air Home Recently.

Rev. Mr. Francis had charge of the meeting at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home last evening. Miss May Voorhees presided at the organ. After a pleasing service of song Rev. Mr. Francis made an address to the mothers and children at the camp, taking for his topic "God's Love and Protection."

An interesting service was held Tuesday evening. It was conducted by Miss Pessinger, of Trinity Refromed church, who gave a helpful talk and told many good incidents to the children. A good service of song was a feature of the evening. Miss May Voorhees presided at the organ and also gave a brief talk on Christian work. The Misses Layton assisted in the singing.

VACATION DAYS.

Miss Achsach Holmes, of Grandview avenue, will go to Asbury Park in a few days to spend two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. George Creveling, of Asbury Park, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Thorn, of Fairview avenue, yesterday.

Sidney Rockwell, of East Front street, who was to have gone to Tuxis Island with the party headed by Boys' Secretary Kenneth Robbie, is detained at home by illness.

Improving the Hospital.

The work of retouching of the interior of Muhlenberg Hospital, which Woolston & Buckle have been working on for the past two weeks, is nearly completed. As is the case in all newly constructed buildings, the walls and ceilings had developed quite a few small cracks due to slight inequalities in the settling of the foundations. These have been pointed up and the interior decorating has been freshened up in some places so that the inside of the buildings looks as neat as if just completed.

Chain Tore His Mouth.

Thomas McInerney, aged four years, of Liberty street, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon while swinging on a chain which is used to tie horses. The lad was swinging high in the air, when the snap on the end of the chain caught him in the mouth, lacerating it severely. Dr. VanHorn was obliged to take several stitches in the torn flesh.

Wallace Noel Brown.

Wallace Noel Brown, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brown, died yesterday. Funeral services will be held from the home of his parents on Somerset place, Saturday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

Contract for New House.

Joseph D. Phillips, of Denmark road, has let to Joseph Naylor, Dunellen, the contract for the construction for a new residence on that thoroughfare. The house will be of colonial style, with wide verandas, beam ceilings and the interior will be finished in weathered oak.

Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M., has decided not to call off for the summer and the meetings will be held as usual.

NATURAL ICE CO. BEHIND THE SCHEME

BECAUSE OF BIG DEMAND, SAID TO HAVE SUGGESTED HIGHER PRICES.

Since the publication yesterday of the article relative to the talked-of proposition to raise the retail price of ice from forty to fifty cents a hundred, it has been learned that two of the local dealers, John Morton and F. T. Ostrom, are in such a position that they practically have nothing to say about it. They both purchase their ice supply from the Plainfield Natural Ice Company, which controls the output here.

It was reported today that an officer of the company made the suggestion to the other dealers that it would be a good thing to raise the price to fifty cents, and his argument was that the profits to the dealer is too small at the prevailing price, forty cents.

While the Plainfield Natural Ice Company may not directly fix the price for the other dealers, it is within its power to make the price to them such as to compel them to raise the retail price. In this way they would have no control over the matter. It is a fact that there is a plan to increase the price, but whether it will go through is another question, for it is also known that there is some opposition to the scheme.

The statement that if the hot wave continues the present supply would not last a month is more or less true, but there is no reason to believe that excessive heat will remain and in this case the supply will be sufficient for the summer's needs.

BOUND BROOK GAINS 767.

And Westfield's Increase Since 1900 Is 937.

Census bulletin No. 6, issued from the office of the Secretary of State yesterday, includes among others the latest enumerated populations of Bound Brook, Montgomery township, Westfield and Clark township. Bound Brook looms up with a gain of 767 in five years, having had 2,622 in 1900 and 3,389 at present. Montgomery township has 1,504, a gain of 261 over 1900.

Westfield shows the splendid gain of 937 since 1900, having had 4,328 then and 5,265 now. This is one of the best increases so far recorded in the county. Clark township modestly claims a gain of 13. It had 374 residents in 1900, and now has 387.

POST OFFICE TO STAY.

Uncle Sam Not to Change Its Location.

After all the talk, Plainfield's post office is to stay just where it is. The Babcock building is good enough for Uncle Sam as a place to transact his mail business, and that settles it.

A Federal post office official in charge of such business has arranged to renew the lease with William M. Stillman when certain improvements are made. Uncle Sam wants a paper distributing case and a registering case for the carriers installed before he will sign an agreement to keep on paying rent. These articles of post office furniture will be supplied by the landlord.

Fell From the Water Wagon.

Addie McCann, who used to appear in the city court at short intervals, faced Judge Runyon on a charge of drunkenness for the first time in many months, this morning. He had been on his good behavior so long His Honor rewarded him with a suspepsion of sentence and the warning to get back on the water wagon and stay there. Addie explained that his fall from the aqua pura vehicle was due to the Rising Sun and that cooler weather would see him safely on his seat.

D. C. Smalley Purchases Property.

David C. Smalley, the North avenue butcher, has purchased the property on East Third street now occupied by "Ted" Flannery's blacksmith shop. This is one of the old landmarks in the city. Mr. Smalley says that he has not made up his mind as to what he will do with this property, but suggests that it would make a good site for a beef house, owing to its proximity to the railroad. Mr. Flannery will continue the blacksmith business for the present.

G. O. P. Committee Meeting Soon.

It is the purpose of the Union County Republican Committee to meet for re-organization within a short time. A special meeting may be held, but the matter will be delayed longer than the regular meeting in August. As stated in yesterday's Daily Press, County Registrar F. H. Smith, of this city, will be chosen chairman to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Assemblyman E. S. Coyne.

Two Barns Burned.

The barn and outbuildings of J. E. Goodwin, at Ash Brook, were destroyed by fire last night. Two horses, a pig and a dog were roasted to death and another horse was badly burned. The full crop of hay feed the flames. The loss is $5,000. While Mr. Mazes, a neighbor, was helping to fight the flames his barn was also destroyed.

Off For Camp.

The Camp Tuxis contingent from the junior department of the local Y. M. C. A. left this morning for New York on a special car attached to the 7:55 express.

SCARED BOOKMAKERS.

200 to 1 Shot Nosed Out at the Post.

By about four inches the bookmakers at the Brighton Beach track were saved yesterday from great loss. In the third race Head Dance, backed from 100 to 1 to 40 to 1, was just beaten at the post by Novena.

If Head Dance had won the biggest "killing" of the year would have been made. This horse is a three-year-old colt, belonging to R. A. Rainey, a Pennsylvania millionaire. Early this spring Head Dance was a frequent winner, but he trained off and soon was an also ran. Several weeks ago he was thrown out of training. With spirits and speed renewed by rest, Head Dance was quietly prepared for this race.

The bookmakers were not aware that the horse had recovered his form and at the opening offered 200 to 1 against him. Several men were planted in the ring ready to snap up the long odds, but some of them bungled. Instead of placing $5 and $10 bets with the bookmakers at 200 to 1 they tried to bet $25 and $50. A few of these bets were accepted, but when the $50 and $100 wagers were offered the bookmakers promptly cut the price to 100 to 1.

It was at the latter figure that most of the money was placed. After this the men in the secret were circumspect and placed their money on in small amounts. The demand was so persistent that the bookmakers gradually chopped the price, until at the clos 40 to 1 were the ruling odds.

C. T. Henshall, manager of the stable, had $100 on Head Dance at 40 to 1, $50 at 20 to 1 for the place, and $1,000 at 10 to 1 to "show." He was certain that Head Dance could not be worse than third. Tom Costigan, another big turf speculator, backed the horse in the full place books.

COTTON SCANDAL AGAIN.

Now Secretary Wilson Wants Salary Raised.

Washington, July 20.—Secretary Wilson has concluded that the salary paid the chief statistician of the Agricultural Department is not large enough to induce a man of high standing and one in whom the country will have absolute confidence to accept the office, and he will recommend that Congress increase the pay to $5,000 from $3,000, the present salary.

Secretary Wilson will hold himself personally responsible for the crop reports in the future, having declared that if any further charges are made in this connection they will be levelled at him or Assistant Secretary Hays.

—Because they insisted in using water for their lawns after 8 o'clock in violation of agreement, the Plainfield Water Company shut off the water last night in the houses where the contracts were violated. This morning the owners of houses where the water was shut off were compelled to ask the company to turn on the water again.

Miss Emma Hantsch, of New York, is visiting at the home of her uncle, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, of West Front street.

PASTOR AND PARISHONERS HELD PRAYER MEETING UNTIL ITALIAN BAND STRUCK UP "MY BLUE BELL"

The regular weekly prayer meeting of the First Presbyterian church is held Wednesdays and last night the members of the congregation braved the heat and assembled as usual. The service was proceeding quietly when the dulcet strains of an Italian intermezzo came floating in the room from Concert Park, which is directly back of the church, and disconcerted some of the worshippers, especially the younger portion. It was almost impossible to sing hymns or to hear an address, but the Rev. Charles E. Herring continued leading in the hope that the selection would be short and the intermissions long.

The music had stopped and the quiet was being taken advantage of when the musicians again began to hail Our Lady of Mount Carmel but this time with an air that there was no getting away from. The poccolos, slide trombones and bass drums united in one grand jingle of "Good-bye, My Blue Bell," and the crowd in the park helped them out with whistling. Rev. Mr. Herring looked at the worshippers in despair and there were mutual glances of consent to adjournment. The meeting ended abruptly and the faithful filed out whole the band and the big gathering was in an ecstasy of enjoyment over "Take a Car."

EIGHTY-FOUR YEARS YOUNG, HE WEDS A MAIDEN WHO CAN COUNT THIRTY-EIGHT

After a courtship of three months, Christian Becker, of East Fourth street, who recently passed his eighty-fourth birthday, and Miss Mary Schiessinger, of the same address, and who has seen thirty-eight summers, concluded that age is no barrier to marriage and accordingly plighted their troth, Saturday night. They visited Rev. C. H. Schneegas, pastor of the German Reformed church, at his home on Liberty street and the knot was tied without any unnecessary ceremony. They are now residing at the groom's home, having dispensed with the wedding trip that usually follows a marriage.

Becker is well known throughout the city, having conducted a dyeing and cleaning establishment on Washington avenue for many years. He owns considerable real estate in the East End and is still shrewd for one of his years. His first wife died three years ago and his only relatives are a son-in-law and two grandchildren who reside at Freehold. His present wife has been acting as his housekeeper.

POOR JUMPERS AT BRIGHTON.

Horse Rube Injured and Had to Be Shot Yesterday.

The steeplechase race at the Brighton Beach track yesterday was a succession of accidents. The horse Rube was so badly injured that he was shot, and Jockey J. O'Brien, who had the mount on Gatebell, was badly hurt when his horse fell, and he was taken to the Reception Hospital at Coney Island.

The field of horses was a worthless lot and should not have been allowed to start. The unlucky thirteen went to the post, but not more than two, Rube and Knight of Harlem, were classed by horsemen among fifth-rate cross-country racers.

At every few jumps some horse fell or was pulled up. Heather Bells and Gatebell fell. O'Brien was picked up unconscious, but at the hospital he recovered his senses, and the doctors said last night that he would probably leave the hospital in a day or two.

Flying Machine and Neponset were the early pacemakers, with Knight of Harlem third and Rube in eighth place. Nearing the last jump, the favorite closed and took the last obstacle in the lead.

MORTON FIRES JORDAN.

Equitable's Comptroller is Summarily Dismissed.

Thomas D. Jordan, comptroller of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, of New York, was dismissed from his office yesterday by Chairman Paul Morton in a manner that implied disgrace. Mr. Morton gave out the following official announcement:

"T. D. Jordan has been removed as comptroller and Mr. William A. Day, at present Assistant Attorney General of the United States, has been appointed acting comptroller.

"The reason for Mr. Jordan's removal was his refusal to furnish me information regarding important transactions of the society which I am investigating."

This summary action is one of the first results of the exposure of the Equitable's loan account of $685,000 in the Mercantile Trust Company which was carried in the names of President J. W. Alexander and Comptroller T. D. Jordan as trustees.

SHOT BY ITALIAN BOY

Assailant Wounded Stilger in the Neck and Escaped.

CAUGHT BY WEISS.

Angry Words in Dunellen Brick Yard Led to Attack — Victim Not Seriously Hurt—Hearing Today.

As the result of a dispute regarding some work at Rajatti's brick yard in Dunellen, William Stilger was shot yesterday afternoon by John Pasco, an Italian, about fifteen years old. The lad afterward escaped, but was captured at 10:30 o'clock last night by Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough, at the home of his father, near Hand's brick yard, in North Plainfield. At first he put up a fight, but was finally overpowered and taken to the borough lockup, where he was detained over night. This morning Constable Mohan, of Dunellen, took the boy to Dunellen on a warrant issued by Justice von Minden, and he will be given a hearing this afternoon.

Stilger and Pasco were engaged in hacking brick. The boy finished his task first and Stilger asked him to help him with his work. According to the boy's story, Stilger was overbearing in his manner when he refused to assist, and followed it up by punching him. This angered him so that he went to the barn nearby and got his revolver, making up his mind that if Stilger persisted in his actions he would use it.

Soon after he returned, he says, Stilger again went at him, and in the heat of the argument Pasco pulled the revolver and shot. He then made his escape.

Stilger sought the services of Dr. Platt in the meantime, and the physician discovered that the bullet entered the left side just above the collarbone, escaped the lung, entering the muscles of the back. He found the piece of lead between the spinal column and the lower angle of the shoulder blade.

The bullet was removed and Dr. Platt says that the man's condition is not serious.

The whereabouts of Pasco were learned through several negroes who saw the lad running toward his father's home. When Chief Weiss arrived at the Pasco home he found several officials from Dunellen in the vicinity, they having heard that the lad was in that neighborhood.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

As the Editor of the Newark Evening News Sums it Up.

The Newark Evening News said editorially yesterday: "It is a cold week, even in mid-July, when Union county doesn't furnish a new and interesting political situation. The chief difficulty there is to get a suitable and satisfactory candidate for State Senator on the Republican ticket; a man of such character and caliber as to be a fit successor to former Senators Magie, Vail, Voorhees and Cross. Former Mayor Fisk, of Plainfield, was the first choice, but he declined. Former Mayor Gilbert, of the same city, was second choice, but he declined, and now the "Young Republicans" have formed a club and are advocating City Judge Runyon, who has consented to be a candidate for the nomination. To make the matter a little interesting, City Clerk James T. MacMurray, one of Plainfield's town "bosses"—Andrew McCardell being the other—has come out for Runyon, though but recently accused of favoring some other candidate. Should Ernest R. Ackerman, also of Plainfield, place himself in the hands of his friends there would be a genuine struggle. Runyon would probably carry the larger part of the Plainfield delegation, but what the rest of the county would do is an open question. The Senatorial situation favors Runyon now, but it is not yet settled by any means."

MR. CORTELYOU TO RESIGN.

Will Retire from National Committee and Col. New Will be Acting Head.

Postmaster General Cortelyou proposes to resign his position as chairman of the Republican National Committee in about three weeks. Colonel Harry New, of Indiana, vice chairman, will then be acting chairman until the next national campaign.

With Elmer Dover, secretary of the committee, Mr. Cortelyou is now engaged in winding up some routine business left over from the campaign last year.

A Cheap Outing.

Another opportunity will be offered Plainfielders to visit the seashore tomorrow by going with Franklin and Somerset Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M. Indications are that the day will be a delightful one at Asbury Park. Train leaves here at 8 o'clock and the excursionists will remain at the shore until 9:30 at night.

SUITS STARTED IN THE CIRCUIT COURT

ONE AGAINST AMERICAN SANITARY CO. $35,000 SEVERAL AGAINST P. S. C.

The following suits have been started in the Union County Circuit Court, and will probably be disposed of during the October term.

Charles Arny, of Elizabeth, a blacksmith, sues the Public Service Corporation for $10,000 damages. On July 8, last, he and a friend spent the evening at Galvin's Park, Westfield. Arny and his companion boarded the last car down from the park that night, each paying a fare of ten cents. He alleges that after the car passed Garwood, the conductor again demanded the second fare from him, which he refused to pay, whereupon the conductor, assisted by the motorman, took hold of him and attempted to throw him over the car railing into the street. Arny received a broken nose and is still confined to his home. The case will be prosecuted by Lawyer J. A. Kiernan.

John C. Lechthaler, administrator of Blanche S. Lechthaler, sues the United States Express Company for $5,000, for the killing of his daughter, who met her death by being run over by one of the company's wagons on March 4, last, the accident occurring on Florida street.

William Long, who lost his left leg on November 14, 1904, while in the employ of the American Sanitay Company, sues to recover $35,000 damages. He alleges that the accident was caused by reason of the gearing about a rolling machine being uncovered, and the poor lighting of the works.

A suit for $10,000 damages has been brought by James J. McGuire against the Babcock and Wilcox Company. On October 26, 1904, he was severely injured in the company's works at Bayonne, by a crane, which he insists, was insecurely fastened, falling on him.

Charlotte Grant sues the North Jersey Street Railway Company for $10,000 for injuries she sustained February 13, last, by slipping on the icy platform of one of the defendant's cars while coming from Newark to her home in Elizabeth.

Ida V. Schmidt and Herman Schmidt, her husband, sues the North Jersey Street Railway Company for injuries received on June 5, last. While riding a bicycle on East Jersey street, the wheel on which Mrs. Schmidt was riding was struck by one of the defendant's cars, and she was thrown to the roadway and badly injured.

WANT CHILD FOR ADOPTION.

Numerous Requests for the Colored Baby Abandoned in a Lot.

Chief Kiely and Overseer of the Poor Alex Ayers have received several applications from local people who want to adopt the colored baby abandoned in a lot on East Sixth street. It is now being taken care of by a family on West Third street, and was to have been placed in charge of the State Board of Guardians. The requests have altered their determination and it will probably be given to Mrs. Henry Beach, of West Third street, or Nathaniel Jackson, of Central avenue, both colored, who first asked for it.

The choice rests with the poor committee of the Common Council, which will make a decision tomorrow.

JAIL PLANS APPROVED

Somerset County Freeholders to Receive Bids For Its Erection on Aug. 15.

IT WILL COST $30,000

Architect Gordon Met Freeholders' Committee Today—Court House Plans Are Also Approved.

Plans for the new jail for Somerset county were approved today at a meeting of the building committee of the Board of Freeholders at the court house in Somerville. Architect Gordon, of New York, who submitted the plans, explained them in detail to the members of the board and stated that the structure could be built within the appropriation the board has in view for the purpose.

It is proposed to expend $30,000 in the erection of the new jail, which will be located immediately in the rear of the present structure. As already stated in The Daily Press, the building will be two stories in height and will be used exclusively for jail purposes. There will be forty cells of steel design and they will be of the latest pattern.

The structure will be built of stone to be brought from Gouverneur, N. Y., and will present an attractive appearance. It is proposed to rush the work as quickly as possible and according to the present plans it will be finished before January 1 next.

Bids for the erection of the jail will be received at the court house in Somerville on Tuesday morning, August 15, at 11 o'clock. Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for $1,000, made payable to the board.

The building committee consists of W. J. Logan, the director of the board, and R. W. Hoagland and T. E. Gibson. A. B. Sutphen is clerk.

Plans for the new court house were also submitted by Architect Gibson. Nothing will be done on these until the jail is finished, although the designs were approved.

BOX SEATS OF THEATRE TO BE AUCTIONED OFF

THE MANAGEMENT ALREADY BESIEGED APPLICATIONS FOR RESERVATIONS.

The date of opening for the new Plainfield theatre having been positively announced as August 24, Proprietor Counihan and Manager Gelatt have already been besieged with requests for the reservation of seats. At the present time about one-half the house has been asked for but it is impossible to issue tickets until the chairs have been installed and it is certain what the floor plans will be. Competition for the boxes has been so keen that Mr. Counihan said today that the only way he could avoid favoritism in their disposal is to auction them off, as is generally done when a new theatre is opened.

It has been decided by the management to regulate the scale of prices for the houses according to the class of attraction. For the big musical comedies and standard dramas the seats will range from twenty-five cents to $1.50. There will be numerous other good attractions at which the best orchestra chairs will be but seventy-five cents. This is the plan that has been followed out successfully at Jacobs theatre, Elizabeth, and several of the New York houses off Broadway.

The list of bookings is being added to daily and sof ar dates have been given only to the very best companies. Among the big attractions for which Mr. Counihan is negotiating are "Babes in Toyland," next to "The Wizard of Oz," the Majestic theatre's greatest success; Klaw & Erlanger's big Drury Lane spectacle, "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast;" McIntyre and Heath, the former vaudeville favorites in the new musical piece, "The Ham Tree," and Master Gabriel, of "Buster Brown" fame, in a new comedy.

In the City Court.

Lewis Webster, of Atlantic City, arrested last night for vagrancy, had sentence suspended in the city court this morning. He explained to Judge Runyon that he had come to Plainfield to see his father and was unable to find him. He had no place to go and was found in a hallway by the police.

Mrs. Rogers the Only Contestant.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers was the only contestant for the Gaston cup at the Plainfield Country Club, yesterday, and she scored three points for the trophy. She returned a score of 97, plus 2—99.

A. M. Vanderhoef, of Grandview avenue, is detained at home by illness.

ABRAM B. DUNLAP DEAD

Well-known Plainfielder Passes Away at Pasque Island, Mass.

NINETY-ONE YEARS OLD

Had Been a Local Resident Since 1875—Interment to be at Greenwood.

Abram B. Dunlap, one of Plainfield's best known citizens, died last night at his summer home at Pasque Island, Mass. Death was due to a complication of troubles and advanced age, he being almost ninety-one years old.

Mr. Dunlap was a resident of this city for over thirty years, previously living in Brooklyn. When he came here he was in the wholesale fruit business in New York with his brother-in-law, the late Peter Balen, and it was some years afterward that he retired. He made considerable money in business and during his residence here he acquired much property. During the past two years he disposed of some valuable sites, including the one at Front and Somerset streets, formerly occupied by the Courier-News, which was purchased by Schwed Brothers, and that at West Front and Grove streets which was purchased by Emanuel Schloss. He also owned several fine residential properties in this city and Brooklyn.

Mr. Dunlap's wife died over thirty years ago, and he made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Alonzo G. Conant, 27 Watchung avenue. He had been in poor health during the past two years and he gradually failed. It was his custom to spend his summers at Pasque Island, and he had a handsome cottage erected there.

While at home much of his time was spent at the Asbestos Club, in East Front street, he being one of the oldest members. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Conant, and several grandchildren.

Arrangements have been made to take the body to Brooklyn Sunday morning, where the interment will be in Greenwood cemetery. Services will probably be held at Pasque Island.

NEW PHYSICAL DIRECTOR.

Y. M. C. A. Hunting for a Successor to Mr. Henckel.

To secure a successor to Fred A. Henckel, the present physical director of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., who has resigned, the committee appointed at the last meeting of the Board of Directors has begun negotiations with three men, all of whom are said to be in every way qualified for the work. Two of the candidates are graduates of the Springfield Training School and have experience in larger associations than the one in this city.

In all probability the name of the successful applicant will be presented to the Board on Thursday, September 7. Those serving on the committee are President Joseph W. Gavett, chairman, Dr. Norman H. Probasco, A. C. LaBoyteaux and Curtis M. Thorpe, secretary of the association.

ARRESTED AFTER COLLISION.

Wagon Driver is Fined $10, but Lawyer Will Appeal the Case.

Thomas Dainero, a stone carter, was arraigned before Justice Sheelen at Fanwood last night on a complaint preferred by six-year-old William McInerney, through his father, that the defendant had been responsible for a collision between his wagon and the boy's bicycle. The accident occurred yesterday afternoon on the bridge over the Jersey Central tracks and young McInerney was slightly hurt in the mixup.

Dainero was found guilty and fined $10 and costs, but, on the advice of his counsel, Francis J. Blats, he refused to pay it. The lawyer declared the proceedings were irregular and will have the case appealed Jersey Central's New Field.

C. R. R. of N. J. A. A. will play Bayonne A. A. on the association's new field at Communipaw, Jersey City, tomorrow, at 3:30. As this is the opening of the new field, a large attendance is expected. This should be a first class game, as both teams are having a successful season.

Their Wedding Day Set.

The wedding of Miss Mabel Leek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Leek, of East Fifth street, and Willian J. Tunison, of Somerville, has been set for Wednesday evening, August 30, at the home of the bride. A gathering of relatives and friends will be in attendance.

Mrs. J. J. Coard has returned to this city after spending sometime at Oswego, N. Y.

The Misses Beek, of East Front street, are entertaining the Misses Mary and Julia Burndt, of Riverside Drive, New York.

NEWCORN FOR SENATOR?

Report That Former Assemblyman Has the Bee in His Bonnet.

IS NON-COMMITTAL.

Rumored That Some Fourth Ward Leaders Object to Judge Runyon's Letter to the Republican Club.

Report has it that former Assemblyman William Newcorn may be trotted out as a candidate for the senatorial nomination. His name has been mentioned in this connection on the streets and at the pow-wow of the local politicians but his boom has not taken any proportions as yet.

When seen today by a representative for The Daily Press Mr. New-

corn declined to commit himself definitely. In referring to the subject he said, "The question whether I am a candidate has been asked me time and again. In fact during the last few days a number of my friends have requested me to come out for the nomination." "Do you want the nomination?" asked the representative for this paper. "I do not seek the office, was Mr. Newcorn's evasive reply. "If I were nominated, I can't say whether I would accept or decline."

In some quarters it is said that some Fourth ward leaders are not altogether too friendly with Judge Runyon. His frank letter to the Republican Club is said to have displeased a few who are strong administration men, but just what they object to in the letter cannot be learned. The majority of the administration men have already committed themselves to Runyon. Possibly some of the Third ward leaders may get a rival candidate in the field, hoping to split the solid delegation and thereby defeat the nomination coming to Plainfield at all.

E. W. CONKLIN DEAD.

Well Known Wholesale Grocer Succumbs to Heart Trouble.

After an illness of four months, Edwin W. Conklin died from heart trouble this morning, at his home, 825 First place.

Born in New York city forty-nine years ago, Mr. Conklin entered the employ of Hurd, Hall & Company, a wholesale grocery concern, when a young man and became one of the firm upon the death of the senior partner.

Later he was in charge of the business in New Jersey, of James G. Powers & Co., another wholesale firm of grocers, continuing with them for thirty years, up to the time of his death. Residing in New York at first, Mr. Conklin moved to this city twenty-seven years ago, buying the property at 825 First place, where he has resided ever since.

Mr. Conklin is survived by a wife, a daughter, Viola P., two brothers, H. R. Conklin, of this city, and Lemuel, of New York, and a sister, Mrs. James Havemeyer, of New York.

Mr. Conklin was a regular attendant at All Souls' church, being one of the original members of that congregation.

Funeral services will be held at the late residence Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment will be made at Woodlawn cemetery, New York.

HEAT MENACED RAILROADS.

Threw Interlocking Switches Out of Adjustment.

The extremely hot weather that has prevailed in this vicinity for several days has not only resulted in the serious illness and death to human beings, but has made traveling on the steal railroads hazardous. The heat of the sun beating down on the rails and switches at interlocking plants on the Central Railroad caused them to expand considerably yesterday near Elizabeth and throw a number of interlocking switches out of adjustment.

This was particularly so at the Elizabethport station, where the Central Railroad operates two interlocking switch towers. Two men were at work during the better part of Wednesday keeping the switches adjusted and in a safe condition for moving trains over them.

At Spring street tower, Elizabeth, a small freight wreck occurred at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Wednesday, caused by the switches being out of adjustment. Two cars left the track at the tower. The train in which they were being hauled was not moving fast, or a serious accident might have occurred.

It is said the same conditions existed on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

SON ACCUSES FATHER

George Van Orden has Sire Arrested for Destroying a Letter Box.

DEFENDANT'S STORY

Declares the Complaint is the Aftermath of a Family Quarrel—Will be Taken to New Brunswick.

Under instructions from Inspector Meharey, of the Government service, Chief Kiely arrested last night D. B. Van Orden, of Stony Brook place, as the man who had demolished a private letter box on that thoroughfare just off Somerset street. He was locked up at headquarters and will be taken to New Brunswick this afternoon for a hearing before a United States commissioner.

Van Orden, who is fifty-eight years old and a carpenter by trade, declared to Chief Kiely and Postmaster Bird this morning that the box he destroyed was his own, and that the complaint against him was preferred through spite by his son, George Van Orden. There has been more or less trouble in his family for the past year, he said, and a few months ago the son left him to board with Frank Titus, who also resides on Stony Brook place. The Van Orden and Titus families were in the custom of having their mail matter left in the same box and each took its own. Van Orden recently purchased a new box without a lock, but the son George placed one upon it.

The father found it this way one day last week, and becoming angered at not being able to get out his letters, secured an axe and demolished the entire box. There were letters for the Tituses and the junior Van Orden in it and the latter preferred a complaint to Inspector Meharey. A warrant was made out, but in the meantime the father had gone to Flatbush, L. I., and the government detectives were looking for him. He returned to town yesterday and, unaware that the warrant was out, called at the post office for his mail. He was "spotted" by a clerk and the police were informed.

Van Orden's statement has been accepted as the truth by Meharey, but it does not release him in the eyes of the government. It has rigid laws for the protection of mail boxes of any description, and the fact that the prisoner bought the one demolished does not enter in the case. There is a possibility, however, that it may lessen any sentence that may be imposed.

INSURANCE INQUIRY.

Governor Higgins Sends Message to Legislature.

Albany, July 21.—There is to be a legislative investigation of the Equitable and other life insurance companies. Governor Higgins and the Legislature so decided yesterday.

After declaring daily for weeks that he did not believe the developments in the insurance scandal warranted action by the Legislature at the special session, Governor Higgins yesterday completely reversed himself by sending to the Legislature a strong message suggesting the advisability of the Legislature appointing a joint committee to make a thorough examination of the operations of the life insurance companies doing business in the State, to prepare and recommend to the next regular session of the Legislature such action as may be deemed proper to restore public confidence, and to compel life insurance companies to conudct a safe, honest and open business for the benefit of their policyholders.

HOOKER TRIUMPHS.

Resolution to Oust Justice Falls in Assembly.

Albany, July 21.—With a majority of the members of the Assembly favoring removal, but the constitutional two-thirds vote lacking, the resolution to oust Justice Warren B. Hooker from the Supreme Court bench failed in the lower house of the Legislature yesterday. The vote on removal was 76 yeas and 67 nays, and 100 votes were required to pass the resolution. The action of the Assembly relieves the Senate of the necessity of taking a ballot.

Justice Hooker, unless he should resign or something unforeseen should happen, will remain on the Supreme Court bench for nine and a half years more. He showed great satisfaction yesterday when informed of the result of the vote, but gave no indication as to his intentions. Although elected in the Eighth Judicial District, which includes Erie county, he is at present serving on the Appellate Division bench in Brooklyn.

The Misses Madeline and Alice Beck, of East Front street, have returned from a pleasant visit with friends at Reading, Pa. They were accompanied by the Misses Burndt, of New York.

MORE STRINGENT RULES FOR THE HACKMEN

PROBABLE MOVE TO AMEND THE PRESENT ORDIANCE.

The license committee of the Common Council in regulating the business carried on by the hackmen at the North Avenue station, is trying to make the ordinance more strict. It has always been permissable for the hackmen to drive up to the curb upon the arrival of a train, upon which there is a passenger who has engaged him beforehand. There has been objections to this, however, and now the committee seeks to prevent this.

A citizent in speaking of the matter today said that it has been the habit of many people to inform their hackmen that they would arrive home on a certain train and upon the arrival of it would naturally approach the curb and wait for the fare. The reason for objections to this is said to be that owners of private carriages are sometimes interfered with and annoyed by the efforts of the hackmen to ply their trade.

It is said that Chairman Tyler, of the committee, intends to present an amendment to the ordinance to license and regulate the hack business in which more restrictions will be placed on these men.

Jersey City Bill Killed.

Governor Stokes at Sea Girt has vetoed Assembly bill No. 312, which authorizes cities of the first class to provide for the payment of water works by issuing bonds secured by mortgages upon said works and other property of the city. The bill is knows as the Jersey City water works bonding bill, and was introduced by Mr. Duff. The bill made the issue of $7,595,000 of bonds that Jersey City will have to float to pay for her new water works at Boonton gilt-edged by making the bonds first lien on the works.

Spent $247.75 on Roosevelt.

The recent reception given to President Roosevelt at Perth Amboy cost the city $247.75. At the last meeting of the Common Council the bills were presented as follows: Decorations, Laggren Brothers, of Elizabeth, $100; music, N. Morrisey, $60; special policemen, thirty-eight at $2.25 each, $85.50. Warrants were ordered for all these bills.

Editor Consoles Himself.

The fellow who can't get away for the summer may console himself with the reflection that during three months 900 persons have been killed and 14,000 injured on railroads in this country.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

Wolf, formerly of Rahway, is now pitching for Kingston, of the Hudson River League.

Rahway wants another chance at Westfield, believing that it has a heavier hitting team.

Root for the home team tomorrow and show your appreciation of its fine work.

The West End Athletic Association has filed articles of incorporation at Trenton. The object of the club is to promote physical culture. The incorporators are John A. Maxwell, John G. Gaston, Lupardus Moore, Jacob H. Woodruff, Charles C. Kenyon, B. T. Conklin, Carlton P. Hoagland, H. W. Reusswig, William J. Demond and A. M. Beekman.

Sheriff Cooper, of Somerville, is one of the most enthusiastic fans.

William Tunison, of this city, who has been more or less identified with the West End Athletic Club, of Somerville, this year, in the management of the team, has resigned from the club. He was largely instrumental in getting several players for the team and his services were not appreciated, hence his resignation. Mr. Tunison expects to organize a team of his own a little later when he will probably challenge the West Ends to a game or a series of contests.

The New York Mail and Express in making a strong plea for fair treatment for major and minor league players on the part of the National Baseball Commission, takes a fall out of that august body showing how unfair it has been. The commission recently declared its inability to enforce a certain ruling and the Mail is led to remark: "What is the National Commission, anyhow?" Manager Daab has had some experience with the commission and it is safe to say that he will let it alone in the future.

PUBLISHING CONCERN MOVES.

New York Company to Consolidate With Staples Printing Company

The United Educational Company, of New York, established in 1874, has purchased stock in the Staples Printing Company, of Elizabeth, and will move its composing, printing and bidning departments there on or before August 1, and occupy the building 16-20 Jefferson street, which it has leased from E. M. Staples. Although thus combined with the Educational Printing Company, the Staples Printing Company will continue actively in the job printing business under its own name.

The Educational Company publishes four educational periodicals—The Teachers' Magazine, monthly; The School Journal, weekly; Our Times, weekly, and Educational Foundations, monthly. It is intended, also, to issue another magazine of large size and circulation. In addition to the above periodicals, the company has a large book business, along educational lines, of its own publication.

The combined plant will, it is expected, give employment to about 100 people, many of whom will come to this city as soon as the plant can be moved.

Plainfield, N. J., July 21, 1905.

The only good political machine is the automatic voting machine.

Few men refuse to listen to the people's call when the salary is big enough.

This is the time of year when the rust is kept off the newspaper office scissors.

Come to think of it, Jim Martine has not been brought out for the senatorship.

La Follette is keeping quiet.—Newark News.

So is everybody else just now.

Senator Platt says that his life has been a failure. His admission proves that he is a more sensible man than most people have given him credit to be.

There's lots doing in Union county politics, but it is impossible to stir up any excitement in Somerset. The politicians over there wait until the last moment and then make up for lost time.

An exchange throws out the suggestion that Kean ought to be worried partly for the reason that Frank H. Smith is to be the county chairman and William N. Runyon is hot after the senatorship. Why?

Root good and hard tomorrow for the Daabsters. Denman will be on hand with his "dove of peace" and a lot of Westfield fans to cheer on his aggregation to what we hope will be the second defeat for the champions.

These are the days when contributions to the baby camp should come in steadily. Morris Van Buren holds to that opinion and, accordingly, has sent his check for five dollars. The amount has been transmitted to the chairman of the committee in charge of the work. The full list of contributors to date is published in another column.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Dr. Beadon, a former rector in Eltham, Kent, England, one Sunday preached from the text, "Who Art Thou?" After reading it he made a pause, for the congregation to reflect upon the words, when a man in military dress, who at the instant was marching very sedately up the middle aisle of the church, supposing it a question addressed to him, replied: "I am, sir, an officer of the Sixteenth Regiment of Foot, on a recruiting party here, and having brought my wife and family with me, I am come to church because I wished to be acquainted with the neighboring clergy and gentry." This so deranged the divine and astonished the congregation that the sermon was concluded with considerable difficulty.—Minneapolis Tribune.

SYSONBY CANTERED.

Bettors Wagered Less Than $100 on Keene's Horse.

Sysonby, the mighty son of the English Melton, added another race to his long string of victories by winning the Iroquois Stakes yesterday at the Brighton Beach track. As in all his previous races, he had speed to spare and led from start to finish. The stake was worth $7,500, of which James R. Keene, Sysonby's owner, received $6,000.

There were three horses in the race, Sysonby, Migraine and Pasadena. For all the chance Migraine and Pasadena had to beat Sysonby they might as well have been kept in the stable. Their owners knew this and that it was a fight for second and third money, with the possible chance that Sysonby might drop dead or break a leg.

Migraine was second, a length and a half behind the great three-year-old, and twelve lengths in front of Pasadena.

Peace Envoy Quarters.

Arrangements for the accommodation of the Russian and Japanese peace envoys during their stay in New York city were announced yesterday. Twenty of the choicest rooms in the Waldorf-Astoria have been engaged for Baron Komura, the principal Japanese envoy, and his suite.

His staff will include M. Tachibana, four of Baron Komura's associates in the Department of Foreign Affairs, two secretaries, and two servants. S. Uchida, the Japanese Consul General here, arranged for the rooms. It is understood that the Russian envoy will stay at the St. Regis.

Prince in Steerage.

Ellis Island for seven hour yesterday entertained somewhat informally a Russian who says he is the young Prince Potemkine, son of Admiral Potemkine, after whom the Russian battleship whose crew mutinied was called. Prince Potemkine was a steerage passenger on La Bretagne, and not a soul was the wiser, though he had tucked away in his tunic drafts and cash to the amount of $25,000, besides few bits of valuable jewelry.

STEPBROTHER MARRIES HIS STEPSISTER; COUPLE'S PARENTS RECENTLY WERE UNITED

Miss Bessie Patterson was married Wednesday night to her step-brother, Boston Goslin, at their home, 2217 Federal street, Camden. Miss Patterson's mother was a widow, and Mrs. Goslin's father was a widower. While the young folks were courting their parents also fell under Cupid's darts. Recently the elder Mrs. Goslin and Mrs. Patterson were married. With Wednesday night's marriage the younger Mr. Goslin became a step-brother and husband to his wife. His father will also be his father-in-law, while his stepmother will also be his mother-in-law. The ceremony Wednesday night was performed by Rev. George T. Harris, of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church.

NEGRO WHO WAS TO BE DEVOURED BY STARVING CREW MEETS RESCUERS AT OCEAN GROVE

Shipwrecked thirty-three years ago, two of the eleven survivors of the steamship Missouri, which was burned and sunk at sea with more than a hundred of her passengers and crew, met at Ocean Grove accidentally and under similar circumstances, for the first time since that disaster. One survivor is W. F. Tunnelle, a banker, of Georgetown, Del., the other is a negro member of the Missouri's crew, who came near furnishing a meal for the other ten starving men in the steamship's open boat. It had been discussed which one should die to save the others, and several of the crew decided it should be Charles H. Glascow, the only negro in the party. Through the pleading of Mr. Tunnelle and other passengers the negro's life was spared. When Mr. Tunnelle walked into the dining room of the United States Hotel Tuesday, where he has been spending his summers for several years, there was a new head waiter, an aged negro, who showed him to his seat and then lingered a moment. Gazing intently at Mr. Tunnelle he said: "I know you; you saved my life once, sir." Mr. Tunnelle looked puzzled and the negro continued: "Don't you know me, sir? I am Glascow, who was wrecked with you on the steamship Missouri."

TOMORROW'S GAME.

Second Contest Between Plainfield and Westfield.

The local fans are on the anxious seat concerning the second contest between Plainfield and Westfield tomorrow for county championship honors, and while they feel sure that the locals will win, they believe that the Westfield aggregation will make a stronger fight than last week and come dangerously near taking the game. Every fan will want to see "Hot Air" Mallen, McGoey, Barry, "Paddy" Cotter and the rest of the Westfield favorites.

The great trouble with Plainfield's ball tossers in the past has been their inability to hit "Red" Waller. He has always proved their undoing. Every man on the team now is almost sure to get a hit off the auburn haired twirler and they fear him no more than any other pitcher. They got after Waller last week for nine bingles, including a two bagger. The result brought great joy to the admirers of the players and they want the dose repeated tomorrow.

It is possible that Dalton will not be able to cover second base, as the injuries he received last Sunday consist of a burst blood vessel and an injured vein and a strained tendon. In case he does not play, "Tuck" Turner will probably fill his position. This will be the lineup:

Plainfield—Kiernan, ss; Cosgrave, cf; Dalton, 2b; Connolly, rf; Cregan, lf; Leonard, 3b; Driscoll, 1b; O'Neil, c; Beck or Deegan, p.

Westfield—Kellogg, 2b; Barry, 3b; Rochford, 1b; Daly, ss; Bertwhistle, lf; Mallen, cf; McGoey, rf; Cotter, c; Waller, p.

AFTER TAX DELINQUENTS.

Collector Lee Must Sell Property and Is Preparing List.

Tax Collector Robert L. Lee is now preparing a list of the unpaid real estate taxes for 1904, prior to selling the properties under the tax act of 1903. This new act provides that the collector is compelled to advertise and sell all real estate upon which the taxes remain unpaid on July 1 following the date upon which they are due.

In this case the taxes were due December 20, 1904, and after being advertised for the usual time beginning July 1 of this month, they are to be sold for the taxes.

Twenty Years for Beast.

Four minutes after withdrawing from the court room to deliberate on the charge that Edward Neidinger had mistreated girls of from 9 to 14 years of age, whom he had induced to join a "children's flower club," formed by him in his home, 121 East 104 street, New York, the jury returned a verdict of guilty. Under the conviction he may be sentenced to a maximum term of 20 years in State prison.

JUSTICE DEUEL GOT FEES.

"Town Topics" Paid Him—Mrs. Huntington Gone.

That Justice Joseph M. Deuel, of New York, has been drawing $1,200 a year from "Town Topics" for unspecified services, and that he holds thirty of the company's five hundred shares of stock, was learned yesterday by Paul Krotel, Assistant District Attorney. Edward Lauterbach, attorney for "Town Topics," telephoned to Mr. Gans, Acting District Attorney, giving permission to examine the company's books, and Mr. Krotel, with an expert accountant, went to the company's offices at 10 o'clock and stayed till noon. After their return Mr. Gans announced that they had examined Justice Deuel's account.

BOOKMAKERS' CRASH.

Bettors Took at Least $150,000 Out of the Ring.

At the Brighton Beach race-track yesterday the bookmakers experienced the worst day of the season. The plungers picked winners and the layers lost at least $150,000. A great part of this snug fortune the layers of odds dropped when Sue Smith won the first race.

Jessie Lewisohn cleaned up a trifle more than $50,000. He won $20,000 on Sue Smith's victory, cashed in $6,000 on Chimney Sweep, bet $10,000 on Whimsical at 2 to 1, and had $5,000 on Alan-a-Dale at even money when he galloped home the winner of the fifth event.

Speak-Easy Man in Jail.

Frank Margentino, convicted Tuesday by Recorder Doud on the charge of illegal liquor selling, will be released Monday, the expiration of his seven days' term, provided he is ready to pay his $20 fine. If he refuses to do this he will be sent to the New Brunswick jail to serve time.

IN U. S. CIRCUIT COURT

Suit has been brought in the United States Circuit Court at Trenton by the American Hoist and Derrick Company, of St. Paul, Minn., and Oliver Crosby against the John A. Roebling's Cons Company and the Trenton Iron Company to restrain them from manufacturing certain wire rope clamps. An accounting of the profits alleged to have been made from the sale of the goods is also asked for.

It is claimed the companies infringed upon patent rights of the derrick company by making the clamps.

The Fidelity and Deposit Company, of Baltimore, has brought suit against the Fidelity Trust Company, of Newark, and the Essex County National Bank, also of Newark, and Anna T. Wilson, executor of the estate of William B. Wilson.

An accounting is asked for of the moneys held by the defendants belonging to Wilson and of those deposited to the credit of the Supreme Council of Chosen Friends, of which Wilson was Supreme Treasurer.

Judge Lanning heard argument and reserved decision in the matter of Walter A. Kirkpatrick, of Philadelphia, against the American Alkali Company. The argument was on a petition to have an assessment levied on the preferred stock of the company.

The Gould Storage Battery Company, of New York, has brought suit against the Electric Storage Battery Company, of New Jersey, and asks for an injunction restrianing it from the further manufacture and sale of electrical appliances upon which the complainant cliams to possess a patent.

The Columbia Avenue Trust Company, formerly known as the Columbia Avenue Saving Fund, Safe Deposit and Trust Company, of Philadelphia, has begun suit against Frank H. Williams, of Como, and John H. Hulse, of New Egypt, for the recovery of $7,000. It is alleged that Williams and Hulse broke a contract for the improvement of certain property.

Judge Lanning heard argument in the application of the Western Union Telegraph Company for an injunction to restrain A. V. D. Polhemus from cutting down poles belonging to the company in Neshanick, Somerville and other places in the State. Decision was reserved.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association of Kings county will inaugurate its first seashore festival on Wednesday evening next, when the association and its friends will visit Pain's Port Arthur at the fireworks amphitheatre, Manhattan Beach, the association participating in the tickets sold. This is a most worthy object and deserves a great deal at the hands of people in City of Churches, whose charity is conducted on the highest plane. Do not forget that every ticket bought from the officers or friends of this association adds to the fund which is doing so much good. Of the many comments which have been made on Port Arthur, few have been unfavorable, yet now and then the adverse criticisms have been of value, as was the case when a high dignitary of the Greek church took exception to the way in which the flags were blessed.

LITERARY.

The Greeks believed that the length of a woman's head should be one-eighth of her total height. American women's heads average longer in proportion. Some foolish student of Greek art announced that this bigness was all wrong; and that the American women were of bad proportions. The answer is, of course, that the American women have bigger brains than the Greek women had, and need more room for them; and anyway, if you take the American woman for the standard, the Greek statues will be found to be all out of proportion. Discretion and experience impel us to decide in favor of the American woman—"With the Procession," Everybody's Magazine for August.

Big Auto Registration.

Some interesting figures are furnished by the new registration of automobiles at Albany, N. Y., during the first four months of 1905. Although they cannot be taken to indicate all the cars that have been sold by manufacturers, the report gives a foundation for figuring which gives evidence of the remarkable popularity that power driven machines are enjoying. In those four months licenses were issued for 2,041 cars, of which 1,842 were of American manufacture and 199 were imported.

This does not indicate the number of automobiles in use, for under the present laws a driver has to register his car in every State where it is used. It is the hope of automobilists that sooner or later a license number taken out in one State will answer in every other State. Thousands of dollars are being put into the State treasuries under the present laws, with no return to the motorists, who consider th leicensing an unjust tax. It is the general opinion that a fair way would be to have the money from such registration to be used for the improvement of the highways. No automobilist would object to paying a registration fee if the money should be put to such use.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

In three days the colonel was able to sit up. Within the week he was permitted to take air and exercise in the spacious court of the old college, his sword arm in its sling. But Gray and the young officer of volunteers were too seriously wounded to leave their pillows. The —teenth had occupied a new line far south of the old one; but, at one time, several of Billy's brother officers had dropped in to see him and tell him regimental news; and one of them, the young West Pointer who had broken down at sight of the dying face that stirring Sunday morning, told him of Latrobe's soldier funeral and of Gen. Drayton's presence and speechless grief; and Billy's hand groped beneath the pillow for that little blood-stained packet still undelivered. He had promptly caused the information to be conveyed to the veteran commander that it was his own lost nephew who had died his soldier death in front of the firing line; but the packet still remained in his hands; and even before the tiny thermometer confirmed his views, the keen eye of the surgeon saw that something had heightened Billy's fever that day; and so, when just at sunset there came driving into the court the most stylish equipage in all Manila, and Mrs. Garrison fluttered up the broad stairway and confidently asked to be announced to Mr. Gray, the steward in charge of the door was very, very sorry, but—the doctor had given instructions that no more visitors should see the young gentleman that day. Mrs. Frank smiled indulgently, and asked for the doctor himself, and beamed on him with all her witchery and begged for just a few words; but the suave, placid, yet impenetrable doctor said he, too, was sorry—sorry that Mr. Gray was not able to see anyone else, but such was the case. Mrs. Garrison said she thought if Mr. Gray knew that it was—but perhaps Dr. Frank didn't know it was she who had nursed Mr. Gray so assiduously at Honolulu. Dr. Frank did know that and more; but he did not say so; neither did he yield. There were tears in her eyes as she sprang into her carriage again; but they were tears of anger and defeat. She dashed them away the very next instant and smiled joy and congratulation, even adulation, at sight of the tall, stalwart officer, his arm in a sling, who stood the center of a staring group as her carriage flashed by. She would have ordered stop; but while the rest of the party had gazed as they lifted their caps, Armstrong's uninjured hand performed its duty, his cap had been lifted with the others, but not so much as a glance went her way; and Margaret Garrison, bitter in spirit, drove on down past the old quartel to her luxurious quarters where Nita, a piteous shadow of the "sweet girl graduate" of the year before, was awaiting her coming. With the insurgents' retreat and the advance of the American lines there had been a gradual return of the refugees among the transports; and Frost had finally brought his birdling back to shore; but Nita dare not drive, she said, for fear of again seeing those stern, reproachful eyes. The guard at the gate had received orders to admit no more of the rank and file, even when they came as messengers; and so the child was safe, said Margaret. As for herself, she must drive, she must see Will Gray.

But the instant she reentered the house Mrs. Garrison knew that during her brief absence some new trouble had come. Good heavens, could she never leave Nita's side that harm did not befall her! At the head of the broad fligh of stairs stood her brother-in-law, a black frown on his brow.

"Go in and do what you can for her," he briefly said. "I thought—she'd be glad to know that—that—fellow would trouble her no more."

"That fellow?" she gasped. "You mean—"

"I mean—Yes—Latrobe—killed and buried a whole week ago."

"And you told her!" she cried clinching her little hands in impotent wrath. "You—brute!"

Another week rolled by. The tide of battle had swept inland and northward; and all eyes were on the plucky advance of MacArthur's strong division, while far out to the south and east the thinned and depleted lines of Anderson held an insurgent force that forever menaced but dare not attack. The Primeval Dudes, sorely missing their calmly energetic colonel, had drifted into a war of words with their nearest neighbors on the firing line, a far western regiment gifted with great command of language and small regard for style. The latter had crowed mightily over their more rigorously disciplined comrades because of the compliments bestowed on them in an official report, wherein the Dudes received only honorable mention. It was Capt. Stricker of the volunteers who had led the dash on the rebel works across the Tripa to the left of Blockhouse 12. It was their Sergt. Finney who whacked a Filipino major with the butt of his Springfield, and tumbled out of him the batch of reports and records that gave the numbers and positions of every unit of Pilar's division on the southward zone. It was their Corporal Norton who got the Mauser through the shoulder just as, foremost in the rush, he bayoneted the last Tagal at the Krupp guns in the river redoubt. It was his devoted bunky, Private Latrobe, who volunteered to carry the division commander's dispatch across the open rice field and the yawning ditches that separated the staff from the rest of the charging —teenth, and who died gloriously in the rush on the rebel works. Man after man of the woolly westerners had been referred to by name, while the Dudes had nothing to show but their wounded colonel's modest report that "where every officer and man appeared to do his whole duty it would be unjust to make especial mention of even a limited few." The Dudes were getting hot over the taunts of the "Toughs," as some one had misnamed their neighbors; and one night when there was more or less interchange of pointed chaff in lieu of a fight with a common foe there was heard a shrill voice from the flank of the rifle pit nearest the westerners, and what it said was repeated in wonderment over the brigade before the Dudes were another day older.

IMPORTANT DECISION IN LANDLORD CASE

COURT HOLDS IN ABSENCE OF AGREEMENT—TENANT MUST MAKE REPAIRS.

Jersey City, July 21.—Judge Erwin, in the Second District Court, has decided that in the absence of any specific agreement between landlord and tenant all repairs must be made by the latter.

The decision was given in a suit instituted by Elizabeth McManus against Michael H. Nagle to recover $70.10 which she had expended in repairs on a stable owned by her at 240 Mulberry street, Newark. Nagle leased the stable, but failed to keep it in repair. When he left she was obliged to expend the amount named for repairs.

As an offset the defendant claimed that the leaky roof of the stable had so lessened the value of a horse that cost $145 that he was obliged to sell the animal for $67.50.

The judgment was for the plaintiff for the full amount claimed.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION

Antiquated Pardon System.

New Jersey's Board of Pardons, which convened at Sea Girt today, is a peculiar legacy from the colonial times. It raison d' etre is wrapped in impenetrable mystery. The public is familiar with strange working of a body which puts upon the commonwealth unrepentant criminals and keeps safely confined many whose claims to parole are founded upon justice and equity. Not long ago a Trenton lawyer, in jail for fraud, was released by the Court of Pardons. The lawyer immediately got busy again and resumed his criminal practices in Pennsylvania. There are other similar instances of misdirected clemency, which go to show that the Court of Pardons is too closely under political influence to be entrusted with judicial powers.—Asbury Park Press.

Might Benefit New Jersey.

New York State has a law which might well be adopted by New Jersey. This relates to description of property offered for sale under foreclosure proceedings, and the sheriff or other officer offering such properties for sale is compelled to publish with the notice of sale a diagram showing the location and dimensions of the land or lots. The law evidently does not aupply to farm property, but only to city lots. As such a diagram would give the prospective bidder for any property a correct idea of what was offered, location, dimensions, etc., it follows that such a way of describing property would be much better than a long and hardly intelligible legal description. The expense, too, would be much less for advertising. Some of our lawmakers might look into this matter.—New Brunswick Home News.

TURNED HOSE ON WIFE.

Somerville Man Sent to Jail Because He Tried to Cool His Wife.

Somerville, July 21.—With the mercury hovering near the century mark and "general humidity" making worm faces at you, James Henderson came home Wednesday slightly under the influence of the weather and finding his wife in the same state, proceeded to turn the garden hose on her.

She and the neighbors misunderstood her husband's intentions and swore out a warrant, charging him with cruelty, and Officer Koch took him before Justice Kitchen, who committed the husband to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Don'ts for the Home.

Don't be afraid of a little fun at home. Don't shut your house lest the sun should fade your carpets, and your hearts, lest a hearty laugh shake down some of the musty old cobwebs there, says the Chicago Journal. Therefore let the fire burn brightly at night and make the homestead delightful with all those little arts that parents so perfectly understand. Don't repress the buoyant spirits of your children; half an hour's merriment round the lamp and fireside of home blots out the remembrance of many a care and annoyance during the day, and the best safeguard they can take with them into the world is the influence of a bright little domestic sanctum.

New Ocean Grove Temple Model.

Ocean Grove, July 21—A model of the proposed new Young People's Temple is now on exhibition in the Temple, and a determined effort will be made later in the season to collect the money necessary to erect the building. Nearly every day Rev. Charles H. Yatman, leader of the Young People's meeting, receives money from visitors for the building fund.

Queen Chosen Next Week.

It is probable that the young lady who will represent the queen for the coming Asbury Park carnival will be chosen some time next week. The members of the Carnival Association discussed the perlexing question last night, but they were not in a position to make any final announcement as to whom their discussion related. Judges were selected last night.

DIAMOND DUST.

The weather man was so good last Saturday, let every one hope that he will be just as fair tomorrow.

Westfield extended the glad hand at the opening game and it is now up to Plainfield to reciprocate.

Ten straight is the cry, and if Captain Driscoll and his men can do the trick they will receive the thanks of every local fan.

"Red" Waller is sure to get a big reception tomorrow and he needn't get mad about it, either.

Here's that the locals may apply a second coat of whitwash.

Westfield and other parts of the county will send big delegations and the crowd promises to be the largest of the season.

Westfield will try hard to win tomorrow. "Red" Waller and his team mates feel sure of a victory.

Krank Kenney has the fever and promises to be on hand early to cheer for Plainfield.

If you want a good seat go early to Crescent Oval. Late comers will have to be satisfied with ground seats.

CARTON INDICTED.

Charged in Brooklyn With Grave Crimes—He Must Stand Trial.

Frederick E. Carlton, in Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, accused of knowing more about the suspicious deaths of his various wives than he will tell, will be placed on trial on one charge in that county.

He was indicted by the Grand Jury yesterday for grand larceny, in having drugged and robbed Dr. Charles A. Goldsmith, of Stamford, Conn. After the newspapers had told about Carlton's career Dr. Goldsmith wrote to Inspector Cross, of Brooklyn, that, in 1900, he had been robbed of $1,000 in jewels and $500 by a man whom he knew as Martinez.

Dr. Goldsmith said that on coming to New York he went to the Hotel St. Claire, in Park row, where he met Martinez. They became friendly, and one night Martinez offered to prepare some special dishes, saying he was an excellent cook. He did so, and after Dr. Goldsmith had partaken of the dishes he became unconscious, and when he regained his senses he found his companion, his cash and his jewelry gone.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS.

Street Assessment Commissioners Hold Session.

Harry B. MacDonld, William R. Sullivan and Andrew J. Gavett, commissioners appointed by the Common Council to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent improvement of certain stretes in the city, met last night in the Common Council rooms to confer with property-owners. Very few persons appeared and the time was spent in going over the work already started. The commissioners will meet again on Tuesday, August 8.

There was also a meeting of the sewer commissioners last night, when further progress was made in their work. They are rapidly completing their report, which will be presented to the Common Council at the August meeting.

Solid for Runyon.

Former Mayor Gilbert, of Plainfield, who was being actively boomed as a candidate for Senator this fall on the Republican ticket, has publicly declined to allow his name to be considered for the position. The friends of Judge W. N. Runyon, of that city, are now actively at work to bring about his nomination, and the prospects are that Plainfield will be solid for the young Judge.—Rahway Advocate.

COMPLETING ASSESSMENTS.

Plainfield Board Has About Finished Its Work.

The Plainfield Board of Assessors has about completed its work for this year and the members are now preparing their books preparatory to presenting them to the Common Council next month. It is expected that Plainfield will show a substantial increase in property valuation this year over last, when the total reached something over $9,000,000.

The greatest increase this year will probably be shown in the Fourth Ward, where there has been considerable building since the last assessment was made.

The assesors will present their books to the Common Council about the middle of August, and after being approved by that body they will be taken to Elizabeth, where the county board of assessors will use them in making up the county rate and establishing Plainfield's rate.

MAYOR WEAVER WINS AGAIN.

Agrees to Ordinance Authorizing Mayor to Employ Special Counsel.

Philadelpha, Pa., July 21—The joint committee on finance of the city Council yesterday favorably reported to the Common and Select Councils the ordinance authorizing Mayor Weaver, through the City Solicitor, to employ special counsel to look after any civil suits the Mayor may bring against city contractors. The ordinance will come up next week for final action.

The action of the finance committee adds another victory to the Mayor's string. The ordinance limits the appropriation for the expenses of the special counsel to $10,000.

Former Judge James Gay Gordon, private attorney for Mayor Weaver, will be appointed special counsel to take up the civil suits.

COUNCILMANIC SITUATION

Bullock, Gloak, Wilson, Higham, Daniel, Murphy and C. Randolph out this Fall

FIGHT FOR NOMINATION

Likelihood that the Primaries Will Be Hot—Battle for Tax Collectorship.

As the Newark Evening News says, it is a cold week when there isn't a political story in Union county. There's one every twenty-four hours in Plainfield, and the one today seems to be about the councilmanic situation. A number of councilmen will come to the end of their terms of office this fall and there'll be something doing at the primaries—as usual.

Clarence Murphy, Fourth Ward; J. Stephen Higham and Leslie M. Daniel, Third Ward; Theodore Wilson, Second Ward, and William Starr Bullock and W.m Gloak, First Ward, are out this fall. So is Charles Randolph, of the Fourth. Randolph was the successor of Robert Lee when the latter was chosen tax collector. Under the city charter his term only lasts until the next regular election.

A number of these men are not on friendly terms with the administration, and no secret is made of the fact that there will be a determined fight to defeat them. According to one administration man, many must go. Wilson, in the Second Ward, it is said, is particularly marked for defeat. There is authority also for the statement that Bullock will be retired if the administration has everything its own way.

Councilman Daniel is receiving bouquets from all factions, and he is sure to be renominated.

It is also said that no fight will be made against William Gloak.

As yet no candidates have been trotted out. The reason for this is said that neither the administration nor the anti-administration wings of the party wishes to show its hand.

It is also reported that a fight will be made to retire Tax Collector Robert A. Lee. No one can say who has been picked by the administration as a rival candidate. When any administration or anti-adminstration politician is interviewed he says "wait and see."

THE DYSENTERY EPIDEMIC.

Probability that Borough Council Will Discuss Sewage Plans Now.

Practically set aside for many months to come at a recent councilmanic meeting, the subject of a sewer system for North Plainfield has been revived with double force because of the epidemic of dysentery that has been prevalent in the borough for the past two weeks. Citizens who were formerly opposed to the scheme have realized that a change is needed and have openly spoken for it. There is a strong possibility that the borough fathers will again take up the matter next session.

The prevalence of dysentery has called for investigation on the part of State health officials as well as those of the borough, and two of the former were in North Plainfield yesterday. They made a careful examination of the yards along Harmony street, where several deaths have occurred from this cause, and as a result several wells were ordered abandoned. They are on the premises occupied by Edward Mundy and Mrs. Walter Coriell, both of whom lost children by dysentery, and are in close proximity to cesspools. The residents have been instructed not to drink the water until further action is taken.

Clyde Doane, of East Seventh street, returned home yesterday from a three weeks' stay in the Catskill mountains.

EFFORTS TO DOWN KEAN

Democratic Paper at the County Seat Makes a Discovery.

FOWLER MEN ACTIVE

Says That Candidacy of Smith for Chairman and Runyon for Senator Are Indications of Plot.

The Elizabeth Times (Democratic) contained the following story in its issue yesterday:

"Union county, which has been a strong Kean Republican baliwick for a number of years, is in danger of slipping out of the hands of the United States Senator into those of the followers of Representative Charles N. Fowler. The beginning of the end is believed to have been the death of Assemblyman Edward S. Coyne, followed by the declaration of City Judge William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, of his candidacy for Senatorial honors to succeed Judge Cross, and, finally, the succession of Frank Smith, Union County's registrar, to the position of chairman of the Republican County Committee. The object of the plans now afoot is to ultimately make Congressman Charles N. Fowler, of the Fifth Congressional District, United States Senator.

"The fall of Kean absolutism dates from the big Plainfield bolt two years ago, which resulted in throwing the county into the Democratic column, as far as the Assembly was concerned. After the election Hamilton Kean, then chairman of the Union County Republican Committee, gave a 'harmony dinner' here. At that time Hamilton wanted his brother John elected Senator, and, in order that this might be accomplished, he promised Plainfield a county nomination if it would be real good and stand in line. Plainfield agreed, but wanted the county chairmanship. It finally consented, however, to accept the vice-chairmanship of the committee. Accordingly the selection of the chairmanship went to Assemblyman Edward S. Coyne, and Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield, received the vice-chairmanship. Such a contingency as the death of Coyne was not anticipated, of course, and now the Kean faction is forced to sit by and see its power and prestige in the county gradually slipping away.

"When the matter of making a selection of a candidate in Plainfield for the Senatorship this year came up an effort was made to secure a Kean man by a compromise, but the scheme did not work, and when Gilbert, the former Mayor of Plainfield, refused to run, the choice of the Plainfielders was Judge William N. Runyon, a strong Fowler Republican and one of the company who precipitated the bolt in Plainfield in 1903, in retaliation for the treatment received at the hands of the Kean Republicans.

"With Runyon a candidate for Senator there is a question as to who is to be Coyne's successor in the Assembly. As the honor is to come to Elizabeth, C. Addison Swift, formerly city attorney, and of the Kean persuasion, is likely to be the man, although R. B. Cissel, president of the McKinley Club, has also been mentioned.

"The plan as it is unfolding itself shows a clear, straight and narrow path to the Senate for Congressman Charles N. Fowler, although the real object is hidden behind smaller politics just at the present time. The first step is to give Fowler the ascendancy in the county now controlled by Kean. Smith, a Fowler man, as chairman of the county Republican committee, will wield a strong influence to this end.

"C. Addison Swift, who is mentioned prominently as the candidate for Assembly to succeed the late Edward S. Coyne, practically admitted yesterday that if the honor was officially tendered him he would accept it.

"He comes from the same ward, the Fourth, in which Captain Robert J. Kirkland lives. Kirkland is a candidate for sheriff this year, and Mr. Swift hesitates about urging his candidacy for fear it might injure Kirkland's chances. There are several other candidates, however, throughout the county, and since the Board of Freeholders, of which Emmor K. Adams, another candidate for sheriff, is a member, recently gave the appointment as custodian of the new courthouse, at a salary of $3,500 a year, to William Hulskamper, of Elizabeth, it is believed that the convention nomination for sheriff may go to Rahway, Summit, which was promised it last year, or to Cranford, where Mr. Adams lives. In view of these circumstances, Mr. Swift may be induced to accept the Assembly nomination in the interests of the Kean faction in Elizabeth."

Miss J. Kissam, of St. Cloud, West Orange, returned today after a short visit with her sister, Mrs. M. C. Barkalew, of Duer street.

PULPIT SUPPLIES FOR FIRST BAPTIST

THOSE WHO WILL HAVE CHARGE DURING THE PASTOR'S VACATION.

Arrangements have been made by the officers of the First Baptist church for the vacation season of the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, who, with Mrs. Chambliss, will be away six weeks. Shott, (communion service, special evening service to be announced later); Sundays, August 13 and 20—Rev. Dr. James T. Dickinson, of Rochester, N. Y. Sunday, August 27—Rev. Hervey Wood, of New York. Sunday, September 3—Rev. George Francis.

THE PYROTECHNICS DID NOT MATERIALIZE

MISUNDERSTANDING DEPRIEVES THE LARGE CROWD OF ENJOYMENT.

Concert Park was again thronged with music lovers at the regular weekly concert given by Bandmaster LaVere, last night. The attendance was by far the largest that has turned out this season and showed its appreciation by very liberal encores to the various selections.

The fireworks which were to have been set off did not go up owing to some misunderstanding between the chairman of the Italian celebration committee and Mr. LaVere but arrangements have been made whereby a display will be set off at next week's concert.

William Redmond, who never fails to please with his vocal solos, was present and rendered several selections during the evening and received the usual enthuiastic encores.

Next week John S. Leick, the cornet soloist who was so favorably received last week, has been secured and will be one of the features at the concert. The week following "Billy" Murray will be the vocalist.

This has become a yearly outing for the freeholders since Justice Sutphen bought his summer home, and he always shows the "county fathers" a grand time.

HALL WANTS NO OFFICE

President of Republican Club Says He Has No Ax to Grind.

NAILS FAKE STORY

Organization Adopts Constitution—Executive Committee to be Chosen Next Week.

President Henry L. Hall, of the recently organized Plainfield Republican Club, took occasion at its meeting last night to emphatically deny the report that he is an aspirant for local councilmanic honors. In plain language that would allow no mistaken impression, he declared that he was not in the club for any personal gain and that he wished the fact understood by everyone.

"I would rather be president of this club," said Mr. Hall, "than be Mayor of Plainfield. There is no office in the gift of the people that I would accept, not this year at least. I might entertain a United States Senatorship, if one resigned between now and January 1, but that is another matter. I've had all I want of office, and anyone who says I am out for election to the City Council does so without authority from me."

The session of the club was brief, having been adjourned from Monday night. A revised constitution was adopted and action on the by-laws was deferred until the next meeting, to be held Wednesday night. At that time the executive committee will be elected and the enrollment of members will begin.

Enthusiasm in the club is steadily on the increase and it is the opinion of the officers that the membership will reach 500 before September. Great care is to be exercised in the selection of the executive committee, and it will be so arranged as to conduct an active campaign in every part of the city.

Double Birthday Party.

Miss Marguerite K. Barkalew, of 85 Duer street, gave a birthday party yesterday to a few of her little friends in honor of her eighth birthday. Her cousin, Roland Kissam, of Rutherford, N. J., whose birthday occurred last week, was observed at the same time. The afternoon was pleasantly spent on the lawn playing various games, including target shooting, for which prizes were awarded. Miss Mabel Douglass carried off the prize for girls, and Roland Kissam won the boys' prize. Late in the afternoon the little people were led to a pretty fern-decorated table on the lawn, laden with goodies. Conspicuous among them were two birthday cakes decorated with candles and flowers. The celebrants were recipients of many gifts.

Augustus Moore Dead.

Augustus Moore, eighty-eight years old, a life-long resident of Smalleytown, died last night at his home in that place. Mr. Moore was a farmer until eight years ago, when, on account of his advanced age, he sold his place to Irenus Allen, who transferred it to Frank Linke, of this city. Mr. Moore was a widower. Two children, Samuel Moore, of North Plainfield, and Elizabeth Moore, of Somerville, survive him. Mr. Moore was a staunch Democrat. The funeral will be held from his late residence at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. Interment will be at Mt. Bethel.

Would Like Ticket Returned.

Mrs. Frank Webster, of Duer street, wife of the well known conductor, left her handbag in the seat of the car she occupied on the First Baptist church excursion Thursday. It contained her ticket on the New Jersey Central, $5 in money and several of her cards. As the ticket cannot be used by anyone else, she is extremely anxious that this, at least, be returned.

NOT A FACTIONALIST

Judge Runyon Says That He Has Made No Pledges.

STATES HIS POSITION

Says He Hopes That There Will be Harmony for Many Years to Come — Praises Smith.

When shown an Elizabeth Times article referring to his candidacy meaning the ascendancy of Fowler and the downfall of Kean, Mr. Runyon said, this morning:

"The efforts of our Democratic friends to create discord this year are admirable for their persistency, and for nothing else. So far as I am concerned, I don't propose to stand as the candidate of any so-called faction, and the attempt to make it appear so is without the slightest basis in fact. I have not been asked to give a single pledge, and hope my friends know me well enough to believe that my sole aim, in the event of my selection this fall, would be to administer the duties of the office with strict impartiality and to represent the entire constituency—not a part thereof.

"The latest honor accorded Mr. Smith in his selection of chairman of the County Committee, a tribute well deserved, and for which I am heartily glad," said Mr. Runyon, "is the best evidence that Plainfield and Elizabeth are on cordial terms, and that there is no finish fight in progress for supremacy.

"Unity in sentiment and action alone," continued the Judge, "can maintain the county's Republican ascendency, and with the present spirit of co-operation and help, I am thoroughly in accord. I trust it will be many a long day before the present relations are disturbed, and I shall certainly do all I can to maintain them."

IN TOILS FOR BRUTAL TREATMENT OF HORSE

FELIX HAHR ARRESTED BY AN S. P. A. AGENT.

Felix Hahr, of the borough, was arrested yesterday by Agent William Pangborn, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, on a charge of abusing his horse. A hearing was set for 9 o'clock this morning before Justice Smalley, but was adjourned to Monday morning at the same hour, Hahr renewing his bail.

For a long time Hahr has been accostumed to keeping his horse out-of-doors near Smith's stone yard on Pearl street. The animal was compelled to lie down on a bed of sharp stones nearly a foot deep, subjecting him to all sorts of injury. Agent Pangborn has been investigating the case for some time and the cruelty to which Hahr subjected his horse finally prompted him to take action.

Arrangements have been made to send the horse to a farm over the mountains, where it is hoped that through proper care and treatment, he will recover. Hahr has not yet obtained counsel.

Fight Over Hotel Ownership.

Another round in the warmly contested Hotel Sterling at Trenton, litigation will be fought out at the State House, Trenton, August 1 at 10 a. m., when, under an order made yesterday by Vice Chancellor Bergen, the creditors and stockholders of the Fleming Hotel Company, which operated the hostelry when the receiver was appointed, must show cause why the receiver's sale of the hotel furnishings and lease should not be confirmed, and Charles J. Fury, of Somerville, the purchaser, put in possession.

Took in $74 at Band Concert.

The attendance on the stand last night at the public band concert netted to the fund $74.50. Mr. LaVere did not have a collection taken up as announced, and it may possibly not be done any time. The fireworks next week will be provided by Mr. LaVere himself, and because of the added attraction the entrance fee to the stand will be made fifteen cents. If the innovation proves popular it will be continued.

"JOHN PASCO" IS HELD

Lad Who Shot Fellow Workman in Neck Taken to Middlesex Jail.

USED ASSUMED NAME

Stepfather Refused to go His Bail—Hearing Before Justice Von-Minden.

Before Justice vonMinden in the Borough Council rooms, Dunellen, yesterday afternoon, John Sacuntine, otherwise known as "John Pasco," was given a hearing on a charge of assault in connection with the shooting of John Stillger, at the Dunellen brick yards Thursday afternoon. The Council rooms were filled to suffocation with interested spectators, many being foreign born. Neither side was represented by counsel, and the proceedings were short. Sacuntine was held for the September term of the Middlesex County Grand Jury and after the hearing was taken to New Brunswick by Constable Mohan. The prisoner's step-father, who was present, refused to furnish his bail, declaring that the boy had a bad temper and he thought a few weeks in the county jail would do him good.

Stillger was able to attend the hearing and after Justice vonMinden read the charge he was given an opportunity to tell his story. He said that each had been given a certain amount of work to do and he noticed Sacuntine was shirking. He spoke to him about it and received a sullen reply. This made him angry and he gave the lad a punch. Sacuntine then went to the barn, got his revolver, and soon afterward, without any warning, shot Stillger in the shoulder.

John Laird, another employe at the brick yard, who wrested the revolver out of the boy's hands, corroborated Stillger's story. Sacuntine was then asked whether he wanted to plead guilty or not guilty, but he could not comprehend the question and Justice vonMinden decided to hold him for the Grand Jury.

Afterward the lad's stepfather was asked whether he could furnish bail. He said that he could, but wouldn't. It was learned at the hearing that the boy had used his stepfather's name, John Pasco, when arrested, and that his real name was John Sacuntine, that being the name of his own father, who died some time ago. The stepfather admitted that the boy had always behaved himself, but added that during the past three years he had displayed an ugly temper.

OLD RAILROADERS ON THEIR ANNUAL OUTING

WELL-KNOWN PLAINFIELD "VETS" AMONG THE PARTICIPANT.

The Veteran Employes' Association of the Central Railroad is holding its annual clambake and outing at Pleasure Bay today. Over 150 men who have been in active railroad service for more than thirty-five years are participating. Among some of the oldest men who are in attendance are Philip Van Arsdale, of Somerville; Augustus P. Hetfield, of Plainfield, and Charles H. Schermerhorn, of Plainfield.

The two first mentioned are men who have grown up with the road from its infancy. Mr. Hetfield has in his possession the first time card issued by the New York and Long Branch road, some forty years ago. He is at present in active service and runs one of the Point Pleasant express trains over that part of the system. Mr. Van Arsdale is retired. Mr. Schermerhorn is seventy-six years old. He is manager of the Western Union telegraph office at the North Avenue station, which is conducted in connection with the railroad telegraph office. General Manager Besler, General Superintendent Huntington and other officials of the Central Railroad are also at the outing.

ELIZABETH DISPUTES OTHER TEAMS' CLAIMS

DENIS RIGHTS OF WESTFIELD OR PLAINFIELD TO CHAMPIONSHIP

The Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. team is growing anxious over the rivalry and series of games being played by Plainfield and Westfield for the county championship honors, and believes that it should be considered before the honors are awarded. This is the way the Elizabeth Journal describes the situation:

"The Plainfield and Westfield baseball teams have hung up signs along the highways of the country from the boughs of trees, and in the cities on every corner where baseball is talked, proclaiming it loud to the world that these nines are playing a series for the championship of Union county. Some wise fan has asked: 'Who gave them a license to play for the county championship?'

"Manager Denman may have championship timber, so may Manager Daab in his Hoboken nine, which is representing Plainfield this year, but there are other teams in the county that would like to have a look-in for a chance to play before the championship is arbitrarily advertised as the property of either one of two teams.

"The Y. M. C. A. team, of Elizabeth, ought to be in line for a county championship struggle, and as a matter of fact Manager Fredericks is willing to stack his combination up against either the Plainfield or Westfield teams. Mr. Fredericks thinks that the two teams down the line have been a little too previous in arrogating the championship honors to themselves.

"The Y. M. C. A. team has met but one defeat this season, and has played some of the best semi-professional teams in the country. That defeat was at the hands of the Stars in a mid-week game, when Waller pitched for the victors. Though the Y. M. C. A. team was the beaten nine, Waller was batted all over the lot that day; in fact, twice as hard as the Y. M. C. A. pitcher was batted. Waller does not look like a difficult proposition for the Elizabeth boys to solve.

"Since the Westfield and Plainfield teams have started out to play for the championship, however, let them keep the game up, and when they have decided which is the better, let a series be arranged with the Y. M. C. A. team here. Denman and Daab now have the floor."

RUSHMORE FOUND GUILTY

Fined $50 For Not Stopping His Auto When Signaled By Colored Coachman.

PAID UNDER PROTEST

Backed by the Automobile Club of America He Will Carry the Case to the Supreme Court.

For the first time in the history of the State, section 6 of the new automobile law, which declares that failure on the part of a chauffeur to stop his machine when signalled by the driver of a spirited horse constitutes a misdemeanor, was enforced at Scotch Plains last night, when S. W. Rushmore, of this city, proprietor of the Rushmore Dynamo Works, was fined $50 for the offense. The complaint was preferred by Charles R. Vincent, of Fanwood, and the hearing took place in Justice Clark's court room, crowded to the doors with interested spectators. Rushmore's counsel paid the fine under protest and gave notice that appeal would be taken immediately.

The trial was only the opening of what promises to become a famous case, as the Automobile Club of America is back of Rushmore and will no doubt carry the case to the highest court to test the new law.

The action of Harding & Co., counsel for the A. C. of A., who were looking out for Rushmore, showed that the fight is on to a finish. Every technical point was raised, the court's jurisdiction was questioned and the complaint was declared to be defective, inasmuch as the law says driving or riding a horse, while the plaintiff's testimony showed his team was standing in the gutter along the roadway. This, counsel claimed, would make the complaint null and void.

Recorder Clark overruled all objections and said he was satisfied the complaint was correctly drawn, and he would hear the case.

The only witnesses for the State were Vincent and his colored coachman, Edward Alexander. Mr. Vincent said he was not pushing the case for revenge, but that he wanted the court to understand that he was doing it for the sake of protecting the public in general from the abuses being heaped upon them by automobilists as a rule. That he is in earnest was shown by his interests being looked out for by L. D. H. Gilmour, counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Both Mr. Vincent and his coachman told practically the same story of being out driving with a fractious team on the morning of July 4. While driving on Mountain avenue, near Park, a leather shoe on one horse became loosened. The coachman alighted to tighten the shoe just as Rushmore's automobile loomed up in the distance. Mr. Vincent told his man to give the signal to stop, but the driver of the automobile paid no attention to him. Mr. Vincent did not know the driver, but caught the registry number as the machine flew past. He wrote the Secretary of State, and found the owner to be Mr. Rushmore. Both admitted that the horse had not been unmanageable while the automobile was passing, although very nervous.

When the State ended its testimony counsel for Rushmore again asked to have the case dismissed, claiming that no violation as charged had been proved. Whne this was refused by the court, he said that he and the defendant had decided to make no defense, but to challenge the jurisdiction and findings of the court. While the justice was summing up the case counsel for Rushmore, for some reason, changed his mind and wanted to put Mr. Rushmore on the stand. This was refusetd, as the court said they had failed to put in a defense at the proper time, and the case was closed, the findings of the court being that Rushmore broke section 6 of the automobile law and for this violation he was fined $50 and costs.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

The Union Market, 81 Somerset street, is the place to get the best cuts of meat.

F. G. Wikoff contracts to make awnings, carpets and his work gives entire satisfaction.

Motley & Sprague, the plumbers, will do your work right and the price will be right.

This is the time of year to build and Titus H. Laury is the man to do the work. Consult him.

Stafford, the printer, says he has the confidence of those who must have the best in printing.

The premier of low priced cigars is the Nickel Yara. Dobbins' trade getter. It compares favorably with many ten cent cigars.

If you cannot afford a new suit of clothes, consult Ike Richards, of Somerset street. He sells the best second-hand clothing.

The Belleview Nursery speaks for itself when you see it, and the innumerable artistically laid out lawns testify to their ability as landscape gardeners.

Send the sketches for your next piece of work in the wood turning line to John Herrman, the Somerset street mill man. All kinds of sash and blind work also.

The most popular ice cream parlor in the West End is that conducted by G. Mastondonato on Liberty street, between Third and Fourth streets. Soft drinks also.

L. Hoerster, 98 Somerset street, 'phone 401 L, the leading wholesale liquor dealer of the city. Trefz beer for the finest family trade. Also Robert Smith's Philadelphia ale.

The usual repugnance felt for the dentist will disappear when once you try D. G. Atwood. He is unequalled at crown and bridge work and the most important branch of all, cleaning.

H. Mehrten, the East Front street confectioner and ice cream man, has them all beaten on the "pure goods and low prices" proposition, as any of his numerous customers will tell you.

When in seach of first-class dry goods there is no better place to go than Levy Brothers' store on West Front street. The quality is the feature of these goods, while the prices are very low. The firm is also making a specialty of fine millinery of the latest styles.

Delicious ice cream soda at Kolb's Front street confectionery store. And when you get through with one of his sodas, take a look at the excellent assortment of fresh candies and bonbons on his counters. He makes them all on the premises. Fresh chocolates every day.

Headquarters in Plainfield for imported cigars is at J. P. Kirch's North avenue store, where all the latest and best smokers' articles are kept on hand in addition to the finest selection of superior cigars, such as the Regensburg goods, the Jules Verne and the Opia. One of the most popular cigars on the market is the Omar. Kirch has it.

The difficulty in shopping at Powlison & Jones is not what to choose, nor how much it will cost, but when to stop choosing. The goods shown at this mammoth furniture house are so uniformly excellent in quality, so generally tempting in price and so hard to duplicate at even the great department stores, that one is surprised at the metropolitan appearance of the place.

AMUSEMENTS.

A balloon ascension by a daring young aeronaut, and open air concerts by the Jerseyland Orchestra Band are some of the special features arranged for Sunday, July 23, by the management of Jerseyland Park. This should effectually disapprove the report that the park is about to close. On the contrary, the management say they are "here to stay," and hope by the continuance of proffering clean, up to date attractions to eventually receive the support of the best class of people of the vicinity.

Zimmerman Quits Grocery.

Henry B. Zimmerman, a former resident of his city, and who for the last few years has kept the general merchandise store, in which the postoffice is situated, at Martinville, has sold out the store business to William Way, a resident of that place. Mr. Way will take charge on Monday. James Beekman, who is postmaster, will have the postoffice in the same building.

PULPIT TALKS FOR SHUT-IN PLAINFIELDERS

No 6—The Divine Element in Human Life, By the Rev. Charles E. Herring, Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

"It was not you that sent me hither but God."—Genesis 45:8.

"Not you but God." God in His power, wisdom and love infallibly guiding you. Do you believe it?—believe it with all your mind and heart.

Joseph is not anxious for vengeance on his brethren, for his, and he conscious is that God's providence was in all this experience, for he said "God sent me hither to preserve life." Joseph's brethren could not have done a better thing had they planned it all in love.

After all these years of trial and experience Joseph said it was not you but God. The father's favoritism was not calculated to develop the best in Joseph, and very natural was it that the coat of many colors should not only have excited the envy of the brothers, but that it should have ministered to Joseph's conceit. At home, under the tender care of Jacob, the sterling virtues of Joseph's character would never have been developed. It required years of hardship to make a man of him.

God, then, is above all human actors.

If this difficult experience were not best for Joseph it would never have happened

God permits a man to pass through the valley of deep darkness when that experience is needful for him; and when David, in the 23d Psalm, speaks of that valley, he is thinking not of the last hours of a man's life, but of the dark hours that are often his as he passes through life. We all have to pass through such a valley. When David, in the 23d Psalm, Joseph passed through such a valley when he was forced from his father's home by his brethren.

He emerged from the valley when his wisdom won him an honored position in Potipher's houses, for Potipher was evidently a man of influence in Egypt.

But ten years of success were followed by three years in prison under a false charge. It was a dungeon, and at first his feet were bound with fetters.

If we must pass through such a valley, let us be conscious that God is not simply leading us into that valley, but through it. We shall emerge some day and be richer and happier for the experience.

Scripture says a great deal about waiting for God. We have learned what it is to wait on God, but it is a far more difficult thing to wait for God. In the 40th of Isaiah the American Revision translates they that wait for God instead of they that wait on God shall receive their strength.

The 33d Psalm says the eye of Jehovah is upon them that wait for him. The American Revision seems to have intensified the thought of waiting God's time.

So Joseph waited patiently, and in due time God elevated him.

The fact that Joseph was elevated and the brothers failed in their design did not relieve them of responsibility. They meant harm, but God did not permit any harm to come from it.

"no touch
of harm came, but all good, all happiness, not one faint fleck of failure."

Some one gives this illustration of how God turns harm into good.

A man in the woods fires a gun to kill his brother. He misses his brother, kills a panther instead, just at the moment the panther is springing at his brother. The brother's life is fortunately saved by the very bullet that was intended to kill him.

God used the selfish designs of Joseph's brethren to be his salvation and theirs. Yet the spirit of these men is the same.

Judas, far from defeating the plans of God, simply carried them out. Yet we may be sure that God judges a man not by what he accomplishes, but by his intentions.

Joseph needed all those years of experience to make him what God intended him to be His supremacy at home was too easy. He was visionary and self-conceited. He needed to come into closer touch with the world.

We are always better for our struggles and bitter experiences, and it is a mark of God's approval when he permits us to pass through them, for it indicates that there is some latent power within that needs to be cultivated.

Browning speaks of man as the clay upon the wheel of plastic circumstance, and God the potter.

The potter is shaping us.
"Earth changes, but thy soul and
God stand sure.
What entered into thee
That was, and is, and shall be."

But it takes the wheel of plastic circumstance to shape us.

God led Joseph into Egypt that the circumstances of that life might be used in his making.

We don't find in the history of Joseph that failure ever made him despondent. He fell, but always on his feet.

His brethren and the Midianites did not appreciate his value, but Potipher, the captain of the king's body guard, recognized the executive abilit yof Joseph and made him head of his household—a slave, yet a commander—That service would tell in future years.

In prison three years—fettered at first—he soon became the dominant spirit in the prison. Then he was not only prominent in the court of Pharaoh he was as a father to Pharaoh, a man whose natural endowment and experience made him wise in counsel, so that Pharaoh consulted him as a child would a parent.

Joseph had to travel a very devious path before he reached the goal God marked out for him.

He is his father's favorite. His brother's envy is excited. They leave him in a pit to die, then, by chance, a band of Midianites pass that way, and he is sold to them. In turn, he is sold to another company of merchants. Then he is sold to Potipher and made a servant in that family. Then he is falsely accused and cast into prison, where he remains three years.

Certainly no evidence in these circumstances that God is leading him. None of these men had any other than a selfish thought with reference to Joseph. The purpose of the merchants was simply a selfish one. They were simply serving their own selfish purposes, yet they were carrying out the plans of God. No matter how selfish men may be, they are God's instruments. In some way, in your life and mine, that is if we are God's servants, the plans of God are being realized.

If you are a child of God, every event in your life is bringing you nearer the goal God has planned for you. God's people were to be trained in Egypt, and the pit was the first step towards the realization of the plan.

The brothers of Joseph little thought when they placed him in the pit they were forging one of the links that would bind them to Joseph. The pit was the first step to the throne, the first step to his domination over them.

We speak of luck as favoring some men. Everything they touch turns into money.

Sometimes it does seem so. Yet the making of money is not the supreme goal of a Christian's life.

There is absolutely no luck in what is the supreme good for us. Providence, not luck, is shaping our lives. Perhaps He prevents our making too much money that we might be rich toward God.

When Joseph stood before his brethren and looked back upon his life, he said it was all good, and the brethren by their wickedness had not in the slightest hindered God's purpose.

Is it not an inspiration to know that what God has purposed for us shall be realized in God's time? And what we call failures in our lives are not really failures, but unrecognized blessings.

In every's man's life there are circumstances which he can control, and circumstances which he cannot control. He must be careful in marking the distinction.

A man may call certain things necessities, which merely evidence his lack of will.

Joseph preserved his incorruptibility even though his resistance meant prison for him. It might have been more politic for him not to have resisted. He might have said he was powerless in those circumstances. But no circumstances could force him to be impure.

Yet there were circumstances in his life over which he had no control, and to those he simply submitted. Resistance to his brethren was useless. Resistance to the Midianite merchantman was useless. He becomes a slave, and there is no help for it.

Providence does not do for a man what he can do for himself, but Providence does help His own in their helplessness. And as young as Joseph was he was sufficiently aware of this truth.

There are moments in our experience when we feel our powerlessness, then we submit, but not without the consciousness that God is all powerful, and that what he has planned will be realized. There is inspiration in this thought. You have had your dream, and you have been disillusioned. Submit graciously, let things take their course. You will be a prince when God realizes his plan, and you will then say it was not man, but God.

Joseph lost the blessings of home—and what a home he had. Think of the love of his father. But that loss was the making of Joseph; that experience developed his genius and made him a blessing to Egypt, and finally to his home and the world.

Shall I not then learn to pray? Lord, bless every loss to me that thou dost permit, that I may find through that loss something better and richer which I cannot lose.

Another victory for the locals today will please fandom.

Badgley has gone back to Hackettstown, where he will twirl for the team in that town.

"Red" Waller is no terror to the Daabsters. They can hit him as well as any other pitcher.

Rahway, together with other teams in the county, are rejoicing in Plainfield's first victory over Westfield.

Dalton, the new second baseman, will be missed today, but Turner should be able to cover the bag in his usual faultless manner.

It is reported here that Stallings, of the Elizabethport Stars, will play short stop for Westfield today, it being impossible for Manager Denman to get Eddie Daly.

Speaking of umpires, there are very few who can beat the work of the late "Wash" Berriman, who officiated for the Crescents. He gave such satisfaction that visiting teams scarcely ever had a kick, and yet he did not "roast" the home players.

It seems like old times to see "Tuck" Turner on the local team. Many fans remember his good work in 1898 with the old Crescents. At that time he was eighteen years old and was just coming into prominence as a player, Tom Keller having brought him out. "Tuck" looks about as young today and he has improved with age. It is a rare thing when he does not get a hit or a run.

Miss Tomkinson, from Maryland, is visiting at the home of her brother, C. C. Tomkinson, of Grove street.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Rowland, of West Fifth street, have returned from a visit with friends in Bound Brook.

Strength to the Daabsters today!

Won't you help the baby camp by sending to this office a contribution for the work?

The Bound Brook State-Centre refers to the voting machine as "that invention of the Republican and the devil." According to the returns of the last election, we suppose that the State-Centre would be justified in joining the Democratic party with the angels.

In another column is reproduced the story of a remarkable discovery made by the Elizabeth Times. It is nothing less than the declaration that the booms for Smith and Runyon mean the downfall of United States Senator John Kean. This will amuse the general public, but none will appreciate the humor of the tale more than the Senator and the two candidates mentioned.

"Men of advertising," said Professor Small, of Chicago University, in a recent address to the Agate Club, of Chicago, "may you succeed in making the average man consume as much as the average family, and may you put that man on the up grade to a higher quality of demand." And that is just what the advertising men are doing. A page might be filled with a list of products which are consumed in greater quantities by individuals today than they were by whole families comparatively a few years ago, because they have been persistently kept before the public. The only way the consumer can maintain a balance in the treasury nowadays is by cutting down his appropriations for unadvertised articles as his purchases of advertised articles increase.—Ex.

DEUEL READY FOR JURY.

Willing to be Investigated in "Fads and Fancies" Case.

Justice Joseph M. Deuel said yesterday that he does not think that he has been guilty of any wrongdoing in being interested in the Town Topics Publishing Company while occupying a position on the bench. Justice Deuel showed his displeasure at the unpleasant use of his name in connection with the "Fads and Fancies" case.

He spoke with some feeling when he declared that his relations with "Town Topics" were not in violation of the section of the law governing Justices of the Court of Special Sessions.

Women Bathe in Canal These Days.

The hot weather of the week has lined the shores of the river and canal from Sandy bottom to the Landing near New Brunswick with men and boys bathing morning, noon and night, and the relief thus obtained from the sweltering heat has been appreciated by hundreds. The men, however, have not been the only ones thus helped. For the last three nights scores of Hungarian women have been bathing in the river above the deep lock. Home made bathing suits were in fashion and in some instances even these were lacking.

Excursion Deficit $160.

The First Baptist church excursion to Asbury Park on Thursday was not the success that it was last year. This year the deficit amounted to $160. The recent extreme hot weather is believed to be the cause.

Public Service Wants Two Tracks.

The Public Service Corporation will soon ask the New Brunswick Board of Aldermen to lay a double track for its trolley line through Perth Amboy, according to reports. The rumor could not be confirmed in Perth Amboy Thursday although the corporation officials admitted that it would be a great benefit. It is understood that with double track at New Brunswick, the through cars from New York to Trenton could be run that way, saving eighteen miles.

GUNBOAT EXPLOSION; TWENTY-NINE KILLED

AND NINETY-EIGHT INJURED ON BOARD THE BENNINGTON.

San Diego, Cal., July 22.—Lieut. Newman K. Perry, twenty-eight sailors killed and ninety-eight were injured on board the United States gunboat Bennington when two of her boilers exploded in this harbor yesterday morning.

Fifteen more sailors who are missing were either blown to pieces or, forced to jump into the bay to escape the scalding steam, were drowned.

Of the 192 officers and men who were on board the gunboat, 141 were either killed or injured or are missing.

Seven bodies are penned behind the boilers and cannot be identified. The bulkhead is being cut away to recover them.

Some of the injured, deeply burned by steam, wounded by flying fragments of the ship or hurled high in the air by the explosion's frightful force, will die.

Of her fourteen officers who were on board the Bennington only Lieut. A. F. H. Yates and Ensign C. B. Wade escaped injury more or less serious. Commander Lucien Young, commanding the Bennington, and Passed Assitant Surgeon A. E. Eck were ashore when the shock of the explosion shook the city and rocked the vessels lying near the gunboat.

The Bennington, which cost about half a million dollars, is almost a total wreck. Sections of the upper deck from stem to stern were carried away, and aft a hole was blown in the warship's side through which the water poured in such volumes that she listed badly and was beached near Spreckel's wharf that she might not sink.

The first cause of the dual explosion is not known yet. At the moment they occurred the ship was getting up steam. One boiler that was riveted—a cylindrical one, 17 feet 9 inches long and 9 feet 9 inches in diameter—had been suspected of weakness for many months, but was reported O. K. after an inspection made a year ago.

The people of San Diego gave the promptest aid in the dreadful emergency. The injured sailormen, feebly struggling with death in another form in the waters of the bay, were promptly rescued. Everything afloat went to help them. It is doubtful if one was drowned. They were hurried to the hospitals, where their sufferings intense, in most cases, were quickly alleviated.

The Bennington, in appearance so combative and self-reliant, has attracted much attention since her arrival from Honolulu last Wednesday. At 10:55 a. m. hundreds of persons were watching her from the piers or small boats. She lay off the commercial wharf at H street. The men on board were going about their accustomed duties, most of them were between decks over the boilers when a great cloud of steam burst from the Bennington forward of her smokestack and half hidden by the steam, an inverted cone of human bodies, pieces of the ship's deck and superstructure arose one hundred feet, fell and were scattered over the waters.

An instant after the air was filled with shrieks and bellows of the wounded, plainly to be heard ashore.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

OFFICIAL.

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, July 6th, 1905, at 2:30 p. m.

The meeting was called to order by S. Rusling Ryno, clerk of the Board.

Roll call showed 19 members present.

The clerk stated that under the law it was his duty to make formal announcement of the death of Capt. J. Franklin Hubbard, which occurred on June 26th, 1905, and who, at the time of his death, was a member of this Board from the City of Plainfield, and was also the Director of the Board; a further requirement of the law made it necessary, at this time, to elect a Director for the unexpired term of the late Director Hubbard. The clerk then called for nominations for Director.

Freeholder Cady, in a brief speech, nominated Freeholder Benjamin King, which was seconded by Freeholder Swain. There were no other nominations. The clerk requested Freeholders Krause and Swain to act as tellers.

On motion it was resolved that the clerk cast the ballot, and the clerk thereupon cast the ballot for Benjamin King for Director for the unexpired term of the late Director Hubbard.

Director King was escorted to the chair by the tellers, and in a few remarks expressed his thanks for the honor conferred upon him, pledging his best efforts to follow in the footsteps of his predecessor in the office, and stating that none regretted more than he the circumstances that had rendered his election necessary.

The minutes of the meeting of June 1st, 1905, (reading of bills being omitted) and of special meeting of June 27, 1905, were, on motion, approved as read.

At this time Freeholder Cady was excused from further attendance at the meeting.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Andrew J. Gavett, Street Commissioner, Plainfield, N. J., as follows:

Plainfield, N. J., June 24, 1905.

Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, Elizabeth, N. J.

Gentlemen—I am directed by the Chairman of the Committee on Streets and Sewers to call your attention to the urgent need of largest inlets on the northeasterly side of your bridge over Cedar brook, at the crossing of East Seventh and Richmond Streets.

Mr. Wilson hopes that you will construct new inlets at this point and so prevent the backing up of water, which occurs during even moderate rains.

Signed, yous respectfully Andrew J. Gavett, Street Commissioner

Freeholder Westphal moved that the communication be received and referred to a special committee of three, which was so ordered.

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Westphal, Robison and Scudder.

From committee of Elizabethtown Chapter, Sons of American Revolution, as follows:

Gentlemen—The undersigned committee representing the Elizabethtown Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, has been directed to present to your honorable body a cannon which was captured by the American forces from the British at Stony Point during the Revolution, with the request that your Board cause the same to be placed on the lawn, or some other appropriate place, in front of the new Court House.

The cannon was cast in Stroudsburg, France in the year 1756, and was used by Montcalm in the defence of Quebec in 1759, and fell into the hands of the British and Americans on the surrender of the city by the French.

It is stated that the cannon was used by the British at Stony Point, where it was captured by the Americans under General Anthony Wayne and turned over to soldiers from Elizabethtown, and was brought here at the time or shortly afterwards.

The cannon was kept at the State Arsenal, in Trenton, for many years, but after the Civil War was turned over by the State authorities to the City of Elizabeth. The City Council had it placed upon a carriage and turned it over to the keeping of General Drake and his company, who recently asked said City Council to be relieved from the care of the said cannon in the future, and at the same meeting of the said City Council the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the cannon belonging to this city and cared for during the past three decades by General J. Madison Drake, commanding the Veteran Zouaves, and returned by him to the city, be turned over to the Elizabethtown Chapter, Sons of Amerisan Revolution, to be mounted on the lawn in front of the new Court House.

Hoping that your honorable body will give this matter your careful consideration, we, remain,

Signed—Geo. C. Tenney, Lovell H. Cass, Moses M. Crane, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Cladek received and referred to committee on Public Grounds and Buildings, with power.

From the Elizabeth Revue, as follows, viz:

Elizabeth, July 6, 1905.

To the Board of Freeholders, Committee for Publication.

Dear Gentlemen—We would like to inform you that the Elizabeth Revue, the only German paper in Elizabeth and vicinity, was issued August 1, 1904; it will be published one year till August 1, 1905. You have granted to the other papers in Elizabeth and Union county the sum of $125 for publications during the fiscal year.

Please inform us if we are in a position to receive a share of this, as the Elizabeth Revue being the only means of informing the German population of Union county of its county news.

Yours very truly, Elizabeth Revue.

Freeholder Swain moved that the communication be received, and that the Elizabeth Revue be authorized to publish the minutes, beginning not sooner than August 1st, 1905, and at the compensation of $125.00 per annum, which motion, on roll call, was unanimously adopted.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

By the Committee on Resolutions respecting the death of Director J. Franklin Hubbard:

At a regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county, held on Thursday, July 6th, to take action respecting the death of J. Frank Hubbard, the Director of the said Board,, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst our director and friend, J. Frank Hubbard, who for thirty-eight years had been an active member of the Board of Freeholders of Union County, and for eighteen years was the honored and esteemed director of our board, and during that interval by his sterling qualities as an honest, upright and trustworthy citizen of Union County, contributed more to the growth, progress and improvement of our county than any other citizen of the said county. It is but fitting that the members of this board do at this time record our expression of the high esteem and regard in which his faithful services and ability in discharging the duties of the position which he occupied for so many years, and to show our appreciation of the work accomplished by him for the benefit of our citizens during his long and upright public career, and further to express to his family our sincere sympathy with them in their loss; therefore be it

Resolved, That in contemplating the character, work and devotion to duty and accomplishment of the life work performed by the departed, we fully realize the loss that this board and the citizens of Union County have sustained, he having endeared himself by his merits to all those with whom he came in contact, and his life is worthy of imitation, and emulation and will prove a beacon light to guide others who will follow his footsteps.

Resolver, That we offer to the bereaved family out heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of affliction and sorrow, trusting that He who healeth all things will give them surcease from their sorrow in the contemplation of the fact that his life's work has been well done and that he has reparted from this earth to receive his reward in the land where there is no sorrow, nor pain. Let it be further

Resolved, That the Court House and the county offices be draped in mourning for thirty days as a token os respect to our deceased Director and an engrossed copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, recorded in full upon the minutes, and published in the official papers of the county.

Respectfully submitted—W. A. Westphal, Wm. Connoly, W. H. Swain, J. Robison, Noah Woodruff, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Cladek the foregoing preamble and resolutions were adopted unanimously.

By the committee on West End Avenue bridge, Plainfield, as follows:

July 6, 1905.

Gentlemen—Your committee on West End Avenue bridge, Plainfield, would respectfully report that they have examined the present structure, and find it inadequate to the location and for the travel, and would recommend the b uilding of a new iron deck bridge with a permanent flooring, at a cost not to exceed $7,500, one half of above total to be borne by Somerset county, and one half by Union county.

Signed—Respectfully, W. A. Westphal, J. J. Marsh, C. S. Chandler, M. M. Scudder, Committee.

Freeholder Krouse moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the committee on public grounds and buildings as follows:

Elizabeth, N. J., July 2d, 1905.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J.

Gentlemen—Your committee on public grounds and buildings to whom was referred the petition of the Charity Organization Society of Elizabeth, for the permanent use of a room in the new Court House building, would respectfully report that they have given the matter thorough and careful attention, and would say:

First, That at this time there is not a room available for the purpose petitioned for; in the second place it is the sense of your committee that the new court house is distinctively a county building, and should not be used by any societies or organizations that do not cover the entire county. The petition, as before stated, is from a local organization only, and your committee under the circumstances, does not feel that said petition should be granted.

On motion of Freeholder Wahl, received and placed on file.

By special committee on petition of "Progress Realty Co.," as follows:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—The undersigned committee appointed to investigate the complaint of the "Progress Realty Co.," respecting the location of the bridge on Wset Grand street, Elizabeth, in front of the property of the above namer Co. would respectfully report that we have inspected the premises, and from the information furnished us regarding the matter, we fail to find any good reason why this county should make any change in the location of said bridge.

Signed—Henry Krouse, W. A. Westphal, C. S. Chandler, Geo. B. Cladek, Noah Woodruff, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Kline, received and placed on file.

By the majority of special committee on Morris avenue bridge, Springfield and Union townships:

Gentlemen—We recommend the contruction of a new steel beam and concrete arch bridge, at a cost not to exceed $9,000.

Signed—Peter H. Meisel, W. W. Connoly, John F. Wahl, Committee.

Freeholder Swain moved that the report be laid over to the next meeting, and that meantime "The Morris County Traction Co.," be requested to state what proportion, if any, said Co. would agree to pay towards the construction of said new bridge.

Freeholder Woodruff then presented the following minority report on said bridge:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—We, the undersigned, beg leave to submit a minority report respecting the building of a new bridge over the river on Morris avenue, near Springfield; we have inspected said bridge and find the standing portion thereof to be in a good substantial condition, and it is in our opinion unwise to destroy the same, and believe that the present structure can be repaired at an expense not exceeding $3,000, and would so recommend.

Signed—Respectfully Submitted.

Freeholder Krouse moved that the foregoing report be laid over until the next meeting.

Freeholder Meisel moved to amend that the board as a committee of the whole, visit the bridge on Thursday, July 13th, at 3 p. m. and that the Traction Co. be duly notified of said meeting.

After some discussion, all motions and amendments were withdrawn.

REVISED SCHOOL LAWS.

New Edition of Acts Being Prepared for Distribution.

Under the direction of J. Brognard Betts, assistant State superintendent of public instruction, the State Board of Education is preparing to issue a new and revised edition of the school laws of New Jersey. The last edition was issued in 1903 and is now exhausted. Besides there have been so many changes in the school laws, a new edition has become a necessity.

The new issue will be based upon the old, but the school laws will be brought up to date. Every new act, supplement and amendment will be given in full, and all the repealed sections will be stricken out. An important portion of the book will be a section devoted to all court decisions relating to school matters that have been announced since 1903. Each section of the work will be annotated in a thorough manner.

As soon as issued the edition will be distributed among school superintendents, teachers and others interested in school matters.

Feminine Snapshots

Have You Ever Noticed the Smoker's Mouth?

It is said that the smoking habit is rapidly increasing among fashionable women. If so, this is sadly to be regretted, for then the feminine face, with its mobile features, will rapidly manifest the smoker's mouth. This smoker's mouth is undoubted and unmistakable among men who are slaves to pipe and cigar. The tobacco smoking habit among the masculine sex has increased so greatly of recent years that in some cases it is actually stewing men's brains and making them dopy, saying nothing of the dread disease of cancer that sometimes develops upon the tobacco smoking slave's tongue or mouth. I have been traveling on the New York city elevated trains now for a number of years, meanwhile keeping my eyes open. The intemperate smoking of tobacco has increased certainly 50 per cent among men within a few years, and it is imprinting upon the countenances of Americans the fixed smoker's mouth. It is not a beautiful mouth, nor does the odor the besoaked tobacco victim carries about him suggest roses. The man who puffs cigars constantly must carry the cigar between his lips. The lips are easily changed in shape. The side of the mouth on which the cigar is carried in time sags and gets out of shape, giving the smoker a soured, flabby expression—likewise a one sided face. Still worse it is when the weight of an old pipe, tugged at all day, must be borne by the mouth. If the pipe is carried in the center of the mouth after awhile the lower lip is permanently turned downward and outward, causing a different phase of deformity in the smoker's mouth. The lips are in every case discolored and stained a yellowish brown hue in place of the rich red of the untainted lips. With all my soul I hope, even for the sake of their looks alone, women will never get this uncomely smoker's mouth.

Note and bear in mind that Justice Brewer of the United States supreme court said lately in an address to the Vassar girls, "Who shall say that before gray hair shall come to your heads a woman like Queen Victoria shall not sit in the White House to glorify this nation as Victoria glorified England?"

Here is a question for women to settle: A man had been married thirty years and was the father of twelve children. His wife, the children's mother, was a weazened, spiteful, nagging little wasp of a woman who gave him no peace night or day. The only way he was able to live with her was to give her a sound beating when she became unendurably cantankerous; so he thought, so he did. After the thrashing she would cool down and be comparatively amiable for a longer or shorter period, when again the correction was necessary and was administered. By and by, however—and here the strange part of the story comes in—the man got religious and concluded it was sinful to beat his wife, so stopped it. Then the wasp of a woman became fairly fiendish in her ill temper and nagging—worse than ever before. The home was a true purgatory. The husband would have left his wife, but there were the twelve children. Now, what should that man do?

Two of the physically biggest members of the president's cabinet were recently temporarily quite broken down in health at the same time, and both were ordered to quit and take a long rest. Women are not physically strong enough for political duties!

The time is coming when, instead of any old kind of a girl being naturally expected to secure a husband and be "taken care of," the community will ask, What right has a girl without health, wealth, grit or learning or any ability even to take care of herself—a girl who is a thriftless, shiftless housekeeper besides—to marry at all and repeat herself in weakling children as deficient as she is?

Lately a young man tried to elope with his girl and be married in order to get away from the fuss and parade of a society wedding, but his mother found it out and stopped him. One's sympathies are altogether with the young man. A fashionable wedding these days is an ordeal compared with which the ancient trial by fire would be child's play.

A would be humorous writer asks why no woman can jump, sharpen a pencil, throw a ball, draw a cork or drive a nail. A woman can do all of these things as well as anybody if she takes the trouble to learn how to do them.

Many thousand years it has taken the race to find that neither for men nor for women, especially women, marriage the end all and be all of human existence.

ELIZA ARCHARD COX.....

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

"Well, dash your thievin' gang! We made our record for ourselves, anyhow. We didn't have to rely on any dashed deserters from the regulars—as you did."

And that was why Sergt. Sterne, of the Dudes, was sent for by the field officers of both regiments the following morning and bidden to explain, which he did in a few words. He was ready to answer that the wounded Corporal Norton was the very same young man he saw in the adjutant's office of the —teenth regulars at Camp Merritt, and was then called Morton. And that evening the veteran sergeant major of the —teenth was bidden to report at the reserve hospital in Ermita, close to the Malate line, was conducted to the bedside of a pallid young soldier whose ticket bore the name of Norton, and was asked to tell whether he had ever seen him before.

"I have, sir," said the veteran, sadly and gravely. "He is a deserter from the —teenth. His name on our rolls was Morton." And that night Col. Armstrong cabled to "Primate," New York, the single word "Found." Nor was it likely the lad would soon be lost again, for a sentry with fixed bayonet stood within ten feet of his bed with orders not to let him out of his sight a second.

Mrs. Garrison appeared at the hospital that very evening and heard of the episode, and reached Billy Gray's bedside looking harassed, even baggard. During the past three days she had been accorded admission, for Gray was so much improved there was no reason to longer forbid; but on each occasion the wounded volunteer officer and the brace of attendants present had precluded all possibility of confidential talk. She must bide her time. Gray would be up in a few days, said the doctor; and then nothing would do, said Mrs. Garrison, but he must be moved to their big, roomy, lovely house on the bay side, and be made strong and well again—made to give up those letters, too, thought she; for she had wormed it out of a bystander that a packet of some kind had been given by the dying soldier to the lieutenant, and she well knew what it must be. She had even penned him a little note, since not a whisper could be safely exchanged, and headed it: "Give this back to me the moment you have read it." In it she reminded him of his promise, and—did he need to be reminded of hers? She knew that packet of Nita's letters had been intrusted to his care. She assured him she had it straight from the surgeon who attended both Latrobe and himself, and they must reach the hands of no man on earth, but must come to her. Would he not give them at once or tell her where she could find them?

He gave back the note, but closed his eyes and turned away. In the presence of Armstrong day after day, and in the recollection of Latrobe's dying face and the last parting touch of his stricken hand, Gray's eyes were opening to his own deplorable weakness. She plainly saw her power was going, if not gone. He had wrapped a silk handkerchief about the packet and still kept it, with his watch and purse, beneath his pillow. He would not tell her where it lay. She smiled archly for the benefit of the attendant; but her eyes again eagerly claimed a look from his, her lips framed the word "to-morrow."

But neither on that morrow nor yet the next day came her opportunity. The gallant fellow who had lain there for days, dumb and patient, but a barrier to her plans, had taken a turn for the worse, and she was again denied admission. Then came the tidings that the barrier was removed, the long fight was over; and the heartless woman actually rejoiced. Now at last she could talk to Will Gray; and when midnight came she knew that now at last she must, for Frank Garrison, worn and weary, returning late from the front, briefly announced that Gen. Drayton purposed visiting the hospital the following afternoon, and long before noon—long before visiting hours, in fact, she was there with flowers as winsome as her smile, and some jelly as dainty as her own fair hands. She was there, and the instant the hour sounded was ushered in, and Billy Gray, propped on his pillows, was writing to his father, and alone. No time was to be lost. Any moment the attendant might return. She threw herself on her knees beside the homely, narrow cot, seized his hand in hers, and looked him in the face. "Where are they, Will?" she pleaded. "Quick! I must have them now!" But well she realized that the spell was broken—that the old fascination had died its death. Then it was useless to hint at love; and in a torrent of impassioned words she bade him think of all he owed her, appealed to his sense of gratitude and honor, and there, too, failed, for, admitting all she claimed, he clumsily, haltingly, yet honestly told her he saw now that it was all for an object, all done in the hope that he might become her instrument for the recovery of those compromising letters; and now the fate had delivered them into his hands he was bound by honor and his promise—unheard, unspoken perhaps, but all the same his promise—to the dead to give them to Gen. Drayton.

"Quick, I must have them now!"

Then rising in fury and denunciation, she played her last trump. Trembling from head to foot, pale with baffled purpose and with growing dread, she bent over him, both hands clinched.

"You mad fool!" she cried. "Do you know what I can do—will do—unless you give them to me here and now? As God hears me, Will Gray, I will give that other packet to Gen. Drayton myself and swear that Col. Canker was right—that you were the thief he thought you, and that I got those letters from you."

For a moment she stood there, menacing, at his bedside, looking down in almost malignant triumph on his amazed and incredulous face; and then, with an awful fear checking the beat of her heart and turning her veins to ice, she grasped at the flimsy framework that supported the netting over the cot, and stood swaying and staggering, her eyes fixed in terror on the man in the uniform of a colonel, who, quietly entering, stood between her and the door, two papers in his half-extended hand—a man whose voice, long and too well known, cut her to the very quick as she heard, in calm and measured tone, the words:

"Mrs. Garrison, here are two reasons why you will do nothing of the kind. Shall I hand these to Gen. Drayton—or to your husband?"

SEASONS ARE THE SAME

Prof. Willis L. Moore, Chief of the Weather Bureau, expresses the opinion that, contrary to the theories of many, there has been no radical alteration in the weather conditions of this country from the earliest periods of its history up to the present time. "That is to say," stated the Professor, "while there is reason to believe that, while one or even more seasons disclose ver ysensible differences with previous years, there has been no permanent variation of atmospheric conditions which would warrant the statement that the climate had undergone any alteration.

"Thomas Jefferson, writing in 1781, said: 'A change in climate is taking place very sensibly. Both heat and cold are becoming much more moderate within the memory of even the middle aged. Snows are less frequent and less deep. They do not often lie below the mountain more than one, two or three days, and very rarely a week. The snows are remembered to have been formerly frequent, deep and of long continuance. The elderly inform me that the earth used to be covered with snow about three months in every year.'

"But Jefferson and his neighbors were mistaken. Never during the period of authentic history has the snow covered the ground in Virginia (the State where Jefferson made his observations) for periods averaging taree montas per year for three years in succession. The old inhabitants of Jefferson's time were like those of today, they remember only the abnormalities of the climate of twenty-five or fifty years before, and, in comparing the usual conditions of long ago with the average of the present, were deceived. I have known intelligent and truthful men publicly to declare that they knew from personal recollection that the climate of their particular places of residence had changed since they were boys; that they had reliable landmarks to show that the streams were drying up; that the rain and snowfalls were becoming less frequent and that the winters were becoming milder and this, notwithstanding the fact that carefully taken observations of temperature and rain for each day for the previous hundred years showed no alteration of climate at such places. Of course, wide variations sometimes extending over periods of several years, had occurred, but a deficit at one time was made up by an excess at another.

"It is my personal belief that no sensible change has taken place in the climate conditions of any part of the world since the beginning of its history. Quite accurate records of the opening of navigation in the rivers of Europe and of the time of vintages for 500 years show no change in the average data of the first ten years as compared with the average of the last ten years, and the date palm, the vine, and the fig tree flourish as luxuriantly today in Palestine as they did in the days of Moses. Dried plants have been taken from the mummy cases of the Pharaohs exactly similar to those now flourishing upon the soil once the abiding places of those ancient monarchs.

"It was noted in this country some years ago, when the tide of foreign immigration was strong, that there were several years of rather more than average rainfall in regions that theretofore had had little precipitation. These two conditions were coincident by mere accident, but the observed fact probably gave rise to the theory that civilization brings an increase in precipitation. It was thought at the time referred to that the breaking of the virgin soil, making it more permeable, and thereby conserving the scant deposit of moisture, the planting of trees, and the propogation of vegetation by restricting the sun off and by drawing up the moisture from below the surface of the ground through roots; the enormous quantity of aqueous vapor injected into the air by the combustion incident to a teeming population, had all combined to increase the rainfall and to render the sub-arid plains more responsive to the labors of the husbandman.

"It is to be regretted that this beautiful theory cannot be supported by fact but a moment's thought will indicate to the physicist that the volume of super-incumbent air is so great and its capacity for retaining moisture so enormous that the additional vapor of water evaporated as I have indicated, and as sufficed for the theorists alluded to, great though it be, is ineffectual to change appreciably the amount of rainfall which nature beforehand had ordained should be precipitated. The size of continental areas, the topography of the land surface, the proximity of large bodies of water and the direction of the prevailing winds are all factors in determining the weather conditions of a region, and these, of course, are not subject to radical alterations in their nature, except, perhaps, in long geologic periods. Thus, if the Rocky Mountains could be lowered to the height of the Appalachian chain, the vapor-laden winds from the Pacific would be blown inland, and probably cause copious rainfall as far east as Colorado, Western Kansas and Western Nebraska. Such a contingency, however, is practically an impossibility. As it is, the world will, in all its parts, have to get along with the same sort of weather that was known to the first man therein."

BAD DAY FOR FAVORITES.

Form Was All Awry at Brighton Beach.

Racegoers found it difficult to pick winners yesterday at the Brighton Beach track. The form of the horses was all awry. Favorites ran so poorly in five races that they finished far back, and long shots cropped to the surface. The bookmakers reaped a harvest and made up for several recent losing days.

Alwin was the only first choice that was true to his backers. This colt, recently graduated from the maiden ranks, won the handicap at a mile and a furlong. He won the race in true thoroughbred style, rushing to the front at the start and making the pace a fast one for seven furlongs.

Geranium moved up and raced with him for the lead, and the two ran in company until well down the homestretch. The spurt left the others far in the rear. Alwin, although tired from his early pace making, had the most stamina, and in the last fifty yards he drew away from Geranium and beat her home by a length and a half.

RAILROAD FIREMAN DIVORCED.

Degree in Chancery for Mrs. Elizabeth Heilig.

Chancellor Magie has signed a final decree of divorce in favor of Elizabeth Heilig (nee Walz), a former resident of Newark, against her husband, William F. Heilig, a fireman on the Central Railroad, running between Jersey City and Dunellen.

The grounds of the divorce were desertion. Mr. Heilig in her declaration says she was married to the defendant at Newark, January 31, 1902. Immediately after the ceremony, she says, her husband requested her to stop with her aunt in New York for a couple of weeks, when he would send for her. She went to New York and he to Bayonne, where he had been boarding. When the two weeks were up and he failed to redeem his promise, the bride went to him, but he refused to have anything to do with her. She remained in Bayonne a few weeks, and then returned to her mother's home. In June of last year she instituted the suit for divorce.

GEOLOGIC EXHIBIT FOR HIGH SCHOOLS

THESE WILL SHOW FORMATIONS AND PROCESSES OF MANUFACTURING.

State Geologist Henry B. Kummel is preparing a set of exhibits to be given to the high schools of the State asking for them, which will present in a graphic manner New Jersey's geologic treasures. Each exposition will set forth the various rock formations, the valuable ores and minerals, and also the fossils marking the different geologic periods. They will be made up of between 250 and 300 specimens, which Professor Kummel has collected while engaged in his work as State geologist.

Professor Kummel yesterday described two of the exhibits as showing what the cloiection will be like. The zinc collection was one outlined. This contains fine specimens of zinc ore just as it is taken from the mines, and then there are samples from every stage of the crushing and separating processes by which the pure zinc is segregated from the foreign and waste products.

The method of manufacturing Portland cement will also be shown. Starting with pieces of the natural rock, as it comes from the quarry, specimens will be included from every stage of cement making. The collection of samples will be made up of crushed and ground rock, known as "chalk," pieces of "clinker" or the raw materials after burning, and finally the completed cement.

The collection will be distributed to the high schools of the State as far as they will go, on the basis of first come first served. Each school securing one will be expected to pay the cost of packing and shipping.

ELECTION LAW CHANGES

State Preparing Summary of Acts With Last Legislature's Amendments.

SOME ARE IMPORTANT

How Elections Are Called—The Primaries—Fines and Penalities Prescribed.

Several changes were made in the election laws of the State by the last Legislature and the departments of the Attorney General and Secretary of State are preparing to issue a book giving the laws complete as they are now on the statute books. A summary of the new laws and amendments adopted last winter is as follows:

Chapter 1, approved January 20, provides that when writs of election are issued by the Senate or Assembly for the purpose of filling vacancies in the Legislature the political parties of the county in which the vacancy occurs may nominate candidates in such manner as provided by the county committee of the respective political parties.

Chapter 2, approved January 25. Providing for elections to fill vacancies in the Legislature. Advertising the writ of election in at least four newspapers in the county affected constitutes sufficient notice of the election. The nominations must be duly certified to the county clerk. The boards of registration are to sit regularly the Friday preceding the election, from 1 to 8 p. m. Official ballots are to be used, due certificates of election issued and the total compensation of the members of the election boards is fixed at $10 each.

Chapter 3, approved February 15. Act abolishing spring elections in townships and boroughs and combining them with the general election in November. Affects all officers except members of school boards or school trustees. Under the provisions of this law the terms of office of all officers, except justices of the peace, hereafter elected in any township or borough shall commence at noon on January 1 succeeding their election, and continue for the respective terms already fixed by law. This law will make it necessary to nominate and elect November 7 all the officers in the townships and boroughs that would have been elected last spring under the old law.

Chapter 117, approved April 6. Amends section 6 of the general election law, revision of 1898, provides that political parties may adopt resolutions declaring for the election of members of county, city or other municipal committees at the regular primary election, which will be held this year September 5. After adopting the resolution the party must file a copy, signed by the chairman and secretary, with the clerk of the municipality affected, and it shall be lawful thereafter to elect the committee at the primary election in the manner provided for the selection of party candidates to be voted for in a single ward or township.

Chapter 118, approved April 6. Providing a penalty in cases where election officers are guilty of neglect of duty. Any public officer or election officer upon whom a duty is imposed by the election laws of the State, who refuses or willfully neglects or willfully fails to perfrom such duty, or who wilfully performs it contrary to law, shall for each offence, if no other penalty is imposed by the general election act, be punished by a $500 fine or imprisonment for three years, or both.

This act makes a further penalty of $500 fine or imprisonment for three years, or both, for each offense in illegal registering, or voting, or hindering a legal voter from voting, or aiding or abetting in any of those offences. The same penalty is applied for tampering with or injuring any ballot box or voting machine. This law was the result of the trouble at New Brunswick election day last November, when the election board in one district refused to permit a large number of Rutgers students to vote.

OBITUARY.

During the year past sixteen cases of scarlet fever, seven of typhoid and twelve of diphtheria were reported, only two deaths resulting—both from typhoid. At present there are no contagious diseases, and the general condition of the town is good.

CLINICS ATTRACT THE JERSEY DENTISTS

THIS YEAR'S CONVENTION MORE SUCCESSFUL THAN EVER BEFORE.

Asbury Park, July 22—The New Jersey State Dental Society yesterday morning devoted all its time to clinical work of an unusually interesting character. The exhibit and operating rooms were crowded to suffocation, and several subjects were submitted to the strain of close quarters, with each surrounded by a group of deeply observant dental surgeons. The demonstrations pertained to many new fields of surgery and were followed by a new series in the afternoon.

Dr. Charles A. Meeker, of Newark, the general secretary, read his report of the State Board of Registration and Examination in Dentistry. The report dealt exclusively with the efforts of the board to obtain a complete registration of the licensed dentists of the State. It also referred to the campaign inaugurated by the society against illegal practitioners. These are being rounded up with commendable diligence. Several cases were effectively prosecuted during the year, and others are being formulated for suit. The report sets forth that there is every hope of an interstate license law, which will materially aid the profession.

The report of the treasurer, Dr. Henry A. Hull, showed receipts of $1,863.65; balance July, 1904, $825.77; expenditures, $1,457.07; balance on hand, $1,232.35. The treasurer said that the present convention was most successful for clinical work, exhibits and atendance, of any in the history of the society.

FIRE EXTINGUISHER.

Minimax Chemical Fire Extinguisher Given Public Test.

Before a crowd of over a hundred interested spectators, the Minimax chemical fire extinguisher was tested last night in a most effective manner at Concert Park. The exhibition was carried on just before the band concert, and in full view of the grandstand.

A shed of inflammable wood had been erected near the pond, and in this were placed laths saturated with kerosene. The entire structure was subsequently soaked in oil, and a flaming rag thrown into the midst. Before the crowd was expecting a conflagration, it was driven back by the heat of the burning oil. As soon as the flames had caught the wood, R. A. Alland, of Sterling, the general agent for the Minimax Company, applied a stream from the extinguisher and the effect was really remarkable.

The flames seemed to be eaten up by the strong chemical which was thrown a distance of about thirty feet. The experiment was twice repeated until it was impossible to relight the charred wood. Messrs. Alland and Clark, who gave the demonstration, were applauded by an enthusiastic crowd. Mr. Alland made a brief explanation of the Minimax extinguisher and circulars descriptive of the fire-fighter were distributed. T. O. Doane, Jr., will be the local agent for the Minimax Company. The extinguisher, which weighs when full, about eighteen pounds, can be operated with one hand by anyone. It requires but the pressure of a release valve at the end of the extinguisher to start the stream. It may be instantly checked by turning a nozzle at the other end. The form of the chemical holder is that of a cone, and it is easily carried or hung upon the wall. It is claimed that fire of any description can be extinguished by the Minimax, including burning motor cars, fires of tar, oil, varnsh, paint, turpentnie, cotton wool, and all inflammable liquids or solids.

CRASHED INTO BUILDING.

Natural Ice Co. Team Badly Damages Meyer's Watchung Grocery.

A team of horses attached to a heavy ice wagon belonging to the National Ice Company, crashed into the side of the building at Watchung occupied by Charles Meyer's grocery, a few days ago, causing a large amount of damage. The animals had been left on the side of the hill leading to the store and were without bridles, having just been fed.

They became frightened at something and started off at break-neck speed. They could not make the turn at Meyer's place and the pole of the wagon went through the side of the building. The goods on the shelves were knocked down and general havoc was wrought. Had the wagon been loaded there is no doubt but what it would have demolished the whole side of the structure.

There are a number of local politicians who are not convinced that the leaders of the machine in this city seriously intend to lend their support to the candidacy of Judge W. N. Runyon for Senator. They say that they only now endorse Judge Runyon's candidacy for temporary reasons, and only await an opportunity to throw their influence to some other candidate when he will loom up.

INDEPENDENT DEMOCRAT.

New Market School Matter.

Editor Daily Press:

The report on the school matter in your publication is a trifle one-sided. An election was held and an appropriation voted and carried by a large majority to erect a school house in this place, and although personally opposed to the amount, as a taxpayer I cheerfully yield to the majority. The criticism of your informant on the women voting is unmanly. They had a perfect legal right to do so; and I challenge your informant to name one single instance where a vote by women was illegaly cast. Because they voted (as presumed) in favor of a $20,000 proposition, what of it? The ballots could not contain and they could not vote for two propositions at the same time. The election has been held and there can be no earthly reason why the matter could not have been settled long ago. If any ballots are illegal, why not count the balance? Why cannot the attorney general's decision be arrived at? Is it not a fact that this matter is held up for some ulterior purpose, either at New Brunswick or Trenton? If the Board of Education had not proved their inefficiency, no such procrastination would have occurred, and it strikes me the wisest course for them to pursue would be to resign in a body.

PLAINFIELD WON IN THE TWELFTH AFTER A SCRAP

Lively Dispute in the Seventh over Umpire's Decision Nearly Ends Game.

SCORE FIVE TO FOUR

Chief Kiely and Detail of Police Kept Busy—Randolph Perkins as a Peacemaker—Kiernan's Timely Hit.

In a twelve inning contest bitterly fought from the time play was called until "Happy" Tiernan brought "Jack" O'Neill home in the last inning with the winning run by his timely hit over second base, Plainfield defeated Westfield in the second of the county championship series on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon by a score of 5 to 4. In many respects it was the greatest contest ever witnessed in this city, the rivalry reaching fever heat and several times threatening trouble among the players and spectators. Frequently the police were obliged to clear the diamond and separate those who wanted to fight. Every questionable decision was the cause for dispute, and the contest was fought inch by inch by the hardest kind of effor.

The climax was reached in the eleventh inning and the abrupt termination of the game threatened. Stallings was at the bat. He had two strikes on him and the next ball pitched by Deegan was a trifle low, but Stallings struck at it. It passed O'Neill, and some say it was a foul tip. Umpire Merity declared it to be a dead ball and called the batsman back. He continued running and reached third base, as O'Neill did not attempt to throw him out at second, understanding that he had been called back. Westfield contended that it was a passed ball on third strike, and after wasting twenty-five minutes arguing the matter it was settled by Stallings being given another time at the bat. Randolph Perkins was largely instrumental in adjusting the matter. Some were willing that Stallings should go back to first. Manager Denman was entirely opposed to the decision and neither he nor the Westfield team would have continued had their opinion prevailed. Manager Daab was willing to stand by the umpire's decision. During the dispute the police, headed by Chief Kiely, were kept busy quieting the players and spectators, as some of the latter were spoiling for a fight.

The locals were hardly up to their usual form, and some tarnished fielding allowed runs. Cosgrave tried to cover too much territory and he had two errors that were costly. One fly could easily have been caught by Connolly, but "Wally" was too anxious. In hitting, the home team excelled, Waller being pounded for fourteen bingles, including a home run and a three bagger by Brogan and three timers by Connolly and Leonard. Cregan lead in hitting with three singles. Honors were about even between Beck and Waller, the former being touched for nine hits in nine innings, while the locals swatted "Red" for ten in the same number of innings. Manager Daab wisely replaced Beck by Deegan in the tenth inning, and he held his opponents safe, while the Daabsters made four hits during the remainder of the game. A feature was the brilliant work of Brogan, who covered second bag. In the sixth inning he made a home run and tried to repeat the performance in the tenth. He had a chance of reaching home, but the quick return ot the ball by Bertwhistle and Barry to Cotter nipped the player at the plate. The work of the youngster brought the rooters to their feet and they yelled themselves hoarse. "Mike" Leonard also distinguished himself by a three bagger,

PURE CHRISTIANITY A PASTOR'S THEME

REV. MR. HERRING DWELLS ON "THE QUEEN OF HEAVEN."

"The Queen of Heaven" was the subject of the sermon by Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, in that edifice last night. His text was: "The children gather wood; and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead their dough, to make cakes to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink offerings unto other gods, that they may provoke me to anger," Jeremiah VII—18.

This worship of the Queen of Heaven originated long before Christianity, he said. The Israelites thought it brought them prosperity and even today it seems a beautiful faith but it is a pagan institution and not in accordance with the teachings of the Bible, declared Mr. Herring. In Naples some years ago an image of worship called the "Black Madonna" fell into the possession of thieves and the money into the hands of the thieves believing in the magical powers of the image.

The teaching of the Russian church, said he, is causing the nation's destruction today. They, also, believe in the power of magic. Different nations believing in the Queen of Heaven celebrate the feast under different names, such as "Healing Lady" and "Our Lady of Mount Carmel." The Mary of these feasts is not, however, the Mary of the Gospel, he declared.

Where the crown, he said, has been taken from the brow of Christ and placed on the creature, blight and destruction have followed; as in the case of Spain, Portugal, Austria and France.

Rev. Herring concluded by saying: "Oh! that we might have unity, but we are still protestants, we believe in crowning the Lord Jesus Christ Lord of all."

SUNDAY AT NETHERWOOD HOME

Services at the Fresh-Air Camp Led by G. A. Chapman.

There was another large attendance at the services of the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp yesterday afternoon. George A. Chapman, of the First Baptist church, conducted the programme. Scripture reading and prayer by G. A. Chapman was followed by a solo by Miss Harris, soprano of the choir in the First Baptist church.

The speaker of the afternoon, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, told the children the story of Jonathan and David in a most simple manner, drawing from it lessons regarding the camp, its workers and the children. Another solo was sung by Miss Harris, and a benediction by Dr. Chambliss brought the services to a close.

Miss Harris acted as accompanist on the organ to all the vocal music, and De Witt Frazee was the cornetist.

MARRIAGE A SECRET FOR OVER A YEAR

SOUTH PLAINFIELD WOMAN WEDDED TO T. W. SISTY, OF ROSELLE.

Although the ceremony was performed over a year ago, Miss Laura Amelia Manning, of South Plainfield, did not announce to her mother that she is a married woman until yesterday. The fact that she and Tunis Walter Sisty, of Roselle, had been very much devoted to each other occasioned no surprise, for, in the language of the villagers, they had "kept company" for ten grand, sweet years. Sisty is employed on the Rahway Valley Railroad, and when off duty spent his time at South Plainfield pursuing his courtship.

Last summer Miss Manning went to the mountains for a vacation, and while away she and Mr. Sisty determined that they would become man and wife. Accordingly, they visited a village parson and he lost no time in tying the knot. William B. Manning, the bride's father, was seriously ill at the time and fact was kept from him. The sick man was much devoted to his daughter and it is said that he wished her to remain single so that they could be near each other. On Mr. Manning's death the secret was still maintained, and not until yesterday was Mrs. Manning told by her daughter that she had become Mrs. Sisty.

Mr. and Mrs. Sisty will reside in Roselle. The groom is employed on the construction trains between Kenilworth and Greenville on the Rahway Valley road.

SENATOR KEAN'S NAME ON TOWN TOPICS' LIST

HE DECLINES TO DISCUSS THE SUBJECT—SENATOR DRYDEN ALSO NAMED.

United States Senator John Kean, who is named in the list of subscribers to the alleged blackmailing publication in New York city as a subscriber, at the cost of $1,500, with Senator John F. Dryden and over sixty other millionaires, was asked at Elizabeth Saturday if he had subscribed to the publication, which he practically admitted.

A reporter interviewed him at his home in Ursino Saturday and asked him whether he was a subscriber, and whether he was victimized by the concern, to which he replied:

"I can not yet tell whether I am a victim of that thing or not."

"Under what circumstances were you approached by the representative of the 'Fads and Fancies' magazine?" asked the reporter.

"Well, that is something I do not care to talk about at this time," and the interview was closed.

Senator Dryden's representative said that the subscription was probably one of a number which the Senator had given, when a book of exceptional printing and binding, as this was to be, was offered. The amount reported was the regular price. There certainly was no blackmail.

WESTFIELD WORKMAN HURT.

Struck on Head by Piece of Iron That Fell from Moving Crane.

John Basut, aged thirty-five years, whose home is in Central avenue, Westfield, and who is employed at the car barns of the trolley company at Rahway Junction, was seriously injured by the falling of a big piece of iron from a moving crane while at work Saturday afternoon.

The iron hit Basut on the head, inflicting a deep scalp wound, which required six stitches to bring together.

An Explanation.

Assigned to cover a baseball game one day last week, a reporter temporarily engaged on this paper, decided to take a swim instead. At midnight he thought of his uncovered assignment and learning that the official score book was on a desk in the Courier-News office he entered that place through a rear window. He got the book and when the fact of his conduct had been brought to this office he got his week's salary. The young man is no longer connected with this paper in any way.

GLENNEY IS DEFEATED

Loses to Dudley H. Barrows in Play For Golf Championship of Country Club.

WINNER IN GOOD FORM

E. B. Shoemaker Takes First Honors in Golf Committee Competition—Other Results Saturday.

To the surprise of many of his friends, W. L. Glenney was defeated on Saturday for the golf championship at the Plainfield Country Club, Dudley H. Barrows winning by 5 up and 3 to play. While Glenney was hardly up to his usual form, Barrows played a strong game and held his lead throughout, much to the pleasure and satisfaction of his admirers. Barrows will now hold the honors until next year, when he will have to defend them in play again. During the past year he has improved very much in his game and he bids fair to reach a place of prominence both here and in some of the more important matches.

In the weekly play for the golf committee cup E. B. Shoemaker took the first three points with a net score of 75. W. D. Riggs finished second with 78, while H. R. Stockton, E. A. Cruikshank and Earl Stockton, returning a score of 80 each, receive a third of a point. The leading scores were as follows:

E. B. Shoemaker, 76, 1—75; W. D. Riggs, 96, 18—78; H. R. Stockton, 87, 7—80; E. A. Cruikshank, 95, 15—80; Earl Stockton, 91, 11—80; G. M. Furman, 89, 7—82; W. L. Glenney, 80, plus 2—82; H. D. Hibbard, 88, 5—83; C. B. Morgan, 87, 2—85; A. T. N. Streuli, 111, 25—86; J. P. Murray, 105, 13—92.

The only event at the Park Golf Club on Saturday was the weekly competition for the president's and Park Golf Club trophies. Alexander Gilbert and J. L. Watson finished first and second, while there were three players, R. B. Carroll, Reuben Knox and L. R. Thurlow, tied for the remaining point. For the scratch cup, R. B. Carroll won first honors, while Mr. Gilbert finished second and Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, third. The best scores:

Alexander Gilbert, 100, 18—82; John L. Watson, 103, 20—83; Raymond B. Carroll, 85, 0—85; Reuben Knox, 106, 21—85; Leon R. Thurlow, 103, 18—85; Rev. Dr. H. K. Caroll, 101, 6—95.

Decisive contests in many events were played at Cranford Saturday. The survivors of the preliminary medal play contest, at twelve holes for the H. P. Woods prize, were the former winners, Miss Polly Weathers and Mrs. A. Madden. Mrs. E. Hicks with the aggregate of 114 for the four contests, each of eighteen holes won the prize presented by Frank Bonner. In the men's contest in Class A, J. C. Edgecombe won the last of eight handicaps for the president's cup, the gift of Cyrus T. Wood, and won the prize through having the best aggregate net score in all the events. A. Edgecombe was second.

The Class B prize, given by William Sperry, under the same conditions, was won by Sidney Smith, of Bayonne.

George H. Dunham, of the firm of Lesher, Whitman & Co., New York, died at his home, 19 West 81st street, New York, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, of Bright's disease. Mr. Dunham was born at Piscataway, June 9, 1834, and was the son of George W. Dunham and Phebe Vail. He spent his boyhood days at home and on May 1, 1849, he went to New York and entered the dry goods house of William E. Lawrence, at Bleecker and Barrow streets. He remained there until February 2, 1855, when he secured a position as bookkeeper with Lesher, Whitman & Co., and later became a member of the firm, and remained so until his death, a period of fifty years. In September, 1857, he married Eliza Dyer, daughter of Charles C. Dyer, who survives him, with six children, one daughter, Mrs. W. W. Kelchner and one granddaughter, Miss Georgia Dunham Kelchner.

Mr. Dunham was a member of Republic Lodge, No. 690, F. & A. M., the Union League Club and the New York Athletic Club, all of New York. On the celebration of his last birthday anniversary Mr. Dunham entertained his children, grandchildren and other relatives and at each plate was found a $100 bill as a present.

Carmel. The home was profusely decorated with palms and flowers. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, formerly pastor of the First M. E. church, of this city, but now of the M. WOMAN BADLY HURT IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

BOW-WOW MAN QUITS FOR PRIVATE LIFE

PIERRE MOORE FINDS CARE OF OFFICE TOO MUCH FOR HIM.

After two weeks in office, Pierre Moore, Plainfield's recently appointed dog catcher, has reached the conclusion that the job is not all it was cracked up to be and has tendered his resignation. His act is not due to the lack of stray bow-wows but because of his stopping the chase long enough to reckon on the financial side of the game and learning that he would have to float bonds in order to keep up his credit. Instead of making money out of the office it has been an expense to him and beside, so he says, he has made an enemy out of the owner of every dog he captured.

When Moore quit the job today and went back to private life to become a painter, his book showed the following: Receipts—For catching eight dogs, $2; expenditures—For building shed to house captured canines, $2.50; for carting dogs to said shed, $1 deficit, $1. The city dogs can now breathe easy until another catcher is appointed but from Moore's experience candidates are not expected to be numerous.

SEA GIRT OPEN DATES.

List for the Benefit of Company Commanders.

Company commandants of the Second Regiment are endeavoring to get a good showing of their outfits on the State rifle range and some of the captains are sending out postals to their men informing them of the open dates.

The dates open at the range are July 29, August 5, 12, 19, 21, 22 and 23. On these days the soldiers under command of an officer may go on the ranges.

It is desired by the board of officers that at least sixty-five per cent. of the regiment get to Sea Girt for practice.

The Second is especially anxious to make a good showing and those who have already shot have made good scores.

Those who have not yet been at the shore will probably take advantage of the open dates.

Good Fishing Yesterday.

W. R. Stanbery's Touring Car Crashes into Wagon Injuring Three.

PARTY THROWN OUT

Mrs. W. A. Westphal Confined to Her Home With Broken Ribs and Possible Internal Injuries —The Horse Killed.

Three persons hurt, one of them seriously, a horse killed, a wagon smashed and an automobile badly damaged is the result of a collision between William R. Stanbery's big Rambler touring car and a rig driven by Oscar Harris, of Rock avenue, at Jefferson avenue and West Front street at 9 o'clock last night. Mrs. William A. Westphal, of the Jackson building, fared the worst and her condition is such today that no one has been allowed to see her. She has four broken ribs, a disiocated thumb and possible internal injuries, the outcome of which cannot be determined at present. Stanbery, who was operating the car, and Walter Vail, of Duer street, were badly cut and mruised, and the latter is confined to the house. Miss Ada Westphal, Mrs. Westphal's sixteen-year-old daughter, was the only one of the machine occupants to escape, though at the time she was rendered unconscious by the force of the collision.

The accident occurred just over the city line in Dunellen, and the authorities of the latter place arrested both Stanbery and Harris. They were taken before Justice Campbell and a hearing was set for Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Stanbery was compelled to leave his machine as security for his appearance, but Harris was released in his own recognizance.

Responsibility for the collision will probably not be fixed until after the court proceedings, as the accounts of the participants differ. According to disinterested witnesses, it was a case of the chauffeur not seeing the horse and wagon until too late. Stanbery was going West on Front street behind a trolley car proceeding in the same direction. At Jefferson avenue the railway tracks swerve from the right hand side of the road to the extreme left, and it was just at this point that the accident took place.

Harris was driving toward this city and started to cross the tracks before the car swung over. Stanbery, directly behind it, attempted to do the same thing, turning to the left and putting on extra speed to get ahead. This placed him on the wrong side of the road, but there was little else to do, because of the car. He was unaware of Harris' approach until directly upon him.

The automobile crashed into the horse with terrific force, breaking its legs and crushing in its ribs. Mrs. Westphal was on the front seat of the machine, and the animal's head struck her in the side, throwing her high in the air. She went directly over the heads of her daughter and Vail in the rear seats and land in the roadway five yards back. Though rendered helpless, she retained consciousness, and by her cries directed witnesses to her. Stanbery was also thrown out, but quickly regained his feet. Miss Westphal and Vail were thrown against the rear of the seat, but because of a high back did not fall out. The former was jarred so heavily that she became unconscious, but remained so only a few minutes.

Mrs. Westphal was taken to the office of Dr. Thomas Platt at Dunellen, and his examination showed her to be in a serious condition. He advised her removal to Muhlenberg Hospital, but she insisted on going home after her injuries had been temporarily treated. The cuts of the other occupants were dressed, and they also went home.

Harris was thrown from his wagon when the crash came, and though he fell among the wreckage, he was unharmed. The vehicle was made a wreck and the auto was put out of commission. The horse was not killed outright, but it was shot shortly after the collision by a trolley car conductor.

Stanbery has been an auto owner for several years and has had the reputation of being a careless operator. He has had numerous accidents, but none of them until the present time of a serious character. The machine in last night's collision was recently purchased by him and is of the double seated touring car type.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Dunellen gave the Imperial A. C., of Elizabeth, a coat of whitewash at Saturday's game, the score being 8 to 0. Smith's masterly twirling was largely responsible for the decisive victory of the locals. The Dunellenites hit the opposing pitcher almost at will and many of them took the chance to fatten up their batting averages, Conway pulling off three hits himself. The Imperials were the same team that pley the locals in the 2 to 2 game on the afternoon of Independence Day.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The threatening weather yesterday could not mar the pleasure or dampen the ardor at "The Old Guards'" outing and clam bake held on the Webster farm, near Glenside. The bake was in charge of an expert in catering to the desires of the "inner man" and everyone voted the feast a treat fit for an epicure. While the bake was being prepared liquid refreshments were indulged in and tales told of great battles of the past on the baseball diamond. It is said Charley Denman and others of the Westfield cranks even went so far as to tell of the futuree and how Westfield would take the other eight games of the series with "The Daabsters." As this was considered only a vague and shadowy dream of Charley's, the question did not raise much discussion or interfere with the day's pleasure.

"Lefty" Davis, who pitched the local team to victory during the last two seasons of its existence, is pitching great ball for the Morristown-Chatham team, of the Lackawanna League. Saturday afternoon he did the trick of shutting out the heavy hitting Irvington team.

Mrs. J. E. Skiff, of Grove street, is entertaining her sister, Miss Ella M. Sanford, of Waterbury, Conn.

Charles Layton, of this city, left today for Lake Hopatcong, where he will spend the rest of the summer.

Mrs. John Cashman, Jr., of Providence, R. I., returned home Saturday after a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. John Cashman, of Richmond street.

Prof. A. B. Kenyon, of Alfred University, Alfred, N. Y., and Prof. A. L. Titsworth, of Rutgers College, were guests Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Titsworth, in the Babcock building.

President's Honorary Degrees.

President Roosevel has received twice the highest number of this kind of degrees (honorary) ever given any other President. Two doctorates have been conferred upon him this year. His bachelor of arts was conferred upon him twenty-five years ago by Harvard. In addition he may now write his name eight LL. D.'s and one L. H. D. He is the first President to receive the latter degree.

His graduation from Harvard came in 1880. The order in which he has received his degrees is:

1880—Harvard, B. A.
1899—Columbia, LL. D.
1901—Yale, LL. D.
1901—Hope College, LL. D.
1902—Harvard, LL. D.
1903—University of Chicago, LL. D.
1903—Northwestern University, LL. D.
1903—University of California, LL. D.
1905—Clark University, LL. D.
1905—Williams College, LL. D.

An impression has existed that a majority of the Presidents of the United States have not been college bred; that in education qualifications and the discipline of college work they were deficient. Recorded facts disprove this. Fourteen of the twenty-five presidents received a college training in their youth.—Chicago Evening Post.

The field day of the Knights of Pythias will be held this year at Hillside Park, Newark, on Labor Day. There will be a parade in Newark in the morning, after which a competitive drill will take place. Crescent Company, No. 13, of this city, will participate.

PLAINFIELD WON IN TWELFTH

while Connolly continued his hard hitting.

The game opened with Westfield at the bat, Lynch, who replaced Smithson at short, being first up. Beck threw him out at first. Barry flied out to Cregan and Rochford was thrown out at first by Kiernan. In the next half Kiernan flied out to Stallings, who covered second base. Cosgrave flied out to Lynch and Brogan went by the same route to Bertwhistle.

In the second act Stallings was thrown out at first by Brogan, and Bertwhistle swatted the sphere to centre for one bag and stole second on Driscoll's poor throw. Mallen reached first on Brogan's fumble of an infield teazer and Bertwhistle scored the first run. On McGoey's infield hit to Leonard, Mallen was thrown out at second, but "Mac" remained on the initial bag, as Cotter flied out to Kiernan, the result being one run and one hit for Westfield and two errors for the locals.

The Daabsters failed to do anything in their half. Connolly flied out to Cotter and Cregan followed with a single over second base. Leonard put a long fly into McGoey's hands; and Driscoll hit safe over second, sending Cregan to the middle station, where he remained, as O'Neill foul flied to Cotter.

Waller started the third inning by going out on a fly to Brogan. Lynch hit for two bases and Barry knocked into a double, Brogan to Kiernan, retiring the side. In the next half Beck foul flied to Cotter, Kiernan fanned, Cosgrave singled to centre, and was left on second, as Brogan was thrown out at first by Lynch.

Rochford opened the fourth inning by being thrown out at first by Brogan. Stallings flied out to Cosgrave and Bertwhistle went out at first on Leonard's throw. Connolly aroused the fans in the local's half by a scorching three sacker to left. Bertwhistle made a quick return, but "Dan" came home on Lynch's poor throw to third. Cregan then singled to left. Leonard sacrificed, going out to Rochford unassisted. Driscoll went out by the same route and O'Neill flied out to Lynch, leaving Cregan on third.

Neither side scored in the fifth. Mallen singled to centre, was thrown out at second by Beck on McGoey's fielder's choice, and Cotter hit into a double, retiring McGoey and himself, Leonard to Kiernan to Driscoll. Beck and Kiernan flied out to Mallen and Cosgrave went out on a line drive to Barry.

In the sixth Waller reached first on a scratch hit. Lynch sacrificed, going out at first on Beck's throw, and Barry reached first on Cosgrave's error. Rochford sent another fly to the field and Cosgrave missed it, allowing Waller to score, but "Mike" was put out trying to steal second, O'Neill throwing to Kiernan. Stallings made the third out, Brogan to Driscoll.

Brogan started things in the last of the sixth by making a sensational home run. He drove the ball far into left field and everybody went crazy with the excitement as he circled the bases. Connolly then foul flied to Cotter, Cregan was thrown out at first by Stallings and Leonard fanned.

There were no hits or runs for Westfield in the eighth. Bertwhistle received the first pass, stole second. Mallen fanned, McGoey sacrificed, going out at first on Brogan's throw, and Cotter died at first on Kiernan's throw. The locals tallied a run in their half. Driscoll bunted and succeeded in making the circuit on Cotter's wild throw into the crowd. O'Neill flied out to Mallen, Beck struck out and Kiernan sent a fly into Mallen's hands.

Westfield then evened matters by another tally. Waller singled to centre, went to second on Lynhe's sacrifice, and Barry drove the leather over Leonard's head. He stole second and on Rochford's out to Connolly, Waller came home. Stallings went out at first on Brogan's throw. The locals then drew a blank. Cosgrave flied out to Bertwhistle, Brogan struck out, and Connolly singled to centre, but was left there, as Cregan flied out to Bertwhistle.

In the ninth Bertwhistle fanned, Mallen reached first on a close decision, and McGoey surprised himself by driving the ball to left garden for two bases, scoring Mallen. On Cotter's fielder's choice, McGoey was put out, Leonard to Kiernan to Brogan. Waller went out at first on Beck's throw, leaving "Paddy" on the bag.

It was a day of surprises, and Leonard sent a sky scraper to deep centre for three bases in this half. Driscoll went out on a line fly to Lynch, O'Neill singled to centre, scoring Leonard, and "Tuck" Turner, who batted for Beck, hit into a double, retiring O'Neill and himself, Stalling to Rochford.

At this time Deegan went to the firing line amid the cheers of the crowd. It seemed to put confidence in everyone, although Beck had performed well. Lynch went out to Driscoll unassisted. Leonard threw Barry out at first and Rochford died on first on Driscoll's throw to Deegan, who covered the bag. In the other half, Kiernan flied to Lynch and Cosgrave foul flied to Cotter. Brogan, determined to win the game, stepped to the plate and hit one of Waller's fifty-seven varieties to deep left for another homer. He tried desperately to make the circuit, but was caught on Bertwhistle's throw to Barry and the latter's quick return to Cotter.

At the opening of the eleventh inning occurred the dispute regarding the third strike on Stallings. He returned to the bat and flied out to Connolly. Bertwhistle did likewise to Cregan and Driscoll made a pretty catch of Mallen's fly. For the locals, Connolly struck out. Cregan singled to right garden and Leonard hit into a double, retiring Cregan and himself, Stallings to Rochford.

In the last inning McGoey flied out to Leonard. Cotter popped a fly to Driscoll. Waller singled to second, but was left on first, as Lynch flied out to Connolly. Then the Daabsters made one last effort to end the suspense, and they were successful. Driscoll flied out to Mallen. O'Neill drove a hot one to Lynch, who fumbled, allowing him to reach first. "Willie" Deegan was right there with the goods when he singled to right, advancing O'Neill, who a moment later crossed the plate with the winning run on Kiernan's timely single, making the score 5 to 4. The crowd rushed on the diamond, giving continuous cheers and praising Captain Driscoll and his men. The score:

SURGICAL INSTINCT NOTED IN ANIMALS

BIRDS THAT DRESS THEIR WOUNDS—DOGS AS SELF-DOCTORS.

A party of Johns Hopkins students were talking about "immunity" one night recently, says the Baltimore News. One of them remarked that a dog's saliva has a perfect bactericidal and healing power, and suggested that perhaps it would make a good antiseptic, although it seemed that no bacteriologist had caught the hint contained in the simple process of a dog's licking a sore, a process seen every day.

The idea was discussed generally. The young man who first mentioned it took down a pile of old magazines, and after a diligent search produced a clipping from a medical journal containing a paper by Dr George M. Gould. Here is a part of it:

"When we commence the observation of the origin of medical discovery and treatment we are struck by the fact that 'our brothers the animals' were first in learning not a little of medical art. It has been noticed that birds often show a true surgical instinct. M. Tatio on several occasions had killed woodcock that were, when shot, convalescing from wounds previously received, and in every instance found the old injury neatly dressed with down, plucked from the stems of feathers and skillfully arranged over the wound, evidently by the beak of the birds.

"In some instances a solid plaster was thus formed, and in others ligaments had been applied to wounded or broken limbs. Ten times in his experience he has found birds whose limbs had been broken by shot, with the fractured ends neatly approximated and litigated together—a statement that is vouched for by no less a naturalist than Fulbert Dumonteil.

"Dr. James Weir says that when bees are attacked with diarrhoea they at once begin to suck astringent pieces of the dogwood, poplar, wild cherry or hickery and rapidly cure themselves. Their instinct carries them so far that in winter if they should happen to be afflicted they will readily drink a decoction of wild cherry if it is placed in the hive. Moreover, they seem to know that filth is a source of disease.

"Dr. Weir further believes that many of the higher animals have discovered and use a materia medica that should be recognized by human physicians. For instance, dogs will seek out and devour the long blades of couch grass (triticum repens) when they are constipated; horses and mules will eat clay when they have scours; sattle with eczema have been seen to plaster hoof and joint with mud. He speaks of seeing a cow break thin ice on a pond and treat her itching joint to a mud poultice. Cats will go miles when they are 'under the weather' for a dose of catnip.

"The saliva of animals seems to have a distinct curative action. Dogs, cats, cattle, rodents, monkeys, all lick their wounds when they can get at them and soon effect cures. Weir also tells of a large dog-faced monkey who scratched his shoulder badly on a projecting nail in his cage. He immediately went to a corner and, seizing a handful of clean sawdust, pressed it on the bleeding scratch. In a few moments the bleeding ceased and the blood dried, leaving a coating under which the healing was prompt.

"The Rev. Egerton R. Young, a missionary in Northwestern Canada, shows us that the surgical instincts of the dog may become so far developed as to produce a real surgeon-doctor. One of his dogs spontaneously took up this work and became so expert the the Indians called him Muskeke Atim, the surgeon. Galls, wounds, frozen feet, ets., in the other dogs were successfully and systematically treated by 'Dr.' Rover. The wounds or sores that could not be reached by the dog's own tongue did not heal. The fact shows that, in a state of health and with pure food, the dog's saliva has a perfect bacterial and healing power. Perhaps it would make an ideal antiseptic."

A GOLD MINE FOR DUNDY.

The Luna Park Mimeograph Reports a "Strike" in Wyoming.

Elmer S. Dundy, one of the proprietors of Luna Park at Coney Island, told his friends yesterday that a gold mine he invested in some years ago out in Wyoming was showing rather more than "pay dirt." His claim, 600 by 3,000 feet, was staked out in 1899 on Spar Mountain at an altitude of 8,000 feet, after an avalanche caused by the rain had disclosed gold bearing quartz.

Mr. Dundy said that $180,000 had been taken out of the mine at one haul. Yesterday being Sunday, Mr. Dundy was unable to substantiate his statement with affidavits.

Cardinal Gibbons is 71.

Southhampton, L. I., July 23.—Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore, who as usual is summering here, was seventy-one years old yesterday. He celebrates his birthday today. The Cardinal will receive those who call on him, but will have no formal celebration. Congratulations have already begun to pour in. He spent yesterday quietly, preaching in the morning and again at vespers in place of Father O'Hara.

Plainfield, N. J., July 24, 1905.

Francis T. Mongomery is mentioned as a Councilmanic possibility in the Second ward. He is of the right calibre for the office.

From present appearances Charles N. Fowler is about as near to the U. S. Senate as Peary is to the North Pole, notwithstanding that some newspapers seem to think he has a show of getting there.

From Trenton comes the tidings that Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, may be the next chairman of the Union County Republican Committee. What's the matter with Frank H. Smith for the place?

H. T. R. sends five dollars towards the baby camp fund which has been turned over to the chairman of the committee in charge of the fresh air home for poor tots. The thanks of The Daily Press are given H. T. R., whoever he or she may be. On another page will be found the list of contributors to date. See to it that your name is on that roll of honor.

It is indeed unfortunate that a row should have taken place over an umpire's decision in the Plainfield-Westfield championship contest on Saturday. Such scenes take way all the pleasure there is in baseball and for the sake of the sport should be avoided in the future. Plainfield wants to win the series but no loyal fans desire to have championship honors marred by such unseemly disputes, even though the rival team may be responsible. Remember what the umpire says "goes."

Philadelphia's director of public safety has ordered some 31,000 fraudulent names crossed off the registry list. That means a difference of 62,000 votes, which have gone to make up that "grand majority of 275,000 in the Keystone State," of which we have heard Republican campaign orators boast. It can be said conservatively that when the polling lists are purged entirely of fraudulent names 125,000 would be a big majority for Pennsylvania to give any Republican candidate.

Water Scarce.

Owing to the drougth the Somerville Water Company has posted notices to water takers regarding the use of lawn hose for sprinkling purposes. People are not permitted to use water for lawns between 9 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The Raritan river is very low, the short showers yesterday not raising it at all, and it is feared there may be a water famine—not enough for household use and drinking purposes.

Deegan's Wednesday Date.

According to yesterday's Newark Call, "Willie" Deegan has signed to play for the Orange A. C. team, of the Lackawanna League ,on Wednesdays. Orange has been in bad shape for sometime and Manager Mills is now strengthening his team. Westervelt, the pitcher, has been released. "Mike" Leonard will play third base for Morristown-Chatham on Wednesdays.

A Distant View.

"The people of Union County will elect a State Senator, a sheriff and freeholders this fall," says the Plainfield Press. Perhaps that is the way The Press has of letting the Plainfield bosses know that their action will not entirely settle who is to be elected next November. — Newark Evening News.

OUTING FOR THE POOR.

Salvation Army Wants Contributions for Worthy Object.

Ensign and Mrs. Magee, officers in charge of the local corps of the Salvation Army, have arranged to give a free outing to two hundred of the poorest children at Boynton Beach on Friday. The conditions upon which this outing will be given are that the parents of the children cannot afford to give them an outing and that the children do not expect to have an outing during the year through any other channel. The outing will cost about $100, and anyone desiring to contribute toward the fund can do so by sending the same to Ensign T. A. Magee, 116 Park avenue, this city.

Special trolley cars will leave Plainfield at 9 o'clock on Friday morning, arriving at the beach at 10:30. The cars, returning, will leave the beach at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon, arriving here about 6 o'clock. The entertainment will include free tickets to all harmless amusements on the beach.

MERITY'S DISPUTED DECISION.

Report That He Changed His Opinion After Game.

It is reported semi-officially today that Umpire Merity admitted after Saturday's game that his decision relative to the question as to whether Stallings was entitled to a base on what appeared to be a third strike, which was missed by O'Neill, was wrong, but that he could not change his decision. Many claim that the ball struck the ground or the edge of the home plate before it reached the batter, and that Stallings struck at it, risking the chance to get a base on a wild pitch.

The decision was somewhat similar to the one which terminated the disputed game at Westfield last season, when Manager George Johnston wanter Umpire Watt to change his decision. The official would not make a change and the game was forfeited to Westfield, 9 to 0.

Trenton, July 24.—Detectives Pilger and Clancy, of the Trenton police, Saturday got on the trail of Charles Long, who killed Matthew Cunningham here last Sunday, and hand a running pistol fight with the man from New Market to Dunellen, where Long outran them across a field and disappeared in a deep wood.

The police of every town from Perth Amboy to Phillipsburg have been notified to look out for the fugitive, and it is expected that he will be caught before morning.

PRACTICAL FORESTRY STATE'S PROPOSITION

LAW PASSED BY LAST LEGISLATURE AT STOKES SUGGESTION.

New Jersey is about to begin its first real work as a State in practical forestry. At the suggestion of Governor Stokes, the last Legislature passed an act for the establishment of forest reservations and created a State Board of Forest Park Reservation Commissioners. Under the provisions of the law creating the board (Chapter 47, Laws of 1905) the commissioners were authorized to acquire a fee simple estate in any lands to be taken for the purposes of forest park reservations, the acquisition to be accomplished either by deed, gift or devise; or, if necessary, by condemnation proceedings; and when the land for this purpose is once acquired it is to be held for the benefit of the people of New Jersey. To the commission was given the care, management and preservation of the reserves, and it was also directed, to quote the exact wording of the law, "to keep in view, and, so far as it can, put in operation the best method to re-forest cut-over and denuded lands, to prevent injury of forests by fire, the administering and care of forests on forestry principles, the encouragement of private owners in preserving and growing timber for commercial and manufacturing purposes, and general conservation of forest tracts around the headwaters and on the water sheds of all water courses of the State."

From the foregoing extract it will be seen that the law contemplates rendering great service to the timber land owners of New Jersey, and it is to be the aim of the commission to carry out the provisions of the statute as fully as it is possible to do so. To this end, therefore, the commission is asking the newspaper of each county to put before their readers just what the new law is. In this way it is hoped to reach the owners of forest or timber tracts, who would sell their property to the State for forest reserves or who would like to have the aid of practical forestry in the development of their tracts.

The information desired would greatly facilitate the work of the commission by saving the preliminary investigation necessary to ascertain who have forest lands to sell. If all such owners to whom this notice comes will communicate with the secretary of the commission, William H. Chew, of Camden, giving the size, character, locatio and price per acre at which they would sell their tracts the information will be filed with the commission, to be taken up at an early meeting. It is to be hoped that all timber land owners, as well as others interested in forestry in New Jersey, will co-operate with the commission in this matter.

Says Boy Stole "Auto."

Leroy Davis was arraigned in the police court at Elizabeth yesterday, charged with stealing an automobile valued at $5,000. He was held in $500 bail to await the action of the Union County Grand Jury. The machine, which belonged to Robert M. Kellogg, superintendent of the Metuchen Water Company's plant, was stored in a garage at Elizabeth. Young Davis called at the place on Thursday night, and told the man in charge that his employer wanted to see him quickly on the next block.

Komura in the West.

St. Paul, July 24—Baron Komura, peace. plenipotentiary of Japan, reached St. Paul yesterday afternoon. He and the members of his party courteously declined the offer of public entertainment, and went immediately to the Hotel Aberdeen. Some members of the Baron's retinue took a drive around the city, but most of the party remained in the hotel till last night, when they left for Chicago on the Burlington road, still using the private car of James J. Hill.

NO BOXING BOUT.

Newark Police Captain Prevented a "Go" in That City.

Captain Michael Corbitt, of the Third precinct, Newark, refused to sanction a bout in which Jack Munroe, the husky miner pugilist, and "Kid" Miller, were to have been the principals Saturday afternoon at Jefferson Oval in that city. Munroe umpired a ball game, and it was arranged to have the fist fest as a sort of a side show. The doughty captain had not been counted on, however, and when he received advance information that a bout was to be pulled off, he caused word to be sent that he would not countenance any such infraction of the statutes within his precinct.

An officer was sent to the ball grounds to see that the edict was carried out. He reported that no attempt was made to carry out the ill-made arrangements.

BROKE HIS LEG ON RAILROAD.

Beers slipped and fell under the wheels. One leg was broken and he was otherwise severely injured.

Dr. F. L. Johnson, of Stanton, and Dr. H. H. Miller, of Lebanon, attended him until a train could be secured to take him to Somerset Hospital. It is expected he will recover.

Somerville, 16; New Brunswick, 4.

The West Ends, of Somerville, defeated the New Brunswick Lyceum team at Somerville on Saturday by a score of 16 to 4. The visiting team played a very poor game, ten errors being charged against them. WAISTS AND GOWNS.

Pointers on Styles of the Day for Women Folks.

Bretelles, which is anyhow a prettier sounding name than mere suspenders, are as plain or as ornamental as one wishes to have them. I saw one pair of black net, with lots of tiny jet beads along the middle in a star design. The edges were bordered with narrow black lace. This showed up beautifully over the white silk waist and also over a pink one that the same lady wore with the bretelles. Those made of plain black silk or of velvet are more striking than pretty; but, after all, let each lady have what she likes best and finds best suited to her garments, always bearing in mind that they must not be over four inches wide at the shoulder and one and a half at the waist.

Soft cashmere and landsdowne make really beautiful waists when trimmed in the right way. The neater and simpler the ornamentation the more refined and ladylike the result. White wash wasits are in the public eye more than any, but the dainty silk and pongee ones with the plain but handsome skirts and the velvet or ribbon bretelles make us all notice them with real pleasure. Short capes or jackets in reefer shape, or bolero, or even short Eton, are worn with these. Some of the skirts are made so that the band becomes the girdle to which the straps are fastened, but they are so difficult to keep in place they are not very popular, and besides only slender figures look well in them, and that is just the reason why so many stout ones wear them.

Tea and House Gowns.

Some most dainty and lovely tea and house gowns were shown me this week, and it is quite possible to trace the Japanese idea of the kimono through them all. The shape is on that order, but the folds are far more ample, and in the back, instead of being straight down, there is a deep double box plait which extends into a short train. The sleeves are flowing and garnished with oceans of lace and rivers of floating ribbon, yet, as I have said, the Japanese idea is prominent.

Dressing sacks are so dainty and so ornate that one can scarcely think of them as garments just to slip on for a few moments, for they are of fine and delicate silks in various designs, but mostly printed ones where the figure is small, but very perfect and representing flowers in natural colors. Naturally lace of the finest and filmiest kind is employed to finish these, and there is ribbon at the throat and sleeves.

Some there are of sheer white batiste with fine embroidery insertions and edgings, and always the ribbons.

OLIVE HARPER.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Soiled dish towels should not be dropped into hot soapsuds until they have been washed first in lukewarm water, says an authority. The hot suds sets th edirt.

If a Hamburg steak is served with a hot tomato sauce it will be most appetizing.

A small stiff brush such as artists use when painting in oils is excellent for brushing the dust from the crevices in velvet trimming and from between ribbon folds.

All sheets and other bedding, table linen and the greater part of the weekly washing are better for being mangled instead of ironed. The mangle is preferred by English housewives to the flatiron because they believe that the clothes last longer and keep their color better if mangled instead of ironed.

The best thing for burns is linseed oil and lime water in equal proportions. Cover the wound with sterilized cotton, dress carefully from time to time, and it will gradually heal.

A tablespoonful of borax is an agreeable addition to the dishwater and helps to keep the hands soft, instead of irritating them, as soda does.

One of the worst mistakes the average hired cook or maid of all work makes is to boil meat rapidly, instead of simmering. Stews of any kind of meat should merely bubble at the sides of the kettle and never really boil. This will make all the differenec between tough and tender meat.

Blinds can be nicely cleaned and brightened if after dusting and washing they are rinsed in clear water and ammonia. Use four tablespoonsful of ammonia to every gallon of water.

Orange float is a dessert easily prepared. Boil together one quart of water, the pulp and juice of two lemons and four tablespoonsful of corn starch, stirring carefully to prevent lumps. Flavor the mixture strongly with orange extract or the grated rind of an orange. Then sweeten with sugar, take from the fire and cool it. When quite thick, just before it becomes cold and firm, fold in the whites of two or three eggs. When ready to serve garnish with sliced oranges or serve with whipped cream.

Just Think How Insignificant

the cost is for repairing your diamond jewelery compared to the value of the jewel itself. For that reason you should have them seen to regularly.

SUSPENDER WAISTS.

The New Bretelles Are Stylish if Not Overelegant.

Recently I heard two little girls talking, and, judging from their interchange of words, I understood that there was a little family rivalry between them.

"Huh! My sister's got a waist with splinters."

"Well, what's that?"

"Why, them things what goes over the shoulders to hold the skirt up—splinters, like the men wear to hold"—

"Oh, I know—s'penders. Oh, well, our May-mee could have them, too, but they're so common now that she wouldn't wear them."

If the boy is father to the man, is the girl not mother to the woman? It would seem so, for these children are but small women. Truly, there is a grain of truth in the assertion that suspender suits are common, if seeing them every ten minutes is a criterion. And they are neither dressy nor the things a gentlewoman would choose for herself, but so very many wear them that we must call the suspender suits not a fashion alone, but a fad. A skirt of some fine and generally dark material is one part, and the other is a pretty and rather plain shirt waist. The suspender then comes to add its quota of style if not elegance. Many are made of black silk or satin or even of velvet, while others are fashioned of ribbon, and still others are of some dark material, with beading or Bulgarian embroidery along the straps. These additions to a costume have first a belt pointed more or less sharply and then the parts that reach over the shoulders. In the old days they were called "bretelles," which is the French name for suspenders. So, after all, it is all right.

As You Like It.

These bretelles, which is anyhow a prettier sounding name than mere suspenders, are as plain or as ornamental as one wishes to have them. I saw one pair of black net, with lots of tiny jet beads along the middle in a star design. The edges were bordered with narrow black lace. This showed up beautifully over the white silk waist and also over a pink one that the same lady wore with the bretelles. Those made of plain black silk or of velvet are more striking than pretty; but, after all, let each lady have what she likes best and finds best suited to her garments, always bearing in mind that they must not be over four inches wide at the shoulder and one and a half at the waist.

Soft cashmere and landsdowne make really beautiful waists when trimmed in the right way. The neater and simpler the ornamentation the more refined and ladylike the result. White wash waists are in the public eye more than any, but the dainty silk and pongee ones with the plain but handsome skirts and the velvet or ribbon bretelles make us all notice them with real pleasure. Short capes or jackets in reefer shape, or bolero, or even short Eton, are worn with these. Some of the skirts are made so that the band becomes the girdle to which the straps are fastened, but they are so difficult to keep in place they are not very popular, and besides only slender figures look well in them, and that is just the reason why so many stout ones wear them.

Tea and House Gowns.

Some most dainty and lovely tea and house gowns were shown me this week, and it is quite possible to trace the Japanese idea of the kimono through them all. The shape is on that order, but the folds are far more ample, and in the back, instead of being straight down, there is a deep double box plait which extends into a short train. The sleeves are flowing and garnished with oceans of lace and rivers of floating ribbon, yet, as I have said, the Japanese idea is prominent.

Dressing sacks are so dainty and so ornate that one can scarcely think of them as garments just to slip on for a few moments, for they are of fine and delicate silks in various designs, but mostly printed ones where the figure is small, but very perfect and representing flowers in natural colors. Naturally lace of the finest and filmiest kind is employed to finish these, and there is ribbon at the throat and sleeves.

Some there are of sheer white batiste with fine embroidery insertions and edgings, and always the ribbons

CHAPTER XVIII.

The long wait for the coming of the big transports with the regulars was over. For the first time in history America was sending her soldiery past the pyramids and through the Indian sea, landing them, after 40 days and nights of voyaging, upon the low, flat shores that hem Manila bay, and shoving them out to the hostile front before their sea-legs could reach the swing and stride of the marching step; yet, to all appearance, as unconcernedly at home as though they had been campaigning in the Philippines since the date of their enlistment. This, to be sure, in the case of more than half their number, would have given them scant time in which to look about them, since raw recruits were more numerous than seasoned men. But no matter what may be his lack of drill or preparation the average Anglo-Saxon never seems to know the time when he doesn't know how to fight. So, with all the easy assurance of a veteran, our Yankee "Tommies" wriggled into their blanket rolls and trudged away to the posts assigned them; and once more the army assumed the aggressive.

There were changes in the composition of the forces even before the move began. The dudes and the "toughs" parted company; and the former, with Stanley Armstrong once more riding silent at their head, joined forces with Stewart's riddled regiment up the railway toward Malolos. Col. Frost had succeeded in convincing the surgeons that he would be as much out of place as his name itself in such a clime and climate, and was in daily expectation of an order home. Billy Gray, mending only slowly, had been sent to Corregidor, where the bracing breezes of the China sea drove their tonic forces through his lungs and veins, and the faintly rising hue of coming health back into his hollow cheeks. The boy had been harder hit than seemed the case at first, said the fellows of the —teenth; but the wise young surgeon of the "Second reserve" and a grave-faced colonel of infantry could have told of causes little dreamed of in the regiment—were either given to telling the half of what he knew.

That something most unusual had occurred in the room of Mr. Gray the day that the sad-faced, kind old general visited the hospital at least half a dozen patients could have told; for an attendant went running for one of the women nurses, and the doctor himself hurried to the scene. It was on his arm that, half an hour later, Mrs. Garrison slowly descended the stairs, her flimsy white veil down, and silently bowed her thanks and adieux as the doctor closed the door of her carriage and nodded to the little coachman. It was the doctor who suggested to Col. Frost that Manila air was not conducive to his wife's recovery, and recommended Nagasaki as the place for her recuperation until he could join her and take her home. The Esmerelda bore the White sisters over Hong-Kong way within a week; and they left without flourish of trumpet, with hardly the flutter of a handkerchief; for, since the battle of the 5th of February, neither had been seen upon the Luneta. Their women friends were very few; the men they knew were mainly at the front. The story got out somehow that Garrison had asked to be relieved from further duty as aid-de-camp and returned to duty with his regiment, and that Drayton would not have it. The general's manner toward that hard-working staff officer, though often preoccupied as of old, grew even kinder. He did not see the sisters off for China—he was "far too busy" was the explanation; but he offered Garrison a fortnight's leave and urged his taking it, and was obviously troubled when Garrison declined. "You need rest and the change of air more than any man I know," said he; but Garrison replied that change of scene and air would not help him.

There were two young fellows in khaki uniforms landed from the hospital launch on the back trip from Corregidor one warm March day. One wore the badge of a subaltern of the —teenth regulars, the other the chevrons of a corporal and the hatband of a famous fighting regiment of volunteers; yet the same carriage bore them swiftly through the sentineled streets of the walled city, and the guards at the Ayuntamiento sprang to their arms and formed ranks at sight of it, then dispersed at the low-toned order of its commander when it was seen that, instead of stopping at the curb and discharging an elderly general officer, it whirled straight by and held two youths in field uniform.

"One of 'em's young Gray, of the —teenth; he that was hit in the charge on the Panay road," said the officer of the guard to a comrade. "But who the devil's the other? He had corporal's chevrons on. Some fellow just got a commission, perhaps." And that was the only way the soldier could account for a corporal riding with a commissioned officer in a general's carriage. They had a long whirl ahead of them, these two; and the corporal told Gray, as he already had the general and Col. Armstrong, much of the story of his friendship for "Pat" Latrobe, of that poor fellow's illness at San Francisco and all the trouble it cost his friend and chum. There was a strong bond between them, he explained; and the blush of shame that stole up in the face of the narrator found instant answer in that of Billy Gray. Determined to see service at the front and not return to punishment in his regiment, never dreaming that, in quitting a corps doomed apparently to inaction at home, and joining one going straight to the enemy's country, he was committing the grave crime of desertion, "Gov" Prime had spoken to some men in Stewart's regiment and was bidden to come along and fetch his friend; for they were just as ignorant as he. Having still considerable money, "Gov" had bought civilian clothes and all the supplies they needed while about town, and hired a boat that rowed them, with certain items contraband of war, to the dark side of the transport as nightfall came; and they were easily smuggled aboard and into uniform, and then, during the few days' stay at Honolulu, were formally enlisted and no embarrassing questions asked.

SOME HINTS FOR THE COOK

Berry Pudding.
Sift together two cupfuls of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt and three level teaspoonsfuls of baking powder; rub into the flour one heaped teaspoonful of butter, until the flour feels fine and mealy; stir in one cupful of milk and one heaped cupful of berries that have been picked over, washed if necessary, dried and dusted with flour; turn into a well buttered pudding mould, bowl or lard pail that has been floured, or sprinkle with fine bread crumbs; fill only a little over half full, cover tight and place in a steamer or a kettle with sufficient boiling water to reach one-third up the form; boil or steam an hour and a half.

Four ounces of finely chopped suet may be used in place of the butter, if desired, but on no account use lard. If preferred, batter may be turned into small cups buttered and crumbed, steamed forty minutes and served one to each individual.

Peach Custard.
Moisten one tablespoonful of corn starch with two teaspoonsful of cold milk. Add one-half cupful of sugar, stir well, turn into a stew pan, add one teaspoonful of butter and a little at a time, one pint of boiling milk. Separate the yolks and whites of two eggs. Beat the yolks till light and blend with them one tablespoonful of cold milk. Stir this into the corn starch mixture, place all over the fire and cook three minutes, then set on ice. When quite cold, add to the custard six ripe peaches pared and cut into small pieces. Over the top spread a nicely flavored meringue, made of the two whites of eggs and two dessert spoonfuls of pulverized sugar.

Spanish Buns.
Five eggs, well beaten; cut up in a cup of warm new milk, half a pound of fresh butter, one pound of sifted flour and wineglass of yeast. Set it to rise for an hour, in a warm place; when risen, sift in half a pound of white sugar, and half a grated nutmeg, add one wineglass of rosewater, and one cup of currants, which have been previously cleaned, mix these well, pour it into pans and set to rise again for half an hour. Bake one hour.

The above is a famous recipe and dates back over one hundred years.

Stuffed Cucumbers.
Pare the cucumbers, cutting and peeling as thin as possible. Divide each cucumber in half lengthwise and carefully scoop out the seeds and soft pulp so that the walls of the cucumbers may be left intact. Prepare a filling as follows: One cupful of fine bread crumbs, one cupful of minced cold chicken, one teaspoonful of minced parsley, 10 drops of onion juice, one tablespoonful of melted butter, two tablespoonsful of cream and salt and pepper to taste. The filling may be softened with more cream if it is too stiff. Fill the cucumber boats, rounding at the top, and place in a baking dish. Pour around them a well-seasoned stock of gravy, sprinkle with fine bread crumbs and bake covered half an hour, then uncover and brown. Remove to a platter and thicken the gravy with a little brown flour and pour around the cucumbers.

Veal Soup.
Take a knuckle of veal, crack the bone, was hand put in on to boil in more than sufficient water to cover it. After boiling some time, pare, cut and wash two onions, five of six turnips and put in with the meat. When this has been boiled one hour, add some sweet marjoram rubbed fine with salt and cayenne pepper to taste. Then take flour, which mix with cold water to the consistency of cream and add to the soup while boiling. Care must be taken not to make it too thick. Then pare and cut into pieces six or eight potatoes, which wash and add about half an hour before being served; and about ten minutes before sending to table. Dumplings may be added, if liked.

Cream of Spinach.
Cut and wash the leaves from two quarts of spinach, and throw them into a perfectly dry soup kettle. Stand the kettle over the fire and stir constantly for fifteen minutes, until the spinach is wilted and cooked. Drain, saving the water. Chop the spinach very fine and press through a sieve. Grate a small onion, and with the spinach add to the water. Cook this with a quart of milk in a double boiler, run a rounding tablespoonful of butter and two of flour together, add them to the milk and stir until smooth. Season to taste, strain and serve with bread sticks.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Under the direction of Arthur L. Titsworth, organist, a special musical service was given by the choir of Trinity Reformed church last night. Several members of the choir were detained by illness, but the program was given as planned. Mrs. Edward Young, the soprano soloist, was ill, and Miss Bessie Martin, of the choir of the Adams Memorial Presbyterian church, New York, kindly consented to take her place. The work of the choir was very satisfactory and the various numbers enjoyed.

The special numbers by the choir included the trio, "Lift Thine Eyes," from Elijah; "Be Ye Kind One to Another," by Fitzhugh, and a Gloria by Alzamora. Miss Martin sang the offertory solo, "God that Madeth Heaven and Earth." These numbers, together with the regular hymns, comprised the musical part of the service.

57 BODIES RECOVERED.

Seventeen of the Bennington's Crew Are Still Missing.

San Diego, Cal., July 24.—The work of searching for the bodies of victims of the boiler explosion on the gunboat Bennington continues, and although there are now known to have been fifty-seven dead recovered, there are hopes that several of the seventeen missing bodies may be taken from the twisted tangle in the depths of the hull.

The gloom of the funeral yesterday, when forty-seven of the boys in blue were buried, still hangs over the city. The one topic of conversation is the explosion and the possible decision at Washington on the cause of it. There are fifty-one wounded men in the hospitals here.

The hulk of the Bennington as it lies on the mud near the wharves is visited by hundreds of sightseers. A guard keeps the curious from getting too close to the workers, who may at any moment bring up another body.

The services yesterday were simple. All the bodies were buried in one big grave in the military cemetery on Point Loma.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Triumph for the Cause of Decency.

It is highly to the credit of Mrs. Caroline B. Alexander and her son, Assemblyman Alexander, that the county of Hudson is to be rid of the disgraceful almshouse at Snake Hill. During the last session of the Legislature, in spite of Republican opposition, Assemblyman Alexander introduced and had passed an act authorizing the expenditure of $200,000, the sum to be devoted to the erection of a new almshouse. When the measure reached Governor Stokes the entire Republican organization of Hudson county attempted to prevent Governor Stokes from signing the act, because a Democratic Board of Chosen Freeholders would have the expenditure of the money. In other words, while it was an open and notorious fact that a public building, forty years old and utterly inadequate, was the shelter for several hundred dependent children and adult paupers, nevertheless, the Republicans of Hudson refused to aid in a work of reform, because the party grafters saw no chance of getting their hands upon the contracts. And this was in spite of the fact that several Grand Juries of Hudson county have declared the institution to be a public disgrace. But Mrs. Alexander and her son won the fight and Governor Stokes signed the bill. And to every one favorably concerned full credit must be given for this triumph for the cause of decency.—Trenton True American.

KEPT THE TRUNKS OF HER BOARDERS WHO FLED FROM PLACE TO ESCAPE BEDBUGS

A farce comedy has been enacted at Asbury Park, in which the plot was laid by bedbugs which made life miserable at an Asbury avenue boarding house for a party of women from the nation's capital. The actors who took the leading parts were Chief of Police Smith, Magistrate Borden, Constable Zulick, Dr. James E. Burt, Lawyer C. V. Guerin and the boarding house keeper.

The party of Washington young women arrived there some days ago to spend the summer. One of the women recently was troubled with swollen glands of the neck, and upon Dr. Burt being consulted he pronounced the case one of bedbug poisoning. The women, on learning of this diagnosis, hurried home and made a microscopic examination of their quarters and, according to their story, they rounded up quite a colony of the pests. They decided to quit the premises at once, and payment for board to date was tendered the boarding house mistress.

The mistress of the house disputed the claim of the young women as to any than human inhabitants being on the premises, and refused to accept board to date. She refused to give up the trunks until board to the end of the contract time was paid.

Chief of Police Smith was sought to get the trunks, and he was told to get out of the house in haste. Magistrate Borden was then asked to help the women out of their dilemma, it being planned to get a warrant against the boarding house mistress for larceny. He called the woman up by 'phone and was soon cut off by her refusing to talk to him.

Lawyer Claude V. Guerin was then sought, and plans for other action were laid. He sent Constable Hulick to interview the landlady, and he took $42.95, the amount first offered in settlement of the board bill, with him. The constable won out by getting the trunks and the receipted board bills.

M'DONALD FREEHOLDER

First Ward Man Selected By Common Council to Succeed Capt. Hubbard.

ONLY TWO CANDIDATES

J. Fred MacDonald is Known as an "Anti-Machine" Man—Will Serve Until Election.

At the special meeting of the Common Council, last night, J. Fred MacDonald, of the First ward, was elected freeholder to succeed the late Captain James Franklin Hubbard, who died a few weeks ago. There were several persons mentioned as candidates for the office, but the contest narrowed down to Mr. MacDonald and F. A. Pope, the latter of the Third ward.

This was the only business to be considered by the Common Council and after Clerk MacMurray read the call, President Daniel called for nominations. Councilman Bullock nominated J. Fred MacDonald and it was seconded by Councilman Higham. Councilman Gloak then named F. A. Pope and Councilman Frank Randolph seconded this nomination. There being no other candidates, President Daniel closed the nominations and appointed Councilmen Bullock and Randolph as tellers.

Mr. MacDonald received six votes and Mr. Pope received four votes.

The successful candidate is known as an anti-machine man and as soon as his name was mentioned, his election was conceded by many persons present. Mr. MacDonald, while he has been active in politics for a number of years, has not taken much part in them of late. For several years he was one of the leaders in a fight against the "machine" which controlled the administration, but was never successful. His choice to succeed the late Captain Hubbard is looked upon as another blow at the "machine," although it is said that neither Mr. MacDonald nor Mr. Pope made any great effort to get the office.

After the election there was no other business, and the meeting adjourned.

Mr. MacDonald will only serve until the next election, unless he secures the nomination and is elected for a full term. There is no doubt but that it is the intention of his friends to place him in nomination at the Republican primaries to be held in September.

Mr. MacDonald has been identified with the growth of Plainfield and by his business tact and ability has attained a place among financiers. He is of Scotch descent and belongs to one of the old families of New Jersey. In 1856 Mr. MacDonald's father established the first grocery store in this city. Mr. MacDonald was born in Plainfield April 12, 1858, in the house in which he now resides. He received his education in the private and public schools of this city, leaving the high school with the Class of 1877. Within the year of his graduation he entered the store of his father in the capacity of clerk. In 1888 he purchased all interests and remained sole proprietor for many years. This store was one of the landmarks of the town.

Mr. MacDonald subsequently retired from the grocery business to engage in that of real estate. He is interested in a number of properties both here and in Bergen county, this State, and in addition he has become the adjuster of a number of large estates for other people. He is one of the executors of the Lattimer estate and has constantly in hand large trusts. He is a director of the City National Bank, and has also been treasurer of the city and county Republican organizations.

Mr. MacDonald was married October 13, 1880, to Miss Maria Rockwell, daughter of Dr. Jacob VanDeveer, of New York, and granddaughter of Dr. William Rockwell, at one time a member of the Board of Health of New York city. Mrs. MacDonald comes from a family of physicians, in both her paternal and maternal lines of descent. Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald are members of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Plainfielders to Camp.

A party of vacationists to leave the city August 1 will comprise George Morton, T. Ashley Weaver, William Thorn, George L. Apgar and Arthur Robinson. They will spend the time at "Camp Restawhile," which they will establish at Swartswood lake, in the wilds of Sussex county, near the New York State line. POLICEMEN TO SHOW THEIR MARKMANSHIP

WILL COMPETE EOR PRIZES IN THREE MONTHS' TOURNAMENT.

As an incentive for the members of the city police department to attain proficiency in marksmanship, the police board has decided to offer a number of prizes to be contested for during July, August and September. It has been arranged that each man shall have twenty-five shots. There will be no handicapping on this month's shooting, but for the August shoot the handicaps will be based on the July record and the September shoot will be based on the work for August. The tournament will be held on the grounds at Sergeant Frederickson's home on Leland avenue, a certain number of men being allowed to participate every afternoon.

The first and second prizes for July are two safety razors, the first being more elaborate than the second. The first and second prizes for August are penknives, fourteen blades. The first is a pearl handle and the second a stag-horn handle. The first prize for September is a meerschaum pipe and the second a gold-mounted briar-wood pipe, both having amber mouth-pieces. Chairman Tyler, of the Police Board, took the prizes to police headquarters last night and they are now on exhibition there.

LEAGUE UMPIRES FOR COUNTY SERIES

MANAGER DENMAN OF WESTFIELD MAKES THE SUGGESTION.

Owing to the many disputed decisions thus far in the two contests between Plainfield and Westfield, and especially the one on Saturday, over what Umpire Merity declared to be a "dead ball," Manager Denman, of Westfield, has decided to ask Manager Daab, in a spirit of fairness that he drop Umpire Merity for the series, and in return he will drop Umpire Henning. In their places Denman will suggest that two league umpires be engaged to officiate in the rest of the games. He says that such a change would cost but a trifle more and would add at least $100 additional to the receipts. Mr. Denman also states that a number of the best people of Westfield have personally said to him that they would not attend the future contests if Umpire Merity officiated, and he has made up his mind to make the above suggestion to Mr. Daab, hoping that he will agree to the change.

When Mr. Denman's mind was refreshed concerning Dick Watt's work, last season, he admitted that the Plainfield people had a right to kick and he did not blame them, and he recognizes that there are many this year who object to Umpire Henning. He is willing to drop the latter, if Manager Daab will drop Merity, and agree upon two league officials. Mr. Denman says that he regrets the disputed decision on Saturday, for aside from the fact that he believes his team would have won, he is convinced that such work robs the game of much interest.

No one believes for a momen that Umpire Merity gives a wrong decision intentionally, that he tries to be very fair, goes without saying. In doing this he frequently gives the home team the worst of the decision. This happened on Saturday when once or twice he decided against Plainfield, when it appeared to many that it should have been in their favor. Just how Mr. Daab will take Mr. Denman's suggestion is not known, but he can be depended upon to do what is right and fair. He has always had this reputation and no one is willing to do more for the best interests of the game than he.

BOLD DASH FOR LIBERTY

"Professor" Ernest Austin Eludes Officer and Takes to His Heels.

PISTOL STOPS HIM.

Originally Sentenced for Sixty Days, Judge Runyon Adds Another Hundred.

Sentenced to sixty days at Elizabeth for wife beating, this morning, Ernest Austin, the well known colored boot black and baseball rooter, made a bold dash for freedom that gave him a few moments of liberty but cost him an additional 100 days in jail. He was recaptured after an exciting chase, in which a revolver shot finally brought him to bay, and was immediately returned to the city court, where Judge Runyon was still holding session. The magistrate showed him not the slightest bit of leniency and inflicted the heaviest punishment within his jurisdiction.

Austin has been in an ugly frame of mind for the past three or four weeks, and almost nightly has returned to his home on Park avenue, opposite North, and kicked and beat his wife. The usual performance was in progress about 10 o'clock last night, when Patrolman Meyers was attracted to the place by the woman's screams. As the officer ascended one flight of steps back of the Clifton & Campbell building, Austin fled down another, clad only in his underclothing. He escaped in the darkness, but while the police all over the city were being notified to watch for him, he walked into headquarters and gave himself up to Sergeant Frederickson.

Austin did not deny the charges when arraigned in the city court, and after a scathing lecture Judge Runyon gave him sixty days straight. He was put back in a cell and Patrol Driver O'Gorman, who is on his vacation, but who happened to be present, was instructed to take the prisoner to the county jail. Austin seemed to be unusually submissive, and as he had never been sentenced before, the officer did not handcuff him, but walked a little ahead of him for the outer door.

An Elizabeth trolley car was just approaching from Somerset street, and with a "Come on, Ernest," O'Gorman started toward it. Ernest, however, had other plans in view, and bending his head low, darted up East Front street at a speed that threatened to break all running records. When O'Gorman looked around the wife beater was half way to Watchung avenue, taking race horse strides up the middle of the street. Just the same, O'Gorman wasn't daunted and took out after him, almost the entire court gathering following in the rear. Chief Kiely jumped on a wheel and also joined in the chase, and the rumor that the murderer Long was the fugitive upset the whole thoroughfare.

Austin turned into Watchung avenue and ran back of the long row of shanties that border the raceway. He lost considerable time there because of not knowing the ground and was just crossing the raceway near Tier's dam when O'Gorman hove in sight. His cry of "Halt" was unheeded, but Ernest changed his mind when a pistol shot rang out and a bullet "zipped" passed his head. He doubled on his tracks and came back to the raceway bridge on Watchung avenue, under which he cowered. O'Gorman, forgetting neatly blacked shoes, a white vest and Sunday trousers, plunged into the six inches of water and four feet of mud and brought the negro out. He made several attempts to get away going back to headquarters, but the officer kept a tight hold on him with one hand and gripped his pistol in the other, and there was "nothing doing." When the additional sentence was imposed Austin was locked to an officer and the interrupted trip to Elizabeth was resumed.

HYDE CASE DISMISSED

Effort to Have Plainfielder Declared Bankrupt Meets With Failure.

CHARLES SPIER'S FIGHT

Litigation Started Five Years Ago—Hyde Will Now Seek to Have a Judgment Reversed.

After a sensational trial in the United States District Court at Trenton yesterday, the application of Charles L. Spier to have Charles L. Hyde, of this city, declared a bankrupt was dismissed.

In the course of the trial it developed that Spier and Hyde have been engaged in litigation in New York for about five years. Recently, on May 31st, 1905, Spier secured judgment against Hyde in one of the inferior courts of New York city, and on the same day filed a petition in the United States District Court of New Jersey to have Hyde declared a bankrupt. Spier did not notify Hyde that the judgment had been entered, nor ask Hyde whether he proposed to pay, or appeal. He instantly began bankruptcy proceedings.

Papers were issued to the United States marshal in New Jersey for service upon Hyde. Hyde claims that Spier has been trying to force him into paying money which he does not owe by means of sensational reports in the papers.

On the morning of June 2d last, the United States marshal served Hyde at his house with notice of the bankruptcy proceedings, though several New York papers published a sensational tale which asserted that the marshal had spent the previous day in chasing Hyde, who, it was stated, was in his automobile, all over northern New Jersey. Hyde was described as flying to avoid service.

Yesterday the marshal said that the story was absolutely without foundation; that he read it in the papers before he left Trenton to serve Hyde at all, and that he had not had any difficulty in serving Hyde, whom he found at his residence.

From the judgment which Spier obtained, Hyde has appealed, and a reversal is confidently expected by him.

After hearing the witnesses yesterday the court refused to declare Hyde bankrupt, and dismissed the case.

The firm of Battle & Marshall, of New York, with whom were Lindabury, Depue & Faulks, of New Jersey, represented Spier, while Charles A. Reed, of this city, with Henry B. Singer, of New York, appeared for Hyde.

Hyde was formerly prominent in the Tuxedo Park colony and is connected with several large enterprises and president of Brunswick & Birmingham Railroad.

CHASE AFTER MURDERER

Local Officers All But Cap Slayer of Matthew Cunningham.

HIDING IN WOODS.

Patrol Driver O'Gorman Empties Revolver at Him But Fails to Stop His Flight.

The chase after Matthew Long, the negro who brutally murdered Matthew Cunningham at Trenton, last week, has narrowed down to Plainfield's suburbs and yesterday the local police were within sight of him several times and all but affected his capture. He was turned up near Stelton by Patrol Driver O'Gorman, who is on his vacation but still active, yesterday afternoon, and though alone at the time, the plucky officer chased him for a mile and tried his best to shoot him. He emptied his revolver at the fleeing negro but he managed to evade the bullets by zig-zagging in his course.

O'Gorman was out hunting for Long and near the Stelton station espied a colored man resting beneath a tree. He started for him but the negro jumped up and ran, exhibiting remarkable fleetness. The chase led toward New Market and when the officer finally lost him in a woods he telephoned to this city for help.

Chief Kiely and Patrolman Higgins responded and they took up the trail and finally unearthed him again, this time between New Market and South Plainfield. The negro seemed to know every bit of the ground and doubled backward and forward in a deep woods, finally losing the officers. They continued beating about the underbrush and just before darkness word came that he had gone down the Lehigh Valley railroad tracks to South Plainfield.

All three, together with several citizens set out in pursuit again and for a third time the murderer was sighted near the South Plainfield station. Just off from the depot there is a dense woods and what is known as "Dismal" swamp. Long plunged into this and led the officers a merry chase through briars and brambles and mud knee deep. An effort was made to get residents of the village to surround the swamp but the knowledge that he was a desperate murderer struck terror to their hearts and volunteers were few. The search continued the greater part of the night, however, and was taken up again this morning but without success.

Detectives from Trenton in automobiles lent by citizens for the purpose, are scouring all through South Plainfield, New Market and vicinity today and they still have hopes of getting their quarry. A reward of $250 has been offered for his capture and this has been the means of getting a few courageous farmers interested. All the nearby cities and towns have been notified and it is only a question of time when he will be landed. He is not armed and it is believed that hunger will drive him from the woods to the open.

WASHINGTON HEIGHTS IMPROVEMENTS STARTED

FRANK MOBUS CONTRACTS TO DEVELOPE PART OF THE BOROUGH.

The actual work of improvement of the large tract of land in the West End of the borough which was recently purchased by a syndicate, was started on Saturday and rapid progress is now being made. Frank Mobus, of the borough, assisted by William Emmons, has the contract for the work and a large gang is now employed.

The work began with the cutting down of a number of trees near the West End avenue bridge to make room for the widening of that thoroughfare, and yesterday all of the stone flagging on the west side of the avenue, extending many feet from the bridge, was taken up and stored in a nearby lot.

Much of the dirt taken from the upper part of the avenue is being used to fill in near the bridge on the borough side. It is the purpose of the owners of the property to close up the raceway running north and south, as it is nothing more than a breeding place for mosquitoes. The course of Green brook which runs through the property, will be straightened, preparatory to making a large lake. This body of water will be about 1,500 feet long and 300 feet wide. It is also proposed to locate handsome dwellings in the vicinity of this lake, as well as along the new boulevard.

In laying out the boulevard the plan is to make the avenue one hundred feet wide. In the centre will be a row of trees together with electric lights and there will be driveways on either side. It is also possible that a thoroughfare may be provided for automobiles.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL

Mrs. W. A. Westphal Dies From Hurts Received in Auto Accident.

CONSCIOUS AT END.

Took Part in Episcopal Service and Gave Instructions for Her Funeral Arrangements.

From the effects of the injuries she received in the automobile accident at Dunellen Sunday night, Mrs. William A. Westphal died at her home in the Jackson building at 1:35 this morning. Though badly hurt when first picked up after being hurled twenty feet from the wrecked machine, it was thought that her chances of recovery were favorable, but yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock internal injuries, the extent of which had not been known, became manifest. Dr. Thomas Platt, of Dunellen, the attending physician, summoned Drs. Boone and Endicott. The three were with her almost constantly until the end, but her condition was such that their efforts were of no avail.

Mrs. Westphal was conscious until almost the last moment and mentioned to the relatives gathered about just how she wished her funeral to be conducted. She also took part in the service for the dying of the Episcopal church, conducted by Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, rector emeritus of Grace church. In addition to her immediate family, five sisters from Newark were in attendance.

The apparent injuries Mrs. Westphal received were four broken ribs and a dislocated thumb. In the examination conducted by the physicians afterward it was learned that she had been doomed from the beginning and that it was a miracle that she had not been killed outright. The head of Oscar Harris' horse, with which the auto collided, struck her with crushing force in the side and explains how she came to receive the brunt of the shock. In addition she was hurled to the roadway and fell on her back. She retained consciousness, however, and her first cry was:

"My daughter, O save my daughter."

The daughter, Miss Ada Westphal, was rendered partially unconscious by the shock, but quickly revived, and hastening to her mother's side, reassured her of her safety.

Mrs. Westphal was born in England, but had lived in Newark all her life until twenty years ago, when, with her husband, Freeholder William A. Westphal, she moved to Plainfield. Her maiden name was Amelia Wood and her family is widely known in Essex county. During her residence in Plainfield she was an active worker in the Church of the Holy Cross and had been a member of the choir from the time she entered the parish. For the past twelve years she had taught a class in the Sunday school and was greatly interested in the Woman's Guild. Her work in this field was conducted in a quiet way, but she never allowed anything to interfere with it.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two children, Miss Ada Westphal, who graduated from the Plainfield High School last June, and William Westphal, Jr. There are also six sisters, only one of whom did not reach her bedside last night, on account of being at the Thousand Islands, and one brother, who is in Collinsville, Ill.

The other occupants of the machine received injuries of a slight character and are rapidly recovering. Miss Ada Westphal and Walter Vail are still suffering from shock and William R. Stanbery, the owner, has numerous severe contusions and cuts.

In the absence of the Middlesex county authorities, County Physician Westcott granted a burial permit. The funeral arrangements will not be made, however, until the arrival of Mrs. Westphal's other sister and absent brother.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

That William Sanford will at least have some opposition in the lunch business, into which he contemplates going, was shown this morning. Arthur Vail, who keeps a lunch counter here, erected a tent on the right hand side of Nort havenue, almost opposite the loop, where he put on sale soft drinks and light lunch, in charge of his assistant. It is rumored that Vail will build a larger wooden building a little later, and that he is only waiting to see what move Sanford will take. A Plainfield contractor today started work on Sanford's building, a 12x12 structure, within the loop. It will be a one story affair, lunch counter and waiting room combined. Many people say that the Council will not approve of such a small building, and then it will be up to the P. S. C. to do something and live up to its promise of seeing a fit building set up.

Leslie Vliet, the five-and-a-half-year-old son of Walter Vliet, died yesterday morning, after a lingering attack of dysentery. Funeral services will be held from the parents' home tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rev. S. K. Doolittle will officiate. Interment will be made in the Bloomsbury cemetery.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Sociality at Sea Girt.

There has always been two sides of life at Sea Girt during the regimental encampments—the military and social. The soldier boys very properly see little of the latter, for they are there for drill and discipline—but all the same the accompaniments and surroundings are, so critical observers assert, more social this year than ever before.—Hoboken Observer.

Or Sell Drugged Liquors.

One of the Liquor Dealers' Association's representatives has begun proceedings against druggists for selling liquor in bottles without a liquor license. Now if the druggists will reciprocate by proceedings against saloonkeepers who sell liquor on Sundays, the dispute may develop into a relly merry war.—Jersey City Evening Journal.

The Country Can Wait.

Would Be "Important if True."

If Mayor Ellis, of Camden, will ride down Broadway in a trolley car next Sunday evening, and station himself on the front platform, he will find saloons brilliantly lighted, and may see rows of men standing before the bars, and other men behind the bars. If it is a violation of the Sunday laws to sell milk, ice cream ad cigars in Camden on Sunday, how about the output of the saloon?—Gloucester County Democrat.

Obsolete Constitutions.

Rhode Island is one of three States, New Jersey and Connecticut being the others, that are tied up to obsolete State constitutions. But Rhode Island has at least secured a new judiciary system, which went into effect yesterday. Perhaps New Jersey will be given the opportunity to adopt a new system as a result of the investigation of the judicial commission now at work, but there have been so many failures in the past, and there are so many selfish influences opposed, that reform is doubtful.—Newark Advertiser.

No Worse Than "Old Times."

"Graft" and "grafters" we have had always with us, and in the days of the Revolution scandals were perhaps more frequent and odious than they have been at any subsequent period in our history. Human nature and human weakness are exactly what they were in the days of the Fathers, and selfishness, laxity of conscience, the power of temptation, and the innumerable evils that spring from the "auri sacra fames"—the accursed greed for gain—are no more rife or deeply rooted than they were a century ago.—Paterson Daily Press.

Offensive Postal Cards.

Many inquiries are likely to be made by the Elks who visited Buffalo on the occastion of the recent gathering of the order there, as to why their friends throughout the country did not acknowledge the receipt of certain postal cards. According to the story, a large number of foreign postal cards were placed on sale in Buffalo, and were purchased and mailed by the visiting Elks. These cards were decidedly suggestive, and on deliberation the postal authorities decided they should not be transmitted through the United States mails. The Buffalo office has therefore sent them to Washington, where they will be cared for by the Dead Letter Office until destroyed.—Camden Post Telegram.

Up the Hudson.

On Thursdays, July 27, August 10 and 24, the Pennsylavnia Railroad Company will run its usual midsummer excursion to the "Upper Hudson," under personal escort. Special excursion tickets will be sold on these dates for regular trains arriving at Jersey City prior to 10:05 a. m., good to return on same day on any regular train leaving Jersey City after arrival of steamer. A stop will be made at West Point, giving those who disembark an hour and a half at that point, and enabling them to view the United States Military Academy. P. R. R.'S NOVEL FIRE DEP'T.

It Has One on Wheels and More Are to Be Put in Service.

Elizabeth, July 25—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company's new fire department on rails was called out for the first time yesterday to extinguish a blaze on the railroad bridge over Prospect street. The company has suffered a great deal lately by bridge fires, believed to have been caused by tramps, and the idea of a fire department is a result.

A locomotive has been equipped with fire pumps, while an additional tank car and tender contains about 150,000 gallons of water. There are six firement who live in a caboose, and among the paraphernalia are hooks, ladders and helmets. One of these locomotives is stationed at the Waverly freight yards and another is at the roundhouse at Rahway. Yesterday's trail was perfectly successful, and two more engines will be ordered at once to protect property in Jersey City, Newark and Trenton.

It is reported that Deegan will pitch for Plainfield at Westfield on Saturday.

Mallen's interference with Brogan, preventing him from making a double play was very yellow.

Persons suffering from heart disease will find a good panacea in the Plainfield-Westfield ball games.

Kiernan's hit that won the game was the first one for the clever shortstop, but it came at the proper time.

With such fine outfielders as the local team possesses, Cosgrave should let Cregan and Connolly do their share.

It is believed that Dalton will be well enough to cover second base on Saturday. Brogan, his substitute, played fine ball.

The second contest showed that the teams are more evenly matched, although the locals gave away three runs on misplays.

"Billy" Beck more than held his own with Waller, and had the team been up to its usual form, the visitors would only have scored one run.

The days of the old Crescents and West Ends were not so exciting. Manager Denman remarked that he never witnessed such a hard-fought contest.

The Daubsters certainly have their eye on the ball in the present series. Waller's assertion that he would make them bite the dust, is not proving true.

Among the interested spectators at the game were Mrs. Philip Daab and her sons, and Mrs. Martin Daab, of Hoboken, also Editor Baxter, of the Hoboken Inquirer.

Some of the Westfield players have the bad habit of talking back to spectators and making uncalled-for remarks. They would gain the respect of all if they refrained from doing this.

Captain Driscoll worked hard for victory, even though his playing was a trifle off early in the contest. As the game progressed he improved in his playing both in the field and at the bat.

No one now doubts the ability of the locals to hit the ball, even when thrown by that past-master "Red" Waller. In the two games, the Daubsters have made twenty-three hits off "Red," while Westfield has a total of twelve off Deegan and Beck.

This is the way the baseball scribe for the Westfield Standard refers to the initial contest in the county championship series between Plainfield and Westfield:

"Of course, speaking of baseball, he laughs best who laughs last. The winning horse does not always take the lead at the start. Still, there is comfort in having made a good beginning, and Plainfield is entitled to all the satisfaction there is in that experience. Westfielders are loyal to their champions, and will back them up to the last play."

Referring to the question of umpires, Plainfield and Westfield are not the only towns where these individuals fail to please. Manager Denman suggests that league officials be secured for the remaining games in the series. List to this story published in last night's Mail and Express:

"One Johnstone, umpire, should be sent to some nice cool summer resort where medical attendance is at hand. Johnstone suffers from chronic sensitiveness, overplus of dignity and that maddening malady, swelling of the chest.

He likewise has sensitive optics, and he hates to have them looked into by a ball player. Listen to the report of Heine Peitz, catcher for the Pirates, who was suspended three days and fined $30 for being put out of one of the recent Hey Barney Giants' games. Says Heine:

"'When Johnstone said "Strike three, you're out," I merely turned around and looked him squarely in the eye. He looked at me a second; then he waved his hand and said: "You are out of the game, too." I asked, "What for?" Then he told me to clear out of the grounds. Then I told him what I thought of him in plain words, and that is why he preferred charges. Frank Bowerman saw and heard the whole proceedings. He turned to Johnstone and asked him why he was putting me out of the game, and the umpire said to Bowerman: "You keep out, 'I'll run this game. That is all there is to it."

"There is a song called 'Tell Me Only with Thine Eyes,' but Johnstone regards it as a bad ditty."

GOLF.

Secretary Leighton Calkins, of the Metropolitan Golf Association, announces that Walter J. Travis has been selected as captain of the Metropolitan Golf Association team to enter for the Olympic trophy at Wheaton on August 7. He has been authorized to select the three other members.

BALK RULE RARELY ENFORCED

The rules against balking are unusually stringent, so stringent, in fact, that it is almost impossible for the umpire to decide at times when the offense has been committed. Take two of the nine definitions of the balk, for instance: "Throwing the ball by the pitcher to any base to catch the base runner without stepping directly toward such base in the act of making the throw," and "making any motion of the arm, shoulder, hip or body the pitcher habitually makes in his method of delivery without immediately delivering the ball to the bat."

Pitchers often offend against the strict construction of these two rules. Few of the left handers step "directly toward the base" in making the throw to first, and not many of the twirlers throw to the bag after making any "habitual motion of the arm, shoulders, hip or body." Hardly a game passes that one of these two rules is not violated one or more times and some of the pitchers are habitual violators of at least one of the rules.

Altrock, of the Chicago White Sox, one of the most successful twirlers in the business at holding men on first base, always throws to the bag from a position with both hands above his head, exactly the same position which he uses in throwing to the plate. Not half the time does he "step directly toward the base" in making the throw.

The fact is that the rules are so stringent that if they were strictly enforced the pitcher would have to send out advance notices before throwing to first if he wished to be within the regulations. The umpire, recognizing this fact, hesitates to call a balk on very evident breaches of regulations.

PROBABLE FATAL STABBING.

Wedding Celebration at Bernardsville Leads to Trouble.

Bernardsville, July 25—A stabbing affray, in which John Ozair, a Hungarian, received several severe wounds, occurred at the barn of Curtis O. Danster early Sunday morning. The Hungarians were celebrating a wedding which took place Saturday evening. A dispute arose between Ozair, Joe Kondo and Paul Harvath, and they were ejected from the barn. Harvath seized Ozair and held him while Kondo, it is alleged, drew a knife and stabbed him in the back, just below the shoulder blade. Ozair's cries attracted the attention of the Hungarians in the barn, and Dr. Meigh was immediately summoned. He dressed the wounds of the young man, who now lies in a precarious condition.

The men involved attempted to escape, but were captured by Justice of the Peace J. F. Guerin and Martin Siddy. Kondo was searched, but no knife was found.

The prisoners were taken to the office of Justice of the Peace Guerin, who committed them to the county jail at Somerville to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Hot Campaigning.

Is it not carrying military discipline to the extreme of cruelty to make the men turn out tat Sea Girt to drill in the sun with a temperature of 120? No wonder some of the men "keeled over."—Paterson Morning Call.

Case of "Hope Deferred."

The fates seem to conspire against poor old Libbie Garrabrant, who has been imprisoned now for a longer period than an average lifetime. For years her petitions for freedom were denied, notwithstanding the urgent appeals of influential and isinterested friends. At the last meeting of the Board of Pardons, a majority of those present favored granting her appeal, but unfortunately they did not make up a majority of the board. Yesterday there was one absentee, and therefore no hope that the five votes needed would be secured; so action on the petition was deferred until the November session of the board.—Trenton Times.

MORE GRAND COUNCILS OF R.A. IN RATE REVOLT

NEW DEMANDS FOR RECONVENING OF SUPREME BODY.

Quiet work on the part of the joint committees of the councils of the Royal Arcanum in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Richmond, The Bronx and Long Island has accomplished much in the last two weeks toward shaping the opinions of the members of the Grand Councils throughout the country. The committees have accumulated evidence that will disprove the statements made by the Supreme officers that the dissatisfaction caused by the new assessment rates is confined almost wholly to Manhattan and Brooklyn. They are prepared to show that the order throughout the country is threatened with disintegration unless the new tables are modified materially. The Grand Councils of Massachusetts and Pennsylvania have already decided to meet and call upon the Supreme Council to reconvene. It is necessary that a majority of the supreme representatives shall sign the call for the new convention, and the leaders of the movement in this city are confident there will be no trouble in getting the required number.

The joint committees of Manhattan, The Bronx, Brooklyn and Richmond, with the approval of a committee representing the councils of central New York, have sent out a call to the supreme representatives of every State wherein the Arcanum is organized to meet in extraordinary session at some convenient time and place before October 1 to reconsider the legislation enacted in Atlantic City in last May. In this call it is made clear that there is "a spirit of insurrection so widespread and unquestionably spontaneous that it must of necessity have originated in a real wrong." The supreme representatives of every State are assured that in the "storm centres" of the order, Manhattan and Brooklyn, "the processes of disintegration, consequent upon this unfortunate legislation, are beyond the ability of the most loyal members to stay."

The rates are discussed as being "revolutionary, wrongful and fallacious." The new tables are called fallacious because "the principle upon which they are based is clearly faulty in reason, will prove to be deceptive in operation and must inevitably defeat the avowed purpose of the Royal Arcanum."

The Grand Council of Pennsylvania will meet on Wednesday at the call of Grand Regent Frank B. Wickersham, of Harrisburg. The delegates have been instructed by the councils of Pennsylvania to submit three propositions to the supreme representatives. One of these demands is that benefit certificates shal have a cash surrender value when held for at least ten years. The second is that there shall be an advance of 50 per cent. on each member based upon the assessment rate paid at the time of entering the order. The third proposition is that members who have attained 60 years shall surrender their $3,000 policies, if they hold them, and that new policies be issued to them for $2,000 at the monthly rate of the higher figure.

These suggestions will not be acceptable to the New York delegates, it is said, for the reason that they are opposed to the imposition of a penalty for age. They are opposed to the cash surrender value because it is not fraternal, and the strong objection the members in this city have to the new rates is that they practically wipe out fraternalism, which is the corner stone of the Arcanum.

CHANCELLOR OFF FOR MAINE.

Vice Chancellor Bergen to Act as Statutory Master Until August 15.

Trenton, July 25 — Chancellor Magie left yesterday morning for York Cliffs, Me., where he will spend his vacation, lasting until some time in September. The chancellor expects to remain out of the State all this time except two days about the middle of August, when he will sit in the Chancery Chambers, Jersey City, for the purpose of signing such orders and documents, the disposition of which cannot, under the statutes, be delegated to any other members of the court.

Before leaving Chancellor Magie filed in the Court of Chancery his appointment of Vice Chancellor Bergen as statutory master, in which capacity he will act until August 14, when the chancellor will return to Jersey City for two days. As statutory master Vice Chancellor Bergen will have power to sign all formal orders of the Court of Chancery which usually devolve upon the chancellor, with the exception of the final decrees. In order not to put too great an amount of work upon Vice Chancellor Bergen, the chancellor, on August 15, will designate another vice chancellor to serve as statutory master until the chancellor's return in September.

Practical Extermination.

The Newark City Shade Tree Commission pays 10 cents a quart for caterpillars, cocoons and insect masses gathered from trees in the parks or streets. A representative of the commission is at the bandstand in Military Park every afternoon to receive the insects and pay the money. This certainly "beats the bugs."—Paterson Daily Press.

APPARENT DEFECTS IN THE CENSUS LAW

THE ACT SEEMS TO REQUIRE IMPOSSIBILITIES—NEWARK'S POPULATION.

The local work of census enumeration, which, to comply with the law, should have been completed by the second week in June, was not finished on time. Those in charge of the worksay they did their best to hurry it along as rapidly as was consistent with a thorough canvass, and if this be true it would appear that the law requires impossibilities. The canvass act also says that the tabulations shall be completed by August 1.

Judging from local conditions it would appear that the act, which was passed at the last session of the Legislature, is open to criticism in certain features. One is the brief space of time it provides for the enumeration; another is the provision which directs that the work of the canvassers shall be done in the summer, a season which finds many of the urban residents away from their homes. Locally, much delay was occasioned by the effort to obtain the names of absentees, and many of these are still on the list of the missing. Whether a future Legislature will correct these apparant defects in the law remains to be seen.

"Upon the receipt by the Secretary of State of the tabulated returns of the various supervisors," says the act, "he shall prepare ageneral account specifying the result thereof in the several counties, cities and other municipal divisions, as evidenced by the supervisors' returns, with a full recapitulation of the whole, which report shall be submitted to the Governor on the first day of December in each year, or as soon thereafter as completed, and such submission shall be taken as and be the official ascertainment and promulgation of said census, and thereafter published in pamphlet form, and the returns as filed by the Secretary of State shall be carefully bound together by districts and deposited in the State Library, together with a bound copy of the general account and the recapitulation thereof."

LITERARY.

The cover design on the August Metropolitan Magazine is by Blendon Campbell and is in full color, as is also the frontispiece by George Gibbs. The latter is perfectly reproduced in four printings, the original being a pastel of extreme delicacy in handling and color. There is a four-page colored insert describing the method by which original paintings the reproduced and printed in this magazine, and a full-color page from the original by Henry Hutt to accompany Caroline Duer's story, "The Escapade."

In the August issue of "Success Magazine" Arthur W. Dunn has an interesting sketch entitled "Senator Morgan as a Long Talker." He tells this amusing anecdote:

Some fifteen years ago, after one of his extended efforts, when he spoke for two or three days to aid in the defeat of the election bill, some one asked him how he could really talk.

"It depends upon the subject," he replied. "If it were a matter that I thoroughly understand, I could talk for two or three days, if it were upon a matter I know nothing about, I could talk for two or three weeks."

One of Nantucket's summer visitors strolled into the little shop kept by an old man, a native of the place.

In looking about she found a kind of linen cloth which she bought for fancy work. Some friends who saw and liked it, went to the shop and purchased all that remained.

In a few days the proprietor went to the "mainland" to replenish his stock, and bought more of the same goods, which, also, were soon sold.

"Well!" exclaimed Uncle Hi as the last yard went, "if any more of you folks want that stuff you can go ter the mainland an' git it. I can't keep nothing in this here shop!"—Frances B. Phipps, in August Lippincott's.

It is nearly a year since an American magazine has been fortunate enough to secure a story from Kipling; but the August Century prints a tale, "An Habitation Enforced," which gives us Kipling at his best. Someone, in comparing Kipling with the old, three-volume novelist, has said that he gives us "the Liebig extract of those cattle lowing on a thousand hills," so here, where two Americans, a nervously broken millionaire and his wife, take up an enforced habitation in an enchanted corner of England, he contrives to give a quintessence of American and British civilization—a commentary, in brief, with vistas such as only a Kipling can open up. A delightful vein of satire crops out wherever the British way and the American way meet, a vein which will charm readers on both sides the Atlantic. Most readers, too, will find in this latest story of the greatest of living English story-writers the spiritual touch which was so strongly manifest in "They," seemingly marking a new and higher phase of development in man and writer.

Plainfield, N. J., July 25, 1905.

Excluding Dowie, District Attorney Jerome seems to be the most widely advertised man in the country.

Charles Codding, of Westfield and Trenton, says that there is no Kean-Fowler fight. Why continue the investigation?

J. Fred MacDonald will make a first class freeholder and in every sense of the word is a fit man to succeed the late Captain Hubbard. He is a representative of the type of men that should be placed in responsible public positions.

The current issue of the Railroad Employe, published in the interests of railroad men, is devoted to the Jersey Central. On the front page is a group picture of the general officers of the road including Vice President W. G. Besler, General Passenger Agent C. M. Burt, Chief Engineer J. O. Osgood, General Traffic Manager T. B. Koons and Superintendent of Motive Power William McIntosh, all of this city. The number as a whole is the best that the publishers have produced.

Concluding an elaborate review of a costly booklet forwarded to it for editorial eulogy, an advertiser's magazine says that "the general effect is so artistic that even one without interest in the subject drops the circular into the waste basket reluctantly." As one of the main objects of the advertiser is to draw the trade of those originally "without interest in the subject," his effort is a failure when his "ad" is consigned to the waste basket. Proper use of newspaper space would diminish the number of uninterested and pave the way for a more cordial and open-minded reception of circulars.—Ex.

QUAIL FOR COUNTY.

800 to be Turned Loose in Union by Game Association.

In order to provide grain this coming winter for the sustenance of 800 quail which were turned loose in Union county last fall, the State Game Association has notified Game Warden C. M. Hawkins to make arrangements with farmers throughout the district to furnish 1,000 sheafs of wheat, so that the same may be left out in the fields for the accommodation of the birds.

The game association is of the opinion that it is much better to furnish the grain in the sheaf than in the loose state, for the reason that if scattered about much of it is very liable to be lost and washed away. The sheafs will also afford protection for the birds.

Game Warden Hawkins said today that each pair of quail should hatch out on an average twenty-five birds a year.

NO FAST SCHEDULE.

Railroad People Say Reading Will Not Have Ninety Minute Trains.

Despite the recent reports that the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad officials intend to adopt a ninety minute schedule for through trains between Jersey City and Philadelphia, it is the opinion of many railroad people that it will not be done. It is contended that the present schedule is fast enough for all purposes and that the officials have never been in favor of a faster one.

The Reading system is controlled by the Pennsylvania and Lake Shore roads and it is not likely that any changes will be made whereby the interests of the Pennsy will suffer, as that road is also looking for its share of the traffice between New York and Philadelphia.

Druggist Wants His Bike.

Some person appropriated Peter B. Hodge's new Cleveland bicycle Saturday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock and has failed to return it. The wheel was standing in front of a window on the Watchung avenue side of his drug store and when he went to get it a little later he found that it had been stolen.

THE REGISTRATION LAWS

How to Get a Name on the Lists to be Able to Vote.

TOLD IN A BRIEF WAY

The Laws of New Jersey to Date and Boiled Down for Instruction of Citizens.

These facts concerning registration and elections will prove interesting to the voters:

Chapter 141, approved April 12. Providing for the revision of the registry lists by the court. The law makes it the duty of the justice of the supreme court assigned to hold the circuit court, and the judge of the court of common pleas in each county of the State, or one of said judges, to hold a court of common pleas at the court house, in their respective counties, the Monday next preceding the general election, from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., to revise and correct the registry of election in the election districts or the county.

In case any legal voter in any election district in the county has been refused the right to register, or his name has been inadvertently left off the registry list, he may, on said day, apply in person to the court for the purpose of having his name added to the registry. Upon the presentation to the court of satisfactory evidence that the applicant is entitled to vote a certificate, under the seal of the court, shall be given to him to that effect, and the clerk of the court shall add his name to the proper register. Election day the voter shall present the certificate to the election board in his district. His name shall be added to the register there and he shall be permitted to cast his ballot.

The judges are also to hold court at the court house election day from 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. for the same purpose, and the procedure will be the same as already described. The county board of election is required to present to the court the Monday morning next preceding the election, for its use the two days, all the copies of the registry lists on file with the board.

In making investigations under this act the court is empowered to act in a summary manner. It may issue subpoenaes for the production of papers or persons, and shall have the sam eauthority as in any civil case. The sheriff is required to serve all processes authorized by the court. If any board of registry or election, or any member thereof, shall refuse to comply with the order of the court, such refusal may be punished as for contempt of court. Each of the judges holding court as provided shall be entitled to receive an additional salary of $20 for each day he shall be personally present at the sitting of the court.

Chapter 192, approved April 27. Amends section 1 of chapter 3, approved February 1b. Contains a further proviso that nothing in the act consolidating the elections shall be construed to affect the election of commissioners in those municipalities, the boundaries of which are not co-terminous or co-extensive with the boundaries of the township of which they are a part, and whose elective or appointive officers are not authorized by law to assess or collect taxes.

Chapter 215, approved April 28. An act to provide for the purchase of voting machines and to regulate their use at elections. Authorizes the use of the machines at all elections, general or special, hereafter held in this State, except school meetings and primary elections. A voting machin commission is provided for, and bids must be advertised for when machines are to be purchased. The Secretary of State is to designate the election districts in which new machines are to be placed.

Boards of freeholders are empowered to purchase machines for use in their respective counties, provided the machines are of a type approved by the voting machine commission. Bonds may be issued to provide the cost of the machines. Municipalities in which machines are used are required to care for, repair and insure the machines used by them. In any district designated by the Secretary of State for the use of the machine it is compulsory upon the election officers to use them.

Chapter 255. Amends the sections of the general election law relating to the county boards of election, and the district registry and etelcion boards. Under the amendments all county election boards as now constituted go out of office August 1.

The county election boards are to consist of four members, to be commissioned by the Governor in July each year, and who shall be legal voters in the county for which they are appointed. They are to be nominated to the Governor by the chairmen of the State committee of the two parties which at the last preceding general election cast the largest number of votes for members of the assembly. Two of the members are to be appointed for one year and the other two for two years from August 1. Thereafter one member of the board shall be appointed annually by each chairman in the same manner, and shall hold office for two years from August 1.

The county board is to organize the first Tuesday in August, and it shall appoint boards of registry and election for each election district in the county, to consist of four members each, residents and legal voters in their respective districts. They are to be appointed on or before August 25, on nomination made in writing by the chairmen of the county committees of the two principal political parties. These nominations must be made after August 10 and before August 15. The terms of office of the members of the district boards shall begin September 1, and the term of office shall be one year. county for the new countyshrcmwfy

NOT IN U. P. AGREEMENT.

District Attorney Makes This Statement of Equitable.

After a week of seclusion in Lakeville studying reports of Equitable affairs, District Attorney Jerome came to New York yesterday noon to give battle in the headquarters of graft.

He went to the Equitable building, 120 Broadway, and entered the office of E. H. Harriman, president of the Union Pacific, formerly a director of the insurance society, and then to Kuhn, Loeb & Co.'s. Mr. Harriman has been accused of being interested in the sale of his railroad securities to the Equitable, and especially of getting up a syndicate to purchase a large quantity of Union Pacific preferred under agreement to hold it without selling for five years.

The banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., of which Jacob H. Schiff, former Equitable director, is the head, was the selling agent in this transaction. Mr. Schiff testified before Superintendent Hendricks that he did not know the Equitable as a purchaser, but only James H. Hyde.

James H. Hyde, in his testimony, said:

"I have no copy of the Union Pacific matter in my possesion. Mr. Harriman refuses to give it to me."

Won't Let Hawaii Gov. Quit.

Oyster Bay, July 25—Gov. George R. Carter, of Hawaii, who is so much of a man after the President's heart that Mr. Roosevelt fondly talks of him as a "brick," came to Sagamore Hill yesterday to offer his resignation. His visit fell short of its purpose only for the reason that President Roosevelt would not let him resign.

Whole Family Killed by Toadstools.

Vineland, N. J., July 25—Toadstools, mistaken for mushrooms, have wiped out the family of Joseph Franzoi, of Minola, near here. His two children, each less than four years old, died the day after eating them. The father and mother lived until yesterday.

CRANFORD'S SCHEME FOR HOTEL FALLS THROUGH

PROPOSED $250,000 HOSTELRY WILL NOT BE BUILT.

The Cranford Inn, the proposed $250,000 hotel which it was reported was to be erected on the Bookhout property, on Union avenue and the Rahway River, Cranford, is not to be built, and it is now learned that the Cranford Inn Company was a corporation only in name. The names of the men said to be interested in the scheme of building a mammoth hotel were ready to form the corporation, and went so far as to have secured an option of the Bookhout property, the owners of which agreed to sell for the sum of $25,000. This option expired on July 10, and since then it has been learned that the scheme has fallen through.

Thomas A. Sperry, who was greatly interested in the proposition, stated this morning that the hotel proposition had fallen through, and admitted that he and his brother, W. M. Sperry, were ready with a large amount of capital to be put into the scheme, had everything progressed all right, and the men interested decided to incorporate the company and build the hotel.

The Bookhout brothers, owners of the property, when interviewed a few days ago, stated that the option on the land had expired, nad was not renewed; that the property was on the market for sale, and that they were considering a proposition to exchange the land for a farm near Watertown, N. Y., and that other parties wanted the property for a site for a Hebrew institution, while a wealthy Italian desired to purchase the land for building purposes.

COLONEL MANN ARRIVES.

Says He Does Not Know Ahle—Praises "Fads and Fancies."

Colonel W. B. Mann, principal owner of Town Topics, accompanied by Mrs. Mann, arrived last night on the Red Star liner Zeeland from an extended vacation abroad. The Zeeland was late in docking, so that it was after 8 o'clock before Colonel Mann landed.

District Attorney Jerome, who has also been on a vacation at Lakeville, Conn., beat the colonel by a few hours. He reached his office during the afternoon. He had, it is believed, intended to invite the colonel to his office at once if the liner had reached her pier earlier, but the meeting was postponed until today. The colonel was met at the pier by State Senator Wray, of Brooklyn, and Justice Deuel. He defended Town Topics, its methods, its opinions, its everything. He said he was prepared for any and all investigations, and invites them.

When asked what he knew of Ahle and his methods, the colonel's face reddened with anger and he said:

"Any man or set of men that would fall to a game like that must be fools or cowards. I don't know Ahle, never heard of him, and I want to say right here that if any Town Topics men have been guilty of blackmail I hope they will go to jail, and I'll help to put them there.

"Just before I sailed I heard about Ahle being in trouble, but I do not know the man. I never heard of him and neither he nor any one else had any right to use the name of Town Topics to convey any threat.

COST BETTORS $100,000.

A bad start in the fifth race at the Brighton Beach track yesterday caused so much dissatisfaction that a large crowd gathered around the stewards' stand and demanded that the race be run again.

Devout, favorite in the field of seven starters, was left at the post, and bettors lost nearly $100,000 because of his defeat. Just who was to blame for his poor send-off was not definitely settled even to the satisfaction of the stewards. From the evidence furnished by witnesses and the statement of Mars Cassidy and Jockey Martin, Devout's rider, it seems that Dowdell, the assistant started, was more to blame than Cassidy or Martin.

NO FOWLER-KEAN FIGHT

Codding Says All is Serene in Union G. O. P. Camp.

DENIES SOME RUMORS

Senatorship to Come to Plainfield—Whoever Has Support From Here Will be Nominated.

Republicans in Union county take issue with the stories suggesting a possible factional fight in the county over the Senatorship. They assert that there has not been a time in many years when the Republicans were more harmonious than they now are, or when they felt more absolutely sure of a Republican victory. Among those who talked with a correspondent was Charles N. Codding, the deputy clerk of the Supreme Court. Mr. Codding was for seven years the chairman of the Union County Republican Committee and for two years a member of the House of Assembly, and has been for many years recognized as an authority on Union county politics and as being well informed on State politics generally. After referring to the stories in circulation, he said:

"The political situation in Union county has apparently been misunderstood, or it has been misrepresented. I have seen several items in newspapers which might lead to the belief that factional rivalry exists in that county. That is emphatically untrue. The political situation in so far as the fall campaign and the Republican party's connection with it are concerned is that we shall elect a State Senator, three members of the Assembly and a sheriff, and that to this end there is not a sign of factional disturbance within the county, nor will there be, so far as I can see, either in the Republican County Convention or throughout the campaign.

In so far as the Senatorship is concerned, the sentiment of the party, as I understand it, is that the candidate should come from Plainfield, and, carrying out the home rule principle which so strongly exists in Union county, the candidate for Senator who comes to the county convention from Plainfield with the strong endorsement o fthe city will be nominated. It seems to me that all that Plainfield will have to do will be to agree upon a candidate, and there is every indication that this will be done without a hitch. Certainly there is no factional disturbance anywhere in the county, nor can any be revived which will prevent, or attempt to prevent, the Republicans of Plainfield from carrying out their intention of naming the next Republican candidate for Senator. From what I have learned, I know that the Republicans of Plainfield are not divided in their views, and will support the candidate with winning unanimity that public sentiment crystallizes about. I want to say with all the emphasis that I can command that the Republicans of the rest of the county will not interfere with the free choice of the Plainfield Republicans.

"There is no contest, nor the shadow of a contest, for party supremacy between United States Senator Kean and Congressman Fowler over any of these nominations. In fact, I have never known a time when either of these leading Republicans had less personal interest in the party candidates than now. Both of them will heartily and loyally support the candidates of the Republican county convention, and their advice or suggestion, if it should be sought now or later, would be that harmony, fair consideration of geographical claims and the nomination of the best and most acceptable candidates that can be found should be the guide of the convention as preliminary to party success.

"There is no contest whatever for the chairmanship of the Union County Republican Committee made vacant by the death of Assemblyman Coyne. I am not a candidate for the place, as has been intimated, nor shall I be, and in so far as I understand the feeling of the Republicans, it is that County Registrar Frank H. Smith, the present vice-chairman of the committee, should succeed to the chairmanship. His selection would be the natural sequence of the situation, and it would be as gratifying as it would be wise."—New York Tribune.

ENVOYS WILL MEET TODAY.

"We Are Not Overanxious, Not Oversanguine," Says Komura.

Chicago, July 25—Baron Komura, Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs and peace plenipotentiary, left here at 2:45 yesterday on the Pennsylvania Railroad's eighteen-hour flier, and arrived at Twenty-third Street, New York, at 9:45 this morning.

"At New York we shall meet Minister Takahira, whom we expect to have word from President Roosevelt inviting us to call either at Oyster Bay or Washington. We desire peace, yet are not overanxious, nor are we oversanguine that the negotiations will be productive. The Japanese protectorate over Korea will open the way for Japanese immigration there and divert it from this country."

WOLF HUNTING A SOCIETY FAD

SPORT POPULAR IN OKLAHOMA SINCE PRESIDENT'S VISIT.

MEN AND WOMEN IN HUNT

Unarmed Parties Round Up the Prey and Dogs Do the Killing—Chasing Lobo Wolves Is Most Exciting.

Guthrie, Okla.—Although wolf and fox-hunting as a sport has been popular throughout the two territories for several months, yet the recent trip into the south by President Roosevelt to hunt wolves in southern Oklahoma and Texas has intensified the interest until it is now a society fad, the women taking part with the men in cross-country riding after the wolves, foxes or coyotes, according to which part of the territory the hunt is taking place.

Big hunts are planned weeks ahead, and in some instances several hundred persons, men and women, have participated. The spoils are the scalps of the animals slain by the dogs, for no firearms are permitted in these chases, and all parties rush to be in at the finish when the dogs, which have cornered a pack of wolves, put up a death fight against their wild brethren.

On the day of the chase all who are to participate assemble at a rendezvous and are divided into companies, each with a well known guide and hunter for a leader. They circle a given tract of land, perhaps miles in extent, and when all are in place the signals are sounded and the chase is on. All companies close in toward the center, and in this manner the game is driven together in a pack. The dogs do the rest. There are few of the women who do not scorn the conventional side saddle. They wear divided skirts, use the cowboy or military saddle and thus lessen the dangers of such sport.

THE WOMEN TAKE PART WITH THE MEN IN CROSS-COUNTRY RIDING AFTER WOLVES.

The most exciting chase, of course, is that after the big lobo wolves, the kind President Roosevelt hunted in this territory. They are the only wolves in either territory that will attack mankind, and this only heightens the excitement of the chase. The timber wolves travel in bands and are often hurtful to stock in certain seasons, as they hunt in packs, but the lobo wolf will attack a man without the aid of any of his companions. This is only done, however, when the wolf is very hungry and a man is caught alone on the range.

The lobo does not hunt in packs, but alone or in families. A male lobo with his bitch will hunt for days together, perhaps without encountering others of his kind. They attack a cow or steer simultaneously and with well-planned success. They sidle cautiously alongside their victim, one on each side, and drag their prey to the ground. When one or the other loses his mate the lone wolf will hunt, but in a different manner. His mode of attack is singular. He first cuts the tendons of the steer's hind legs, "hamstringing" him by a vicious snap of the sharp teeth. The steer sinks to the ground and the lobo then cuts his throat with another sharp snap.

Among the society ladies of Guthrie who are particularly fond of this cross country sport is Miss Hedwig Braun, a former resident of St. Louis. She is an excellent horsewoman, and has never had an accident. Miss Braun is an expert swimmer, and thinks nothing of diving a distance of 20 feet from the Santa Fe bridge, near Guthrie, into the salty waters of the Cimarron river, whose waters are made salt in flowing through the immense saline beds in northwestern Oklahoma. Miss Braun also holds the woman's record for climbing Pike's peak, breaking all other records during the past summer.

Father Shoots Dying Son.

Brussels.—On his deathbed a wealthy youth, Raphael Vausevern, was married at midnight. He had asked his father's consent to marry, and when it was withheld there was a quarrel, during which the father seized a gun and fired at his son, mortally wounding him. When Vausevern was informed that his condition was hopeless, he again asked his father's consent to his marriage, and the ceremony took place in his bedroom. When it concluded the bride fainted, and a few minutes later the bridegroom died.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

OFFICIAL.

Adjourned meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, July 13, 1905, at the bridge on Morris avenue, crossing the Rahway River, bening the dividing line between the townships of Springfield and Union.

Roll call showed seventeen (17) members present.

Absent—Freeholders Cady and Westphal—2.

There were also present County Attorney Codington, County Engineer Bauer, and Mr. F. H. Alleman, the latter representing the Morris County Traction Company.

Director King stated that the meeting was held pursuant to a motion adopted at the last regular meeting of the Board held July 6, 1905, and at the point where the members of the Board were now assembled, to examine the condition of the bridge before mentioned, and to take such action as the Board might see fit relative to repairing the same, or building a new bridge.

An informal discussion ensued, and Freeholder Jensen moved that County Engineer Bauer be authorized to draw plans and specifications required for repairing the present bridge, the cost not to exceed $3,000.

Freeholder Kline moved to amend, "not to exceed $3,500," which amendment was accepted by Freeholder Jensen, and the motion as amended was adopted, receiving 16 ayes.

Nays—Freeholder Meisel—1.

Absent—Freeholders Cady and Westphal—2.

Freeholder Adams moved to adjourn, which was carried.

The Director declared the Board adjourned until Thursday, August 3, 1905, at 2:30 p. m.

S. Rusling Ryno, Clerk.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

Handkerchief sachets of linen with detachable covers embroidered with initials are very attractive.

Some girls are making blouses of all-over embroidery. They are elaborate without the necessity of tucking and inserting, says an exchange.

Bolero jackets of white linen cost $3.50 ready stamped for embroidering, and the more elaobrate frock-and-frill jackets $1 more. These frequently have the edge finished with an embroidered scallop, and one of the prettiest patterns is an all-over dot. Cut out in open rings, these are also pretty.

For traveling a housewife-shaped pinholder is most convenient. This is made of an oblong, gay-colored silk or cretonne, lined with a plain silk, having a layer of flannel or batting between, and bound at the edges with baby ribbon. It is filled with pins in rows inside and then folded up envelope-wise, fastening with a bow or ribbon.

For the bedroom a shoe case can be made of a bag of the cretonne divided into sections for slippers and shoes and finished with robbons and bows, and a bag for soiled handkerchiefs and turnovers should also match the rest of the little draperies. Net, appliqued with cretonne flowers and put over a plain, colored lining, is always pretty and can be combined in little things with cretonne draperies.

Collars and cuffs of heavy lace brighten up a silk shirt waist and are easily made at home. The collar takes three-eighths of a yard of heavy lace two inches wide and the cuffs half a yard more. The collar can be shaped in front or left in a perfectly straight piece and pinned with the three small pearl head or gold pins at the back. If it is liked one can bone it at either side and on one end at the back to keep from slipping down and wrinkling. Collar bone can be bought for a few cents a yard already covered with silk for this purpose. A Velenciennes set which could not be bought ready made under several dollars was made at home from a few scraps of the lace left from a dress. Two rows of insertion with a frill edging formed the collar, while three rows, also bordered with the edging, made the cuffs.

Martin Stutsman, who was overcome by heat last week while coming home from New York, is gradually recovering.

Country Women's Clubs

They Can Be Made Pleasant and Profitable

It is strange that there are so few clubs among women of the rural districts. At the same time there is no locality in which the feminine club is so much needed as in a farm neighborhood, where the women's lives are often so isolated, sometimes only a dreary stretch of toil from year end to year end. The trouble with wives and mothers in farm homes is that they have so many kinds of work to do that they can only put the ox spirit into it instead of the enthusiasm which is the natural quality of the immortal soul.

Take the average joyous, pretty country girl. She falls in love and marries young, without knowledge or a thought of what she is going into. The young farmer perhaps knows no more than she of what is due to his wife and the woman who is to rear through years of incessant toil and awful monotony the children that come to them. It is certain if her husband knew the pain and hardship of the average farm woman's life he would lighten her burdens. It is also certain that if the pretty, heedless country girl took proper thought of what is inevitably before her she would wait several years ere she accepted such a fate."

There will be no relief from the dreariness of life that so many women in the country endure till they themselves find that relief. Some of the intelligent and progressive among them have found recreation and benefit in the club. This can be maintained in the country quite as well as in a city or town.

The Farm Women's Club.

In starting any organization all depends on the good temper and unselfishness of the members. A few ironclad rules should be agreed on, one of the first of which is that no petty personal gossip shall ever be countenanced in the club.

The officers necessary are few. A president, vice president, secretary and treasurer are enough. These can constitute a board to pass on the nomination of new members and transact other necessary business. No constitution and bylaws are required for so simple a club, nor is incorporation necessary unless the organization becomes rich enough to own property, which can happen. A manual of parliamentary usage, small and inexpensive, can easily be obtained.

There should be music always at the club sessions, with recitations and discussions of questions interesting to every feminine dweller in a rural region. Such topics are the following: "How May a Woman Earn Money at Home?" "How Can Farm Homes Be Made More Comfortable, Convenient and Sightly?" "Improving Roads and Roadsides and Making the Region Attractive to Outsiders." National and international questions also are quite as interesting to women as to men.

Time to attend club meetings can be obtained simply by taking time. It is as easy to attend club meetings as to attend church. Work can be simplified and systematized. The meetings can be made so attractive that the club afternoon will be looked forward to with delight. Meetings may be held at the homes of members at first, but a neat clubhouse is sure to come later.

An Industrial Club.

One club of country women among the Cornish hills in Vermont has developed into a lucrative money earning society. The Mothers and Daughters' club had been organized for mutual improvement and social pleasure among the girls and women of Cornish hills. Its members were, however, so wide awake and industrious that they took up the occupation of hand rug making.

A Boston woman whose summer home is among the Cornish hills suggested to the intelligent farm women club members that they take up the work of making art rugs in the fine old fashioned way of their grandmothers and thus get some money for themselves. Later the weaving of draperies and bedspreads was added to the enterprise. The industry was surprisingly successful, the women's work meeting ready sale. The club has now a pretty home of its own, handsomely furnished with some of the [illegible]

CAROLINE ANDREWS.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

And now poor Pat was gone and Prime's father had been cabling for him to return home; but there was that awkward matter about the desertion. Gen. Drayton was trying to have it straightened out at Washington, for he had been kindness itself the day of his visit to the hospital, where almost his first act had been to seek out the wounded young soldier who had been his beloved nephew's boon companion, and at one time sole support. The sentry was relieved of his surveillance, and Corp. Norton transferred to Corregidor to recuperate; and now that both lads were well on the road to recovery, Drayton had sent for them. Strictly speaking, some one should have seen to it that Corp. Norton, of the volunteers, was shifted back to Private Morton, of the —teenth, and the chevrons stripped from his sleeves; but no one had cared to interfere where the worsted was concerned, especially as the boy had won such praise for bravery at Concordia Bridge. So there the chevrons stood when the two were ushered into the presence of the gray-haired chief, and he arose, and, stepping forward, held out a hand to each.

"I want you, boys," said he, "to be ready to take the next transport home. The doctors say you need a sea voyage, Gray; so there is the order. The doctors say your father needs you, Prime; and the record will be duly straightened out in Washington—the charge of desertion, no doubt, will be removed. It's a matter of influence. To-night you dine with me here; and I have asked your good friend, Col. Armstrong, to come."

Again the blood rose guiltily to Billy's cheek. Not yet had he made his peace with his conscience and that valued counselor and invaluable friend from whose good graces he seemed to have fallen entirely. Not once had opportunity been afforded in which to speak and open his heart to him. As for writing, that seemed impossible. Billy could handle almost any implement better than a pen. But even in the few minutes left him in which to think he knew that now at least he must "face the music," like the man his father would have him be, even though it took more nerve than did that perilous dash on the Tagal works that Sunday morning. Billy would rather do that twice over than have to face Armstrong's stern, searching eyes, and hear again the cold, almost contemptuous tone in which the colonel said to him the day the doctor led his vanquished and hysterical charmer from the room: "Don't try to thank, man; try to think what you risk—what you deserve to lose—for putting yourself in the power of such a woman."

From that day until this, here on the banks of the swift-running Pasig, they had not met at all; and it seemed to Gray as though Armstrong had aged a year. There was a lump in his throat as he went straight up to the colonel, his blue eyes never flinching, though they seemed to fill, and bravely spoke. "Col. Armstrong, I have an explanation that I owe to you. Will you give me a few minutes on the gallery?"

"Certainly, Gray," was the calm reply; and the youngster led the way.

It was a broken story. It told of his desperation and misery through Canker's persecution, of his severe illness, then of the utter weakness and prostration; then her coming, and with her comfort, peace, reassurance, gradual return to health, and with that, gradual surrender to his nurse's fascinations. Then her demand upon him, her plea, her final insistence that he should prove his gratitude and devotion by getting for her those dangerous letters, and his weakness in letting her believe he could and would do so. That was the situation when they went on to Manila; and Armstrong knew the rest—knew that but for his timely aid she might have triumphed over his repentance; but Armstrong had come, had vanquished her and poor Latrobe's last wishes were observed. The fateful packet containing the three letters that were most important was placed in his uncle's trembling hand.

"But how was it—what was it that so utterly crushed her?" asked Billy, when the colonel had once more extended his hand.

"The evidences of her own forgery, her own guilt," said Armstrong, gravely. "One was the order she wrote in excellent imitation of her husband's hand and signature, authorizing the changing of guard arrangements on the wharf the evening Stewart sailed. The other was a note in pencil, also purporting to come from him, directing old Keeny—you remember the general's Irish orderly—to search for a packet of letters that had come by mail, and must be in the general's tent, either about his desk or overcoat, and to bring them at once to room number so and so at the palace. Of course, neither the general nor Garrison was there when he arrived with them; but she was, and with all her fascinations. She got the Irishman half drunk, and told him a piteous story and made him swear he'd never tell the general or anybody. If questioned he could plead he had gone out, and —'got a little full with the boys.' She gave him money—a big bit, too; and he got more than full. The very vehemence of his denials made me suspect him," said Armstrong: "but he was firm when examined. The general never required him to remain at the tent at night. He could go to town any evening he wished; and to cover his appearing at the Palace where the general long had a room, and where he was well known, he could say he was only in to have a word with one of the housemaids, and to give Mrs. Garrison a handkerchief one of the ladies must have dropped. But one thing she failed in—getting the letter back. Keeny had left it at camp in the pocket of his old blouse, and when he sobered up and all the questions were asked he hung onto it in case the truth came out, in order that he might save himself from punishment. But it broke him—he got to drinking oftener, and the general had to send him to his regiment; and then when he heard of Canker's charge against you, I saw the way to wring the truth out of him. He worshiped your father, as did every Irish dragoon that ever rode under him; and I told him you were to be brought to trial for the crime. Then he broke down and gave the truth—and her penciled order—to me."

In the silence that followed the soldier of 40 and the lad of only 21 sat looking gravely into each other's face. It was Armstrong who spoke again:

"Gray, it was manly in you to tell me your story and your trouble. I could help you here; but—who can help you when you have to tell it—next time?"

"Next time?—father, do you mean?" queried Gray, a puzzled look in his blue eyes. "I hadn't thought, do you know, to worry dear old dad—unless he asked."

Armstrong's grave face grew dark. "You ought to know what I mean, Gray. This story may come up when least you think for, and—would you have it told Miss Lawrence before she hears it from you?"

"Miss Lawrence," answered Billy, flushing, "isn't in the least interested."

"Do you mean that you are not—that you were not engaged to her?" The colonel had been gazing out over the swirling river; but now, with curious contraction of brows, with a strong light in his eyes, he had turned full on the young officer.

A Hot-Weather Remedy.

If the weather is too hot for you get next Sunday's New York World. Turn to The World Magazine and read any one of the three short fiction stories, each of which is absorbing enough to make you forget the weather. "The White Mist," by Owen Oliver, is a strikingly imaginative love story; "The Five Orange Pips," by Conan Doyle, is a great detective story, and the O. Henry sketch fits right into the midsummer. There are besides a dozen other striking features in next Sunday's World.

What Cleveland Said.

Ex-President Cleveland is opposed to women's clubs. He thinks woman's mission is to rock the cradle. It is to be supposed that he further agrees that while woman rocks the cradle man should go fishing. —From "Vest Pocket Confidences," in Four-Track News for July.

Senator Morgan is silent just now on the canal question, probably because he thinks he'll have time to make a complete speech in the 200 years his friends have decided it will take to finish the ditch.—Newark Advertiser.

COSE FOR COUNCIL.

Popular Third Ward Republican Announces His Candidacy.

John H. Cose, of the Third Ward, announced last night that he will be a candidate for Common Council to succeed Leslie M. Daniel, the president of that body, whose term expires this fall. He says that he understands that Mr. Daniel will not accept a renomination and that he is in the hands of his friends for the place.

Mr. Cose is very popular about the city and has many friends in the Third Ward especially. He has taken an active part in Republican politics and has rendered great assistance in getting out the full party vote. His chances are considered bright.

Tribute to Mr. Besler.

That Vice President Besler's sensible management of the New Jersey Central is bearing prolific fruit for the owners of the property is convincingly illustrated by a glance at the annual report of the company, which shows that notwithstanding the sum of over $1,665,000 was charged to improvements last year, this amount will be larger by about $900,000 than in 1904, and a gain of over $1,000,000 in net income for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, will be nearly swallowed up by betterments. A showing of this character would have been impossible under the misfit administration of Mr. Warren and his associates, who, had they continued in control, would without doubt have placed the property either in the hands of a receiver or on a four per cent. earning basis by this time. The plain fact that the good will and loyal co-operation of the rank and file is an important essential to successful corporation management, is becoming more and more pronounced with each succeeding year.—The Railroad Employe.

FIREMEN TO MEET AT ATLANTIC CITY

STATE ASSOCIATION CONVENTION SET FOR SEPTEMBER.

Atlantic City, July 25.—The twenty-eighth annual convention of the New Jersey State Firemen's Association will be held here September 13 in the pavilion on the steel pier. The session will open at 10:30 o'clock and continue all day. The headquarters of the excutive committee will be at the Chalfonte Hotel.

Delegates to the number of three from each local association, together with the chief marshal, or senior foreman, in each municipality, constitute the representation from a local association.

A feature of the coming convention will be the vote on a resolution calling for a caucus for the nomination of a vice-president. It has been found, according to a circular sent out with a call for the meeting, that the present method of electing vice-presidents to represent the various Congressional districts is unsatisfactory, and the executive committee, at a meeting on January 17 last, adopted this plan. A caucus is to be held by the delegates and life members from each Congressional district at a place in the convention hall designated by the president and at a recess taken for that purpose. The retiring vice-president, or a delegate, or life member, appointed by the president is to preside at the caucus. The candidate thus selected by a majority of delegates and life members, and subsequently presented to the convention by the chairman, shall be the regular nominee for the Congressional district, and no other name will be considered by the convention.

This plan of the executive committee will be voted on at the convention, and, if adopted, that new method of electing will be put in operation.

SMATHERS WILL QUIT TURF.

Pittsburg Millionaire, Who Saw Money Ahead, to Sell Stable.

E. E. Smathers, a Pittsburg millionaire and owner of a large stable of race-horses, has decided to retire from the turf. He will sell his fifty thoroughbreds at auction on Saturday. His horses have not had good luck this season and he backed them heavily every time they started.

Smathers turned from harness racing to the running turf two years ago. He purchased the celebrated Western horse McChesney, for which he paid $30,000.

He was very successful with his new venture, and with McChesney and a young horse called Dick Barnard he won many bets.

Because of his success with the runners he sold out his trotters and devoted his attention to the former. He stated that there was more money to be won with the thoroughbreds than with the trotters; that a man could bet more, and, as the odds were more liberal, he thought horses under saddle were much more profitable that those in harness.

MAYOR BILL EXPOUNDS.

Why He Prefers Motor-Cycle to Automobile.

"Mayor" Bill Smith's latest fad is a motor-cycle of the approved type.

"No more autos for me," says the "Mayor" of New Market. "You are obliged to take your friends out for a ride, and they use you for a good thing. With a motor-cycle you go alone and enjoy yourself."

GOLF HANDICAP CHANGES ANNOUNCED

SOME PLAINFIELDERS HAVE IMPROVED IN THE GAME.

In accordance with improvement made by several golf players, members of the Metropolitan Golf Association, the handicap committee, of which Leighton Calkins, of this city, is the chairman, has changed their handicaps. These changes have been made solely on the replies from clubs relative to the improvement of players, supplemented by such information as the committee has been able to gather from the records. It is a source of regret that several clubs have failed to report on such improvement, for it is only by such co-operation that the best results can be obtained.

The members of the Plainfield Country Club, whose handicaps have been changed on a basis of improvement, are as follows:

C. Wesley Abbott, 13; Robert Abbott, 5; Dudley H. Barrows, 7; Morris J. Dumont, 10; W. L. Glenney, 7; Henry D. Hibbard, 12; C. B. Morgan, 11; H. C. Munger, 12; Arthur Murphy, 12; R. F. Murray, 10; E. B. Shoemaker, 10.

As soon as other members improve their game this will be noted and their handicaps will be cut, according to the system of handicapping employed by the association.

CZAR AGAIN AT PETERHOF.

Peace With Japan and Order at Home Thought Urged.

St. Petersburg, July 25—The meeting near Bjorko between the Russian and German Emperors, according to private advices, ended yesterday afternon with a luncheon on board the Hohenzollern. Emperor William's yacht then steamed seaward, escorted for a short distance by the Russian imperial yacht Polar Star. Salutes were exchanged, and the Polar Star put about for Peterhof, where she arrived last night. A flotilla of torpedo boats, destroyers and small cruisers hovered about the imperial yachts from the time they met until they parted.

The Marshal of the Court, Count Benkendorf, has sent the following message from the island of Bjorko:

At 10 o'clock in the evening of July 23 the German imperial yacht Hohenzollern dropped anchor near the anchorage of the Russian imperial yacht Polar Star. Emperor William, accompanied by Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein and his suite, was rowed to the Polar Star. Emperor William was received at the head of the ladder by Emperor Nicholas and the Grand Duke Michael, and cordial greetings were exchanged. The German Emperor reviewed the guard of honor and the yacht's crew, and the two suites were presented, after which their majesties retired to the saloon.

At 11 o'clock at night Emperor Nicholas and Grand Duke Michael accompanied Emperor William to the Hohenzollern, where they remained until 1:30 o'clock in the morning.

STOLE THE RIG.

Two Boys Take Drummer's Runabout For a Lark.

Hiring a carriage at McDonald's livery stable, on Second street, in which to do his business, a traveling salesman from New York tied his horse to a post in upper Somerset street, while he went into the house soliciting business.

Meanwhile, two boys coming up the street, seeing the fine horse and runabout, were tempted to have some fun. This was about 4 o'clock. Cutting the hitching rope, they jumped into the carriage and drove away.

When the salesman came out of the house he found his rig gone, so he notified Manager Breem at the stable. Chief Weiss was notified of the facts and at once set out after the boys. At 7 o'clock the Chief locked them up.

After they were locked up over night the lads were arraigned before Recorder Doud. After a severe warning they were released. The boys gave their names as Joe Conklin and Will Stagger.

Welcoming to Returning Officers.

A welcome social will be given William Gardner, president, and Louis Moraller, secretary of the Saengerbund society, by the members of the club, on Thursday evening in the hall. Moraller and Gardner have been on an extended trip in Europe, and they are expected home tonight or tomorrow. The women of the society will furnish a supper and drinks. The men's committee in charge are: August Wolf, A. Stenzenburger, Charles Meyer, Jr., and John Syler. All members are invited.

Injured by Exploding Syphon.

Nathan Golden, aged thirty-four years, a Russian, residing at 211 Spooner avenue, was injured yesterday afternoon by the explosion of a syphon at the plant of the Plainfield Mineral Water Company on West Third street. He was considerably cut about the chest. It was necessary to take the man to the hospital, where the wounds were dressed, after which he returned home. The injuries are not serious.

Star of Plainfield Lodge, Shepherds of Bethlehem, will hold its regular meeting tomorrow night. New officers will be installed.

VAN ORDEN ARRAIGNED FOR BREAKING LETTER BOX

MAINTAINS THAT GOVERMENT HAD NO JURISDICTION OVER IT.

Daniel Van Orden, of Somerset place, who was arrested last week on a charge originally preferred by his son, that he had smashed a letter box, was taken to New Brunswick yesterday afternoon and arraigned before Commissioner Rice this morning. After a preliminary hearing the matter was adjourned until this afternoon at 2:30.

The government put several witnesses on the stand, among them being George Van Orden, Frank Ttitus, Clarence Bilyeu and Sarah Bilyeu, who reside either on or in the vicinity of Somerset place, and Inspector Meharey, of the government force. Their testimony was practically the same and dealt only with the fact of the demolishing of the box.

Van Orden, through his counsel, Arthur Clark, of New Brunswick, maintained that the government had not proved its jurisdiction over the box as set forth in the complaint and that though Van Orden did break it open, he had a right to, as he himself bought it and placed it on a post for his and Frank Titus' personal use.

STANBERY GETS COUNSEL.

Engages Swackhamer to Defend Him in Auto Case.

Charges having been preferred against him by Oscar Harris in connection with the fatal automobile accident at Dunellen Sunday night, William R. Stanbery has engaged S. S. Swackhamer as counsel. The matter will be heard by Justice David Campbell at Dunellen tomorrow morning at 10:30.

Harris has secured William Sanford, of Dunellen, to look after his interests, and will seek to prove that Stanbery was to blame for the accident. Harris is a section foreman on the New Jersey Central.

BUSY Y. M. C. A TENTS AT SEA GIRT CAMP

STATE GUARDSMEN APPRECIATE THE ATTRACTIONS AND CONVENIENCES.

One of the busiest spots in the First Brigade encampment of the New Jersey National Guard at Sea Girt, is the tents of the Camp Stokes branch of the New Jersey Young Men's Christian Association. The tents were erected and furnished with floors, tables and chairs last year through the courtesy of the quartermaster-general. The State executive committee, with office at 141 Halsey street, Newark, supports the two secretaries in charge and furnishes lights, ice water, stationery, periodicals, talking machine, baseball outfits, quoits, checkers, chess, etc.

Evening entertainments and song services, in co-operation with the chaplain, have helped break the monotony of camp life. Stationery is furnished free, while stamps and souvenir post-cards are sold at cost. Mail is also handled, and the fact that 4,979 letters and postals were mailed from the tent shows how this feature of the enterprise was appreciated.

The State executive committee of the New Jersey Young Men's Christian Association also keeps a secretary throughout the year with the regular army men at Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook, in the new building there, and maintains a library and reading room at New Jersey's other army post—Fort Mott, in Salem county. While a new departure, this work among the soldiers of the National Guard and regular army is fully as promising as the organizations among railroad men, among students and among the young men and boys of the cities and towns.

The army sub-committee of the State committee has direct charge of this department, consisting of the following: Edward P. Holden, Madison, chairman; T. S. Gladding, Montclair; J. H. B. Coriell, Morristown; Judge John Reilstab, Trenton.

State Secretary Hearne and Associate State Secretary Charles B. Brown have been rendering special help at Sea Girt, and W. F. Langdon, of Jersey City, is camp secretary, assisted by M. J. Caldwell, of West Hoboken.

He adds that he was anxious to hear the result of Saturday's ball game, and expresses the hope that his friend acted as his substitute and called "play ball" promptly on time. Thinks Virtue Over-Strained.

One bad result of the spasm of virtue that recently attacked Camden is the closing of the free public baths Sundays. The Good Book says that cleanliness is next to Godliness, and there are few persons who will confess to a belief that it is wicked to wash one's self on the Sabbath day. In other cities, quite as virtuous as Camden, the free public baths are kept open during certain hours on Sunday, and the people, especially workingmen, take advantage of them on that day. Our sister city ought to come to her senses. It may be all right to close grocery stores, meat markets and saloons Sundays, but such blessings as free public baths sohuld be available to the people every day in the week.—Trenton State Gazette.

UNION COUNTY POLITICS

Republican Paper at Elizabeth Sizes Up the Situation.

NO FACTIONS.

Runyon's Candidacy—Kirkland and Shrievalty—Swift Not a Candidate for the Assembly.

Relative to the political situation in Union county, the Elizabeth Evening Journal said last night:

"The political situation in the county where a State Senator is to be elected in November to succeed Senator Judge Cross is attracting no little attention throughout the State and is furnishing plenty of material for the newspapers.

"The Journal last week printed a story on the conditions in Plainfield, which was admitted on all sides and by all interests to be a correct review of the situation.

"In regard to the county as a whole, certain facts are so plain that none should be able to go astray. It has been printed far and wide that the death of the county chairman, Assemblyman Coyne, and the accession to the head of the county committee of Frank H. Smith marks the supremacy in the committee of forces hostile to Senator Kean. Smith is to be chairman of the committee by the grace of the votes of his fellow committee men, and the election is yet to take place. A canvass of the committee has revealed no one who is opposed to Smith, and all say that his election will be unanimous. Now, if he were hostile to Senator Kean, how would the election be unanimous? It is not necessary that the vice-chairman of the committee should be elected to the vacant chairmanship. Of course, Smith is not hostile to Senator Kean, nor is any other member of the county committee, for that matter.

"It is a mistake to speak now of 'Kean' and 'Fowler' factions in Union county politics. There have been no divisions within the party on such lines since three years ago, when there was a battle at the primaries for delegates for Joseph Cross and William N. Runyon. This struggle practically ended at the primaries, for the convention made the nomination of Cross unanimous and also the nomination of Benjamin F. Coriell for the shrievalty, and Plainfield supported both men well.

"Congressman Fowler was not identified with the memorable bolt from the convention two years ago, and whatever feeling has existed on Kean and Fowler lines in the past is now dead. The trouble two years ago was caused by the refusal of the delegates from the rest of the county to vote for Mayor James F. Buckle, of Plainfield, as an Assembly candidate. William T. Kirk, of that city, was chosen instead, but in opposition to the wishes of the majority of the Plainfielders, who left the convention, then worked for and elected the Democratic ticket.

"Some politicians believe they see trouble of the same kind ahead this year. They think that if Runyon is the choice of the Plainfield delegates and is ratified by the convention as a whole, he will be cut in Elizabeth by the friends of the late Assemblyman Coyne, who was a victim of the bolt. Again, they fear that if the convention should refuse to accept Runyon and nominate someone else, which will probably be in its power to do, there would be cutting of the Republican ticket in Plainfield. Some of the politicians believe it is unwise to tell these facts so plainly, but many of them say it can do no harm, and may do a great deal of good to make things clear.

"There is no objection here on personal grounds to Runyon. It is recognized that he is a man of capacity, but in the minds of many he committed an almost unpardonable political sin by working tooth and nail for Democratic success two years ago.

"Several members of the county committee said last night that everything would be settled to the satisfaction of all, that a candidate from Plainfield would be selected, and that Elizabeth would turn out a big Republican majority for him, as it did last November for the Republican ticket. Everyone concedes Plainfield's right to name the candidate, provided he is a strong man in his own city, and can command the confidence of the rest of the county.

"There may be a contest for the shrievalty, but it won't amount to much as far as Elizabeth is concerned, perhaps to nothing. Robert J. Kirkland may even now be said to have the delegates from all the lower wards of the city, including the Fifth and Seventh. It is said that he also has the support of the workers in the Sixth Ward and that he may have those from the Eighth Ward for the asking. There only remain the Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth Wards,

DEACON CONWAY WANTS REPUTATION SAVED

SAYS A WOMAN'S "ABUTMENT," HAS PLACED IT IN DANGER.

Deacon Spencer Conway, who has a habit of appearing in the city court, for some reason or other every little while, dropped in yesterday with tears in his eyes and appealed to Judge Runyon to help him save his reputation. In an explanation that required forty minutes to spin out, the deacon declared a bold, bad woman had been saying things about him and that she had put in an "abutment" to keep the Calvary Baptist church officials from confirming him as an expounder of the Gospel, and that his good name in the community is in serious danger in consequence.

"All I want, Judge," asserted Mr. Conway, "is to be allowed to live in peace and have the respect of the community, as I have had it for forty years. I'm a church worker, and these stories that have been floating around because of this woman's "cassipiousness' have angered Rev. Scott Wallace and the leaders of Calvary Baptist church and they have refused to let me preach. Please, Judge, do something for me to keep my good name?"

The deacon became impassioned in his story and though Judge Runyon sympathized with him, he declared the matter to be out of his jurisdiction, recommending an Ecclesiastical court. The name of the woman who is so vindictive or what the stories are was not brought out.

DEEGAN IN THE BOX AGAIN ON SATURDAY

THIRD OF CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES TO BE A HOT ONE.

The third of the county championship series between Plainfield and Westfield will be played at Recreation Park on Saturday, and judging by the first two contests, it will be full of excitement and give every fan an opportunity to see the best article of baseball. Last week there were many rumors afloat that Manager Denman would "pad" his team and many new faces would be seen in the lineup. Even up to a half hour of calling the game it was confidently believed by some that several big leaguers would oppose the locals. As a matter of fact, only two new faces were seen—those of Lynch and Ed. Stallings, the former at short and the latter on second base.

Manager Denman believes that he has a team that can beat Plainfield, and there is no reason to believe that he will make any wholesale changes. He is perfectly satisfied with his battery, "Red" Waller being one of the best slab artists in this section, and Cotter's work being all that one could desire. His infield is playing a fast game and his outfield is all right. That he will make a more determined effort this week to win goes without saying, and he has instructed his team, from Captain Mallen down, to play their best. Mr. Denman is no grumbler, and because he has lost two games it does not stand to reason that he is going to give up the fight.

The locals, on the other hand, can be depended on to play their same great game, and the Plainfield supporters can rest assured that if possible the team will add the third contest to its string of victories. Every man is anxious to win every game and is playing the best he knows how. It is said that Manager Daab will use Deegan on the firing line Saturday. Despite the most excellent work of Beck, and many believe that the team can win with him in the box, the team seems to have a trifle more confidence when playing behind Deegan. It must be admitted that he is quicker in fielding his position and covering first base. Yet all honor is due Beck for his good work a week ago in holding Westfield down to nine hits in nine innings, while Waller was touched for ten, including a home run and a three bagger.

Manager Denman has given no notice of further changes in his team, and Manager Daab will use his same lineup. It is to be hoped that Dalton will be well enough to cover second base. The greatest interest is being shown in the approaching struggle, and the fact that Plainfield has won two games has not lessened it one bit. The fans expect that Westfield will get onto its game and make the locals play all the harder to win.

DISMISSES AUTO CASE

Dunellen Squire Upholds Contention of Stanbery's Lawyer.

TECHNICAL REASONS.

Spectators Indignant Over Court's Action—New Complaint to be Made—Civil Suit Also.

Through the efforts of his counsel, S. S. Swackhamer, the charges against William R. Stanbery made by Oscar Harris immediately after the automobile crash on West Front street, near Jefferson avenue, Sunday night, were dismissed by Justice Campbell at Dunellen this morning. The outcome of the affair was greeted with disapproval by a large gathering of residents that crowded the town hall and many of them declared that proceedings would be taken in another form with the borough of Dunellen as complainant. Harris and his lawyer, William Sanford, also asserted that a civil suit for damages would be instituted against the automobilist as soon as the other charges were disposed of.

Harris, in his complaint, alleged Stanbery to be guilty of reckless driving in running his machine on the wrong side of the road at a high rate of speed. The charge was made to Marshal Mohan within a short time after the accident occurred and when both men were blaming the other for it. The officer took them to Justice Campbell and there the complaint was lodged and the hearing set.

In his address to the court, Counsellor Swackhamer first challenged its jurisdiction in the matter and then moved that the case be dismissed for the following reasons:

1. That the defendant was arrested without a complaint on oath or affirmation having been made against him. 2. That the defendant was arrested by an officer who was acting without authority, having no warrant in his possession for the defendant's arrest. 3. That the complaint made in this proceeding after defendant's arrest is insufficient, illegal and void. 4. That the said complaint is irregular and contrary to law in that it does not charge any violation of law. 5. The arrest and subsequent proceedings are contrary to law for the reason that the defendant is not a resident of Middlesex County and his apprehension and arrest were not made according to the command of the statute. 6. The arrest and subsequent proceedings are irregular, illegal and void in divers other respects and the defendant therefore moves the court to dismiss the proceedings and discharge the defendant.

Justice Campbell acceded to the lawyer's request, though it was vigorously opposed by Mr. Sanford, and the complaint was dismissed. The residents of Dunellen have practically made the affair a personal matter and for this reason it may be inferred that this morning's action will not be the end of the case.

A despatch from New Brunswick to The Daily Press at noon today stated that Prosecutor Berdine, of Middlesex County, had taken the matter up. He has instructed Justice R. P. F. Von Minden, of New Market, who is a member of the Grand Jury, to investigate the affair thoroughly and report to that body tomorrow. In the event of carelessness having been shown by either Stanbery or Harris, it was said, the prosecutor would take the usual legal steps.

GENTLEMAN BURGLAR IS OUT ON PAROLE

WALLER IS GIVEN A CHANCE TO LEAD AN HONEST LIFE.

John Waller, the gentleman burglar who was sentenced in the Somerset County Court at Somerville in April, 1904, to serve five years in State prison for committing numerous robberies, has been paroled by the Court of Pardons because of ill health. Waller, who is reported to be a member of a prominent family in the West, was a boarder at the Berkeley Hotel, Bound Brook, in the winter of 1904. He posed as a gentleman of leisure and associated with people of the town. In this city he boarded at a hotel and during his stay several robberies occurred. He also made love to a number of young women at Bound Brook and other places and gave them diamond rings and gold watches.

One of the young women left a watch which Waller had given her with a local jeweler for repairs. The jeweler identified the watch as one that had been stolen from the residence of one of his customers. Waller's arrest followed. He was charged with a score of mysterious robberies in Bound Brook and nearby towns. A lot of valuable loot was found in his room at the Berkeley Hotel, and a large quantity of jewelry which he had stolen was recovered in pawnshops in Philadelphia.

Waller assisted the authorities in restoring the property to the owners. He pleaded guilty to six charges of robbery. When Judge Schenck sentenced him to five years he thanked the Court for its leniency and said if he lived to get out of prison he would live an honest life.

WILL ELECT SMITH CHAIRMAN TONIGHT

PLAINFIELDER TO BE MADE HEAD OF REPUBLICAN COUNTY COMMITTEE

The Republican County Committee will meet this evening in the Dix building at Elizabeth for the purpose of selecting a chairman of that body. Frank H. Smith, County Register, is the man slated for the position, and there is no doubt that he will receive the united vote of the entire committee.

It had been planned not to make any appointment in this office until after the excursion on Saturday, when there will probably be lots of other important Republican business transacted.

There is a question as to who will be made vice chairman of the committee. Addison Swift, of Elizabeth, is mentioned for the place, and so is James White, the assistant postmaster of Elizabeth, who is also vice chairman of the city committee.

Mr. Smith has been in Asbury Park for the last few days and could not be seen this morning. There is no doubt whatever that he will accept it and he will receive the support of everybody in the committee.

Injured Boy's Condition.

Edward Leroy Smith, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. T. Smith, of Allen place, who was seriously injured on Monday by falling backward down the steps at his home, is doing very well. The injury itself, a fracture at the base of the skull, is not what is feared most by the physicians, but there is a possibility of spinal meningitis. If this does not develop the lad's chances for recovery are good. He suffers almost constantly from a high fever, which at times reaches 104 degrees.

Hendrickson Goes to Jail.

Nelson Hendrickson, who gave his name to Chief Marshal Weiss as Nelson Henry when he was arrested Monday night for intoxication and disorderly conduct, was brought before Recorder Doud last night. Old charges combined with this new offence was responsible for the Recorder sending him to the county jail for sixty days. Chief Weiss took the prisoner to Somerville early this morning.

Excursion to Asbury.

The great combination excursion to Asbury Park under the auspices of the First Presbyterian, Congregational and Park Avenue Baptist Sunday Schools, takes place tomorrow. It will probably be one of the best of the season. Everyone is assured a good time. Be at the North avenue station a few minutes before 8 o'clock tomorrow morning and "get aboard."

At the Fresh-Air Home.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church will have charge at the Netherwood Home on Saturday. Miss Ethel Boice is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

LONG STILL AT LARGE

Negro Murderer Eludes Pursuers Though Sighted Several Times.

DETECTIVES ON GUARD

They Believe He Will Yet Be Found In Dismal Swamp and Are Trying to Drive Him Out.

Confident that he is still in hiding in the recesses of Dismal swamp, below South Plainfield, detectives from Trenton and farmers in the vicinity are making every effort to capture Charles Long, the murderer of Matthew Cunningham at Trenton last week. The negro exposed himself to view several times yesterday but luck seems to be with him so far and he got away in each instance. The swamp has an area of six square miles and in places has a dense undergrowth so that it is an easy matter for anyone to lie concealed. The officers have hopes of catching him soon, however, as he will be forced out by starvation if nothing else.

Long was first seen at 6 o'clock yesterday morning near the South Plainfield station by Dennis Harlan. He located the Trenton detectives and put them on the trail but the murderer had evidently gone back to his hiding place. At noon time while all his pursuers were beating about South Plainfield, he appeared near the Picton station of the Lehigh Valley road, near the lower end of the swamp. He was noticed by the station agent who telephoned to this city.

Chief Kiely and Detective McCarthy in Harry Marshall's automobile set out for Picton and arrived there within a half hour only to learn that Long had been seen skirting the edge of the swamp, going back to South Plainfield. They followed on the roadways and found several people who had noticed a negro answering his description hurrying by and the trail ended back in the deep part of the swamp again. The search is being continued today but up to noon the man had not been located. The Trenton police notified Chief Kiely this morning that they would send up an additional force of detectives with automobiles.

Most of the residents who have been taking part in the man-hunt have been induced to do so in the hope of getting the reward of $250 offered by the city of Trenton. At a meeting of the Mercer county Board of Freeholders, yesterday afternoon a resolution to offer an additional $250 was laid over by a vote of 17 to 5.

BRASS BAND METHODS NOT FOR ACKERMAN

SAYS HE WILL NOT SEEK NOMINATION BY SPECTACULAR WAYS.

Ernest R. Ackerman, president of the Lawrence Cement Company, of New York, whose friends are urging him to announce his candidacy for the Senatorial nomination, is ill at his home in West Eighth street. In conversation with a reporter, Mr. Ackerman said in reference to the political situation:

"I am not seeking a nomination for Senator or for any other office. If such an offer was made to me unanimously I think I would consider it, but I would consider it not as a representative of the Kean faction nor as the representative of the Fowler faction.

"I am very friendly with Mr. Fowler. I believe him to be an able man, and I have the utmost respect for him. I am also very friendly with Senator Kean, although I am better acquainted with his brother, Hamilton Kean. I have gone out of my way many times to help Mr. Fowler and I have done the same thing for Mr. Kean, and I would do the same again for either of those gentlemen; but as to going out with a brass band to seek the nomination, I would not do it. I cannot say that I am a candidate in that sense. I am sorry I cannot give you something more definite at present."

Preparing to Move Brick Building.

Frank Mobus, of the borough, who has the contract for moving Charles W. McCutchen's brick building, is making preparations to place the structure on the West Second street property recently purchased by Mr. McCutchen. Application has been made for a permit to transfer the building, and Mr. Mobus hopes to start work soon.

K. of G. E. Hold a Smoker.

Freedom Castle, No. 42, K. of G. E., met last night and transacted routine business. After the business meeting the members enjoyed a smoker.

G. O. P'S IN READINESS FOR ANNUAL OUTING

WILL BE A WATER FROLIC AND TAKES PLACE SATURDAY.

The first outing by water of the Union County Republicans will take place next Saturday. Their destination will be Point View Grove, on Long Island Sound, and every Republican of prominence in the county who is not away on a vacation will try to be on hand.

The rank and file are not expected to go, as arangements have only been made to accommodate 400 on the steamship Isabel, which has been chartered for the trip. All the active workers, however, are expected to be on deck, and it promises to be a great day for the political slates for next fall's election, when candidates for Senator, sheriff and three Assemblymen are to be voted for.

The affair is under the auspices of the county executive committee. Heretofore the outings have been in the form of a clambake, but the last one thoroughly disgusted the leaders. It was held at Galvin's park, near Fanwood, and all the hoboes in Union county flocked to the feast and invaded the grove in such numbers as to drive the guests away from the tables and to eat up everything in sight.

That experience settled the land clambakes, so far as Union county Republicans were concerned. Saturday's event therefore will be somewhat of an exclusive affair, but it is claimed will be none the less enjoyable.

"PLAINFIELDER" ARRESTED FOR ROBBING FREIGHT CAR

AFTERWARD TURNS OUT TO BE AN EASTON CHARACTER.

A man who registered at the Union Hotel at Whitehouse Station Saturday night as Frank Howard, of Plainfield, was arrested in Elizabeth yesterday by Detective Gaffney, of the New Jersey Central Railroad, on suspicion of being the thief who broke into a freight car at Whitehouse Monday evening. The man when seen at Whitehouse seemed to act strangely. He was well dressed, wearing a long-tailed coat, and all day Sunday was accompanied by a small man.

While a west-bound freight was taking water at Whitehouse Station Monday evening the door of a freight car was broken open and a crate of shoes consigned to a dealer at Allentown, Pa., thrown out before the train started on its way. The robber then sorted the shoes and took thirteen pairs, leaving eleven, which were found sometime later. Detective Gaffney was at once assigned to the case and he went to Whitehouse and soon learned of the man who had been seen about there for several days. He followed up the clue and the arrest was the result.

It is believed the man is the one who has been committing similar robberies along the line and who the central authorities have been looking for for some time.

It has been learned the real name of the man is Frank Simpson and that he hails from Easton. He was committed to the county jail at Flemington today.

Mrs. Lunger to Teach.

Mrs. Maria Lunger, of Whitehouse, widow of the late former Patrolman George Lunger, of this city, has been engaged to teach in the primary department of the Rocky Hill public school. Before her marriage Mrs. Lunger was a teacher at Barley Sheaf, Hunterdon county, and it was while she was there she met Mr. Lunger, who at that time resided at Cherryville. Mrs. Lunger has rented her property at Whitehouse to former Assemblyman John J. Matthews, of Elizabeth, who will move there with his family.

Will Enter Smith College.

Miss Ethel Daggett, of Whitehouse, who graduated from the North Plainfield High School two years ago, has passed the necessary examinations for admittance to Smith College, Northampton, Mass., and will begin a four-year course there in the fall. Miss Daggett is a daughter of Samuel Daggett, a wealthy farmer of Whitehouse, and is an elocutionist of note. She has spent much of her time this summer reciting at various social functions in Hunterdon county.

Home for Short Stay.

Maze Edwards, who has been spending the summer at Block Island, arrived in town yesterday for a few days. He expects to return to Block Island on Friday or Saturday to join his wife, who is there. Later he will go to Newport for a short stay, and then to Providence and other places in that part of the country, returning here early in September.

M.G.A. HANDICAP REPORT

Chairman Calkins Tells of Results of the System in Use.

304 NEW MEMBERS.

Poorer the Player the Greater Chance for Improvement—Work of the Committee.

Of great interest to golfers in the metropolitan district, especially in this vicinity, is the report presented by Leighton Calkins, chairman of the 1905 handicap committee of the Metropolitan Golf Association, which has been adopted by the executive committee of the association. The report is as follows:

"We have handicapped 1,560 players this year, against 1,256 in 1904, 1,096 in 1903 and 1,013 in 1902. After allowing for a small increase each year, there are probably over 200 players who find a place on the list this year owing to the adoption by the committee of the new handicapping, which, in addition to basing all handicaps on par, as heretofore, takes into consideration and attempts to measure the greater chance to improve which the poorer players have as compared with the scratch men and the men with low handicaps. All clubs, with two exceptions, returning lists to this committee certified that the handicaps as returned were allotted in accordance with the new system; and the other two clubs notified the committee that no records of last year's play had been preserved, this preventing entire compliance with the system this year.

"The results of the handicap events at Lakewood, Garden City, Fox Hills and Westbrook show improvement which this committee believes to be due to the fact that players are no longer given, in all cases, the exact difference between par and their average best score. A certain number of strokes is deducted from that difference, one stroke from men whose handicaps otherwise would be between 5 and 8 inclusive; two strokes where the handicaps otherwise would be between 9 and 12 inclusive; and so on, until the player who before would have received 17 strokes now gets 13, and the player who now just gets on the list with 17 strokes would before have been rated at 22, on par, at his home club. These deductions are made on the theory that the poorer the player, the greater his chance to improve. A man who has played a good course in par figures, may not, in a year's time, better his record; but a man whose record is 97 may at any time be the proud possessor of a 92. By the old method the high handicap men had by far the best chance to win. By the new method the scratch men, if playing in their best form, have an equal chance with those rated at 18.

"The Lakewood handicap was won by Walter E. Egan, with 77, 2—75. He played more nearly up to his best form than any other player and fully deserved to win. The eleven lowest net scores were between 75 and 80; and of these eleven men, five had handicaps of 7 and under.

"At Garden City, D. B. Fuller, Jr., won the Friday handicap, with an allowance of six strokes and net scores of 77 for eighteen holes and 157 for thirty-six holes. On Saturday he tied with B. C. Fuller (handicap 12), with 154 for thirty-six holes. In these events the winners played more nearly up to their game than the others, and were fully entitled to win.

"At Fox Hills, S. Maddock, with 11, and C. A. Dunning, with 10, tied at 69 for the eighteen-hole handicap. On their gross scores, 80 and 79, respectively (the best in a field of over eighty players), it seemed to this committee that their handicaps were too high, and accordingly we corresponded with the clubs from which these players were entered, in order to ascertain why they were rated so high at home. Our inquiries were answered promptly and courteously. In the case of Mr. Maddock he is believed by his club handicapper to have improved somewhat this spring over his previous form, but not to be capable of another such win; and in the case of Mr. Dunning it is admitted by his club handicapper that he has come on very fast since his rating of 10 was sent in last March. This is the not uncommon case of a very young player jumping suddenly into prominence. While we believe both club handicappers to have exercised care in preparing their lists, we wish to suggest the importance of having club handicappers report to this committee from time to time any case of marked improvement on the part of any player. With the exception of the two cases mentioned, the result of the Fox Hills handicap was exceptionally fine. There were 41 net scores between 73 and 83, and there were 23 net scores under 80.

"This committee has sent out to

THE FORUM.

Piscataway School Dispute.

Editor The Daily Press:

Mr. Stanley Day, in his letter of Saturday anent the New Market school question, is pleased to be somewhat severe upon the Piscataway Board of Education and, in my opinion, without good cause. Just why this body of gentlemen should all file their resignation to please Mr. Stanley Day I cannot imagine, for assuredly they have done everything that Mr. Stanley Day could have done. They have acted in every particular upon advice of counsel, and if errors have been committed, the trustees are not to blame. The main trouble has been that the New Market people do not know what they want themselves, or if they do know it now, they have been a long while finding it out.

At one meeting they vote down a move for a big school; at the next they vote for what they said they didn't want before. No one outside of New Market, so far as I can learn, thinks that New Market needs or ever will get a $20,000 school. The Board of Education, very wisely, have decided that a four room school would be big enough for the corporal's guard of scholars that New Market can muster, and a very fine school of this kind can be built for about one-half of $20,000. A building 64x72, with six class rooms and an assembly room, was built recently away out in South Dakota, where building material is much higher than here, for $15,000. The township has now something like $12,000 school debt. Parker's Corner and Rock avenue people are clamoring for and justly entitled to schools of their own, each asking only $2,500. With the proposed seccession of the South Plainfield voting district and the Lincoln and East Bound Brook sections, New Market would find itself more than supplied with a four-room school.

The attorney general has decided that the last affair was clearly illegally conducted, and a new election will be called for just as soon as the Board of Education can do it legally. But in the meantime I would certainly advise our New Market friends to consider well and consider wisely just what is reasonable and right, and I am sure they will decide that a $12,000 appropriation will just about fit their case, and if they so decide, I am still further of the opinion that the voters outside of their little village will coincide with them. But if they stick to the $20,000 demand they will more than likely wait a year or two longer before they get it, and by that time they will have to pay for it all by their lonesome.

N. G. VREELAND.

East Bound Brook, July 25, 1905.

Perth Amboy's New Industry.

Perth Amboy is to have another $100,000 industry. The Secretary of State has just granted a charter to the Perth Amboy Fire Brick Company, which states in its certificates that it will manufacture and deal in all kinds of fire and other bricks, besides cement, clay and all kinds of building materials and supplies. It will also erect buildings, kilns and other structures and acquire patents. The capital of $100,000 is divided into 1,000 shares of $100 par value each. The charter empowers the company to increase its capital stock from time to time if it so desires.

Improvements Progressing.

The improvements being made by Francis DeLacy Hyde in the vicinity of Jackson and Westervelt avenues are progressing rapidly. It is Mr. Hyde's intention to erect a number of fine houses on this tract after the thoroughfares are macadamized and paved. H. C. Van Emburgh has been doing the civil engineering work and C. M. Meeker the grading.

INSURANCE AGENTS REVOLT.

One Hundred Equitable Men Hold Conference.

Insurance agents who have been among the most valuable allies of the Equitable Assurance Society in New York yesterday proclaimed open revolt against its management and scored some of its most prominent officials for selfishness and cupidity.

In the office of Archibald C. Haynes, 25 Broad street, New York, there was a meeting attended by more than a hundred Equitable agents under the immediate control of Mr. Haynes, who has been generally regarded as the most influential agent operating in the New York district. Mr. Haynes heretofore has been a loyal partisan of Gage E. Tarbell, the Equitable vice president, to whom are especially entrusted the management of the society's agents, the control of their territory, commissions and advances for renewals.

Manager Daab expects to have Dalton on second base on Saturday's game.

In seventy-nine games, Thomas, of the Philadelphia Nationals, has scored seventy runs.

Now that the locals have two victories to its string, the cry is "take the third contest."

It is one safe bet that every one of the remaining eight contests will be as bitterly fought as the one on Saturday.

On to Westfield Saturday. Let the loyal supporters of the team attend and cheer the players on to another victory.

With such contests as the first two between Plainfield and Westfield the rivalry is sure to last until the tenth game is played.

Maloney, of the Chicagos, has stolen forty-two bases to date, his nearest rival being Magee, of the Phillies, with twenty-nine.

"Willie" Keeler is the only .300 hitter with the Highlands. Hall Chase is second, but is exactly fifty-seven points behind "Wee Willie."

President Pulliam has the names of Donlin, McGann and Clymer on the docket of future trial on charges of insubordination on the ball field.

Sam Hope, formerly of the old Alis team, has signed a contract to pitch for Paterson, of the Hudson River League. Sam has been doing good work this season.

There will be excitement enough for everybody at Recreation Park on Saturday when the third game in the county championship series will be played. Every fan will be on hand to witness the struggle.

It is with keen satisfaction that Plainfield has a pitcher who can hold down his opponents and a team that can hit them out at opportune times. Last season the team could hold down the other side, but was mighty weak with the stick.

"Paddy" Cotter, catcher for Westfield, is well liked and is considered a gentlemanly player. Like many others he sometimes loses his head. Cotter never works so hard for any team as he does for Westfield. His work on foul-flies is par excellent.

The Plainfield-Westfield series has aroused people who have not attended a game in many years, including many white-haired veterans. On Saturday they were seen throwing their hats in the air and waving their hands frantically, as well as yelling themselves hoarse. There were many sore throats on Sunday.

If Saturday's questionable decision had been given with a Plainfield man at the bat would Westfield have been satisfied to allow the man to remain on third base? While some of the more rabid rooters declare the decision to be unfair, the concensus of opinion seems to be that both umpires performed well on Saturday.

Because Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, had better foresight than some others, some of the supporters of the Westfield team are cruel enough to say that he was playing to the graadstand and that there was a method in his manner. Nevertheless he could see a whole bunch of trouble if the decision had been otherwise.

GOLF.

The prominence given to team matches in the annual championship of the Connecticut Golf Association might well be copied by other state and sectional organizations. In New Jersey and elsewhere throughout the East, almost without exception, the team matches are run off in a qualifying round, but in the land of steady habits the individual championships end Friday, and Saturday is devoted exclusively to the struggle of the teams. In fact, the Connecticut players deem the individual contests of secondary importance while to the Metropolitan golfers it is paramount. There is likely to be some shifting of opinion in this respect among New Yorkers, sooner or later. Team matches involve a struggle of a big field, which makes an effective wind-up for a tournament on Saturdays, the only day when the majority of spectators can get away. When players are closely matched the individual final is worth seeing; when they are not, team matches afford far more amusement.

TENNIS.

The tennis team of the Park Club will play a match in singles and doubles with the team of the Cedar Brook Club on the latter's courts Saturday. In singles there is some doubt as to who will play for each team. Miner and Letson loom up strongly for Cedar Brook while Will Townsend and Edward Daniels look good for the Parks. In doubles, from present indications, Daniels and Barlow, Park, will play J. Hervey Doane and V. B. Miner. The match ought to be a close one.

GOVERNMENT'S O. K. PUT ON ROCKEFELLER

BUREAU OF EDUCATION LAUDS THE OIL MAGNATE AS A PHILANTHROPIST.

Washington, July 26.—The government's O. K. brand is placed on J. D. Rockefeller in a pamphlet entitled "Educational Benefactors," published under the auspices of the Bureau of Education of the Department of the Interior.

Among the biographies is one of the Cleveland oil magnate, in which the characterization of the "educational benefactor" is somewhat at adds with Ida Tarbell's.

"The family, the school and the church were the centers in which his character was formed," it says. "In his home, prudence and economy prevailed, the Christian virtues were cultivated.

"In the church he was careful to attend the services, not only upon the Sabbath but midweek also, and he sought to stimulate others to fulfil religious obligations, especially to pay off a church debt."

Of his benefactions, the sketch gives the following glowing account:

"As his income increased he began to use it according to the fundamental principles upon which his character was based. His methods of giving may be said to be discriminating. No effort is made here to trace the variety of his gifts. There has been a natural recognition of relations. A worthy teacher who married a minister receives, unannounced, annual gifts, together with a house for a residence. In a multitude of unseen ways like these, has his aid been bestowed upon worthy objects. Unostentatiously he pays the expenses of a reunion of his school associates."

The material for the sketch is said to have been contributed by Reckefeller in person.

Of course nothing is said of Rockefeller's cutthroat business methods as exemplified in Standard Oil.

HUNTINGTON A WINNER.

Yesterday on the Turf at Brighton Beach.

One of the biggest "killings" of the meeting was made yesterday at the Brighton Beach race course on Huntington, in the last race. This horse, a five-year-old maiden, belonging to W. A. Winant, by Buck Massie-Ethel C., was backed from 8 to 1 to 2 to 1. All the big plungers at the track had the tip on him, and the way they poured money into the ring made the bookmakers weary, and they asked:

"Is Huntington the only horse in the race?"

The horse was all his backers thought him, and led from start to finish.

TIMELY TOPICS DISCUSSED BY PLAINFIELDERS

The Shade and Ornamental Trees of Plainfield, By George T. Powell, President of the Agricultural Experts' Association.

The study of trees affords interest and pleasure that cannot be adequately measured. They are beautiful wherever met, in their native forest homes, where their stately tops struggle for the sunlight and for supremacy, in thickets or groves, along the banks of streams, bordering fences or highways, on the hillsides, or as individuals, isolated from all others, battling alone in the open field.

Nowhere, however, are trees more appreciated than in villages or cities, and especially in the latter, where opportunity to get in close touch and relationship with nature is limited.

Unfortunately, few cities are laid out in the beginning with any plan for the future. Streets are made always too narrow, and while trees are planted they are a secondary matter, and are not given the thought necessary to so important a part of the city development.

Too little consideration is given to varieties of trees, to their adaptability to the soil and climate, and to the proper distances in planting, with the result that they begin to fail and die out many years before they would naturally.

Plainfield, more than most cities, has been liberal in its building lots, and has much more room about many of its homes for tree planting.

The variety of trees that has been planted is quite extended, and the conditions are favorable for many more,—even of rare kinds.

The English and American Elms grow to stately size, but they are seldom given room enough for their finest development, and the same may be said of the Sugar or Rock Maple, and of the Silver or Soft Maple. These all grow well in Plainfield, and where they do have sufficient space very fine specimens may be seen.

The Norway Maple is well adapted for street planting; its growth is symmetrical, and it is not quite so spreading in habit as some other varieties.

The Carolina Poplar is another excellent street tree, as it grows rapidly and quite upright.

Double row planting is very desirable, but broad avenues are required for this rather than street of the ordinary width. When large growing trees are planted in double rows with a distance of only twenty-five feet between them, and they require not less than seventy, it is evident that their best development cannot be obtained, and that they cannot live beyond half of their natural period. Close street planting in single rows is desirable, if cutting out is done at the proper time, before the trees are injured by over-crowding.

About many of the older places in Plainfield may be seen exceedingly beautiful specimen trees of many kinds. For specimen planting the Beech has many points of beauty, and it is well adapted to a variety of soils. The Beech will grow well in the lower levels, and also upon drier elevations. Its light-colored bark makes it a peculiarly attractive tree in the winter, and as a study in its winter form, few trees present more points of interest.

For lawn planting the imported cut-leaved, purple-leaved, and weeping Beeches make beautiful trees and should be planted as single specimens. They may be grouped, provided they have a broad expanse of land about them.

The European Birches may be planted to a limited extent. Too many of them on city lots are not desirable.

The Oaks represent a most valuable family of trees, not only in the great variety of their foliage and rich colorings, but in their great strength and long life.

Some fine specimens of the European Linden are growing in Plainfield, as also of the Tulip Tree, while of the European Larch, the Norway Spruce, Austrian and White Pine, there are many excellent trees.

The Colorado Blue Spruce is to be seen growing in a number of places, but it is often too much shaded. This very beautiful evergreen needs to stand out in the open, where it can have the full sunshine upon it, to bring out its bright, high color.

There are many most beautiful specimen trees in different parts of Plainfield, but nearly all so closely planted that their branches are interlacing.

It is difficult to remove any one of these for they are injured in form and removal would show the defects,—yet not to remove them means a shortened life for all.

There would be great benefit to the trees by an annual application of a high-grade tree fertilizer at the rate of six hundred pounds to the acre of land. The soil is full of roots, and from the demand of the trees and the lawns surrounding them the soil in time becomes depleted in plant food.

One of the most serious insect pests is the San Jose scale. This has destroyed ninety per cent. of the flowering plum, peach and cherry trees, in addition to other ornamental trees and shrubs, and large numbers of roses, in Plainfield. Every suburban town or city should have a tree warden, whose duties would be to look after all tree planting, and their general care. He should understand the pruning of trees and their insect enemies, as also the proper treatment for their preservation.

The trees of a city are of too great value and importance not to be under intelligent care, and to receive as much attention as any other branch of civic interest.

LITERARY.

The National Magazine for August carries, in addition to its regular table of contents, forty pages of brisk text and attractive pictures under the general title, "Portland's Fair and the Great Northwest," by Joe Mitchell Chapple. The cover design further carries out the idea of a Lewis and Clark number, and Edna Dean Proctor brings the final artistic touch to this feature of the magazine in her brillian story-poem, "Sacagawea," celebrating the glory of the Indian girl who led the explorers across the Great Divide to the Pacific.

In McClure's for August is the story by T. Jenkins Hains of a diver cornered in the hold of a sunken vessel by a shark. The diver—a great, black, calm fellow—took an awful chance because there was something in the boat that interested him. The shark, too, had a reason. By and by the shark got tired of mere door tending, and began to prepare for entering the hold of the boat. Then there was tall twisting and turning—and quick thinking. Really, a story most interesting and exciting—because it honestly gives you all the little details of the diver's extraordinary experience. There are wonderful pictures in color by Reuterdahl.

To those who believe that Mr. Ryan bought the Equitable stock for the purpose of continuing the sort of control of the Equitable Society that "J. H. Hyde and Associates" found profitable, the answer is given that too many people are now watching the Equitable for it to be possible for any one to get away in such a gross manner with profits or emoluments. We are extremely pleased to have so authentic an exposition, and we here pause to remark, on our own account, that the second reason given above might, by a little elaboration, stand for the doubts that persist in people's minds, and will persist until they are sure that Mr. Ryan, or M. Ryan and Mr. Hyde, can not still control the Equitable, when they choose.—Collier's, July 29, 1905.

Good Housekeeping for August is the Fun Annual, rich not only in wholesome fun from the homes of America(but in practical commonsense as well. The more serious features include My Grandmother, by Edith Livingston Smith, illustrated by G. Patrick Nelson; Tiles in Home Decoration, by A. B. LeBoutillier; Box Gardens of Permanent Value, by Prebe Westcott Humphreys; Little Cruelties to Children, by Bertha H. Smith; How to Weave Without a Loom, by Adelia B. Beard; Why Boarding School for Girls, by Clara Lena Bostwick, and Boys Who Need Private Schooling, by Walter Lincoln Irwin, illustrated by Strothmann; The Vanquished Landlord, a true and human tale by Elizabeth Price. There are many other humorous features, in prose and verse. Ten cents a copy, one dollar a year. The Phelps Publishing Co., Springfield, Mass., New York, Chicago.

Lake Excursion.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hopatcong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hopatcong is the gem of places. On July 30, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m.

Plainfield, N. J., July 26, 1905.

One dollar was received from a "friend" today for the King's Daughters baby camp. The donor could afford to spare a little for the worthy cause, can you?

If a merchant fails to make it worth your while to read his advertisement he wastes his space. Space costs money; and very little of it is wasted. Therefore—it is usually "worth your while" to read any store-advertisement.

Summit deserves some recognition from the Republicans. The least that the Union county convention can do is to give it the shrievalty nomination. "To the victors belong the spoils," but there should be an equitable distribution every time.

The Millionaires Club, which holds its sessions in the upper house at Washington, will lose one of its members, an United States judge at Portland, Oregon, having the privilege of sentencing him to six months' imprisonment and added a little fine as well. Senator Mitchell, the convicted man, like the late Senator Quay and many others who get into the upper branch of the Legislature through a liberal use of money, used the public office as a private trust. In other words he was in the Senate to make all he could on the side.

Through the kindness of George T. Powell, The Daily Press is enabled to present to its readers today an interesting article on Plainfield trees and their value. His contribution is number seven in the series of timely talks by Plainfielders published on Wednesdays. It is of particular interest because of the fact that Mr. Powell is a recognized authority on the subject he discusses. He is president of the Agricultural Experts' Association and has accomplished much in the work. Assisting him is a staff of specialists, engineers, architects and landscape gardeners. Through his efforts a great deal has been accomplished in towns and on big estates where his aid has been enlisted. On Long Island and at points on the Hudson, he has inaugurated extensive spraying to save the trees and has made suggestions that have been followed with good results. Mr. Powell's contribution will be found on page three.

Staats, who recently sold a strip of land adjoining to C. W. McCutchen, has given up his present plans and does not know just what he will do. LABOR FEDERATION MEET Annual Convention to be Held on August 21 and 22.

AT STATE CAPITOL.

All Trades Unions Entitled to Representation Invited to Send Delegates—What's to be Done.

The twenty-seventh annual convention of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor will be held in the Assembly Chamber at Trenton commencing at 10:30 a. m. Monday, August 21, and concluding Tuesday, August 22. The aim of the Federation is "the establishment and promotion of local trade and federal labor unions and central labor bodies, and the combination of all such in national and international trades unions, the State Federation and the American Federation of Labor, for the purpose of aiding and assisting each other, and securing the State and National legislation in the interest of the wage workers, and influencing public opinion by peaceful and lawful methods in favor of organized labor." No question of a partisan political character can be entertained, received or acted upon by the congress.

All trades unions entitled to representation are invited to send a delegate to the convention. The basis of representation is two delegates for every bona fide trade, federal or wage labor union of fifty members or less; from fifty members to one hundred, three delegates; and one additional delegate for every additional one hundred members or a majority fraction thereof; and one delegate for each Central Labor Union or Trades Assembly. Delegates will be admitted upon presentation of properly sealed credentials and on payment of the following taxation: From each trade or federal labor union with a membership of less than one hundred, $6 annually, to be paid in advance; and from each trade or federal labor union with a membership of more than one hundred, a per capita tax of 7 cents per year, to be paid in advance; from each central trades assembly or labor union, $5 per annum in advance. Each delegate will be entitled to one vote, and no proxies allowed. At the time delegates are elected unions should elect alternates. All credentials of delegates and alternates should be in possession of the secretary at least six days prior to the time of the convention. Credentials mailed to the secretary should be by registered letter. Resolutions and propositions for changes in the constitution intended for consideration by the convention must be furnished in duplicate on blanks to be had from the secretary, and must be presented to the convention before the close of the first day's session. No resolution or constitutional provision may be accepted or acted upon on the second day without a two-thirds vote of the convention. Resolutions published in the public newspapers before being submitted to the convention will not be considered or acted upon unless by unanimous consent of the delegates.

WAR'S FEARFUL COST.

Aimar Sato Says Japan is Paying a Million a Day.

Aimar Sato, official spokesman for Baron Komura, Japanese plenipotentiary, said in an interview at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, last night:

"I am confident that peace will be successfully negotiated by the appointed delegations. The Japanese will be guided by moderation and no excessive demands will be made, but the sentiment in Japan and Russia is for peace, and in the interests of humanity and propriety there must be peace.

"The cost to Japan, however, has been very great. On both sides the loss in men has been 570,000, Russia's being 370,000. The war is costing Japan one million dollars a day, and there is a feeling that there ought to be indemnity."

SUFFRAGE MEETING ENDS.

Mrs. Hall to Speak at State W. C. T. U. Conference Today.

With yesterday morning's session the conference of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association came to an end at Ocean Grove. A report of the association, read by Miss Gail Laughlin, was followed by a symposium on woman suffrage. Many prominent speakers took part in the discussion, notable among them being Mrs. Emma Bourne, of Newark, president of the New Jersey Woman's Christian Temperance Union; Miss Ida Augusta Craft, treasurer of the New York State Woman Suffrage Association, and Mrs. Amy Kingsbury, of Springfield, and a former resident of Wyoming.

White ribbons will predominate in this resort today, the summer institute of the New Jersey Woman's Christian Temperance Union being open in the temple. Mrs. Emma Bourne presides, and addresses scheduled for the two days' session will be delivered by Bishop Fitzgerald and the Rev. Dr. J. W. Marshall, of Ocean Grove; Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of this city; Miss Ruth E. Chew, of Bridgeton; Mrs. R. B. Chambers, president of the Pennsylvania Union; Mrs. Mary Sparkes Wheeler, of Ocean Grove; Miss M. S. Bullock, of Jacobstown; Mrs. A. R. Fisher, of Sayreville; Mrs. S. M. Clark, of Newark; Mrs. A. M. Hammer, of Bayonne, and the Rev. T. T. Mitchler, secretary of the Philadelphia Sabbath Association.

Tobacco Worth $2,250 Seized.

Bayonne, July 26.—One of the heaviest seizures of leaf tobacco for years was made here yesterday by Special Treasury Agent Crenshaw, of the New York special agents' force. Beyond the fact that the seizure was made here, and that it consisted of 1,000 pounds of the best Sumatra tobacco, few details were obtainable. While the foreign or home value of the tobacco is only about forty cents, the Dingley tariff law levies a duty of $1.85 per pound on the merchandise. The value, therefore, of the seizure is estimated by customs officers at nearly $2,250. The tobacco reached the seizure room in New York late in the afternoon. There were twenty-seven bales in all. It was reported that the merchandise was found aboard a steamship reaching New York on Saturday from Far Eastern points.

Jerseyman Saw Attack on the Sultan.

New Brunswick, July 26.—Captain Samuel Ewing Smiley, of the United States army, now detailed as instructor in military science and tactics at Rutgers College, was New Jersey's representative at the bomb throwing at Constantinople, when, during a religious ceremony, an attempt was made on the Sultan's life. Captain Smiley was the guest of U. S. Grant Smith, second secretary of the American Legation at Constantinople, and was seated in the pavilion reserved for the diplomatic corps. The bomb smashed all the glass in the pavilion and gave the occupants a shaking up. Captain Smiley was showered with splintered glass, but otherwise was unhurt.

Condemned Man Forced to Bathe.

Jersey City, July 26.—Much against his wish, Nicholas Murdaco, who is to be hanged in the Hudson county jail, August 25, for the murder of his wife, received a bath yesterday, at the hands of six keepers. He had refused to do more than to wash his face and hands from the time of his commitment to the jail, early in May. Murdaco tried to kill himself last week by twisting and pulling his tongue until it bled at the roots. The keepers believe the Italian had an idea that he could commit suicide by allowing the pores of his skin to close up, and for that reason refused to wash himself.

A Record Run.

Atlantic City, July 26.—There was a new record made last night between Philadelphia and Atlantic City over the Pennsylvania Railroad, in which two minutes were lopped off the best time for the distance, 69.4 miles. The Buffalo express made the run in sixty-three minutes, nineteen minutes faster than the regular schedule for express trains out of Broad street by the shore. The express made three stops.

ENGLISHMAN CRITICISES AMERICAN LEGAL LAXITY

TELLS ASBURY PARK HER LIQUOR LAWS CAN BE ENFORCED.

Asbury Park, July 26—July has been a profitable month for hotel and boarding house proprietors, but August will be even better. Ever since the Fourth accommodations at the various hostelries have been scarce, and Saturday afternoon some of the over-Sunday visitors had to call at several hotels before obtaining rooms.

A glance over the lists of hotel arrivals will show a representation from practically every State east of St. Louis, as well as several foreign countries. Because of the excellent season they are having, several hotel proprietors are already planning for additions to their hostelries this fall or next spring.

The New Jersey Woman's Suffrage Association's meeting opened yesterday.

When it was stated that Chicago's mayor had appointed three women as members of that city's school board Mayor Dunne was loudly applauded. While it was a women's meeting, a few men were in the audience, and the Rev. J. L. Surtees, of Manasquan, vice president of the Civic Club of that place, was one of the speakers. Another of the same sex, who was granted the privilege to speak last night, was the Rev. E. Tennyson Smith, of Birmingham, England, who criticised Americans for making laws and then failing to enforce them. As an example, he cited Asbury Park and the liquor traffic.

"It is acknowledger that the liquor law is broken. Why not enforce it? Laws can be enforced if the sentiment of the community points that way," he said.

A Dusty Street.

The P. S. C. street sprinkler broke down several days ago, and as a result of this, combined with the fact that the municipal street sprinkler covering that section has not been doing full duty, residents of West Front street have justly complained of the dusty thoroughfare. Manager Maguire, of the P. S. C., has placed a sprinkling car on the route this morning and the municipal sprinkler got in some work late yesterday afternoon.

PISCATAWAY'S TROUBLES

Taxpayers Have Heap of Bother Over Educational Facilities.

MUCH DISCONTENTED

Wrangle That Led South Plainfield to Take Steps to Secede—Lincoln Following Suit.

The latest improved edition of the work, named after the famous lexicographer, Noah Webster, is claimed to contain 25,000 new words, in addition to the half million, more or less, that have already been discovered or invented by the hordes of writers and professors in their endeavor to interpret the English language; yet in all this enormous collection of "signs of ideas," as one dictionary gives it, it is scarcely believed that there is a word sufficiently comprehensive to fairly describe the state in which the Piscataway township Board of Education finds itself at the present time—a condition for which these three-fourths of a dozen simple minded, honest, hard working tillers of the soil are really not responsible, at least, according to their own claims which seem, indeed, to be plausible. Yet these same nine gentlemen are held up to the execration, expostulations and objurgations of the citizens of the New Market neighborhood, particularly because of the long drawn out proceedings looking to the erection of a new school building to take the place of the one destroyed by fire over a year ago.

The Board of Education, on their part, claim they must proced strictly according to law. Hence, at the outset of the proceedings they secured counsel, and have in all things proceeded as advised by said legal light, but, as events have shown, the light that was expected to be diffused from this lamp of legal lore has not been of that brilliant and diffusive nature that should be conducive of the quality of sweetness and light necessary to illumine the road to success. On the contrary, the illumination has seemingly been of a character similar to that of a lamp with an ill-fitting wick and filled with a low grade oil. Where good advice was sought and expected, it is charged that the expectations have been by no means realized. In the proceedings for the first meeting called for the confirmation by the voters of the acts of the board, the voters themselves downed the project for a fine new school. For a second time proceedings were taken up and this time the same voters, by a large majority, decided that they wanted exactly what they had declared they didn't want at the previous meeting. But here again appeared the smoke colored clouds of disappointment in the irregularity of the call, which was not drawn in strict legal acordance with the proceedings of the board, yet was compiled in the office of their counselor. Whether from lack of knowledge, lack of care, or from design, these defects have surely proven fatal to the desires of the people. Furthermore, the ballots used were not only deficient in their arrangement, but lacking in quantity sufficient to go around in the extraordinary assemblage at the public meeting.

The changes made in preparing the wording of the ballots were in no sense chargeable to the educational administration, as they were drawn up in the office of their attorney. The lack of sufficient ballots was not the faulty work of the board, but of either the man who ordered the work, or the one who executed it. A bill was received from the printer some time ago for 250 of each of the two ballots, but although this was the quantity ordered by the board, only half the number was received. A second bill received at the board meeting on Monday was for "ballots," without mentioning any number. This bill was ordered returned to the printer to be sworn to and itemized.

When new counsel was obtained, it became necessary to obtain the tickets voted at the election for submission to the State's Attorney General for his opinion as to their legality. The county superintendent claimed that, according to law, they were consigned to his custody after the election, and as the law says they "shall be preserved by him for one year," he does not see his way clear to letting them out of his hands. If he remains firm in his stand, recourse must be had to higher authority to secure possession of the necessary evidence. In the meantime the people of the district must wait, as the Board of Education, who are as anxious to go ahead as any one, can not take a step in the way of gratifying their desires until they receive the necessary legal authority.

When the old school burned down an old factory building was secured for temoprary school purposes, and now, if anything was wanted to add to the troubles of the Board of Education, the owner of the building comes along and declares that if the building is wanted for another year a decided increase in the rent must be paid. This is a bitter pill, but it had to be swallowed, as no other building is available. Just one more perplexing question came up at the last meeting, in the shape of a visit from one of the old settlers, one time a clerk of the Educational Board, accompanied by an ancient book of minutes of the board, in which was inscribed the fact that a portion of the ground upon which the "Union" school is built was "leased in 1854 for fifty years at $1 per year," and this lease having run out in April, 1904, the board must make new arrangements or give up the land. Efforts were just on foot to purchase the land outright, and this will come up at the next meeting for settlement.

All of these delays is causing the ambitions of the New Market people to approach almost the vanishing point, as the people of South Plainfield section are proceeding as rapidly as the law will permit in an effort to secede from the township and form a borough government of their own, running their own affairs, including the management of their own school. The boundaries of the proposed new borough will take in, as at present outlined, almost the whole of the three voting districts of the township. Lincoln and East Bound Brook sections, which comprise about all the rest of the settled communities outside of the present borough of Dunellen and New Market, are also working toward securing borough government. These two new municipalities will not only take out of the township about one-half of the taxable property, but will also take up all the factory, railroad, telegraph, telephone, electric and trolley franchises, which have hitherto helped to lighten the burdens of the taxpayers. New Market will, in the event of the organization of these two boroughs, be left, with the help of the truly rural community contiguous, to pay for its own school; and it is in every way likely that, when these events transpire, the ambitions of the people of New Market will have a decided attenuated aspect from those now aparent.—Newark Call.

PICKLES AND PRESERVES.

In making preserves the following are excellent rules to observe: 1. The fruit must be gathered dry, 2. It must be carefully stirred with a wooden spoon to prevent burning. 3. It must be slowly boiled before adding sugar, and quickly boiled afterward. 4. It must be put in well-dried pots, and kept in a dry, airy place.

To pickle beets, wash the roots very clean, but do not scrape them; put them into boiling water and keep them boiling from two to three hours, till perfectly tender. Take them out and let them remain till cold, then part and slice the root, cover it with vinegar which has been boiled and cooled, and in which a teaspoonful of salt and half the quantity of cayenne has been boiled. Put the pickle into jars, and in a few days it will be fit for use.

If you have ever tested real home-made apple ginger you know how delicious it is. Here is the recipe: Take six ounces of whole white ginger, bruise it a little, put into a pan with four pints of cold water, and boil slowly till soft, then drain off the liquid. Take six pounds of apples, cutting each into six pieces (the long way), core and pare them; add six pounds of lump or granulated sugar. Boil the whole s lowly, adding no more water than that poured off the ginger. Shake often to prevent burning. Boil rather more than an hour, or till the fruit becomes a clear brown color and transparent.

In making red currant preserve be sure to remeber that in every pound of fruit you allow three-quarters of a pound of loaf sugar. Weigh the currants, and afterward strip them from the stalks (do this with a fork to prevent staining the hands). Place fruit and sugar in preserving pan, and boil for about three-quarters of an hour.

NOTABLE WOMEN.

Women Typewriters Who Have Attained Very High Speed.

It would surprise women typists in general to be told that when the writing machine was first invented operating it was thought to be an occupation for men only and not suitable for the feminine sex. Yet such is the fact. The first women operators were considered to be the pioneers of a new trade for their sex, as indeed they were. But by their skill and tact they won the way for all their sisters. Now the swiftest typewriters in the world are acknowledged to be women. It is agreeable to our national pride to know they are American women also. Some of the best to be found anywhere are in the government departments at Washington. Among these Miss Mary E. Pretty, a Philadelphia girl, has clicked off 26,400 words in a day of six hours.

Miss Pretty is a clerk in the patent office. Another young lady who has attained great speed on the writing machine is Miss Olive Cameron of Tennessee, also a clerk in the Washington patent office. Her record is 23,000 words in a day. The copy which she transcribed was extremely difficult, being patent specifications. The highest salary paid to women stenographers and typewriters in the government departments is $1,400. A very rapid typewriter, too, is Mrs. Margaret Cunningham of Trenton, N. J., who learned her trade in the evening schools of that city. She has learned to strike the keys of her machine without looking at them, which gives her a great advantage. Mrs. Cunningham's specialty is law reporting, the most difficult kind. When the typewriting machine was first invented 5,000 words were considered a good day's work.

A Heroic Nurse.

At 10 o'clock one evening recently Margaret Galvin, the night nurse of the women's ward of Bellevue hospital, New York, saw a gleam of light in the direction of the diet kitchen. She excused herself to the patient she was attending and hastened to the kitchen. The woodwork there was on fire, ignited from an imperfectly insulated electric wire. Miss Galvin snatched a blanket and tried at once to smother the flames and pull the wire with its burning coating away from the wall. She could do neither. She received a severe shock and burned her hands severly, but ran instantly to the telephone and called for aid, then fled back to the kitchen to continue the work of putting out the fire. From the office of the hospital word was telephoned at once to the electric light company to shut off the current. At the same time all the men attendants ran to the kitchen to help Miss Galvin. They found her almost suffocated by the smoke and fumes of burning gutta percha, but with her blistered hands still bravely fighting the fire, which was soon extinguished. Only Miss Galvin's courage and resourcefulness prevented panic and disaster.

Mrs. Mary Tootle James.

The Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs is one of the strongest and most alive in the national organization. Its president, recently elected, is Mrs. Mary Tootle James, wife of Judge W. K. James of St. Joseph. The Missouri federation holds its meetings once in two years. Mrs. James is eminent among club women of the southwest. Eleven years ago she and some friends organized the Runcie club of St. Joseph, which has become one of the largest and most influential of women's organizations in Missouri. Mrs. James was a charter member of this fine club. She is a graceful and effective presiding officer.

Made a Fortune in Alaska.

One of the pluckiest women in this land of feminine grit is Miss Marie Riedsell, a Connecticut lady, who went to the Klondike gold fields in 1898. She crossed Chilkoot pass in the early days, taking with her 900 pounds of baggage and two dogs. After numerous wanderings in vain search of wealth Miss Riedsell arrived at Cape Nome without a cent.

Here the indomitable pluck and good common sense of the Connecticut woman saved her and led her finally to the goal of her desires. She was a capital nurse and "hygienic physician," as she called herself, and she immediately began to nurse the sick and doctor them according to the requirements of hygiene. In no place are hygienic rules more needed and more disregarded than in a mining camp. Miss Riedsell found plenty to do at good pay. Soon she began to invest in claims, in some of which she finally struck it rich. She recently returned to her native Connecticut with a fortune.

MARCIA WILLIS CAMPBELL.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

"Engaged to her! Do you suppose I could have been—been such an ass if she would have had me? No! She—she had too much sense."

It was full a minute before Armstrong spoke again. For a few seconds he sat motionless, gazing steadily into Gray's handsome, blushing face; then he turned once more and looked out over the Pasig and the scarred level of the rice fields beyond. And the long slant of the sunshine on distant towers and neighboring roofs and copse and wall, and the unlovely landscape seemed all tinged with purple haze and tipped with gold. The blare of a bugle summoning the men to supper seemed softened by distance, or some new, strange intonation, and gave to the ugliest of all our service calls the effect of soft, sweet melody; and there was sympathy and genuine feeling in the deep voice as he once again held out his hand to Billy.

"Forgive me, lad, for I judged you more harshly than you deserved."

One lovely summer-like evening some five weeks later, in long, heaving surges the deep blue waves of the Pacific came lazily rolling toward the palm-bordered beach at Waikiki, bursting into snowy foam on the pebbly strand, and, softly hissing, swept like fleecy mantle up the slope of wet, hard-beaten sand, then broke, lapping and whirling, about the stone supports of the broad lanai of one of the many luxurious homes that dot the curving line of the bay to the east of Honolulu. Dimly outlined in the fairy moonlight, the shadowy mountains of the Waianai range lay low upon the western horizon. Eastward the bare, bold, volcanic upheaval of Diamond Head gleamed in bold relief, reflecting the silver rays. Here and there through the foliage shone the soft-colored fires of Chinese lanterns, and farther away, along the concave shore, distant electric lights twinkled like answering signals to the stars in the vault of blue, and the "riding lights" of the few transports or warships swinging at anchor on the tide.

From a little grove of palms close to the low sea wall came the soft tinkle of guitar, and now and then a burst of joyous song, while under the spreading roof of the broad portico, or lanai, the murmur of voices, the occasional ripple of musical laughter, the floating haze of cigarette smoke, told where a party of worshipers were gathered, rejoicing in the loveliness of nature and the night.

It was a reunited party, too, and in the welcome of their winsome hostess, in the soft, soothing influence of that summer clime, and through the healing tonic of the long sea voyage, faces that had been saddened by deep anxiety but a few weeks gone smiled gladness into one another now. A tall gray-haired man reclined in an easy lounging chair, his eyes intent on the clear-cut face of a young soldier in trim white uniform, who, with much animation, was telling of an event in the recent campaign. By his side, her humid eyes following his every gesture, sat a tall, dark, stylish girl, whose hand from time to time crept forth to caress his—an evident case of sister worship. Close at hand another young fellow in spotless white, his curly head bent far forward, his elbows on his knees, his finger tips joining, was studying silently the effect of his comrade's story on another—a fair girl whose sweet face, serene and composed, was fully illumined by the silvery light of the unclouded moon. "Coming by transport, via Honolulu"—"Gov's" cabled message had brought father and sister to meet him at these famed "Cross-roads of the Pacific," and whither they journeyed Amy Lawrence, too, must go, said they; and, glad of opportunity to see the land of perennial bloom and sunshine, and wearied with long, long months of labor in the service of the Red Cross, the girl had willingly accepted their invitation. Coaled and provisioned, the transport had pushed on for the seven-day run for San Francisco; but the recovering of his long-lost son and the soft, reposeful atmosphere of the lovely yet isolated island group had so benefited Mr. Prime that in family council it had been decided wise for them to spend a week or ten days longer at the Royal Hawaiian; and the boys had found no difficulty in "holding over," for the Sedgwick, that followed swift upon the heels of their own ship. Five joyous days had they together, and this, the fifth, had been spent in sightseeing beyond the lofty Pali of the northward side. The "O. & O." liner was coming in from Yokohama even as they drove away; and as they sat at dinner on the open lanai, long hours later, it had been mentioned by their host that the Sedgwick, too, had reached the harbor during the afternoon, and that army people were passengers on both liner and transport. Billy Gray, for one, began to wish that dinner was over. He was eager to get the latest news from the Philippines, and the Sedgwick left Manila full a week behind their slower craft.

"Did you hear who came with her?" he somewhat eagerly asked, "or on the Doric?" he continued, with less enthusiasm.

"I did not," was the answer—"that is, on the Sedgwick;" and the gentleman halted lamely and glanced furtively and appealingly at his wife. There was that embarrassing, interrogative silence that makes one feel the futility of concealment. It was Miss Lawrence who quickly came to his relief and dispelled the strain on the situation.

"I should fancy very few army people would choose that roundabout way from Manila when they can come direct by transport, and have the ship to themselves."

"Well—er—yes; certainly, certainly," answered the helpless master of the house, dodging now the warning and reproach in the eyes of his wiser mate at the other end of the table. The crack of a coachman's whip and the swift beat of trotting hoofs on the graveled road in front could be heard as he faltered on. The gleam of cab lights came floating through the northward shrubbery. "Except, of course, when they happen to be—er—already, well, you know, at Hong-Kong or Nagasaki," he lamely concluded.

There was an instant hurried glance exchanged between Gray and Prime. Then up spoke in silvery tone their hostess:

"Other officers, you know, are ordered home. We have just heard today that Col. Frost comes very soon. His health seems quite shattered. I believe—you knew—of them—slightly that is to say, Miss Prime, did you not?" But even with her words she cast an anxious glance along the dim reach of the lanai, for the pit-a-pat of footfalls, the swish of feminine draperies was distinctly heard. Two dainty, white-robed forms came floating into view, and, with changing color, their hostess suddenly arose and stepped forward to meet them. Just one second of silence intervened, then, all grace and gladness, smiles and cordiality, both her little hands outstretched, Mrs. Frank Garrison came dancing into their midst, her sister more timidly following.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION

"What's In a Name?"

We are informed that an address was delivered in this city last evening by "the Rev. Demetrius Elias Constantinstinzcias Vishanoff, M. D., of Thessalonica (Salonica), Macedonio." Please take him away! In such hot weather the presence of such a name might be fatal.—Passaic Daily News.

But It's Different in Camden.

That there is favoritism and partiality in police trials is shown by the sentences recently imposed by the Newark Police Commissioners on a batch of policemen who were under charges. Two who had quarreled and fought in a public street while on duty were let go with a reprimand, while a number of others who had missed sending in calls were sentenced to lose from three to ten days' pay. No wonder Newrak policemen steal turkeys and act as go-betweens in church robberies.—Trenton Times.

We're Not All Mark Tapleys.

We are now having the benefit of a genuine old fashioned Western hot wave. The other thing last week was the result of an abnormal state of the higher atmosphere. But it really does not see mto make much difference whether one is broiled on a gas stove or just an ordinary kitchen range. There is an unpleasant similarity between the blisters. The worst of it is, according to the predictions, that it is going to last for several days, and it will be more humid before it is through. So let everybody cheer up. It is just good old fashioned summer weather and that is all there is about it.—Paterson Morning Call.

A State Constabulary.

The increasing frequency of assaults and robberies in rural districts gives rise to the question whether this State, like Pennsylvania, should institute a State constabulary. * * * Suburban and minor communities or districts sparsely settled, are obviously unable to maintain a close police supervision such as exists in cities; a fact of which the miscreants who commit these crimes take advantage with a daring and apparent impunity that is as amazing as it is horrifying. The conclusion is that if these assaults, robberies and worse continue it will become incumbent upon this State, as it already has upon Pennsylvania, to devise some efficient protection for its rural residents.—Atlantic City Review.

ENDEAVORERS JUBILANT.

Over Showing Made at Baltimore Convention.

New Jersey Christian Endeavorers are jubilant over the showing made by the State at the Baltimore convention, having been one of twenty-two states and territories to report a gain of ten per cent. or more in membership, in recognition of which each received a Japanese silk banner suitably inscribed. Morris, Hudson, Sussex, Mizpah and Middlesex unions each received "Progressive Pennants" for advanced work, and 267 New Jersey societies were honored with a place in the "Recognition List."

The prize banners won by the various states, and including New Jersey, were made at the request of the United Christian Endeavor Union, by the Christian Endeavor societies of China and Japan for the special occasion of the convention, and are fine specimens of embroidery in silk, combining the most delicate combinations of colors, no banners being made alike. The New Jersey banner is of purple silk, with the letters "C. E." in gold in one corner and embroidered on it are wisteria blossoms and Japanese characters. The back of the banner has the following inscription, "World's Union, Increase Campaign Banner."

The banner was accepted by State President John T. Sproull for the State.

When the increase campaign movement was started two years ago at the convention in Denver, it was then decided that the states to receive a gain of ten per cent. or over would be placed on a roll of honor. Last year the announcement was made that a banner would be presented instead. New Jersey's actual increase was eleven and a quarter per cent.

NOVEL SALAD DRESSING.

A new salad dressing to serve with cucumber and lettuce or watercress, or to serve with a salad made of alligator pears and pistachio nuts, is made with bananas. Press three large bananas through a fine sieve, and beat to a paste with a pliable knife; when reduced to a paste, stir in the beaten yolk of an egg and beat again for three minutes. Now add slowly, a tablespoonful of olive oil for each banana used, stirring all the time, evenly and smoothly, in constantly widening circles, so that the dressing will be quite smooth and even. Season with a little lemon juice, stirred in drop by drop, a soupcon of powdered cinnamon or grated nutmeg, and a little French mustard. Chop the cucumber rather fine, mince the watercress; lay a layer of chopped celery in the salad bowl, arrange the cress and cucumber tossed lightly together on this, and pour over all the banana dressing. Garnish with lemon points and pimolas.

THE ATTRACTIONS.

Thermometer Has Fallen, but Bathing Is Enjoyed—Prizes for the Baby Show.

Asbury Park, July 26—The cool weather still continues, and there seems to be a touch of fall in the air, though such a thing at this season of the year has been unheard of before. Athletic sports, which were not to be thought of during the heated term of last week, have again come into vogue. Several of the young college students spending the summer in Asbury Park are busy organizing a ball team, and a practice was held this morning upon the plot between the Hotel Columbia and the Ocean, on Sixth avenue. The sturdy musicians of Pryor's Band have also been practising lately, and a game between the two teams will be arranged to take place some time late in the week. In spite of the fall of the thermometer, bathing does not seem to have lost in popularity, and along the ocean front this morning the throng of daily swimmers seemed as large as ever.

Secretary of the Baby Parade Commission, Arthur Hope, is rapidly bringing to a successful consummation preparations for the big annual event of the summer. He announces that more prizes will be offered this year than have ever been given before. A handsome prize has just been received from L. S. Plaut & Co., of Newark. Among the local donors are the proprietors of the Bristol, the Coleman House, the Columbia, Sunset Hall, Senator O. H. Brown, Steinbach Company and A. W. Cornelius.

Midweek dances will be held this evening at the Brunswick, the Columbia, the West End, the Ocean and Sunset Hall.

Miss C. Simmer and L. Jacob, of Plainfield, came down to Asbury Park Sunday and registered at Sunset Hall, where they will be sojourners for the remainder of the week.

Among the late Plainfield arrivals at the Clifton is Lyman C. Hibbard.

Late registrations at the Alaska in Ocean Grove include the name of W. R. Rose.

Howard A. George of Plainfield, is a sojourner at the Waverly in the camp meeting city, and will spend the rest of the month at the shore.

Late additions to the Plainfield contingent at the Surf House include Mr. and Mrs. H. C. VanEmburgh and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Schermerhorn.

The Hotel Columbia is entertaining from Elizabeth, Oscar Adelberg, who registered yesterday, and will remain through the week.

Late arrivals at the Newark include Dr. J. K. McDonnell, who has made Asbury Park his summer abiding place for several seasons. He registers from Cranford.

Abbot Brainerd, of Plainfield, came down to Ocean Grove on Saturday, and registered at the United States, where he will make an indefinite stay.

FOR M'ALPIN TROPHY.

Expert Riflemen Will Represent New Jersey in Creedmoor Match.

Sea Girt, July 26—Eight expert riflemen will represent New Jersey at Creedmoor tomorrow, in the competition for the McAlpin trophy. The match will be under the auspices of the New York State Rifle Association, and will be fired at 200, 600 and 1,000 yard ranges, ten shots at each range.

The New Jersey team will be made up of men who have shot on the State team for several seasons, and all are considered first class shots. The team will be in charge of General Bird W. Spencer, Inspector General of Rifle Practice, as captain.

Those on the team will be Major Arthur Rowland, First Lieutenant W. A. Tewes, First Lieutenant Herbert L. Smith, Sergeant Major Rickard Evans and Corporal Theo. Gabriel, of the 1st Regiment; Captain William B. Martin and Sergeant C. F. A. Silvester, of the 2d Regiment, and Captain Winfield S. Price, of the 3d Regiment.

The substitutes will be Captain William Libbey, of the 2d Regiment, and First Lieutenant Mervin A. Rice, of the 1st Regiment. The team will leave here tomorrow afternoon.

Mothers' Meeting at the Home.

Seeley Bissell addressed a good sized meeting of mothers at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home last night.

DOUBLE UMPIRE SYSTEM HAS CAUSED MUCH TROUBLE

Appropos the discussion about umpires following last Saturday's game between Plainfield and Westfield, the New York papers have taken up the question of the double umpire system, which was originated for the purpose of assuring the players an unusual safeguard against inability of the arbiters to see the true merits of close plays, but which does not seem to be working in a manner entirely beyond reproach.

The Evening Sun of yesterday says among other things that "in spite of the system of double umpiring which has been used almost exclusively this season there have seldom been so many and such justly founded complaints against the arbiter's decisions as have been made this year. Fully half of them have been made in games where there have been two men to watch the plays. This, of course, may be placed to some extent against the individuality of the umpires, but it seems that a more even distribution of functions between the two umpires or a more particular rule would make both umpires more useful in deciding very close plays.

"The only mention in the rule book of the divided functions of two umpires in the same game is Rule 74, which reads as follows: 'If two umpires be assigned to a game, the assistant umpire shall decide all plays at first and second bases.' If this is taken as closely bounding the function of the second umpire, he does not have enough to do. Two out of three times he can see what goes on at third base, and what occurs in the outfield, for instance, whether an outfielder gets a low fly before it strikes the ground or not, much more plainly than can the head arbiter behind the home plate. For instance, in the 3 to 0 game which Pittsburg took from the Giants, Gilbert safely stole third. Klem, who was assistant umpire that day, was near third base, could easily see that he had not been touched, and declared him safe. It was Johnstone's decision, however, and he, from behind the home plate, declared Gilbert out. It was undoubtedly Johnstone's decision, but the fact that Klem even ventured an opinion shows how little understood is the distribution of powers; and the umpires themselves do not believe that the rule entirely covers any case that might arise.

"A great many times this year the umpires have disagreed on a play, and the wrangling among the players which is sure to come over an unfavorable decision, was increased two-fold."

This only proves that even in the major leagues, where the best umpires are used, their decisions are frequently open to dispute, and if this be true, how can Plainfield and Westfield hope to escape. It is the opinion that the work of Umpires Henning and Merity is very satisfactory and quite free from tarnished decisions.

VAN ORDEN CASE ON LETTER BOX CHARGE

COMMISSIONER DECLARES THAT HE HAD A RIGHT TO SMASH IT.

The complaint against Daniel Van Orden, of the borough, that he had smashed a letter box on Somerset place, was dismissed by Commissioner Rice after the hearing at New Brunswick yesterday. The defendant was immediately released and returned to Plainfield.

Van Orden was represented by Francis J. Blatz, of this city, and Arthur Clark, of New Brunswick, who maintained that no evidence was submitted to prove that the letter box was one erected under the authority of the postmaster general, as required by law. They were upheld by the commissioner and the case fell flat. It was proven that Van Orden had erected the box and that he had a right to smash it. The complaint to the government was entered by Van Orden's son, with whom he has been on bad terms.

WALTER VAN WINKLE DEAD.

Thirteen-Year-Old Boy Dies of Diabetes.

Walter Van Winkle, the thirteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Winkle, died yesterday afternoon at 3:20 o'clock at his home in West Fourth street, from a short illness with diabetes. The lad had been patricularly unfortunate since last spring. He was first taken ill with grip, followed by measles, tonsilitis and then diabetes.

On Thursday of last week he accompanied his uncle, Dudley Miller, on the First Baptist church excursion, intending to remain at the shore for a couple of weeks. On the following Saturday he was taken ill, and he returned home at once. Diabetes developed and he grew rapidly worse.

The funeral services will be held Friday afternoon from the house at 4:15 o'clock, and Rev. A. E. Finn, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will officiate. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

Water Main Extensions.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company is extending its mains in South Second street, between Clinton and Rock avenues. This is an eight inch main. A four inch main has also been laid from West Front street to the sewage disposal works and two hydrants will be located in the vicinity at points yet to be decided upon.

Rev. J. J. Wicker, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Trenton, will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church on Sunday.

Representatives from Camden, Trenton, New Brunswick, Newark, Elizabeth, Brooklyn and this city are present. There were about seventy-five delegates in all.

The officers of the divisions are: William P. Compton, of Metuchen, grand worthy patriarch; Ruth Blessing, of Camden, grand worthy associate; Ross Slack, of Trenton, grand scribe, and Henry B. Howell, of Trenton, grand treasurer.

FORESTERS' EXCURSION.

A Special Train to the Convention at Atlantic City.

In connection with the triennial meeting of the Supreme Court, Independent Order of Foresters, which begins at Atlantic City Monday, July 31, a number of courts of Union and Essex counties are arranging an excursion, by way of the Central Railroad. This excursion will take place Thursday, August 3, and the price of the tickets will be $3.

New Jersey will be represented at the session of the Supreme Court by James C. Calvert and Willet T. Bingham, of Elizabeth; Arthur C. Wenzel, of Newark; George Eden and F. J. Weiss, of Jersey City, and J. C. Huff, of Somerville.

The members of New Jersey will tender the Supreme Court a reception on Thursday, August 3. A special train over the Central Railroad will convey the member from this vicinity and their friends. Tickets can be obtained from the chief rangers of the local courts. The train will leave the Broad street station, Elizabeth, at 7:30 a. m., and, returning, will leave Atlantic City at 10:30 p. m., allowing fully twelve hours at the summer resort.

A Summer Day Canard.

Chairman W. S. Bullock, of the fire committee from the Common Council, has made a thorough investigation of the report that charges were to be preferred against one of the firemen because of cruelty to one of the department horses, and declares that there is absolutely nothing in it. It is the opinion that the report emanated from the fertile brain of a newspaper reporter on another paper.

where Kirkland is also strong.

"Dr. W. P. Lawrence, of Summit, is also a candidate for the shrievalty, and will come to the convention with the backing of at least the eight delegates from Summit. E. K. Adams, of Cranford, has also been spoken of and is a candidate.

"Tillman and Perkins will be renominated for the Assembly. The third candidate is yet to be decided upon. R. B. Cissel has been mentioned and his name has been received with favor. He is president of the McKinley Club. The mention of Cissel's name was by his friends without his previous knowledge, and it is not known whether he would accept a nomination were it offered to him.

"Lawyer C. Addison Swift has been spoken of as an Assembly candidate also. Mr. Swift's friends say emphatically that he is not in the race and does not want to be in the race. Mr. Swift is a member of the county board of elections. He was asked this question by a Journal reporter this morning:

"'Can a member of the county board of elections be a member of the Assembly?'

"'I do not consider there is any possibility of my being a candidate for the Assembly,' said Mr. Swift, as he recognized the drift of the question.

"The question put to Mr. Swift is still open for an academic discussion.

"Several persons have been anxious to know the position of Ernest R. Ackerman in regard to the situation in Plainfield. Ackerman is not a candidate for the State Senatorship in the sense that he will enter into any contest for it, it is said by his friends. He is at present ill at his home in Plainfield, and has not made any statement himself."

ORDER HOSE WAGON.

Combination Vehicle is Ordered by North Plainfield Council.

The contract for the new combination hose and chemical wagon for the borough fire department has been awarded to the Heywood Company, of New York. The wagon will be almost a duplicate of the one in use in this city, except that it will have revolving chemical tanks and roller bearing axles and fifth wheel. It will have rubber tires.

Chairman Charles Lee, of the fire committee of the borough Council, yesterday signed the contract for the wagon, and Chief Howard Woolston visited the Heywood Company factory in New York and made a few suggestions as to advantageous changes which will be made.

all clubs in the association a request to furnish a report on such players as have improved in play since April. We plan to call for further reports in September. The purpose of getting in these reports from time to time is not merely to revise the list at stated intervals, but also to make it clear to club handicappers that the responsibility must ultimately rest with them if players from their clubs are rated higher than they should be, to any considerable extent. While this committee can itself look out for any marked improvement in the play of the best known players, it is apparent that we cannot be watchful over 1,560 golfers; and that no system ever devised can work out good results in the open events of an association of clubs unless the individual members of the association will cooperate with us in our work.

"This committee has held twelve meetings and has employed clerks who have found it necessary to devote over one hundred and forty hours to the work this spring. We have also devoted considerable additional time ourselves in supervising the work, correspondence, etc. We think the handicap list can be improved greatly by the co-operation of the clubs in reporting voluntarily individual cases of improvement whenever they occur, and we hope to accomplish still better results before the end of the year.

"We recommend that next year's handicap committee be appointed on or about December 1st, that it may have the winter months in which to get out the spring list without crowding the arduous work before it.

"We further recommend that the list include players rated at 18 and less; and that no player whose name is not returned by his club to the handicap committee for a rating be eligible to compete in the open or invitation handicap events of clubs in this association, except in the discretion of the handicap committee, and after receiving a post rating by it.

"Yours respectfully,
"LEIGHTON CALKINS,
"Chairman 1905 Handicap Com.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Agate ware that has been discolored or burned may be cleaned with coarse salt and vinegar.

The danger of burned fingers from handling hot pudding pans is lessened by means of a new invention. This is a simple holder consisting of three metal prongs attached to a long wooden handle. The prongs are bent so that it is possible to get a firm grasp on the edge of the pan.

Colored scrims are new and make most delightful summer hangings. The floral patterns are realistic and exceedingly charming.

Corn starch will remove grease most effectually. Rub a little fresh, dry corn starch into the soiled place, and it will at once begin the process of absorbing the grease. Brush the first used off carefully from the garment and proceed in the same way with more until the disfigurement has entirely disappeared.

Sugar should be bought in small quantities, as it dries and loses flavor if kept; raisins, currants and candied peel will not keep long. Vinegar soon loses its flavor if kept, and so does Lucca oil. Macaroni will not keep and spice, pepper and roasted coffee, too, soon deteriorate.

Ellsworth, the infant son of Herbert Taylor, has been very ill.

ELECT SMITH CHAIRMAN

Republican County Committee Chooses Him Successor to Coyne.

CALVERT, V.-CHAIRMAN

The Newly Elected Head of Committee First Councilman, Then Tax Collector and Now Registrar.

Registrar of Deeds F. H. Smith, of this city, was elected chairman of the County Republican Committee last night to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Assemblyman Edward S. Coyne. There was no contest and Mr. Smith was chosen without a dissenting vote.

James C. Calvert, of Elizabeth, former treasurer of the committee, was chosen to succeed Mr. Smith as vice-chairman, and Durward S. Smith, of Elizabeth, was elected treasurer.

This was the only business before the committee and the meeting was a brief one. The Plainfield members at the meeting were Mayor James F. Buckle, J. W. Murray, Jr., F. H. Smith, Andrew McCardell, Evarts Tracy and J. S. Higham.

Mr. Smith has advanced rapidly through the various political offices, first being elected a member of the Common Council from the Fourth Ward. During his term he was made president of that body. After retiring from the Common Council he was elected tax collector to succeed James Martin, who is now assistant postmaster, and at the last election he was elected county registrar of deeds, which office he now holds. His term is for five years. During the past few years Mr. Smith has taken an active part in Republican politics, having been a delegate to several conventions and serving as a member of the city and county committees.

GRAY-HAIRED NEWARKER LOST IN THE BOROUGH

MAN SUPPOSED TO BE E. C. FENNING PICKED UP BY POLICE.

A gray-haired, weak-minded wanderer, supposed to be E. C. Fenning, of Newark, was picked up for safe keeping by the borough police last night. An effort to put him in charge of relatives or friends will be made this afternoon.

The old man was first noticed walking around the yard of the Brunson farm, his strange actions attracting attention. Chief Weiss took him to the borough jail and examined him. He told a rambling tale, from which the Chief extracted the information that his name was Edward C. Fenning, that he had lived for years with his sister, a Mrs. Seaman, in Newark, and was on his way to "the Smalley farm," between Bound Brook and New Brunswick. The Chief discovered that there was a Smalley farm, as described, but the family were away. At an address given by Fenning no Mrs. Seaman could be found by the Newark police, to whom Weiss 'phoned this morning for information.

Later in the forenoon Fenning, in conversation with a Daily Press reporter, displayed a slip of paper on which was written "E. C. Fenning, 854 S. 17th street, Newark, N. J." Fenning said his sister gave him that to show in case he got lost. Chief Weiss thinks it the right clue, and hopes to reach the man's friends before night.

DAAB AND DENMAN TALK OVER UMPIRES

MAKE AGREEMENT FOR CONDUCTING FUTURE GAMES.

Managers Daab and Denman met yesterday in New York and held a conference regarding the umpire question relative to the dispute which arose in the last Plainfield-Westfield game. As previously stated, Mr. Denman made a suggestion to the Plainfield manager that both Umpires Merity and Henning be dropped and that a major league official be employed. Mr. Daab was willing to do anything that is fair, but it was agreed that the only man available at present would be Tim Hurst, and as he is an ex-league official he would be no more desirable than the men now serving. The other big league officials are all engaged now and could not be secured for any price.

In view of this the managers amicably settled the question by agreeing in the future contests Henning will officiate behind the bat and Merity will take care of the field. This arrangement was very satisfactory to Mr. Daab, for he believes that Henning tries to be just as fair as Merity, and as for the latter, he considers his work very fair and impartial. The new arrangement will go into effect on Saturday at Recreation Park, and it is hoped that it will prove satisfactory.

Phil. McGuire, of the Public Service Corporation, has promised to have first class trolley accommodations on Saturday, and through cars will be run from this city to Recreation Park, returning right after the game.

HOSPITAL MAY BENEFIT BY LEGISLATIVE LAW

ALLOWS PEOPLE TO VOTE CONTRIBUTIONS FOR ITS SUPPORT.

In view of the heavy expense necessary to run Muhlenberg Hospital, the board of governors has been discussing ways and means to increase the revenue. Early in the year the Common Council voted to appropriate $1,000 annually, this sum to be applied to the care of the city's indigent poor. While this sum is a great help it does not begin to meet the expense of caring for those classed as the poor of the city. It was originally intended to have the Common Council appropriate $1,500, but owing to certain legal questions it was thought best to make the sum $1,000.

A new law was passed in the Legislature last winter allowing cities of Plainfield's class to vote on an appropriation for the maintenance of hospitals. According to this law, the matter must be approved by the Common Council, and if this is done it can be put to a vote of the people as to whether they care to contribute money in that way to the hospital.

Plainfield is in a position to take advantage of this law if it so desires, and it is possible that efforts will be made to have the Common Council consider the question of increasing the amount received from the city. It is a fact that the care of the city's poor has aggregated an expense of $2,000 and over during a single year, and the board of governors think that it is no more than fair that the city, through the voters, should be willing to increase this appropriation.

The increase to the individual taxpayer would be slight, and it is believed that very few would make any objection to paying the extra tax. This question is sure to come up before the next election, and it is confidently believed that it will receive official endorsement.

Will Open Law Office.

J. H. Crane, of East Fifth street, will shortly open a law office in this city. He has resigned from a position of responsibility with the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

SCHOOL VOTE INVALID

Piscataway People Must Pass Appropriation Again on Account of Technicality.

ATTORNEY GEN'L ACTS

Decides That Voting Was Irregular—Lincoln Appropriation All Right, Says He.

Attorney General McCarter has set his official disapproval on the proceedings of the Piscataway township school meeting of April, so far as they relate to an appropriation for a proposed school house at New Market. For that reason it is necessary to hold another meeting, and this will take place, in all probability, about the middle of August.

According to Piscataway people, Superintendent Willis, of the Middlesex county schools, was responsible for the legal tangle which has frustrated the efforts to have proper school accommodations as speedily as possible. Willis acted as advisor to the board, and according to the story of New Market citizens, he supplied an insufficient number of ballots for the vote. When the proper ballots ran out, the farmers made some of their own and used them. They were irregularly drawn, and this fact vitiated the proceedings.

About six weeks ago Judge William A. Coddington, of this city, was engaged as counsel. He advised the board that the proceedings were irregular, and after straightening out the matter as much as possible communicated with the Attorney General, who sustained his opinion by vetoing the action of the school meeting. Now the board has arranged to meet next week and set a date in August for another school meeting.

So far as the Lincoln school scheme is concerned, the Attorney General found that the proceedings were regular, and there will be no delay. An appropriation of $2,500 was made at the same meeting for a school at Lincoln. Bonds will be issued for this amount and the work will go on as speedily as possible.

LONG IS SIGHTED AGAIN

Negro Murderer Crossed Opening Back of Lester Tingley's Barn.

BLOODHOUNDS NEXT

Detectives Have Sent for Animals and Will Put Them on the Trail at Once.

The last twenty-four hours have brought about no new developments in the chase after Charles Long, the Trenton murderer, supposed to be hiding in the swamps below Plainfield, but steps are being taken today that will either lead to his capture or establish the fact that he has gotten beyond the cordon of detectives and posses. It was stated this morning that if he is anywhere in this vicinity he is in the tangled undergrowth of Ash swamp, between Oak Tree and Picton and that bloodhounds would be secured to run him down. This plan was suggested last night, and an effort is now being made by the Trenton detectives to secure the proper breed of animals.

Long was seen but once yesterday, and that was near Oak Tree by Lester Tingley, a rural letter carrier attached to the local office. He emerged from a clump of bushes back of Tingley's barn in order to cross an opening and plunge into a deeper thicket on the other side. Tingley had barely time to see that his description tallied with that furnished of the fugitive before he was gone. Word was sent to the police and the watchers hurried on his trail, but as in previous instances he had disappeared. Ash swamp is worse than Dismal swamp for tangled vines, mud and quicksand, and his hiding there makes the search all the more difficult.

An effort was made at one time yesterday to dislodge the negro by setting fire to the brush, but the undergrowth is too green to burn and the plan failed. The detectives also penetrated some of the recesses not before visited in the hunt, but though they discovered tracks undoubtedly made by Long, he was not sighted. All the officers carry Winchesters, and they have no hesitation in saying that they will shoot him on sight if he does not halt. The search today is in charge of Detectives Clancy and Pilger, of the Trenton office, who have been on Long's trail since the crime was committed and who have known him for years.

NO FIREWORKS AT WEEKLY BAND CONCERT

SICK WOMAN'S FAMILY ASK THAT THEY BE POSTPONED.

At the request of relatives of Mrs. Beekman, of Elm place, who has been seriously ill with typhoid fever, Bandmaster LaVere has postponed the fireworks display arranged to be given in connection with tomorrow night's band concert. He had intended sending up a large number of bombs which give a terrific report and which would undoubtedly affect the patient. If her condition is improved the display will be given next week.

The soloists at tomorrow night's concert will be Jack Leick, the famous cornettist who performed two weeks ago and Jack Drislane and Bert Fitzgibbon as vocalists. Drislane is the composer of "What's That the Brass Band Played," "Heinie" and other big hits, while Fitzgibbon is responsible for "Jasper Johnson" and "Don't Be So Mean." The programme in detail follows:

March—"Bold Front," F. B. Seltzer; medley—"Popular Humpty Dumpty," Robert Recker; (a) "Sextette from Lucia," Danisetti; (b) "Intermezzo Sinfonico," Massagni (Cavalleria Rusticana); vocal solo, (a) "Listen to the Leader of the German Band," Morse, (b) "My Yankee Irish Girl," Morse, Jack Drislane; (a) "The Gondolier," Powell; (b) "Tammany;" cornet solo—"Grand Fantasia," Levy, John S. Leick; medley—"Bits of Remick's Hits," Lampe; vocal solo—(a) "Don't Be So Mean," Fitzgibbon-Morse, by request, (b) "Jasper Johnson," Fitzgibbon-Morse, Bert Fitzgibbon; "The Zitella Club," A. T. McKenzie.

HE BEAT THE UNION OUT

Organized Labor Demanded That Theatre Man Discharge Unaffiliated.

WORK STILL GOES ON

Manager Gelatt Lays Off the Local Union's Members and Engages Others from Atlantic City.

Prompt action on the part of Manager Gelatt prevented trouble among the carpenters at work on the new Plainfield theatre this morning, and warded off a delay that might have prevented the opening on August 24. Four union men who belong to the local organization were dismissed and others were brought from Atlantic City at noon to take their places.

Mr. Gelatt, who has been supervising the construction of the playhouse, has experienced trouble from the start in securing a sufficient number of carpenters and was compelled to send to Atlantic City for additions to the force. All the men he brought up were members of the union in that city with the exception of a new lot that came last week. They were not members of the union, but had applications pending which practically covered the ground.

Members of the local union, however, insisted that these men present their applications to the Plainfield organization, but this they refused to do on account of the expense. It costs but $2 to join at Atlantic City, while in this city the fee is $10. The Plainfield union took the matter up, and last night its members on the job, four in number, were instructed to strike. This meant added difficulty in other trades, although the masons had previously announced that they would not take any part in the disagreement.

Before the men went to work this morning, Manager Gelatt was at the building and laid off the Plainfield carpenters who were about to strike. He followed this up by telegraphing for more men, and they reached town at noon. The work is now progressing as usual and unless further trouble follows the alterations will be completed in time.

TENNIS PLAYERS KICK.

Y. M. C. A. Tournament Contestants Want to Play on Outside Courts.

Members of the Y. M. C. A. interested in the tennis tournament now on among the association players have made formal application to Physical Director Henckel for permission to play sets on outside courts. It is believed that the tournament will be finished sooner and under more satisfactory conditions all around if the play is allowed on non-association courts. The permission will probably be granted.

Interest in the tournament is increasing and a close finish is looked for. The players are on the second round.

TUCKER FOR ASSEMBLY.

Elizabeth Politicians Hit Upon a Candidate.

Elizabeth politicians have found a candidate for the Republican convention to nominate. He is E. J. Tucker, of that city, whose friends are booming him for Assembly. There are three men to be nominated and Elizabeth will have to select one of the number.

Assemblyman Randolph Perkins of Westfield, and Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of Rahway, will be renominated, according to the people on the inside. If Tucker is selected by Elizabeth the trio will be complete and as generally the case there will be nothing for the convention to do but "nominate" the men already chosen.

In Westfield Tournament.

Paul R. Collier, of this city, is among the tennis cracks entered in the open tournament to be started by the Westfield Club next Saturday. He will be paired with a Westfield man.

Tony Out of Hospital.

Tony Fusch, the Italian employed at the Pond Machine Tool Works, who was operated upon for appendicitis at the hospital, recently, was discharged cured this morning.

ODD FELLOWS HOLD A JOINT INSTALLATION

WORK CONDUCTED BY DISTRICT DEPUTY ARMSTRONG AND STAFF.

District Deputy Thomas Armstrong and staff, of Rahway, visited this city last night and conducted a joint installation of officers recently elected by the local Odd Fellow lodges, Plainfield, No. 44, and Queen City, No. 226. The exercises were conducted in Odd Fellows' Hall in the Babcock building, and were witnessed by a large gathering of members from this city and other places.

The officers as installed were as follows: Queen City Lodge—Noble grand, David Patterson; vice grand, James Kerr; right support noble grand, A. G. Barber; left support noble grand, William Aiken; warden, Berlin Banks; conductor, Henry Hoffman; right support vice grand, Lewis Apgar; left support vice grand, Robert Siorah; R. S. S., John Whiting; L. S. S., R. Wilson; inner guard, Fred Welsh; outer guard, George Moorehouse. Plainfield Lodge—Noble grand, A. W. Pangborn; vice grand, William Day; right support noble grand, Joseph Shepperd; left support noble grand, Harvey Schmeyer; warden, E. L. Boice; conductor, J. Kettenring; right support vice grand, Dr. Monfort; left support vice grand, Charles Holstein; R. S. S., William Ruddy; L. S. S., John Johnson; chaplain, P. Doerenger; inner guard, William Smith; outer guard, Michael Koehler.

Following the work, the gathering adjourned to the banquet room, where there were numerous addresses. The affair was in charge of a joint committee composed of John Becker, Henry Nischwitz and John Kriney, from Plainfield Lodge, and Henry Hoffman, Aleck Muir and C. W. DeGraw, from Queen City.

COLORED EXCURSIONISTS KEPT FROM THE BEACH

MT. OLIVE AND CALVARY CHURCH MEMBERS INDIGNANT.

The excursionists who went to Highland Beach with the Mt. Olive and Calvary Baptist churches, colored, yesterday are indignant over the treatment accorded them by the resort people. They say they were not allowed on Highland Beach proper, but were sent to an adjoining beach, where the bathing was poor and no attractions offered any alternative to the bathing. Protests by some of the white people at the beach, it is said, led to the order compelling the excursionists to stay by themselves at the by-beach. Most of the colored pleasure seekers declared this morning that their outing was completely spoiled.

Joseph A. Haynes, agent at the North avenue station, said this morning that the churches were only $7 short of the amount required to pay the railroad company at the start yesterday, and this was due to the fact that more people planned to go on the excursion than was anticipated. There was but a slight delay while the committee sold the tickets to make up the difference of $7. The committee paid half the full amount to the railroad company on Tuesday and the balance yesterday morning when the train arrived. An additional coach was required for the overflow, which necessitated an additional payment.

MAYOR'S REALTY DEAL.

N. B. Smalley Actively Engaged in Local Improvements.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley has purchased from Walter Apgar a large lot on Westervelt avenue, near Grandview, and has commenced the erection of a house on the ground.

He is now devoting all his time to the improvements being made at Rockview Heights. As soon as that tract is laid out in building lots a number of handsome homes will be erected there.

KIRKLAND A FAVORITE

McCardell Will Throw His Strength to Elizabeth Man for Sheriff.

A CLOSE CONTEST.

MacMurray Is Out for Summit Man for the Place—Dr. Lawrence's Chances Good Also.

Andrew J. McCardell, of the Third Ward, told an Elizabeth Journal reporter last night that he favors Robert J. Kirkland, of Elizabeth, for sheriff. He added that he would use his efforts to have the Fourth Ward of this city go to the county convention for Kirkland.

If the Fourth Ward goes to the aid of solid Elizabeth, Kirkland will most likely be the nominee, for there will be a sufficient number of votes to insure his election. The Fourth Ward is entitled to nine delegates and Elizabeth has sixty-two. This makes a total of more than half the full delegation of the convention.

Mr. McCardell is quoted as saying that although James T. MacMurray favors the shrievalty going to Summit, it would make no difference between them. The fact that they favor different candidates, he added, would not interfere with their friendly relations. What the other three wards of Plainfield will do is problematical, but in all likelihood they will be solid for whoever Summit presents.

Rahway has a favorite son in Postmaster William Wright, of that place. Their delegation will give him a complimentary vote, but will probably make a change before the roll call is ended. The friends of Kirkland are working to get Rahway into line. Summit's candidate is Dr. W. B. Lawrence. There is no question that the last named municipality deserves the nomination, and from all accounts Lawrence is looked upon as a model candidate.

THADDEUS O. DOANE, JR., IS QUIETLY MARRIED

MISS BESSIE EDNA POUND, OF NEW YORK, HIS BRIDE.

Miss Bessie Edna Pound, of New York, and Thaddeus O. Doane, Jr., son of Chief Doane, of the local fire department, were quietly married at the Church of the Transfiguration, in New York, yesterday noon. Upon returning from their honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Doane will reside in New York.

Rev. Dr. Houghton, rector of the church, officiated and neither the bride nor the groom was attended. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott Pound, of New York, and her brother, and Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Doane and son, Hervey Doane, together with Captain Vaughn, of the New York Fire Department, a girl friend of the bride and a niece of the groom were the only witnesses. After the ceremony a luncheon was served at the Waldorf.

The groom is engaged in the real estate business and is associated with William T. Jeffery, the local real estate expert.

Six Million Brick Wanted.

Manager E. W. Mills, of the U. S. Express Company, has received orders from the New York office, informing him that in the construction of the company's new building on Twenty-third street, New York, six million well burnt hard brick will be needed. Persons having any quantity of brick for sale, should consult Mr. Mills, as the company means business and must have the brick.

Netherwood Home Meetings.

The Wednesday half-hour prayer meeting at the Netherwood Home was held last night. M. C. Dobbins led the meeting and D. M. Torrey and the Italian minister, of Westfield, spoke. During the afternoon the children enjoyed forty quarts of ice cream donated by W. W. Warnock, the West Front street caterer.

Trenton Pastor to Speak.

Rev. John J. Wicker, pastor of the First Baptist church of Trenton, has been secured as the speaker at the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Miss V. Lilian Perry, of Scranton, Pa., will be the soloist.

At the Rescue Mission.

There will be a specially important meeting of the Rescue Mission this evening. Important business will be transacted and there will be good singing and speaking.

Barn Party.

M. J. Higgins, of East Second street, gave a barn party to several of his friends Tuesday evening.

MAYOR BILL GOING TO "GAY PAREE" TO BUY A MERCEDES

Having seen about all of interest in this country, "Mayor Bill" Smith, of New Market, has decided to go abroad and will sail on Tuesday, August 15, for a trip to Europe. He will spend most of the time in Paris, where his sister, Mrs. Charles L. Fair, and her husband were killed while on an automobile trip. Mr. Smith says that the trip will be made solely for pleasure and that he has no idea of making further investigation in the facts regarding his sister's death.

It was believed that because of the contention made by Mr. Smith's brother, who lives in Denver, regarding his part of the estate, that "Mayor Bill" was planning to conduct an investigation on his own hook. This he denies.

Mr. Smith will take his new motorcycle with him, and he says that he may purchase a French auto while abroad, if he can find one to suit him. Yesterday he took a trip to Philadelphia and return, and while riding through a country section on a level piece of road he let his cycle out for a speed test. He was going a thirty-five mile clip, when the sprocket broke and he was thrown twenty feet in the air. He escaped without a serious bruise or a cut. He says that in the future fifteen or twenty miles an hour will be fast enough for him.

WOMEN CARRY INVALID FROM HIS BURNING HOME

The home of Jacob Schleif, located just off the Warrenville road back of Washington rock, caught fire from a chimney at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and was totally destroyed. The owner, who has been a helpless invalid for nearly a year, was carried out by his daughter, Miss Annie Schleif, and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles Schleif, of this city. The barn also caught fire but was saved by neighbors. The loss will aggregate $1,800 and is only partially covered by insurance.

Mr. Schleif is the father of Stephen Schleif, the Park avenue confectioner, and is well known in this city. He will be brought to his son's home tonight and will remain while the burned structure is being rebuilt.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Matters are at a boiling point between William Sanford and Arthur Vail. Sanford has given orders to progress rapidly with his building in the loop. Arthur Vail made a counter-move yesterday and started an 8x12 building on the right hand side of the road, almost opposite the loop. It is thought that Vail will start a lunch room and waiting room with one of his clerks in charge. This move has angered Sanford because of the opposition that will likely arise and he left early this afternoon for Newark to consult with the P. S. C. officials. Dory Apgar has leased Vail enough land on which to build the structure.

Lawyer S. S. Swackhamer was here all afternon in search of evidence for the defence of Stanbery. His object is supposed to be to produce an eye witness at the smash-up and through him to prove that Stanbery was on the right and Harrison on the wrong side of the road. Everyone here is interested in the outcome, since Swackhamer will probably be asked how Stanbery came to be touring at that time without a light. Deputy Mohan said yesterday afternoon that no further warrant had been taken out for Stanbery and that, in his opinion, only a civil suit would result.

Services over Leslie Vliet, who died on Monday, were held yesterday afternoon from his late home here. Rev. S. K. Doolittle officiated. Interment was made in Bloomsbury cemetery. Six of his playmates, Harry Giddes, Raymond Huff, Joseph Hubbard, Arthur Voorhees, Charles Smith and Russell Runyon, acted as pall-bearers, and carried the coffin to the Dunellen station, from where it was shipped to Bloomsbury on the 2:09 train.

The funeral of John France, the aged Piscataway farmer who died Tuesday, was held this afternoon from the home of his daughter, Mrs. James Dunbar. France was eighty-five years old, and old age together with a long illness was responsible for his death. He leaves a wife and a large family of sons and daughters. Rev. Mr. Dorwood officiated and France was buried in Stelton cemetery.

After seven bad defeats, the old New Market team has disbanded. Abe Nelson has a scheme on hand to form a semi-professional team. He will probably be backed financially by "Bill" Smith.

A new concrete walk is being laid in front of the Methodist parsonage and gas will take the place of oil lamps when the electric light fails. Frank Stites has charge of the job.

Many Dunellenites left this morning on the excursion of the First Presbyterian church to enjoy the day at Asbury Park.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

A representative of Harding & Co., of Newark, counsel for the Automobile Club of America, who are behind S. W. Rushmore in his appeal from Recorder Clark's $50 fine imposed Friday night of last week, was in town yesterday on business connected with the case. The battle, which has only just begun, promises to be a long drawn out one as the A. C. of A. intend making a test case of it and the final decision will probably stand as a precedent for future cases of a like nature. Besides this it is said other suits have been threatened by the defendant, as he claims he can prove that he did come to a standstill and that his arrest and conviction was illegal.

The Daabsters and Westfield clash again Saturday afternoon at Recreation Park. With the series 2 to 0 against them, Manager Denman will make a desperate effort to land this game, as he can see the county championship slowly slipping away from the Westfield team.

The ban on the old baseball diamond has been removed, Henry C. Meyers, the owner, having cut the crop of hay, which was the barrier against the game being played there.

In the matter of the application of Ann E. Chapin to have a mortgage cancelled of record. Order to Show Cause.

THE EDITOR'S CALLERS.

The editor is busy,
With his convictions strong;
Your presence makes him dizzy,
Oh, do not stay too long.

That you should have your say so
Is right and proper, too,
But, mister, do not stay so —
Let up when you are through.

Give forth your message briefly;
There let the matter end.
Your duty then is chiefly
To get outside, old friend.

I do delight to meet you
But, work-days, understand,
It is enough to greet you,
To shake you by the hand. —

Bestow on you my blessing,
Say all that need be said—
The sad truth now confessing
That I must earn my bread.

When some one comes and lingers,
With naught to do but talk
Until the clock's slow fingers
Have moved about a block;

Until my tense nerves tingle
With positive affright,
And not a jest or jingle
Has marred the page of white,

Dost wonder I have notions
That no one should abide?
Those stern and fierce emotions
That prompt to homicide?

If ever, worn and fretful,
From having thus to squirm,
I should become forgetful
And smash a brother worm,

The hope of my salvation
Will rest—may I succeed—
Upon the provocation,
As wicked as the deed.
—A. L. Bixby, in Nebraska State Journal.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION

One Tank Always Full.

There is one thing in favor of the new alcohol-propelled automobile—the average chauffeur will usually have a good supply on hand when the tank suddenly goes empty on a country road.—Passaic Daily Herald.

Another Nut for Dr. Osler.

Carlisle D. Graham, who entered the lists with W. J. Glover the other day in a swimming race through the Niagara rapids, is 58 years old. This may be of special interest to Dr. Osler, who thinks a diet of such Graham rolls should be beyond the endurance of men over 40.—Newark Advertiser.

No Kick Coming.

There is an unusually large crowd in Ocean City for this time of the year, and the hotel men are wondering as to the size of the annexes they will be compelled to have ready when the August crowds arrive. Taken altogether, this year—from Easter thus far—has been good. There was the customary lull after Easter until the past week or two, but since then hotel business has picked up wonderfully, according to the reports from the large houses. The cottages, too, are well filled, and, from the standpoint of having the crowd, Ocean City has no just cause for complaint.—Ocean City Reporter.

Protected at Both Ends.

A titled foreigner—he said he was—was recently sentenced to a term in State Prison from Hudson county for attempting to swindle a number of society leaders in Jersey City and Hoboken; and Count Rosenbaum is languishing in the Camden county jail for swindling a woman out of $6,400. New Jersey is pretty well protected against these foreign frauds at both ends. We have so many who are native born that it is a comfort to know that the Jersey City and Camden police are able to detect and round up the rank outsiders.—Trenton Times.

A Credit to New Jersey.

The New Jersey State Bureau of Statistics of Labor and Industry has a large exhibit at the exposition now in progress at Liege, Belgium, and James T. Morgan, deputy chief of the Bureau, says that it has attracted much attention and received the highest commendation, and has been pronounced by the judges second only to that of France. A special part of the exhibit is devoted to two documents issued by the Bureau, which have been translated into French for the purpose. One is the handsomely illustrated report on "Industrial Betterment Institutions in New Jersey Manufacturing Establishments." This describes what has been done in the factories in this State for the benefit of the employes. The other work is a compilation of articles published in the twenty-seventh annual report of the Bureau. It includes a complete digest of the New Jersey labor laws.—Paterson Daily Press.

Several major league clubs have their eyes on Pitcher Hesterfer, of Newark.

Captain Joe Bean, of Jersey City, leads the Eastern League in sacrifice bunting.

Besides fielding the ball in brilliant style, the locals are hitting it squarely on the nose.

Gibson, formerly of Montreal, is catching great ball for Pittsburg, and hitting very hard.

Al Farmer is reported to be doing fine work for Summit. He is a good catcher and was always popular here.

Mike Donlin, of the Giants, has been suspended for three days and fined $30 for insubordination on the diamond.

"Red" Waller's sole ambition is to beat Plainfield, for the records show that he has never defeated the team now playing here.

The trolley company carried nearly 900 people to Crescent Oval last Saturday, and many more went there in carriages, automobiles and on bicycles.

Barring a couple of errors on Saturday, everyone admits that it was Plainfield's game, aside from the questioned decision. The locals hit the ball very hard.

It is the opinion of fandom that nothing would be gained by the employment of league umpires in place of Umpires Merity and Henning. Both are doing satisfactory work.

Deegan pitched for Orange at Trenton on Monday and his team lost by a score of 3 to 1. "Willie" did not have the Plainfield team behind him and that made all the difference.

Westfield is up against a different proposition this year with Plainfield than ever before, and if the down-the-line team wins the championship it will have to play the game of its life.

Manager Denman's comparison of the two teams, made before the series began, proves one thing, that he was wrong. Every one of the locals has played better ball than Westfield.

For the benefit of the players who fancy they would like to square up to Umpire Merity, they are informed that that official is a boxing instructor in Jersey City and is a past master in the art.

According to the Summit Record, the Morristown-Chatham team, of the Lackawanna League, is the most unpopular in that league, because no players will resort to the "dirty" tactics of that team.

Manager Denman, of the Westfield team, announced last night that his lineup for Saturday's contest at Recreation Park would be exactly the same as last week. Manager Daab's lineup will also be the same.

When the Plainfield fans made a grand kick against the umpiring of Dick Watt last season, Manager Denman refused to make a change. Now he admits that Plainfield's kick was just, and he does not blame the people for objecting.

It is the opinion of many baseball managers that it will not be long before the Tri-State League, which has been causing them so much trouble, will come into the fold. The Protective Association of Independent Baseball Clubs of Ohio and Pennsylvania, which is to be known hereafter as the Ohio and Pennsylvania League, has just been granted the protection which the National Association of Minor Baseball Leagues affords. The provisions are that all players now in the Ohio and Pennsylvania League shall remain in that league, including all contract jumpers from other leagues. This will eventually mean a big cut in the salaries of the players in the Tri-State League, which have been at a sky-high limit, and they will not be permitted to return to the teams from which they jumped, according to the statement of several managers.

ARCANUMITES TO CONFER

State Body to Hold Special Session in New Brunswick, August 11.

INCREASED RATES.

Conferees Expected to Give Concrete Form to Formal Representation to be Made to Supreme Council.

The grand council of the Royal Arcanum of New Jersey will meet in special session in Columbia Hall, at New Brunswick, on Friday, August 11. A meeting of the executive committee was held last night, and it was decided to call the special session for the purpose of affording the representatives of the subordinate councils of the State an opportunity to give a thorough airing to their views upon the increase in the insurance rates, and to give concrete form to the opinion held by New Jersey Arcanians with respect to the increase.

It is expected also that the session will put the matter in shape for a formal representation to be made to the supreme body, which it is now certain will be held at an early date, in response to a demand from the order throughout the country.

The official call for the special session at New Brunswick is made by the grand regent, James Rodgers, of Cranford. The notice of the call is now in the printer's hands and will be forwarded to each of the 122 subordinate councils of New Jersey within a day or two. It is expected that the session will occupy at least two days.

The grand council of the State is made up of representatives from the subordinate councils of New Jersey. The representatives are elected for a one-year term and usually have nothing to do but attend the regular meeting of the grand council, which is generally held at Lakewood in May. The holding of a special session of the grand lodge is not altogether unprecedented, but it is most unusual, and the action of the grand regent, and the executive committee, which is made up of the five principal officers of the council, shows that the men of prominence in the Royal Arcanum realize that the emergency is a serious one, and that the increased insurance rates adopted by the supreme council at the annual meeting in May at Atlantic City has brought the organization face to face with a crisis in its affairs.

A member of the Arcanum who is prominent in the affairs of the organization said:

"Whatever may be the mathematical facts of the discussion as to rates, it is generally recognized that the rank and file of the membership in New Jersey, at least, are opposed to an increase in the rates, at any rate, so drastic an increase as that projected. The statement of the supreme council that now we have a system and a table of rates that will insure absolute success is received with the comment that this claim is exactly the same as that made a few years ago, when an increase was made and the reserve method improved, and they suggest that in a few years the claim of today may be proved delusive, just as today the supreme council admits the hollowness of the claims of the past

"Then, too, there is the argument that the increase in rates will drive out of the order every man who can get insurance elsewhere at anything like the same rates, leaving behind only the poorest risks, those who hold on to the order because there is no other resource available. I am not prepared to say that New Jersey will suggest to the supreme council a solution of the problems, but I am certain that if the sentiment of the subordinate councils is correctly reported, the special session of the grand council on August 11 will record an unmistakable repudiation of the supreme council's action in increasing the rates."

William R. Townsend, of Kensington avenue, is suffering from a painful carbuncle on the neck.

Albert I. Littell, of North avenue, is spending some time at Manasquan, from which place he visits Sea Girt early every day for practice on the State range.

John H. Tier, Jr., of Bank place, will go to Philadelphia next week, where he will undergo an operation on his foot. Mr. Tier has had considerable trouble with the foot and was under treatment for a long time in a Newark hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Detwiller who were married early in the spring, have returned from their trip abroad and are preparing to take possession of their new home at East Seventh street and Watchung avenue, which Mr. Detwiller purchased before his marriage.

OCTOGENARIAN BLOOMER MAID AGAIN MAKES PROTESTS AT THE "MAN-MADE BARRIERS"

Vineland, July 27—Miss Susan P. Fowler, eighty-two years old, the "bloomer woman," of this place, has thrown all thoughts of love to the winds since her lover, who is fifty-two years old, sailed for England and never came back, and is now down to business again. For forty years she has conducted a farm here without the aid of a man, and every year of the forty she has filed a written protest when paying her taxes, against "taxation without representation." That money, she says, was taken from her illegally because the Constitution of the United States gives every citizen the right to suffrage, and the privilege was denied to her. In an interview she said: "This intolerable tyranny of taxation without representation is what separated us from England. The money I have paid in taxes during the forty years, if put on interest, would now amount to enough to repair my home for the coming winter and make me comofrtable. I do not ask charity, but the system of high freights and corporation greed has taken from me what I am entitled to, and it should be returned. My work along the line of new thought has not been profitable, because people are slow to follow, even when they see the light. I shall never rest, however, until every man-made barrier to the development of true womanhood shall have been swept away. One of the greatest barriers is to be denied the right to vote. Four States of the Union have already emancipated woman from this injustice. When women vote many wrongs will be righted."

NEW WORLD ROUTE.

Highway Across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec in Mexico.

United States Consul Moe, at Dublin, Ireland, reports to the State Department that considerable interest has been aroused in the development of the trans-continental route between Tehuantepec and Coatzacoalcos, in Mexico, by British capital and enterprise. The British public considers this prospective new route as an additional outlet for their Pacific trade and are pleased to think that it will be something of a rival to the more southerly canal at Panama. The press discussions have been numerous, but it is only recently that the subject has come under notice in Ireland.

"The new world's highway," as the Tehuantepec route is termed, is a railway 190 miles lang and is to be constructed by a British company under a partnership arrangement with the Mexican Government. It crosses the Isthmus of Tehuantepes from Salina Cruz, on the Pacific, to Coatzacoalcos, on the Atlantic. When reconstructed i tis said there will be no better railway in the world. There have been expended already $9,733,000 on the road itself and $29,199,00 is being devoted to the ports, which will be perfectly equipped. The railway company has come to an agreement with a steamship company by which the train services will be fed by eleven boats averaging 10,000 tons. The vessels will sail, of course, in both the Atlantic and the Pacific.

"This is going to be one of the greatest routes of the world," said Sir Weetman Pearson in a recent interview, "and it will divert traffic that now goes round Cape Horn and by the Suez Canal. It will compete, too, with the American transcontinental railways, for we shall be able to convey the goods from the Pacific to the Atlantic Coast of the United States in twenty days, which is less time than is occupied by the express freight trains of some of the railways." The Panama Canal will not, he thinks, injure this big enterprise. The railway, with all its appurtenances, is 1,200 miles north of Panama and 800 miles south of New Orleans. "Here, then," he says, "is the natural highway to the Atlantic."—Washington Star.

River Cleaning Meeting Monday.

Elizabeth, July 27—The river committee Wednesday night decided that a public meeting be held Monday evening for the purpose of hearing the views of citizens as to whether the stream should be improved. There is an overwhelming sentiment in this city in favor of having this river cleaned out and some other arrangements made for disposing of the sewage, and it is belived that the sentiment which will be expressed at Monday night's meeting will demonstrate this fact. The cost of this work, it is now estimated, would be between $300,000 and $400,000.

NEW DEPARTMENT IS PLEASING GOVERNOR

EXECUTIVE FINDS CHARITIES AND CORRECTION COMMISSION SAVING MONEY.

Governor Stokes is greatly pleased with the work that has been done thus far by the new department of charities and corrections that was created by the last Legislature in response to the suggestions in his inaugural address.

The department has already saved the State thousands of dollars, and is believed by the Governor to be daily doing work which will result in still greater saving of the public funds, at the same time bringing about needed reforms which will benefit the State's dependents and work improvements in behalf of the inmates of the penal institutions.

Rev. Dr. George G. Wight, said to be the first Methodist preacher to ever give up a New Jersey pulpit to accept political office, is regarded by the Governor as proving himself an excellent man for the place to which the Governor appointed him. He recently completed a tour of inspection of the various State institutions and is now busy looking over the institutions of the several counties.

He reports an apparent absence of graft in all of the institutions thus far visited, but at the same time finds numerous abuses and much mismanagement, which he declares should be abolished. The principal source of complaint is in the purchase of supplies for the institutions.

Commissioner Wight has not quite settled in his mind as to how the purchase of these supplies can be best and most economically made. He has to take into account the welfare of the inmates, as well as the saving of money. He has yet to determine whether it would be best for the State to buy all supplies by contract or to allow the buyer for institutions to go into the open market, with money in hand, making his bargains as the needs of his particular institution seem to require.

TRAVEL IS CHEAP NOW.

New York Lines Likely to Make a Rate of Ten Dollars to Chicago.

New York, July 27—Railroad officials here express considerable concern over the passenger rate war which is now in progress between Chicago-New York lines. Several of the roads already have put into effect a rate of $16 first-class from Chicago to New York. One of the longer routes is charging only $14, and further reductions are threatened.

The trouble originated in demands made by the Michigan Central for a differential. This demand was considered by three arbitration commissioners a short time ago, and was allowed, with certain limitations. The Erie and Grand Trunk, however, declined to accept the arbitration as final. These two roads insisted that the Michigan Central had no right to claim a differential rate on through business in which the New York Central shared. The Erie interests declare that they would not object to allowing a differential to the Michigan Central on its own lines, but beyond that point they will concede nothing.

As a result of the decision of the arbitrators, the Michigan Central put in a differential rate of $18 first-class passenger fare from Chicago to New York. This reduction was promptly met by three other lines, and it is intimated that a flat rate of $10 may soon be given.

PATERSON MAN MURDERED.

Dies After Being Assaulted and Thrown from a Freight Train.

A man supposed to be John Patterson, of Paterson, was attacked while riding on a freight train on the Delaware Railroad at Clayton, Del., last night, and after being assaulted was thrown from the train. MASTER PAINTERS VEXING CONDITIONS

A. A. SIPPEL, OF NEWARK, AND OTHERS ADDRESS CONVENTION.

Several interesting papers were read before the Master Painters and Decorators' Association convention at Asbury Park yesterday morning. A. A. Sippel, of Newark, put the polishers in a good humor with his paper on "The Perplexing Conditions that Confront Us."

"The first question," said Mr. Sippel, "is how can we do business so that others won't do us? You might look the trade over and would fail to find a single millionaire representative. If there are any millionaires present, please rise."

Nobody got up, and Mr. Sippel said he knew he couldn't be mistaken. He then went on to say that the reasons were obvious. There was too little money in it. They were too honest and were obliged to use linseed oil. "If we could only use Standard Oil," he added, "we all would be millionaires."

Another perplexing thing was the making of estimates. The average painter, Mr. Sippel claimed, loses a good share of his profit through softheartedness. He counts himself in the job as simply one man. He contended that it was advisable to figure so that a fair profit remains. Then, again, the master painter is often obliged to make good the errors of specifications. He has to please the tenant and the owner and, said the speaker, what a beautiful time he has doing it. Mr. Sippel congratulated the association upon the abolition of the sub-contract nuisance, and the promise of great benefit from the apprenticeship system.

A proposition of importance is the responsibility of master painters for injuries sustained by the men during the work. The law, he said, should compel the men to examine the ropes and ladders before starting work and report to the master any defect discovered. Summing up the perplexities, Mr. Sippel decided that the masters were not in the work for health or wealth, but for the good of the people.

E. P. Edwards, of Elizabeth, who has been known to readers of the Painters' Magazine as the veteran painter, read an interesting paper, giving his experience with white lead and other paints.

B. F. Davis, of Elizabeth, read a paper on "Unjust Conditions that Prevail in the Sale of Painters' Materials."

WARRANTS FOR HOTEL MEN.

Authorities Make Sensational Move in War on Illegal Liquor Traffic.

Following the sensational attack by Mayor Ten Broeck upon the liquor traffic in Asbury Park, which stirred Bradley's town to the center yesterday, was the sudden appearance of Prosecutor Nevius and his assistant, A. C. Stokes, who, after a long conference with the Mayor, directed Chief of Police William Smith to sign complaints against fifty-five hotel proprietors, who are alleged to have violated the law.

Justice Borden was kept busy drawing up the papers. The job was such a tedious one that warrants cannot be issued before today.

Before night, however, it is believed Asbury Park's bonifaces will be in a peck of trouble, for which, however, they seem fully prepared, having employed eminent counsel to fight the Ocean Grove one-mile-limit law, to which they attribute all their troubles.

Driver William Ross returned to duty at fire headquarters today after his annual vacation. Louis Dunavan, of West End house, No. 3, started his vacation last night.

MORTON PRESIDENT.

New Directorate of Equitable Holds a Meeting.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Equitable Life Assurance Society held yesterday noon in New York, a number of the newly-elected directors attended for the first time and interchanged views regarding the future policy of the society.

Although unacquainted with each other and unfamiliar with their new duties they accomplished one reform in the management of the institution that struck a death blow at the old system of private graft and personal profit prevalent for many years.

They declared that no director should participate in financial syndicates involving the society nor indulge in transactions to make money by use of the society's funds.

During the two hours that the board was in session speeches were made by several gentlemen, voicing their own ideas and it was found very soon that a unanimity of opinion existed on this vital question. Without formal vote the rule was laid down that no director should join in syndicates like those of James H. Hyde and associates, to buy securities and then sell them to the society, nor should private use be made of the treasury funds to reap profit at the expense of the policyholders.

Paul Morton was elected president of the society. Today the office of chairman of the board, which he has held for two months, will be abolished, as the necessity for its existence has passed owing to the retirement of President James W. Alexander.

KOMURA TO VISIT PRESIDENT.

Will, It Is Said, Tell Him the Japanese Peace Terms.

Oyster Bay, July 27.—President Roosevelt today will receive at Sagamore Hill Baron Komura, who will be accompanied by Minister Takahira, the other plenipotentiary of Japan in the peace negotiations. They will take luncheon with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and will return to New York on an early train in the evening.

Minister Takahira came from New York on the 12:20 train yesterday and made a flying visit to Sagamore Hill. For an hour he remained in conference with President Roosevelt. Two hours after his arrival at Oyster Bay he was again on his way back to New York.

Following the visit of the Japanese Minister, at which the meeting between the President and Baron Komura was arranged, it was learned on good authority that today's visit, far from being a mere social courtesy, will be most important in its bearing on the negotiations for peace. There is good ground for the belief that Baron Komura has been intrusted by his Government with the mission of fully acquainting President Roosevelt, prior to the beginning of the peace negotiations, not only with the terms on which the Japanese Government is willing to end the war, but also with an outline of the programme Japan proposes to carry out in the Far East after peace has been concluded.

New Orleans People Enraged Because Infected Ship Landed.

New Orleans, July 27—In spite of the new quarantine rules which have been drawn by the State Board of Health, Dr. Souchon, the President of that board, last night allowed the Anselm, which had been only four days out from the infected ports of Belize and Livingston, to land at the wharf here with a cargo of bananas. This action has aroused the greatest indignation among the people of the city. The ship's papers show that she remained in quarantine station only forty minutes, and that late at night.

As soon as this fact was learned there was an indignation meeting of prominent business men who, accompanied by the Mayor and Attorney-General of the State, called on President Souchon and announced that they intended that the new quarantine rules against Central America be made effective immediately, in spite of any ships which might be on their way up or of the personal desire of Dr. Souchon to grant favors to the fruit companies.

BAY STATE RIFLEMEN OUT.

Massachusetts Will Not Defray Expenses of Team to Sea Girt.

It is the law department of Massachusetts that has put the quietus upon the possibility of there being any representative rifle team to represent Massachusetts at Sea Girt next August. It was a legislative omission, it appears, but the Attorney General has held to a strict construction of the law authorizing the State auditor to approve the payment of money for expenditures made without the boundaries of the commonwealth. Auditor Turner asked for an opinion from the law department whether any part of the money appropriated for target practice by Massachusetts militia during the year could be used for defraying the expenses of a State team to Sea Girt to shoot in the national interstate match, and received a negative reply.

FURTHUR STEP TOWARD CIVIL SERVICE REFORM

COMMITTEE OF NINE HOLDS INTERESTING DISCUSSION.

Another step toward the organization of a State civil service reform association was taken Wednesday night at a meeting held in the Free Public Library at Newark by the committee of nine, which William Potts, of Orange, was authorized to select at the last session of the State Civic Federation. Besides discussing the various phases of the movement, the committee elected a chairman and a secretary, and empowered a sub-committee on constitution and by-laws which report about the middle of September. Prominent at the gathering, which was conducted behind closed doors, was Assemblyman Everett Colby, of West Orange, candidate for State Senator, on an equal taxation and limited franchice platform.

With Mr. Colby and Mr. Potts on the committee are E. K. Sumerwell, of East Orange; State Senator Edmund W. Wakelee, of Bergen county; S. Carman Harriot, a member of the Union League Club of Manhattan; Alderman Thomas A. Davis, of Orange; Rev. Adolph Roeder, of Orange; Thomas H. Brown, of Jersey City, and Alden Freeman, of East Orange. Mr. Colby was selected as the chairman of the committee, while Mr. Brown was made secretary and temporary treasurer. The committee on constitution and by-laws consists of Mr. Sumerwell and Mr. Davis.

Mr. Potts called Wednesday night's meets to order as the temporary chairman. He explained the object of the session before calling for the name of a permanent chairman. The matter of civil service reform was taken up immediately for discussion, and the members listened to a talk about civil service laws which are in effect in Wisconsin. Elliot H. Goodwin, of Manhattan, general secretary of the National Civil Service Reform Association, was the speaker. He pointed out what good had been accomplished by the several local associations in the various communities, but contended that much more could be done through a State body. He said that with the hearty support of Governor La Follette, of Wisconsin, the legislators of that State had been quick to enact laws for a civil service reform.

"I think the time is ripe at present," he continued, "for us to make out move, as in some States laws have been put through tending to effect our purpose."

Mr. Colby, in a brief speech, indorsed the remarks of the general secretary, and asked if there ever had been any real well-founded arguments in opposition to the movement. He answered the question by saying that he did not think that there could be. Mr. Goodwin took the floor again and replied to Mr. Colby's question as to objections.

"There has always been more or less argument put forth," he said, "in which it was claimed that civil service examinations were not good tests of a man's abilities. That was the only question I ever heard raised. But in Wisconsin they have provided a probationary system, which satisfactorily eliminates the objections."

It was decided to extend an invitation to all who wish to become members of the association to send their names and addresses to Mr. Brown, the secretary, whose office is at 586 Newark avenue, Jersey City.

Iowa Newspaper Combine.

Fourth Assistant Postmaster General DeGraw yesterday made public a communication to his department which states that fifty weekly and semi-weekly papers in various towns and cities in Iowa are to be transformed into daily papers through an organization of capitalists whereby two pages of the papers are to be printed at one central place and distributed to the towns where the remaining two pages are to be printed with the local news. The plan is declared to have been made feasible through the greater demand for dailies on the part of the rural residents whose mail is now delivered daily through the rural free delivery service.

Temperance Women Welcomed to Ocean Grove for Summer Institute.

Ocean Grove, July 27.—The Summer Institute of the New Jersey Woman's Christian Temperance Union opened yesterday morning in the Temple. Mrs. Emma Bourne, of Newark, the president, presided. Nearly three hundred members of the union were present. The services were conducted by Mrs. H. S. C. Garrison, of Stratford. Bishop James N. FitzGerald, president of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, then welcomed the White Ribboners to Ocean Grove. Greetings from the Pennsylvania union were extended by Mrs. R. B. Chambers, president of that organization, and from the Woman's Suffrage Association by Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Plainfield. Reports on the work of the union were made by Miss Ruth E. Chew, of Bridgeton, showing that considerable progress has been made during the year. The morning session closed with a Bible reading, conducted by Mrs. Mary Sparks Wheeler, of Ocean Grove.

Bishop Charles H. Fowler, of New York, is at the Hotel Majestic, with Mrs. Fowler. Bishop John M. Walden, of Cincinnati, is at the same hotel. The Rev. H. H. Henry, of Montclair, is with Mrs. Henry at the Atlantic House. The Rev. H. S. France, a presiding elder of the Baltimore Methodist Episcopal Conference, is with his family at the Hotel Majestic. DOUGLAS FEARS PRESIDENCY.

That is Why He Will Not Run for Governor Again.

Boston, July 27—When Gov. Douglas some weeks ago declined to run for Governor again it was known that is was in deference to his wife's wishes, but her reasons for desiring him out of politics were not made known until yesterday. A committee of Democrats called upon the Governor and requested him to withdraw his declination.

"I am very much obliged to you for what you have said," he replied. "I agree with you that the alleged dissensions within the party have been greatly exaggerated. Every important public man meets with criticism, and I have been no exception to the rule.

"At the same time that is not what has led me to decline to run again. I believe that I should be re-elected if I ran. But there's the rub. I prefer a quiet home life, and so do my family.

"Since I was elected Governor numerous newspaper clippings booming me for the Presidency of the United States have come to our notice. Of course, it is all foolishness on their part, but however, that may be, my family have become alarmed thereby. If I were re-elected Governor the Presidential talk might be revived in even greater volume, and I might be nominated and elected to the Chief Magistracy of the Nation."

LONG BRANCH HORSE SHOW.

Twelfth Annual Exhibition of Monmouth Association.

At Hollywood Park at Long Branch, yesterday, the twelfth annual exhibition of the Monmouth County Horse Show was begun. The grounds were never in better condition, and there was a large attendance.

Traveling by special train in comfortably appointed cars, the horses of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Jay F. Carlisle Mrs. J. B. M. Grosvenor and E. D. Jordan arrived at Long Branch Tuesday, and they are now stabled at the show grounds.

The first class called into the show ring yesterday afternoon by John H. Allen, bugler of the National Horse Show Exhibition at Madison Square Garden, New York, was that for ponies in harness. Miss Renee Wasserman's Morning Glory, E. D. Jordan's Lady Eccles, Mrs. Grosvenor's Masterpiece, Peter Hauck's Jack Spratt and Mrs. Gerken's Doncaster Model are some of the well-known horses shown in this class. Twelve classes were judged.

Society Man in Concert Halls.

Richard Stevens, of Hoboken, a brother of Colonial Edward A. Stevens, the wealthy philanthropist of that place and a brother of Mrs. Caroline B. Alexander, a leader in society there as well as socially prominent in New York, yesterday gave out a statement in Hoboken saying he would not oppose the granting of licenses to any concert hall there this year. Mr. Stevens, who himself is wealthy and lives in a mansion on Castle Point, close to that occupied by his brother and sister, was appointed probation officer in a reform movement in Hoboken about three years ago. He made Mrs. Alexander his assistant and the two have since carried on the work together.

Husband's "Pants" Available for the Wife While He's in Workhouse.

Cincinnati, July 27.—Cabbell Conway, a rather diminutive man, was in the police court yesterday to answer to the charge of abusing his wife. Mr. Conway was allowed to state his own case. "She is one of those women," he said, "that wants to wear the pants around the house all the time."

Mr. Conway seemed to think he had made a favorable impression on Police Judge William Lueders, for he continued: "Your Honor, I'm the one that ought to be prosecuting and she ought to be accused of abuse of me. She weighs 100 pounds more than I do. I am the one that needs protection."

"Your wife can't get at you when you are in the workhouse," mused Judge Lueders. "Pay $10 and costs and go out there and you will be amply protected while your wife is wearing the pants."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 30.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Missions in Japan.—Mic. v, 2, 4, 12, 13.

The fifth chapter of Micah is decidedly a Messianic chapter. It contains the familiar prophecy concerning Bethlehem of Judah, which, though small, should become great as the birthplace of Christ. It prophesies also concerning His kingdom and His victory, especially over idolatry. These prophecies concerning Christ and His kingdom applied in a general way to Japan suggest some features of missions in the island empire.

1. Japan, though a small island empire, may become great by accepting Christ. Bethlehem was a small and unimportant village near Jerusalem. There were many places in Palestine much larger than Bethlehem, but Christ was born in Bethlehem and from that day on it has been exalted among cities. The names and sites of many oriental towns larger and more important than ancient Bethlehem have passed away, but Bethlehem still remains and, as the birthplace of Christ becomes of more importance every year. Japan is a small empire with great opportunities and possibilities provided its people accept Christ as their personal Saviour and make Christianity the bulwark of their new civilization. Human civilization alone cannot make and keep Japan great. Let Christ be born there—born into Japanese civilization, born into the hearts and the lives of the people—and Japan's place among the civilized nations is an assured fact. Leave out Christ, and the nation cannot attain to a national standard of righteousness that will be both exalted and permanent.

2. Japan must not merely accept Christ to become a permanently great nation, but must rule in the name of Christ. The government must be Christian, and in administering domestic and foreign affairs it must be guided by the principles of Christian righteousness and equity. The nation that "shall stand and rule in the strength of the Lord, in the majesty of the name of the Lord his God * * * shall abide," but "the nation that forgets God shall perish." The history of nations proves the absolute correctness of these two statements.

3. Japan to have permanent political success must crush out idolatry. Everything that is heathenish must be done away with: All false philosophies, all evil and sinful practices and all worship of idols must be done away with before Japan can be truly great and exalted. The day of the successful idolatrous nation has passed away. There is not one wholly given to idolatry that counts for much among the nations of the world. Japan is reaching toward the fulfillment of these conditions. Let us earnestly pray and give and labor until they are completely realized.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xxxiii, 12; cxxxv, 15-21; Prov. xiv, 34; Isa. xl, 1-9; lii, 7-10; Nah. i, 15; Matt. xxviii, 19, 20; Rom. x, 14, 15; 1 John v, 21; Rev. xxii, 17.

The Pledge.

If there is anything unreasonable about promising to perform plain, ordinary, specific Christian duties, unless prevented by some good reason, which satisfies one's conscience, I fail to see it. But I am not dogmatizing in these articles or merely presenting my own opinions. I am trying to bring the light of twenty-five years of history to bear on the subject. Christian Endeavor history is unanimous for the covenant pledge. The first society has always had it and is as strong today as it ever was. Many societies are more than twenty years old and ascribe their continued strength and activity to the covenant pledge. Other societies have discarded or essentially weakened it and have suffered in a greater or less degree. Some of these have died, some are living at a "poor dying rate," some are kept alive by the personality of the pastor or some strong members; others—and there are not a few—have reorganized on substantially the old basis and have regained their strength and vigor.

Let history teach its salutary lessons.—Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., LL. D., in Christian Endeavor World.

About Our Name.

In a strong editorial printed recently that admirable Baptist paper, the Watchman, said: "The Christian Endeavor movement has sometimes been lightly criticised for its name, and it has been suggested that a 'Society of Christian Achievement' would be an improvement. But it appears that the name chosen by Dr. Clark for his young people's society in Portland, Me., nearly a quarter of a century ago is, after all, more in accord with the real spirit of the religion of Jesus. The Christian life is a life of endeavor. It can never truly be anything else. There may be and there must be accomplishment along the way, but there can never be anything like full and final achievement either in service or in character."

Progress Abroad.

The society organized in the Moravian church at Roebuck, island of Barbados, last August with twenty-four members has greatly increased. A union has been formed with the two other societies on the island under the supervision of Rev. S. A. Estabrook and a rally held. Working bands, who do open air work, have been busy in various parts of the island. A tract distributing committee has circulated more than a thousand tracts, and the missionary committee has raised $20.

Yorkshire, England, now has 900 Christian Endeavor societies, with 36,000 members. Few American counties can beat that.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

July 30: "Missions In Eastern Asia"—Ps. xxii, 27, 28; Jer. xvi, 19.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

Recent events have turned the eyes of all the world upon the far east. The struggle between Japan and Russia in Manchuria and on the sea has for the time drawn attention from Korea and the Philippines and the exciting events so lately occurring in China.

These far regions were but lately scarcely more than names hiding a dim and mysterious civilization. We have learned more of these lands and peoples, their customs and resources, during the past few years than had in as many centuries before filtered through the barriers they had erected around themselves.

Vast changes are in progress—commercial, political and industrial. The movement is worldwide in its effects. To one who observes the surface only it seems as if the controlling force is political. Those who see below the surface declare that the real power is financial, and aver that greed of gain is responsible for all the worldwide turmoil of these present days.

A deeper insight reveals One who sitteth in the heavens whose is the kingdom and the power over all. He is making even the wrath of men to praise Him and the religious force to be the most powerful of all that moves the affairs of men.

If we would have the clew to the maze we must study the religious movements of the times. Keep your eye on the religious changes in China and you shall be able to forecast the future by the signs of the times. To be fully abreast of the work one should take some time to acquaint himself with the older works on China treating of its history, government, peoples and their customs and religions. With this basis there should be some attention given to the story of foreign commercial and military contact during the last half century or more. Then should come the study of missionary enterprise since Christians began in earnest in the last century to work for the regeneration of China.

To move this most inert mass of humanity the world has ever seen, compacted as no other people on the face of the earth, with a civilization the most venerable, seemed a task too stupendous for human accomplishment. To all but those who have the gospel of Jesus Christ it would have seemed hopeless as well as uncalled for. These have the prophetic promise that "all the ends of the world shall remember and turn to the Lord." So they have toiled on in hope, and that which they asked for comes. The mass is moving, slowly; to be sure—very slowly indeed—but this is well. A more sudden movement would mean an avalanche, and that would be destructive. Better that they should lift as the great tides lift along their shores. The most recent events along the Yangtse and far into the interior and distant west of the empire show that since the days of the Boxer uprising and the siege of Peking a change of sentiment toward the foreigner and the Christian religion has become apparent. Inquiry has taken the place of apathy; desire for betterment appears where before was stolid indifference and hopelessness.

All this is significant. The awakening of the east means much to the world. Are we arousing a brother to share with us in the struggle and prize of life or a giant enemy to oppose the good? Who can prophesy what the next century holds of blackness and of beauty? There confronts us a veritable "yellow peril." The orient can help mightily in the solution of the problems of man, but will do so only as Christianized. Its type of Christianity must be different in many respects from that of the west. It may and should be higher and better.

Our work is now to help all possible to give the light and life to these long darkened people. We can do it only as we are intelligent, prayerful and giftful toward them. Will you lift your share?

Keynote of Christian Life.

Christian humility must be the keynote of the Christian's life. How does the very thought of Christ's love for us fill our own hearts with love and humility! It is at the foot of the cross that humility is born. That is its natural soil. That divine flower, hitherto unknown by the world, came out of the earth moistened by the blood of Christ. Elsewhere it will only perish. Cultivated in our hearts, we cease to glory in anything less than Christ Himself. The world and the things of the world are nothing but vanity. This is the way which leads to God, a way where we can walk with God. There is little in this world worth glorying in, but the way of God is full of the brightness of His presence. Let us pray that we may find and keep that way and glory only in it.—Christian Work and Evangelist.

The Royal Visitor.

My thoughts are often like a motley crowd
That fill the street with ignominious cry,
But now and then amid the tumult loud
The kingly truth goes by.

I know not whence he comes or whither bound
Our city's royal visitor may be,
But where he walks a silence spreads around—
All yield instinctively.

Then many narrow views which I have held,
Mistaken aims and selfish hopes and pride,
Hasten away, by very shame compelled,
And from my presence hide.

So pure is truth, so beautiful and kind,
So all commanding is the voice that calls,
A hundred aspirations, long confined,
Break from their prison walls.
—Stephen Tracy Livingston in Forward.

YOUNG FOLKS' STYLES.

An Era of Pretty Dressing For the Coming Men and Women.

Never have children been dressed so comfortably and so daintily as now. The materials are such as can be washed many times, and the very making of the garments is simple, but there is something in the whole plan that makes them charming. Perhaps it is just the simplicity. Frocks for girls of that uncertain age described by the poet as "standing with reluctant feet where the brook and river meet" are made so that they are at once girlish and dainty, yet have something of the form and finish of the gowns of their mothers. Duck, pique and a whole host of other thick and washable cottons and several kinds of heavy linens, white and colored, are made into these frocks. The waists are fastened at the back, but in front are the regulation tucks and bloused shapes with the high collars and pointed belts of the elders. Skirts are made on the same lines, some with a few plaits down the breadths and others with horizontal tucks, shirrs or ruffles.

One dainty little dress for a girl of fourteen had two tucks at the edge just the width of the hem and a set of clusters of plaits on the upper part of the skirt, which gave the lower portion of the skirt a pretty flare. The blouse was tucked also in clusters which reached to the bust line. The garment was of very pale whitish blue pique, and the belt was of ribbon, which tied in the back with long ends. Cuffs and collar were of lace.

Wash Frocks.

A very neat and dainty wash frock for girls of any age from ten to sixteen was made of white swiss with coin dots. There were two wide flounces of the swiss set on a foundation of plain muslin and an upper skirt of the dotted goods. The waist was bloused, but was cut square at the throat, and had a large yoke of lace coming out well on the shoulders. The bishop sleeves reached just below the elbows and finished there with ruffles of lace. A pink sash was draped to a point in front and tied at the back in a large bow, the ends of which reached the foot of the skirt.

White dresses, white hats, made washable; pink or blue sashes, white shoes and stockings and tiny white openwork gloves make the little ones look so very dainty and sweet that "happy is he that hath a quiver full of them." Lace hats, openwork straw hats and hats made of mull or pique are seen. The flat hats with the pretty flower wreaths are not quite so popular as the other kinds, but the variety allows each taste and purse to be suited.

For very dressy wear there is a frock of dotted white mull. The skirt is made over a slip of white taffeta. At the bottom of the skirt is a deep shirring of lace heading the wrought edge. This forms a deep flounce. The waist has a bertha made of the lace, edged in turn with a ruffle of fine narrow lace. This is shirred to the neck of the waist and cut out in vandyke points. The sleeves are shirred to the elbows. This is dressy enough for a bridesmaid or for a grand function for young folks.

For Lighter Moments.

For play there is a surprising array of little garments. There are creeping pants of jean, overalls for tiny boys and the same made with one or two feminine touches for the girls. They are so fashioned that the dress can be tucked down into the trousers and the child allowed to play in the sand as it wills. For the little boys from three to seven the Russian, or, as they are called, Buster Brown, suits are better liked than any other.

For older boys the old style gathered knee pants are seen. This is a comfortable style, and the pants do not get as much strain as the tight ones have. Pretty cutaway coats, with vests and a cloth cap to match, go with these suits. I had a little boy once who was the proudest person in three kingdoms when he got his first three piece suit of coat, vest and pants.

For tiny babies the present fashion is excellent. The body is protected by a soft wool knit shirt and a bandage or the same which buttons. The skirts are not so long as to be cumbersome, and the dresses are shorter and not so heavily embroidered. But, so far as cost is concerned, what they lose in length they make up in fineness of material. I saw one little dress which was of the sheerest linen lawn with a six inch hem, and this was headed by a line of the finest Mexican drawn work—a part of the dress, wrought in and not set on. OLIVE HARPER.

Woman Up to Date

The Independence of Work—The Two Sisters

The hardworking girl put down the society page and heaved a sigh.

"Don't envy the idle rich," remarked the wise woman. "Many an idle rich woman envies you."

"Envies me!"

"Let me see! You are rather an important young person, are you not? You design advertisements for a large firm, don't you? And you have a salary which allows you to have a bachelor apartment of your own, with a door key of your own; you have dreams of the future; you are writing a playlet which is to make you famous some day or other; you have your clubs and your friends, and some day you will marry the man of your heart and not have to ask any one's permission. In other words, you are as free as a man."

"But"—

"But—one minute! You have an even greater blessing I haven't had time to mention: You need never be afraid of the future. Stocks may go up or down, savings banks may fail, but you have a money making machine right within yourself."

"I suppose that is a great thing."

"A great thing, my dear! Suppose you had been born and educated among the idle rich; suppose, as many girls do, that you had watched your father's income growing beautifully less, that you had to scrimp and save and put on a bold front with it all; suppose you hadn't been taught to do a thing but shine as a society butterfly. What could you do but watch the future growing darker and darker and worry your heart out? There is nothing so agonizing as the poverty that is helpless and must keep up appearances, and there is a lot more of that among the classes that apparently enjoy themselves than you would imagine. Many a girl who knows that her sole safety and the safety of the family lie in her marrying a rich man would give her soul to be in your place, to have your brains and the right to work, also the privilege to wait for the right man and not be obliged to smirk and smile and make herself cheap by her efforts to sell herself to the highest bidder. No, my dear, don't undervalue the independence you enjoy. It leads to all that is honest and straightforward and worth while in life. Many a poor soul wishes she had it, and if girls were educated sensibly all women would have it and would be forever free from that awful dread of the future."

The Two Sisters.

It was a summer hotel dining room.

"Good morning. Did you sleep well?" asked the gracious woman as she approached the breakfast table. She had a smile and a word for every one, and every one seemed glad to see her. Her younger sister, on the other hand, simply took her seat without looking to the right or to the left.

Nobody paid any attention to the younger sister, although she was a very pretty girl. She bolted her food and went ahead of her sister out of the dining room. At the door she had to wait quite a few minutes because the older girl stopped at nearly every table on her way out to exchange a bow or a smile.

"Oh, do hurry!" exclaimed the younger sister. "What's the use of chinning with all those old frumps? Let's go down to the lake and have a row!"

In the evening at the dance the older girl had a glorious time, while the younger one had to sit out several dances. "Wonder why it is I'm not more popular!" she muttered. "I'm sure I'm a great deal prettier than Jennie, and yet she has not sat out a single dance. There are several men I haven't been introduced to either. I wonder why? There's one now."

But it happened that the man in question was the brother of the old frump who had overheard the remark in the morning, and the latter with firmly compressed lips and a glittering eye piloted him past the girl and up to the elder sister.

MAUD ROBINSON.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

"Dear Mrs. Marsden, how perfectly"—kiss, kiss—"delicious! Yes, this is the baby sister I've raved to you about. We go right on with the Doric; but I had to bring her out with me that you might have just one glance at her. Why! Mr. Prime! Why, what could be more charming than to find you here? And 'Gov' too—you wicked boy! What won't I do to you for never telling me you were in Manila? And Mildred!"—kiss, kiss—despite a palpable dodge and heightened color on the part of the half-dazed recipient. "And you, too, Miss Lawrence?" Both hands, but no kiss—one hand calmly accepted. "Ah, then I know how happy you are, Mr. Willie Gray!" beaming arched smiles upon that flushed and flustered young officer. Then, turning again to twine a jeweled arm about the slim waist of their hostess, to whom she clung as though defying any effort to dislodge, yet pleading for protection. "Who on earth could have foretold that we of all people should have met out here—of all places? How long did you say you had been out here? A week? And of course, dear Mrs. Marsden has done everything to make it lovely for you. I should have died without her." And so the swift play of words went on, the rapid fire of her fluent tongue covering the movement of her allies and drowning all possibility of reply. It was an odd and trying moment. Mrs. Marsden, well knowing, as who in Honolulu did not, of Mrs. Frank's devotion to the young lieutenant, barely six months agone, was striving to welcome the shrinking little scare-faced thing that blindly and helplessly had drifted in in the elder sister's wake. The introductions that followed, after the American fashion, were as perfunctory as well-bred women can permit. The greetings were almost solemn, smileless, and, on part of Nita, fluttering to the verge of a faint; and nothing but Witchie's plucky and persistent support, and the light flow of airy chat and laughter, carried her through the ordeal. The two young soldiers stood stiffly back, red-faced and black-browed; the father, pallid and cold, could hardly force himself to unbend, yet his lips mumbled the name "Mrs. Frost," as he bowed at presentation; Miss Prime stood erect and trembling; Miss Lawrence, with brave eyes but heightened color. To leave at once was impossible; to remain was more than embarrassment. Most gallantly did they battle. Mrs. Marsden and Mrs. Frank, to lift the wet blanket from the group and relieve the strain. Reward came to crown their efforts in strange, unlooked-for fashion. Hoofs, wheels and flashing lights were again at the entrance gate, even as Mrs. Frank, sparkling with animation, distributing her gay good humor over the silent semicircle, suddenly exclaimed: "Oh, if I'd only known you were here, I could have provided the one thing to make our reunion complete! If I were not going on at daybreak I should do it yet." Then hoofs and wheels and lights had come to a stop at the front of the house, and in measured, martial tread a man's footsteps were heard upon the lanai. Then, all of a sudden, with a cry of joy, Witchie burst in again: "Should do it?—I shall do it! Said I not I was the fairy queen? Behold me summon my subjects from the ends of the obedient earth!" And, waving her parasol as she would a wand, gayly pirouetting as she had that night in the tent at old Camp Merritt, she danced forward: "Sound ye the trumpets, slaves! Hail to the chief! See the conquering hero comes! Enter Brevet Brig. Gen. Stanley Armstrong!—though his arm is anything but strong."

Bowing gravely to the sprite in front of him, vaguely to the group in the shaded light at the edge of the lanai, and joyously to the little hostess, as almost hysterically she sprang forward and clasped his hands, the colonel of the Primeval Dudes stood revealed before them.

"Col. Armstrong! How—when did you get here? What does this mean? Is your arm quite well again? Why didn't you let us know you were coming?" were the questions rained upon him by Mrs. Marsden, immediately followed by the somewhat illogical statement that she was actually breathless with surprise.

"Shall I answer in their order?" said he, smiling down at her flushed and joyous face. "By the Sedgwick. This afternoon. That I wished to see you. Doing quite well. Because I didn't know myself until two days before we sailed." Then, as he stood peering beyond her, she would have turned him to her other guests had not Mrs. Garrison made instant and impulsive rush upon him.

"As fairy queen or fairy godmother I claim first speech," she gayly cried. "What tidings of my liege lord, and where is hers, my fairy sister's?" she demanded, waving in front of him her filmy parasol and pirouetting with almost girlish grace.

"Capt. Garrison was looking fairly well the day I sailed," he answered, briefly, "and Col. Frost left for Hong-Kong only a few hours before in hopes, as we understand, of finding Mrs. Frost at Yokohama. Permit me," he added, with grave courtesy. "I have but little time, as I transfer to the Doric to-night."

A shade spread over the radiant face one instant, but was as quickly swept away. "And I have not met your guests," he finished, turning to Mrs. Marsden as he spoke and quietly passing Mrs. Garrison in so doing. The next moment he was shaking hands with the entire party, coming last of all to Amy Lawrence.

"They told me of your being here," he said, looking straight into her clear, beautiful eyes; "and I thought I might find you at Mrs. Marsden's. She was our best friend when we were in Honolulu. They told me, too, that you desired to go by the Doric, but feared she would be crowded," he continued, turning to Mr. Prime. "There is one vacant stateroom now. Its occupants have decided to stay over and visit the islands. There will be, I think, another." And drawing a letter from an inner pocket he calmly turned to Nita, now shrinking almost fearfully behind her sister. "The colonel gave this to me to hand to you, Mrs. Frost, on the chance of your being here. He will arrive by next week's steamer, and, pardon me, it is something I think you should see at once, as a change in your plans may be necessary."

It was vain for Margaret to interpose. The letter was safely lodged in her sister's hands, and with so significant a message that it had to be opened and read without delay. Gayly excusing herself, and with a low reverence and comprehensive smile to the assembled party, she ushered her sister into the long parlor, and the curtain fell behind them. There followed a few minutes of brisk conference upon the lanai, the Marsdens pleading against, the father and daughter for, immediate return to the hotel, there to claim the vacated rooms aboard the steamer. In the eager discussion, pro and con, both young soldiers joined, both saying "go," and promising to follow by the Sedgwick. In this family council, despite the vivid interest Armstrong felt in the result, neither Amy Lawrence nor himself took any part. Side by side at the snowy railing over the breaking sea they stood almost silent listeners. Suddenly there came from the front again the sound of hoofs and wheels, loud and distinct at the start, then rapidly dying away with the increasing distance. Miss Lawrence turned and looked inquiringly into the eyes she well knew were fixed upon her. Mrs. Marsden hesitated one moment, then stepped across the lanai, peered into the parlor and entered. It was a minute before she returned, and in that minute the decisive vote was cast, the carriage ordered.

HOW TO PACK A TRUNK

Now, this the season of the year when you are thinking of packing your trunks, says an exchange. Packing a trunk, you know, doesn't mean just throwing things in. There is system in it, and system always means comfort and pleasure.

There is no reason why, if your clothing and things are put in properly, they should not be fresh and neat when they come out. All that is needed is a little intelligence and a great deal of tissue paper, and above all, system. Some packers are apt to begin by putting heavy things at the bottom of a trunk in the decidedly mistaken impression that the light ones will then be on top and keep better.

One has only to see a baggage car piled full of trunks to realize the fallacy of this theory, for the chances are, unless the trunk is one of those that can stand only upright, it will be on end most of the time and the rest of the time upside down. Therefore, the mode of procedure must be to arrange its contents so that, no matter what the position of the trunk may be, each garment will still be protected.

Firmness is absolutely necessary to preserve dresses in any sort of condition, yet they must not be packed so tightly as to be crushed. Trays admirably solve the problem, for with two or three of these frocks may be laid smoothly and are well protected. As trunks with these cost more, however, they are beyond the average purse, and so a substitute should be employed.

Wide linen tape will serve well, and once put in will last during the usefulness of the trunk. Three straps should be fastened to the front inside, and three directly opposite on the back. There should be two at each end on a line with the side pieces. The first row of these should be about ten inches from the bottom, and the other rows about six inches above each other. These tapes, if directly opposite on a line, will bring over and tie, forming a network that will make a support and do much toward keeping things in place.

The bands should be fastened with fine tacks. All gowns, whatever the material, will pack better if wrapped. Towels are excellent for this, but even better are special pieces of thin muslin to be kept in the trunk when not in use. These should be as wide as the trunk is long, and long enough to go over the gown when folded and be pinned neatly. Before putting the frock into its wrapper, however, a dress should be laid down on a bed or other large surface and the skirt be folded just the width of the trunk.

The top is laid over, making the garment the length of the trunk; but before the fold is laid a thick soft twist of tissue paper is to be put on the line of the fold, and between it, so that when the skirt is packed it will not crease in that place. The skirt thus folded should be absolutely flattened, no matter how great a weight it sustains, and so will be fresh.

If one has not a special trunk for hats the best possible way of transporting them is to tack them firmly to the bottom of the top tray. No hat box is necessary and fine wire tacks should be used. Put these through the brim under the trimming, if any falls there, but otherwise near the crown. Fine tack holes almost never show, and if the fastening is hammered in, the hat is held firmly and is not jammed. Wrap each feather or flower in a piece of tissue paper and twist it hard, so it will not be undone. Then cover with a whole sheet of paper.

Two or three hats may be put in a tray in this way, and then soft things, such as scarfs, thin waists, stockings, boas and the like, may go all around without being boxed, and each will come forth like new at the end of a long journey. Any thing heavy, of course, would ruin the hats.

It is better to begin to pack by putting large objects, such as coats or wrappers, at the bottom. Immediately corners and holes are left vacant, into which should be stuffed small things, such as underwear, boots, slippers, stockings, or anything else of a like kind. When an even surface is built begin again with another large piece, and again make the surface even. Unless one is taking a great many clothes, two such layers are apt to use up all the things to be packed except the gowns, which have been previously wrapped and are ready to lay in.

The first layer of tapes is tied across, and on this the gown rests. The next layer is then knotted and another gown goes on. These strings should be tied as taut as they can be pulled in order to make a real support for the frocks. In the corners about them may be tucked away small things or soft lingerie.

Lake Excursion.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hopatcong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hopatcong is the gem of places. On July 30, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

ROD AND GUN.

Alex Cathers, Eugene O'Reilly and Charles McNash comprised a fishing party that captured twenty-six nice weak fish off Keasby yesterday.

A party of employes from the local P. S. C. office will start tomorrow night on a two days' fishing trip off Perth Amboy. They have chartered a naptha launch and will cruise about the lower bay. The party will include W. R. Causebrook, Harvey Thorn, Harry Taylor, Louis Bache, George Pope, Frank Dencklau and H. C. Corsa.

ARKLIRTA WON; DISQUALIFIED.

Thousands Were Lost When Muffins Was Placed First in Undergraduate.

"In these days of poor starts and bad riding an owner is fortunate who owns a horse that can win a race. When such a horse is disqualified for a little bump his owner is certainly in hard luck."

Frank Farrell relieved his feelings as above quoted after his two-year-old Arklirta had been disqualified yesterday after finishing first in the Undergraduate Stakes at the Brighton Beach track.

Arklirta was an even money favorite over five youngsters. The colt had shown well in private, and as Farrell had gone to the trouble to secure an outside jockey, W. Knapp, to pilot the horse all the heavy plungers agreed that the youngster would win and they backed him accordingly.

AT BRIGHTON TRACK.

Test Handicap at the Beach Course This Afternoon.

If the eight horses named to start in the Test Handicap this afternoon at the Brighton Beach race-track go to the barrier race-goers will witness one of the finest turf contests of the season.

Of these eight horses seven have extraordinary speed and can win races on any track in the country. The one poor entry is Cederstrome. The distance is one mile.

The interest in the race centres in Hermis, Hamburg Belle, Buttling, Wild Mint and Ivan the Terrible. These horses, on their Eastern showing, seem much better than the remainder of the field, and undoubtedly the finish will be fought out between them.

On the form displayed by Hermis in his last race he seems to be the winner. The mile route is just to his fancy and he will be hard to beat. Hamburg Belle, with 123 pounds up, will go well, and so will Buttling with 104 pounds. If the two old horses should make any mistake it is possible that Buttling may beat them.

A poor lot of selling platers are entered in the first race, and picking a winner is a hard matter. Quadrille will win if he does not bolt, and Colossal and Cannon Ball may finish second and third respectively.

TIGERS AS OARSMEN.

Lake Provided by Carnegie Will Make Crew Possible in 1906.

Princeton, July 27.—For the first time since 1884 Princeton will probably have a crew next spring. The building of a lake three miles in length, made possible by the generosity of Andrew Carnegie, the iron master, makes this virtually certain.

Two years ago, while on a visit to ex-President Cleveland at Princeton, he conceived the idea of flooding the meadows bordering Millstone River and Stony Brook and converting them into a large lake.

To further the plan, he contributed $385,000. The excavation work and dam building are already well under way, and the lake will likely be completed by November. This will give ample time for organizing a crew for 1906.

No plans have yet been made regarding the rowing, but from an authoritative source it is learned that Princeton contemplates entering a crew in the inter-collegiate regatta. Though Princeton is not a member of the Intercollegiate Association, its entry would be heartily welcomed.

Yale and Harvard would also be pleased to have Princeton row with them on the Thames at New London.

Just who will be Princeton's crew coach is an open question, and it is not likely that anything has been definitely settled on this point. It is possible that Dick Glendon, who successfully coached Annapolis this season, and who has announced his purpose of leaving the Naval Academy, may be Princeton's man.

Rowing was never a successful branch of athletics at Princeton. From its introduction in 1870 until 1884, when it was abandoned, few victories fell to the Orange and Black. Lack of rowing facilities at Princeton and the too great distance from Philadelphia are the main causes for this failure.

On the canal near the college the stretch was but a mile in length. For some time the crew made two trips a week to Philadelphia and rowed on the Schuylkill River, but the time consumed caused the faculty to put an end to this.

Near the campus the lake will have a width of 850 feet, and will contain a number of islands.

Under the auspices of the First Presbyterian, Congregational and Park Avenue Baptist churches, the largest excursion of the season left this morning for Asbury Park. The members and friends of the three churches turned out in large numbers, filling fourteen coaches, which comprised one section. Conductor Jack Wrightman, of Jersey City, "one of the finest," was in charge of the train and he personally looked after the comfort and convenience of the excursionists.

The committee, comprising representatives from the various churches, were A. V. Searing, H. R. Radford, Frank Dunning, E. D. George, of the First Presbyterian church; Clarence LaRue, A. D. Thompson, Jr., J. T. Vail, J. M. Hawkins and E. Frank Vail, from the Park Avenue Baptist church, and Charles Steiner, from the Congregational church.

DRAKE'S OFFER.

Lincoln Founder Will Give Ground for Workingmen's Home.

Postmaster Silas Dewey Drake, of Lincoln, has received a letter from Samuel Gompers, acknowledging his offer of a tract of land for the erection of a home for the care of disabled workingmen. President Gompers says that the offer will be considered at the next meeting of the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor in September.

Four years ago Mr. Drake made a similar offer and received the thanks of the labor federation. Since then the matter has been held in abeyance, but recently the Lincoln man communicated with Gompers again.

They were in charge of Rev. H. C. Ashley and Superintendent E. B. Maynard, who had so arranged affairs that not an accident or trouble of any kind occurred to mar the trip. The day at the beach was delightful and was greatly enjoyed.

SOW DREAD DISEASE IN NEW JERSEY

METROPOLIS TO SEND TUBERCULOUS THROUGH STATE.

With disregard of the health, not to say lives, of the 1,000,000 inhabitants of four great counties of northern New Jersey, the authorities of New York city propose to convey the pauper consumptives of the metropolis through those political sub-divisions of this commonwealth to the sanatorium they have established in the Empire State. The sufferers from tuberculosis of the great city, are, according to plans which are obstinately adhered to despite remonstrance and entreaty, to be placed on board the Pavonia ferryboats, used by multitudes of Jersey people every day, assembled in the Erie Railroad station in Jersey City, where 30,000 commuters gatner night and morning, and finally transported as first-class passengers in the cars of that railroad thirty-one miles through this State to Otisville, Orange County, N. Y., where the sanatorium is to be established.

No extraordinary precautions are to be taken to prevent the unfortunates of the metropolis from sowing the germs of their dread disease in New Jersey. Indeed it would almost seem that a disregard of some of the most ordinary precautions is contemplated.

If an attempt were deliberately to be made to disseminate the germs of the "Great White Plague," it is difficult to conceive how a more effective method could be devised. No better vehicle could perhaps be found for the reception of the disease bicilli than the vitiated air of the ferryboat. The crowds that rush hither and thither at the terminal station of a great railroad can be relied upon to scatter the deadly particles of dried sputum over the widest area. The plush seats of the railroad coaches would furnish admirable lodging places for the germs until such time as they would enter the lungs of human beings.

TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.

Grand Division of Order Ends Its Sessions Here.

The quarterly meeting of the Grand Division, Sons of Temperance, of New Jersey, was continued yesterday afternoon with a discussion of plans for the coming three months. William P. Compton, grand worthy patriarch, of Metuchen, presided at all of the sessions.

Aside from planning for the work in the future and receiving reports for the past three months, which were encouraging, little else was done. In all about seventy-five delegates attended the meeting, and they were much pleased with the outlook and general condition of temperance affairs in this State.

Handsomely Engrossed Resolutions.

A handsome set of resolutions adopted by the directors of the City National Bank after the death of Captain James Franklin Hubbard, who was a director of the bank for many years and its president for four years, have been drafted in ink and bound in a fine morroco case, purple silk lined, for presentation to Mrs. Hubbard, the widow of Captain Hubbard. The resolutions were presented to Mrs. Hubbard today by William F. Arnold, cashier of the bank.

Ackerman Not a Candidate.

Notwithstanding reports to the contrary, it was stated by John W. Murray, Jr., last night that Ernest R. Ackerman will not be a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination. Mr. Murray stated that in all probability Plainfield's support will go to Judge Runyon and that there would be no contest at the convention so far as this city is concerned.

COURT IN DENYING AN INJUNCTION, REFERS TO LAW PASSED IN THE TIME OF GEORGE II

An act passed in 1730, during the reign of George II., was incidentally adverted to by Vice Chancellor Emery yesterday afternoon in support of his denial of an application for an injunction to restrain Mrs. Julia H. Barnet from further prosecuting a suit in the Supreme Court for the recovery of a balance of about $7,500 in the hands of Jay Ten Eyck and Thomas Pruitt, executors of the estate of Mrs. Barnet's husband, the late David H. Barnet. The case came up on the return of a rule to show cause, application for which was made by Mr. Ten Eyck, who at the same time asked the Court of Chancery to construe the Barnet will, which disposed of an estate valued at about $30.000. The decision of the vice chancellor was that he would allow the suit at law to proceed to trial, and that after the law court has decided the question as to whether or not Mrs. Barnet is entitled to the legacy, he would allow an application for an injunction against any further proceeding in the law courts in case this should be necessary for the protection of the executors.

The vice chancellor, speaking of the jurisdiction of courts of law over suits to recover legacies, said:

"It is one of the most ancient jurisdictions that the Supreme Court has. I find, on looking over the decision by Chief Justice Kirkpatrick in the Pennington case, that this really rests on an act of George II., in 1730. The Colonial statute was passed in 1774, before the adoption of any State constitutions, so that the jurisdiction to recover legacies in certain cases was given to courts of law."

SNAP SHOTS.

Gargle a bad sore throat with a strong solution of lemon juice and water. The juice of half a lemon in a cup of black coffee without any sugar will cure sick headache. Lemon juice and salt will remove iron rust. A strong unsweetened lemonade taken before breakfast will prevent and cure a bilious attack. Lemon juice added to milk until it curds and these curds than bound upon parts swollen from rheumtism will bring relief. Lemon juice mixed very thick with sugar will relieve that tickling cough that is so annoying. A hot lemonade taken before going to bed will cure a cold on the lungs. A cloth saturated in lemon juice and bound about a cut or wound will stop its bleeding. Lemon juice added to fruit juices that do not jell readily, such a cherry, strawberry, etc., will cause them to jell.—Exchange.

"What is news?" is a question that is very difficult to answer. Here is an illustration: There is probably not a farmer in the world who raises sheep but has time after time been followed by one or more lambs for two, three, five or ten minutes. When the plebian lamb follows the average farmer it is not a matter of news. But the other day two lambs followed J. J. Van Alen, who married into the Astor family, and immediately the "event" was celebrated in the New York newspapers in 300 or 400 words. On his own merits Mr. Van Alen might not be worth two lipes of an obituary following a coap advertisement, but because he is worth several millions of dollars and married an Astor, not even an infant sheep can smell his coattails without the fact being set forth in the New York prints under attractive headlines.—Savannah News.

NEGRO FIEND ATTACKS NINE-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Springs From Clump of Bushes and Grabs Fresh Air Home Child.

AUNT RESCUES HER

Woman Drops Babe and Claws Like Tigress at the Brute, Who Flees Without Accomplishing Purpose.

Springing out of the woods that border Leland avenue just below South avenue, early this morning, a heavy set negro seized hold of Annie Wagner, a nine-year-old girl from New York, who has been at Miss Curry's Fresh Air camp, and attempted to drag her off. The child's aunt, Mrs. John Cousin, who was a short distance behind her, dropped an infant she was carrying in her arms and gave chase to the fiend and caught up with him. With the ferocity of a tigress she beat him with her fists, at the same time emitting piercing screams, and caused him to drop his intended victim. The negro then turned and ran, and as soon as she could regain her composure Mrs. Cousin hurried to the Netherwood avenue station, where she related her experience to Miss Curry. Police headquarters was notified by telephone and officers were sent to the scene, but the fellow had made good his escape.

Mrs. Cousin and her niece were among several others to be sent back to New York today, and they started from the camp alone for the Netherwood station shortly after 7 o'clock. Miss Curry and a dozen or more children and mothers had gone around Berkely avenue for the same purpose a short time before. Little Annie was running on ahead and playfully chasing a butterfly, when the negro suddenly sprang in front of her. Before the child could do any more than scream, he had lifted her from her feet and was back in the bushes again. The man was evidently unaware of the nearness of Mrs. Cousin, as the attack was bold in the extreme, and he could not have gotten the child any distance. In her agitation Mrs. Cousin did not observe him closely, and she was unable to furnish any clear description. She only knew that he was almost a giant in stature and that he was roughly clad.

Miss Curry was greatly disturbed by the attempted assault and sent word back to the camp for the other children to remain close about the place. She also gave all the information she could to the police, but could not remain, as it was necessary for her to get the children to New York and bring out others who are in waiting.

SUMMER RESORT FOR WASHINGTON ROCK

HOTEL AND TROLLEY LINES ARE SCHEMES OF DUNELLENITES.

In the interest of planning for improvements in the vicinity of Washington Rock and securing some means of conveyance over Watchung Mountain, an informal meeting was held at the office of Garretson & Gray, Dunellen, last night. There were about twenty-five citizens present and the discussion was very informal. Another meeting will be held on Wednesday night, August 2, at the same place, when matters will take a more definite form and arrangements made for holding a public meeting in the borough hall.

The citizens of Dunellen believe that if they can secure the co-operation of the people of Plainfield and Bound Brook, the Public Service Corporation can be induced to build a trolley line over the mountain connecting with the main line which runs through these towns.

In connection with the advantages of the trolley there is a plan on foot to build a commodious summer hotel near the site of Washington Rock, and provide other attractions which will make that section a popular resort in the summer. The Dunellen citizens are very enthusiastic about the matter and hope to accomplish something before long. The people of Plainfield and Bound Brook will probably be invited to join them at the public meeting.

Mrs. James T. MacMurray, of Sandford avenue, left today for Ocean Grove, where she will stop at "The Arborton," on Sea View avenue, for the month of August.

FULLARD MACHINE PLANT AGAIN VISITED BY FIRE

PROMPT ARRIVAL OF DEPARTMENT PREVENTS SERIOUS BLAZE.

The plant of the Fullard Machine Company on East Fourth street, which was recently badly damaged by fire, was again threatened with destruction last night, when smoldering flames in a sawdust filled box used as a cuspidor communicated to the flooring. A brisk blaze was in progress when the smoke was noticed by Charles H. Hand, who promptly turned in an alarm from box 21. The department was on the scene two minutes afterward and by laying in the chemical hose quickly checked the flames. The damake was confined to the floor and will amount to about $75.

The plant caught fire shortly before midnight on December 14 last and gave the department a long fight. Both the building and stock suffered and the firm was put to a great expense getting to rights. A large number of machinists are employed in the place making newspaper folders.

3 EXPERTS IN CO. K. WHICH QUALIFIED 35

PLAINFIELD MILITARY DOING GOOD WORK ON RANGE.

The members of Co. K continue to do excellent work on the State range at Sea Girt and it now looks as though last year's record in the number of men who qualified would be reached, if not exceeded. On Wednesday several of the boys visited the range and made good scores.

There were three, Captain W. B. Martin, Sergeant A. I. Littell and Corporal A. R. Phillips, who qualified as experts. These members qualified as marksmen: Sergeant E. R. Pearsall, Asa F. Randolph, George L. Apgar, Privates Nathan R. Titsworth, R. MacDonald and H. C. Lunger.

Thirty-five members have thus far qualified this year out of a membership of fifty-eight. Last year forty-two members qualified ant it is the determination of every one to make a better record this year.

The military authorities have set apart certain days in the week when the members can visit the range for practice and Co. K. has an opportunity at least once a week for a trip to the shore. Captain W. B. Martin is taking unusual interest in the maksmanship this year and has enthused him men very much in the work. It is believed that every member of the company will make the effort to qualify with a good score. It is practically a certainty that at least a dozen more men will come up to the mark before the time limit.

There is great rivalry between Cos. K. and L, the latter of Princeton, and this has proved an incentive for the local boys to do their best.

BOYS, THE POOL'S READY.

Public Swimming Place to Be Opened Now.

The bath houses at the swimming pool on the Compton property were completed last night and the place will be ready for use in a day or two. The pool has been cleaned out and all of the old stumps and roots removed. It was expected that a platform would be placed on the bank, but this will not be done at present. As the boys are partial to a spring board, one of these will be arranged.

The bath houses will be equipped with hooks upon which the boys can hang their clothes and someone will be in charge to keep order.

Helen Johnson, seven months' old child of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson, of 220 Richmond street, died last night at Cranford, following an attack of dysentery. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made

GIRL OVERCOME BY GAS

First Victim of Newly Installed Improvements In Dunellen.

SAVED BY MISTRESS.

Found Senseless, Just in Time to Prevent Death—Careless P. S. C. Workman Blamed for Accident.

Gas was turned into the newly laid pipes in Dunellen about three weeks ago. It got its first victim Wednesday night—Mary Schisholak, a servant in the family of Willard Apgar, a prominent contractor.

The girl's life was saved, but she came within an ace of losing it. She was found in an unconscious state in her bed by Mrs. Apgar, and only prompt medical attendance prevented a fatality.

The servant went to bed shortly after 7:30. At 9 o'clock the family, which had been sitting on the porch, went indoors. Gas fumes filled the house, and a search for their source was hurriedly made. Mrs. Apgar traced them to the girl's room, and found the servant senseless.

Dr. Platt was summoned and managed to restore the girl to consciousness. She was still very weak this morning, but the physician pronounces her out of danger.

A few minutes before the servant went to her room a Public Service workman finished a repair job on the supply pipes in the house. It is said that he was not sober and neglected to turn off a cock at which he tested the flow of gas. Mr. Apgar has advised the girl to bring suit against the company.

WELCOME HOME FOR ITS TWO TOURISTS

GESANG AND TURN HOLDS A RECEPTION.

A welcoming sociable in honor of the return of two of its officers, William Gardener, president, and Louis Moraller, treasurer, was given last night by the Gesang and Turn Verein in Saengerbund Hall. A supper was the feature. Between the courses speeches were made by August Wolf, William Gardener, Henry Haurand and Louis Moraller.

After the repast the entire gathering met upstairs in the hall, where a vaudeville programme was presented. Among those who took part were Bert Hansen and Charles Myers, Sr., acrobats; Miss Clara Weber and Mrs. Gus Schemp, recitations, and Fred Frank, of Newark, monolgist and comedian. Between these performances the singing section of the club gave a number of songs, including the one by which they won a cup in a recent contest. After the entire programme had been given, a picture of the singing section and the cup was taken.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. Music for the occasion was furnished by A. C. Frazee.

The committee in charge of arrangements was August Wolf, Anton Stenzenberger, Charles Myer, Jr., and Ernest Syler.

The women on the committee for furnishing the supper were Mrs. Rudolf Spiegel, Mrs. Gus Schemp, Mrs. Mary Sutton, Mrs. C. Meyer, Sr., Mrs. William Beiter, Mrs. August Melcher, Mrs. Anton Stenzenberger and Mrs. John Retzer.

POLITICIANS' OUTING.

Union County Republican Excursion Tomorrow.

Union county will be depleted of the larger part of its officials tomorrow, when the annual excursion of the County Republican Committee takes place at Witzel's Point View Island, in Long Island Sound. All the faithful will be on hand and from presenti ndications the crowd will be the largest in years. As the political pot has been sizzling more or less for the past month, it will be steaming hot before the day is over, and those who have been trying to get a line on the situation will have three or four. A big delegation will go from Plainfield, and there is a certainty that Judge Runyon's boom for the senatorial nomination will be carried right into the enemy's camp.

The steamer "Isabella" has been chartered for the trip and it will leave Chancellor Dock, Elizabethport, at 9:30 sharp. Most of the day will be spent in the sail up and down the sound and the stop at Witzel's will be only long enough for dinner. The committee announces that there will be plenty for everybody and that last year's scramble at Galvin's Park will be repeated "never no more."

J. Wesley Johnson, of East Seventh street, is detained at home today on account of illness.

THINK THEY HAVE LONG

Trenton Police Capture Suspect Answering the Murderer's Description.

TO BE INDENTIFIED.

Prisoner Says His Name Is James Gale, but Colored Woman Picks Him Out as the Fugitive.

A negro answering the description of and believed to be Charles Long was arrested late last night in Trenton at the Johnson trolley barn North Willow street and Pennington avenue. The negro says that he is James Gale, aged 32, a waiter, of Princeton, and that he has a wife and five children at that place.

One of the identification marks he bears is a small lump on the back of his head.

Hattie Stokes, colored, who conducts a restaurant at 113 South Feeder street, walked into the Central police station last night and informed Acting Sergeant Culliton that Long had been to her place earlier in the evening to get something to eat. The woman said that another colored woman had stolen a skirt from her on Wednesday and that she gave it to Long.

Acting Sergeant Culliton dispatched Patrolman Edward Goodwin to the Stokes home and he found that the negro had left. The officer afterwards found the man near the Johnson trolley barn. The woman swore that he was Long.

The negro, when placed under arrest, consented to accompany the officer to the police station, but protested that he was not long. He said that he came to Trenton from Princeton yesterday to draw some money from the Trenton Trust and Safe Deposit Company. He admitted being in the woman's restaurant.

The police last night made no effort to have the negro identified but will do so today.

Chief Kiely said at noon today that he had heard nothing regarding the supposed capture of the murdered from the Trenton authorities.

"I decided yesterday that Long was not in this neighborhood any more, and it wouldn't surprise me to learn that he had been captured in Trenton."

The Chief and Detectives Clancy and Pilger, of the Trenton force agreed last night that there was no further use in beating up the swamp at South Plainfield. They were convinced after a last careful look over the field of search that Long had made good his escape from the neighborhood. The Chief called off the search as far as his department was concerned, and the Trenton officers took an early evening train home.

THROWN FROM AUTO IN MIDNIGHT RIDE

TWO MEN AND TWO WOMEN HURLED OUT AT ELIZABETH.

Two Plainfield men and two women figured in an automobile accident on Mary street, near Jefferson street, Elizabeth, at midnight last night. All four were thrown from their seats and hurled through the air, but none was seriously injured. The owner of the machine gave his name as F. L. Johnson and his residence as this city. The name is believed to be assumed.

The party was speeding down Mary street, when the auto struck a rope stretched across the street by some mischievous boys. In an instant the two men and two women were landed on the street.

Policeman Thompson took their names, but neglected to make a note of the auto number, which would have made their identification an easy matter.

SAVED FROM UNDERTOW

Miss Coriell and Miss Fuller Rescued by Asbury Park Guardsmen.

GIRL BATHER'S HEROISM

Plucky Attempt at a Rescue—Both Girls on Point of Collapse When Lifeboat Reaches Them.

Life savers rescued Miss Carrie Fuller, of this city, and Miss Edna Coriell, of Dunellen, two of the excursionists who went to Asbury Park with the First Presbyterian church yesterday, from the grip of the undertow. Miss Fuller had gone to the rescue of Miss Coriell, but the suck of the undertow was too much for ehr strength, and both girls were exhausted and on the point of going down when the lifeboat reached them.

Miss Fuller and Miss Coriell were swimming near each other, when the former noticed that Miss Coriell was in distress. She struck out for Miss Coriell and reached her before her strength gave out. Holding Miss Coriell up with one arm, Miss Fuller made an attempt to reach the shore. The undertow was too strong, and the plucky girl was compelled to give up.

She made an effort to call for help, but her strength was not even sufficient for a cry that would reach the people on the beach. She was barely able to keep herself and Miss Coriell afloat, and was on the point of collapse when the other bathers realized that something was wrong and alarmed the life-guardsmen.

Both girls retained consciousness, but were weak and breathless when pulled into the boat. Miss Fuller swallowed a lot of water and was made slightly ill, but a rest brought back her strength.

GRAND JURY MAY SIFT STANBERY ACCIDENT

JURYMAN REFUSED TO DENY THAT INVESTIGATION HAS ALREADY STARTED.

There is reason to believe that the question of fixing the responsibility for the death of Mrs. W. A. Westphal, who was fatally injured in the smashup between W. R. Stanbery's automobile and Oscar Harrison's runabout on West Front street Sunday night, will be sifted by the Middlesex County Grand Jury.

It is reportde on good authority this morning that the jury was even now considering the case, and R. P. F. Von Minden, of New Market, a member of the jury, refused either to deny or confirm the report when questioned at his office by a Daily Press reporter.

"That matter may be brought to the attention of the jury by any citizen," said Mr. Von Minden, when asked if the case stood any chance at all of being considered.

SALVATIONISTS' OUTING.

Free Excursion to Boynton Beach for Little Ones.

Under the auspices of the local corps of the Salvation Army, a free outing is being given today at Boynton Beach to two hundred of the poorest children and mothers in the city. Three box trolley cars well filled started from the Watchung avenue stand at 9 o'clock this morning. The majority of the children were colored, although there were many white ones and a number of mothers were in the party.

Ensign and Mrs. Magee, officers in charge of the local corps, had charge of the outing, and they arranged to have the entertainment include free tickets to all harmless amusements at the beach. The outing was made possible through the assistance of Plainfield people who contributed $100.

SAVED BABY BROTHER FROM DEATH IN WELL

REMARKABLE RESCUE OF SMALL DUNELLENITE BY QUICK-WITTED BOY.

Two-year-old Clayton Apgar was saved from death in an abandoned well in Dunellen Wednesday afternoon in a remarkable manner by his fifteen-year-old brother, George.

George was sent to the barn belonging to Kuldoshes Bros., a plumbing firm, on an errand and took the child with him. At the rear of the barn is an old well, covered over by loose boards. They went by this well and the child toddled over the boards. His foot kicked one of the planks, making an opening into which he dropped.

George saw his brother flash downward, and almost without realizing what he was trying to do kicked the displaced board back. It caught Clayton under the chin, and the child hung over the hole. The sudden stoggage wrenched his neck severely, but George pulled him up from certain death.

The well is over fifteen feet deep, and there is a depth of more than five feet of water in it.

TROLLEY POLE BASE KNOCKS DOWN MAN

CHARLES HEPNER, A CNNDUCTOR SERIOUSLY HURT.

Charles Hepner, a conductor on the local street railway, was badly hurt in a peculiar accident at the Fourth street barns early yesterday morning. He was swinging a trolley pole on a car, when the heavy iron base on top of the car became dislodged and fell off. Hepner attempted to get out of the way, but it struck him in the back with full force, knocking him down.

He was unable to arise, and fellow employes carried him to his home opposite the barns. The physician in charge declares he will be detained at home for several weeks. Though no bones were broken it is feared his spine is affected.

TOMORROW'S GAME.

Third Contest Between Plainfield and Westfield.

Everything is in readines for the third contest in the county championship series to be played between Plainfield and Westfield at Recreation Park, Westfield, tomorrow. "Willie" Deegan will be on hand, and should it be necessary he can be depended upon to do the trick good and proper.

"Red" Waller will be on the slab for Westfield. Dalton will not be able to play second base, the injury to his foot being more serious than was at first supposed, and Brogan will take his place. This will be the lineup of the two teams:

Plainfield — Kiernan, ss; Cosgrave, cf; Brogan, 2b; Connolly, rf; Cregan, lf; Leonard, 3b; Driscoll, 1b; O'Neill, c; Beck or Deegan, p.

Westfield—Lynch, ss; Barry, 3b; Rochford, 1b; Stallings, 2b; Bertwhistle, lf; Mallen, cf; McGoey, rf; Cotter, c; Waller, p; Kellogg, extra.

As for the question of umpires, it has been arranged that Henning is to officiate behind the plate in tomorrow's contest only, and Merity will take the field.

BABY CAMP WORK.

Fifteen Tots Being Cared for at Mountain Home.

The work at the King's Daughters' baby camp on the mountains is progressing satisfactorily under the direction of Mrs. Faber, chairman of the camp committee, assisted by other members and officers. At present there are fifteen children there, and all are enjoying good health. The recent cool weather has had a tendency to reduce the work at the camp to a slight extent.

There is now a demand for another dormitory at the camp, where it will be possible for some of the mothers to remain with the youngest babies. Recently an application was made for board for the summer for two children, one six months and the other a little older. This request had to be denied, as the officers have not made any preparations for keeping children the entire summer.

Work was started today to erect poles and string wires for the telephone connection at the camp. The reason for delay in this matter is that the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company has had some trouble in getting the consents for the right of way. There was so much objection to one route that it had to be given up and another one secured. It is expected to have the telephone installed within a few days.

Mrs. W. E. VanCourt and daughter, Anna, expect to spend next week with friends at Sewaren.

BURGLAR STARTED FIRE

Peculiar Early Morning Robbery in Sixth Street Boarding House.

FLAMES WOKE WOMAN

Bureau in Boarder's Room Ablaze—Watch and Money Missing, Valuables in Trousers Undisturbed.

A small boy stopped Officer Messler on the street last night and told him that a robbery had been committed the night before at 453 West Sixth street. The officer went to 453, which is a boarding house conducted by Mrs. Ralph Young.

Mrs. Young said she was awakened by a crackling noise at 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning; a glare struck her eyes as she opened them. The glare came from the bureau in a room on the opposite side of the hall, occupied by Van Cleef Welter and Benjamin Voorhees, which was wrapped in flames.

Mrs. Young alarmed the house, and the fire was extinguished before it spread from the bureau. When the flames were out it was noticed that the drawers looked as if they had been ransacked, and Welter and Voorhees made an inventory of their belongings.

Welter reported that $40 and a watch were missing. They had been left in one of the bureau drawers. Voorhees' watch and money, in his trousers at the foot of the bed, were undisturbed.

Neither occupant of the room heard any suspicious noise during the night. The police are puzzled over the case. They could see no reason why the thief should have fired the bureau after going through it, but the flames could hardly have been the result of accident. The thief would not have dared to light matches, it is contended, and a lantern or a pocket electric lamp would not have started the blaze. If the fire was started to conceal traces of the robbery, the police say, it was a clumsy attempt, and not the work of an expert thief.

Two of the lower drawers in the bureau were burned.

FUNERAL OF MISS CALEEN.

Services Largely Attended by Relatives and Friends.

With a large number of relatives and young and old friends in attendance, funeral services were held yesterday afternoon over the body of Miss Edith Caleen at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Caleen, of Orchard place. They were simple in character and were conducted by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of which Miss Caleen became a member last June.

During the services two selections, "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and "Come to Jesus," favorites of the departed, were sung by Mrs. Frank Woodruff, accompanied by Miss Florence Yaeger. The floral tributes were banked around the casket and comprised a large pillow from the family, reading "Our Daughter," and several others from her calssmates.

Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, five members of her brothers' Sunday school class and one school mate bearing the casket. They were Horace Vail, Monroe Squier, Albert Yaeger, Charles Backer, George Wyckoff and Lloyd Van Middlesworth.

DEATH AFTER RUNAWAY.

Wife of Former Plainfielder in a Fatal Accident.

Asbury Park, July 28.—Mrs. Elston Woodland, of Trenton, and formerly of North Plainfield, a summer resident of Belmar, died last night from injuries received in a runaway accident a week ago. With a friend, Miss Davis, also of Trenton, Mrs. Woodland was driving on Grand avenue, when the horse became frightened by the breaking of the harness and ran away. At Fifth avenue the carriage struck a tree and the occupants were thrown out.

Mrs. Woodland landed many feet away, with her head and shoulders wedged beneath a culvert. Miss Davis was only slightly hurt. Mrs. Woodland, who weighed 200 pounds, was carried int othe residence of Dr. John Taylor, in front of which the accident occurred. She was the wife of Elston Woodland, formerly of North Plainfield, district manager of the Prudential Insurance Company, of Trenton, and a daughter of C. H. Downing, of Philadelphia.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Hnery Kirchner was thrown from a trolley car early Wednesday night, and somewhat severely bruised and cut. He signalled the car to stop, and the motorman slowed down, apparently in response to Mr. Kirchner's signal. Before the latter was more than half-way aboard the car started suddenly, and Mr. Kirchner was thrown into the roadway. His face was scratched, and a jagged cut opened his nose. He was compelled to go to a physician yesterday morning, and the shock left him too weak for work. Unless the company settles, Mr. Kirchner will bring suit.

Arthur Vail's new lunch room opposite the loop was completed yesterday, and he began moving into it today. Mr. Vail professes to be amused at Mr. Sanford's concern over what the latter terms his monopoly rights to lunch room service at the loop. "What can Sanford do?" asked Mr. Vail yesterday. "I have a private lot, and can set up in any lawful business I see fit to start."

A tame white rat, apparently somebody's escaped pet, was captured in a trap set in the rear of Dr. Brakeley's store yesterday. George Apgar rescued the little animal and took it under his protection. The rat promptly made itself at home. It has struck up an odd friendship with Gyp, Arthur Vail's dog.

$30,000,000 POTTERY COMBINE.

Philadelphia and New York Capitalists Put Up Cash for Big Merger.

Trenton, July 28.—Fifteen millions of Philadelphia capital is involved in a combination of thirty of the largest potteries in the United States.

It includes the principal plants of this city, Wheeling, W. Va., and East Liverpool, O. The capital of the holding company is $30,000,000, the ownership of which is equally divided between Philadelphia and New York.

The consolidation has been effected by Newton Jackson, a broker, who confirmed the formation of the gigantic corporation. Mr. Jackson declined to give the names of the firms entering into the combination, but acknowledged that the plant of Knowles, Taylor & Knowles Company, of East Liverpool, representing a capital of $1,000,000, is at the head of the list.

Mr. Jackson made the following statement:

"The consolidation of the potteries of the United States is assured, sufficient options having been taken to make the undertaking a success and a number of banking houses having agreed to underwrite the securities, contingent upon a subsequent satisfactory investigation as to the security represented by the bonds to be issued. The preliminary investigation has already been made, and is satisfactory."

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Dudley Miller's pharmacy in Park avenue is headquarters for the best soda water made from pure fruit syrups.

Have you put in your winter supply of coal? If not consult TenEyck & Harris, the coal dealers. It will be to your advantage.

Harry G. Adams, the insurance agent, is a hustler and he knows the business like a book. Consult him when you want your life insured.

E. A. Craig, of East Front street, would like to do your electrical work. He is thoroughly experienced and guarantees all contracts he undertakes.

Every time you make a deposit at the Dime Savings Institution, you are adding to the interest you receive on your account. Don't delay but open an account now.

Honest fair treatment and the best goods should be sufficient to attract purchasers to Charles E. Vail's jewelry store in Park avenue. The prices are within your reach.

Of course you want electrical work that can be relied upon at all times. In that event the man you should see is W. H. Pope, of North avenue, who is an expert in this line.

Henry Eggerding's cigars are made only from the purest tobacco leaf carefully selected. They are sold at his store on Park avenue, which is headquarters for all smokers' materials.

If a horse is not properly shod it means trouble all around, and if men, women or children do not have proper footgear it means discomfort. A. E. and A. L. Giddes, in the corner store of the Sillman building, recommend the Sorosis shoe for young and old.

Need anything in the line of outing shirts, neckwear, hats or furnishings of any kind? U. B. Crane, the West Front street haberdasher, has a full line of each and at prices that cannot be beaten anywhere in town. At the present time he is making a specialty of straw hats at less than half the original cost.

When you trade at S. Scheuer & Co.'s grocery on West Front street you are always sure to get the best goods at the lowest prices. The firm does not jump prices every time the market changes and this is all to the advantage of the consumer. A well conducted meat market is attached and the best meats are sold.

Intelligent buyers know that when I. H. Boehm announces a special sale that it means a saving. His sales are genuine and are not conducted for the purpose of drawing the crowd by a reduction on one article and making it up on another. This fact has been established by the increasing patronage that Mr. Boehm has enjoyed in the many years that he has been in business locally.

POWER OF PUBLIC OPINION.

Lesson of the Reform Movement in Pennsylvania.

The most crying, shaming, and at the same time inspiring lesson of the reform movement in Pennsylvania is the revindication of the power of public opinion. We all know, academically, that public opinion rules the world—the whole world—not only the civilized, but the semi-civilized and barbarous world; that it rules absolutely free communities, such as the American, the British, the French, and also those where the monarch has greater power than in Great Britain; that it rules essentially in Russia, India, China and Abyssinia. Of course, its rule is more free and evident in free communities; but recent events in Russia have shown that the most absolute monarchs in the world have to give way whe ntheir peoples change their opinion about them and about things in general.

The effect of the tremendous kick recently administered by public opinion in Philadelphia to their local system of political graft seems to have surprised the beast that was hit not more than the great, dead-in-earnest, though not unhumorous, public that administered the punishment. The event proves that there was a storage battery of indignant protest right on the spot and ready to be charged; and that it might have been charged and made to do its vigorous work at any time these many years back.

This, however, is not the time for blame for what was not done, but of congratulation upon the glorious things that have been done, and upon the still more fundamental reforms that are now in the way of accomplishment in the redeemed city and in the State at large.

But let every community in the United States that has not yet revolted against corrupt local government take both warning and encouragement. Let it realize fully that if it remains corrupt it is its own fault. For nothing on earth can withstand the besom of an aroused and intelligent public opinion led by disinterested men against fortified corruption and hardy cynicism.—Century.

Manager Denman's cry of "Get the first," has been changed to "Give us a show."

The New Jersey Central team is now playing on its new grounds at Cummunipaw.

Join the great throng that is going to Westfield tomorrow and cheer the locals on to victory.

Manager Denman has every confidence in his team and he will present his same lineup tomorrow.

If you want to see genuine baseball rivalry go to Recreation Park tomorrow. It will be a battle royal.

The Hobokens will meet the Jersey City Eastern League team at St. George's Cricket Grounds on Sunday.

Let every one hope that Cosgrave will be on his game tomorrow. "Wally" is capable of doing better work than that of last Saturday.

The injury to Dalton's foot is more serious than was at first supposed, and he will be out of the game for several weeks. Brogan, who performed so well last Saturday, will fill his position until his return.

Manager Daab is planning to serve ice cold lemonade to the patrons of "grafters' row" on the outskirts of Crescent Oval. It was certainly an auspicious gathering that witnessed last Saturday's game from the free grandstand.

Manager Daab is confident that his team will maintain its winning streak and take tomorrow's contest.

The report that Deegan is to pitch occasionally on Saturdays for the Orange A. C. team is not true. He will be with the local team as usual on those days. He will probably pitch once in awhile for Orange in the mid-week games.

"Red" Waller, known at Westfield as "one of the best pitchers on earth," pitched for Lambertville against Doylestown on Wednesday and was touched up for fourteen hits, including two home runs by Hilt and Ross, of the visiting team. Doylestown won the game by a score of 11 to 8. Bertwhistle, also of Westfield, played with Lambertville.

Listen to this superheated atmosphere from the Somerset Messenger: "Plainfield put the 'blinks' on Westfield again Saturday—5 to 4. Come to Somerville, Plainfield, and see how easy the West Enders will take your measure. They would send 'Bill' Beck back to the bench in about 2¾ innings, and make Deegan look like 30 cents in another 1½."

WILD MINT WON.

By Inches Hamburg Belle Was Beaten in Test Handicap.

By an eyelash Wild Mint won the Test Handicap, worth $3,000, from Hamburg Belle at the Brighton Beach race-track yesterday. ast in the field of five horses and covered with dust was Hermis, the champion race horse of last season.

Wild Mint was not the fastest horse in the race, but a wretched start and rough riding enabled him to finish first.

Starter Mars Cassidy has been in poor form with the barrier during the entire Brighton meeting, but he capped the climax by his start in this race. Wild Mint alone was in his stride when the barrier was released; Hamburg Belle had to be whipped away from the post; Hermis, one of the quickest breakers in the country, was not in motion and an assistant starter was hanging to Buttling's bridle when Cassidy shouted "Come on." He overlooked Alan-a-Dale completely. That horse was turned sidewise and left at the post.

The Misses Margaret and Catherine Harding, of John street, will leav next week for Denville to spend two weeks.

JOCKEY WILSON RULED OFF.

Stewards Fined Ray, Warned Roderick and Suspended Donohue.

The stewards of the National Hunt and Steeplechase Association have ruled off Jockey C. T. Wilson, fined Nat Ray $200, warned Roderick and suspended Tim Donohue for an indefinite period. This action was taken at a meeting held at August Belmont's office on Wednesday, but it was not made public until yesterday.

Wilson is the jockey who was suspended by the stewards of the Kenilworth Park track at Buffalo for his ride on Cardigan, and the case was referred to the National Hunt and Steeplechase stewards.

The principal steward is Thomas Hitcrock, who owns the best stable of steeplechase horses in the country. At one time he was considered one of the best of our amateur riders and one of our most noted riders to hounds.

He took the Wilson case in hand, and after a thorough investigation the stewards unanimously agreed to rule Wilson off. Just what evidence was found against Wilson was not divulged. The stewards are a lot of conservative horsement, and it was said yesterday that they must have had a pretty strong case against Wilson to banish him from the turf.

Under this ruling Wilson will not be permitted to go inside any of the race-track grounds.

Reduced Rates to Denver, Colorado Springs, or Pueblo, via Pennsylvania Railroad.

On account of the Grand Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, on August 14 to 24, the meeting of the American Osteopathic Association on August 15 to 19, and the meeting of the National Association of Local Fire Insurance Agents on August 16 to 18, at Denver, Col., the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell round-trip tickets from all points on its line to Denver, Colorado Springs, or Pueblo, August 11, 12 and 13, good returning to reach original starting point not later than August 28, at greatly reduced rates. CY YOUNG TELLS HOW TO PITCH BALL

COMMAND OF THE SPHERE IS FIRST ESSENTIAL—WHEN TO VARY DELIVERY

By CY YOUNG,
Veteran Pitcher of Boston Americans.

Command of the ball is the first essential to success in pitching. A good, fast, overhand ball, kept high, is the one I depend on mostly when anxious to get an out.

I take the ball with the two forefingers and thumb for all styles of work, as it gives me the best control.

Straight balls over the corners will ofter prove more effective than the widest curves. This style is of little use, however, unless the umpire is a good judge of corner work.

When in good shape I use a jump ball considerably. It comes with extra speed, and if worked well into the batsman is perhaps the most difficult ball to hit safe.

The ball should be kept high when the batsman is out for a sacrifice, and a clever slow ball with a change of pace is very effective when you want to see the batsman send up a weak fly. The underhand ball with a raise I use but very little, as it has a tendency to lame the arm and must be curved as well as raised.

Many pitchers are effective until men get on bases, when they must shorten their swing; therefore a pitcher should have two distinct movements. In his preliminary swing, holding men close to the bases is one of the important features of the game.

A pitcher should throw seldom to the bases unless with a fair chance of getting the man. Too much throwing will affect his command over the ball and lose the lines he has on the man at the bat.

There is a vast difference in pitching to right and left handed batsmen, and I think the left hander the more annoying for a right hand pitcher. I work a left hand man with close curves about waist high, with a curve on the out corner of the plate. As most of the left handers are "choppers," they are ever ready for speed and bothered more with curves and change of pace.

The preliminary swing is everything to a pitcher. By putting your shoulder and back muscles into your delivery you will save the arm.

A MILE IN 2:05.

Fastest Heat of the Year Made at the Detroit Meeting.

Detroit, Mich., July 28—Locanda won the 2:04 pace at Grosse Point Wednesday afternoon, the feature event of the third day's programme of the Detroit Driving Club's blue ribbon meeting. In addition to winning the race ocanda paced the first mile in 2:05, the fastest heat of the year, and also paced the last quarter of the second heat in 29¾ seconds. There were only three horses in the event, Locanda, King, Direct and Nathan Strauss. In the opening pools Nathan Strauss sold favorite, bringing $400, with Locanda at $150 and King Direct $200. Locanda took the lead at the start of the first heat and held it all the way. Nathan Strauss was two lengths behind at the three-quarters and made a strenuous effort to beat Locanda in the home stretch, but failed by half a length.

HANLON CLAIMS CREDIT OF PLAY

SAYS HE, AND NOT M'GRAW, ORIGINATED HIT AND RUN FEATURE.

The inevitable has come. The blow that once "killed father" has again been dealt with deadly effect, and the reputation as well as the spirit of America's baseball geniuses has been crushed by the cruel assertion of an ungrateful pupil, who has repudiated the claim of his former tutor that the latter was responsible for his being in the baseball world. The bonds of friendship which bound tutor and pupil together for thirteen years have been severed, and in words emphatic and vehement the tutor has denounced his former pupil as an impostor.

The trouble came over the recent assertion of a baseball scribe that the credit of engineering and developing the hit-and-run play, which the Giants so successfully worked last year and this, emanated from the brain of Johnny McGraw. The latter is given credit for springing the play as far back as 1894, when he was with the champion Baltimores. A glowing tribute is paid Manager Mac, and the honors, including the trimmings, are heaped upon him for his cleverness.

Over in Brooklyn the tutor of this same little Johnny McGraw read the story of Mac's triumph and his face flushed with anger. Ned Hanlon, who has led both the Baltimores and Brooklyn—not the present tribe—in championship races, and who has been a friend of McGraw for years, ridiculed the latter assertion that he was the originator of the play. This honor Hanlon claims for himself, and he says so in these words:

"I don't mind giving credit where credit is due," said Hanlon, "but I want to say that the hit and run game was played by the Baltimore team before McGraw ever became a regular member of that organization.

"The play was first introduced by me in the Baltimore Club in 1893, and Wilbur Robinson, the catcher, and Reitz worked it successfully a number of times. In the early spring practice down South in 1894 we made a feature of this style of play.

"When we opened the season with the Giants at Baltimore that year we beat them four straight. We had Johnny Ward standing on his head half the time, because he didn't know where the ball was going to be hit. The reason the play was so cleverly executed by the Baltimore team was due to the fact that I had a lot of young fellows who were natural ball players. When I traded Treadway and Shindle to the Brooklyn Club for Dan Brouthers and Willie Keeler the team was strengthened considerably. Keeler was an apt pupil at the hit and run game, and he, McGraw, Rietz, Robinson, Kelley and Jennings could work it successfully eight times out of ten.

"McGraw has a lot of brainy ball players under him in the Giants, and naturally they were quick to pick up the play and work it successfully. I want to say, however, that I am the originator of the play, and I think I ought to be given the credit due me."

Simple Rules for a Knotty Problem.

If a pitcher is taken out when his team is in the lead he cannot be charged with defeat if his team eventually loses. However, he gets credit for winning the game if it is a victory for his team.

If a pitcher is taken out when the opposing team leads, and his team eventually wins, the second pitcher gets credit for the victory, and the game does not enter the first pitcher's record. However, if his team loses the first pitcher is charged with defeat, and the game does not affect the second pitcher's record unless the game is tied and then lost.

If a pitcher is taken out when the opposing team leads, and his club eventually ties the score, but loses in the end, the second pitcher is charged with defeat, the first pitcher not figuring at all in the record. (This rule is not followed to any great extent on account of the trouble experienced by "dopesters" in getting a correct idea of how games are played from perusal of box scores.)

Lake Excursion.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hopatcong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hopatcong is the gem of places. On July 30, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m.

Abbott Qualifies.

Robert Abbott qualified with a score of 78 in the opening play at the tenth annual midsummer tournament of the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club, yesterday, but in the first round match play, he was defeated by Ralph Peters, Jr., by 5 up and 4 to play. Among the other scores returned in the first round was that of Julius E. Erickson, who posted a 98.

Plainfield, N. J., July 28, 1905.

Until September the series of sermons published on Saturdays for the shut-in will be suspended.

For inspired stories on the political situation in Union county, "now is the time to subscribe" for the New York Tribune.

Bloodhounds and fires having failed to drive the negro murderer out of the Dismal swamp, the only thing left for Chief Kiely to do is to scatter watermelons in nearby fields.

Should "Hot Air" Mallen repeat his obscene talk when coaching his Westfield runners at the next game on the Oval, there's but one thing to be done. Turn him over to the police.

The usual big crowd is expected at Recreation Park tomorrow to see the facial expression of Charley Denman, "the dove of peace," when Plainfield wins the third game in the series from Westfield.

Plainfield, the city and borough combined, is just 1,101 ahead of New Brunswick, according to the official census returns. In all other respects it is so far ahead of it that comparisons are needless.

"When a man is a candidate for office the people think that he is laden with money coming like manna from heaven," says plain James E. Martine, who has a record of figuring in the "also ran" class for Congress once, for State senate twice and for the assembly more times than he can remember.

All the Republican politicians of Union county will be on hand tomorrow at Witzel's Point, Long Island Sound. There's no doubt about it. "Foxy Grandpa" George Parrott will want to explain just why Summit should have the shrievalty; MacMurray will want to tell why he is for Judge Runyon "first, last and all the time;" Roger Murray will be anxious to dwell on Ernest R. Ackerman's fitness for the Senatorial nomination, and Hamilton Shrewd Kean will be there to jolly them all along. Yes, and C. Napolean Fowler will be on the outskirts if only to insure cool weather.

NEW ORLEANS SEES HOPE.

By Stamping Out Mosquitoes May End Yellow Fever Forever.

New Orleans, July 28—With every class of the city's population stirred in a campaign to show that yellow fever can and will be stamped out in the city without becoming contagious, the plague situation in New Orleans has now assumed a unique phase.

"We are fighting," said one business men today, " to do more than simply save a few lives just now. We the fighting to kill the bugbear of quarantine that has checked every proposed development of the city's commerce. We are going to show that yellow fever can be stamped out."

Dr. J. H. White, who is in charge of the Marine Hospital forces, joins the State and city health officers in the opinion that if the destruction of the mosquitoes checks the spread of the disease the present visitation of the plague will have been a blessing in disguise, since it will have demonstrated the ability of science to control a virulent outbreak of yellow fever.

All Aboard for Asbury.

The Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school is the next one to go to Asbury Park and the date is Thursday, August 3. According to a new rule made by the New Jersey Central the excursion train will not stop at Long Branch either going to Asbury Park or returning, as stated on the advertising posters. This will not mar the pleasure, and everyone going on the excursion is sure to have a good time.

Mrs. Samuel Long and daughters, of New Brunswick, are stopping at their summer home in Washington Valley for a part of the summer.

THE FORUM.

Another Side of Theatre Matter.

Editor The Daily Press:

Permit me to issue a response to an article that was printed in your issue of last night regarding the theatre that is being built in our fair city. It said that four local union men were laid off or discharged. I deny the fact. They were called off by our delegate simply because the union manager, as he terms himself, Mr. Gelatt, would not comply with the union conditions which exist in this city. I know that the local union of carpenters has given Mr. Gelatt and his foreman two weeks to get what we demand. He has asked for an extension of time numerous times, but fails to comply. In fact, he says that there are no union men to be had, when Atlantic City, from which the contractor comes, and with whom the local had trouble some years ago, has plenty of union men walking the streets. I think the carload coming here may prove the assertion. I do not think that it is fair for a firm coming to a union town to try and run an open shop, for the local of this town, numbering over two hundred, wants not only to protect ourselves, but also to protect our good and substantial employers, who are not only taxpayers, but patrons of any good theatre. Now, Mr. Editor, I would state that the theatre is an unfair job and that no union man can work there, and I would also say that the men called off have work to go to in the morning at an advance in wages.

Respectfully,
A UNION MAN.

July 28, 1905.

HOCH HANGS TODAY.

Bluebeard to Pay Penalty for his Crimes.

Chicago, July 28.—"Hang me, if you want to be murderers," was the only comment yesterday of Johann Hoch, who today will hang for wife murder.

Convinced that all hope for a reprieve is practically at an end, the bigamist was nervous, but evidently resigned. He has not, however, given up all hope, and believes it more than possible that Governor Duneen will grant him a reprieve or that he will be able to raise the necessary $300 to perfect his appeal.

The Governor yesterday declined to interfere. He had a long telephone conference with States Attorney Healy, and then telephoned Hoch's attorney that the man must hang.

Plainfield Pleased Him.

Captain William Hand, of East Second street, had as his guest yesterday Captain Cyprian Rossiter, of Newark, who served with him in the Eleventh New Jersey Volunteers during the Civil War. It was the latter's first visit to Plainfield, though he has lived in this vicinity nearly all his life. He drove over from Gillette, where he is spending the summer, and was greatly pleased with the country between the two places, while Plainfield delighted him.

STUDENT HAS HALLUCINATION.

On This Account a Commission Has Decided That He Is Insane.

New Brunswick, July 28—Drs. Donohue and Morrison have declared after examination that Thomas A. Gerety is insane. The young man has been a law student in the office of former Senator Robert Adrain, and too close application to his books undermined his health. This, it is thought, has caused his mental trouble, which takes the shape of religious hallucinations.

He was a remarkably bright young man. He graduated from the local High School in 1895 and from Rutgers College in 1899, taking honors in both his school and college courses.

Commitment papers have been made out for his removal to the New Jersey State Hospital for the Insane, but they have not been served, as it is hoped that with rest and change of scene he will be restored to mental health.

COLORED SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

SESSIONS BEING HELD IN AN ELIZABETH CHURCH.

An effort to raise money enough to educate one of its students, who is planning to go to Africa to work for the furtherance of civilization and Christianity among his people, was inaugurated at the tenth anniversary celebration of the Afro-American State Sunday School Convention, of which Peter Robinson, of this city, is an officer, at the Union Baptist church, Elizabeth, yesterday.

The speakers in the morning were Mrs. H. Woody, who read a paper on "Christian Training in the Family," and Mrs. T. W. Watkins, of Orange, who read a paper, the discussion of which was led by Reuben Smith, of Roselle. R. L. Burrell, of Rutherford, and Rev. W. H. Howerton, of Passaic, conducted the devotional exercises, and Rev. J. W. Anderson, of Hackensack, read the Scriptures.

W. P. Lawrence, of Elizabeth, president of the convention, delivered the annual address in the afternoon. That session was further devoted to the reading of reports, transaction of convention business and election of officers. Rev. P. W. Ross, of the New York Avenue Baptist church, of Westfield, and Rev. E. D. Samuels, of the North Clinton Baptist church, of East Orange, conducted the devotional exercises.

Isa Ngiti, a student supported by the convention, spoke at the evening session, at which the superintendent and pastor also made addresses.

The officers of the convention are W. P. Lawrence, president, Elizabeth; eGorge W. Vann, vice president, East Orange; W. W. Grant, second vice president, Morristown; Peter Robinson, third vice-president, Plainfield; M. W. Vaughn, treasurer, Newark, and W. H. Haskins, recording secretary, Elizabeth.

"PASSING THE CENSOR."

One of the Numerous Troubles of the War Correspondent.

But when the battle has been fought, and the correspondent, at great hazard, has written his story, then his troubles have only fairly begun, says Melville E. Stone in the August Century. He must "pass the censor." This may be easy or it may be most difficult. Much depends upon the character and intelligence of the censor. It is only fair to say that we have found the Russians very reasonable. They have shown far more wisdom than did the American censors during the Spanish War. Next, the messages must be transmitted. The correspondent must be "first at the wire," or his work may all come to naught. Here, again, he must exercise tact; otherwise a petty telegraph official, who is often a very monarch in his field, may spoil everything. And all along the line—for the telegram is retransmitted half a dozen times before it reaches San Francisco or New York—the cable officials must be friendly and painstaking and intelligent, or the news will fail to reach its destination promptly and in the form in which it was sent. Delays in transmission are inevitable, and it speaks volumes for the efficiency of modern telegraphy that they are so infrequent. Russian operators, Danish operators, Japanese operators, French operators—all handle and transmit these messages, often in bad chirography, in a language which they do not understand, and they seldom make a serious mistake.

Long-sought Fugitive Caught.

Elizabeth, July 28—Edward C. Hurd, a fugitive from justice, was caught here Wednesday night after being away from Elizabeth over a year. He stole a lot of silverware from Caterer Edward Newburger, by whom he was employed, in May, 1904. He disposed of his plunder and went to Florida, from which State he returned a couple of days ago and came to Elizabeth, thinking the crime had been forgotten. Meanwhile he had been indicted by the Union County Grand Jury.

GUBERNATORIAL BOOM LAUNCHED FOR BRIGGS

REPUBLICANS AT SEA GIRT HAIL STATE TREASURER AS STOKES' SUCCESSOR.

Governor's day at Sea Girt yesterday, the last of the season, was marked by an unusually large attendance of Republican notables from all sections of the State. The feature of the gathering was a very pronounced boom for State Treasurer Frank O. Briggs, of Trenton, for Governor.

Mr. Briggs and William M. oJhnson, former State Senator from Bergen county, have both been prominently mentioned for the governorship, but as one member of the Legislature state yesterday afternoon, "Johnson is not in it." Briggs was toasted time and again as the next Governor, and throughout the day was constantly hailed as the successor of Governor Stokes.

The special guests of the Governor were the chief clerks of the State departments, most of whom were at the camp grounds. Besides these, members of the Legislature, various State and county leaders and other party managers were present. Dinner was served at "The Little White House" at 1 p. m. The guests were shown about the camp and witnessed dress paraed at 4 p. m. Colonel Edward D. Fox, executive clerk, assisted in piloting the visitors about.

The dress parade was attended by an unusually large crowd, including about twenty automobile parties from the various resorts along the coast. Among those there were former State Senator Jonathan H. Blackwell and party, former Mayor Welling G. Sickel and party, and Watson H. Linburg and party, all of Trenton.

The camp will break up tomorrow. It was not know at the State House yesterday whether Governor Stokes would return to this city at once or remain at the shore over Sunday.

Former Governor Murphy and Elmer Dover, secretary of the Republican national committee, who is summering at Asbury Park, called on Governor Stokes yesterday afternoon.

MOTHER OF TRIPLETS.

Also Devoted to Theory That Women Should Have Rights Equal to Men.

Ocean Grove, July 28—At the meeting of the New Jersey State Woman's Suffrage Association, held in the Young People's Temple, Mrs. A. Kingsbury, of Springfield, this State, formerly of the State of Wyoming, declared that any woman who did not desire the political freedom man enjoys is a lunatic and ought to be placed in an asylum.

She drew a word picture of "the selfish cruel-hearted men," and spoke of the "vile oppression of the country."

She closed with the assertion that she was the mother of triplets, and that when they were little babies she wheeled them to a ballot-box in the State of Wyoming, where the women have equal rights with the men, and cast her ballot in much the same manner as she would draw for the first prize at a baby show.

SMALL WHALE AND FIRE.

Fish and Game Added to the Gaiety of Life at Long Branch.

Long Branch, July 28—This city was all excitement yesterday because of the capture of a real live whale. It is only seventeen feet long by actual measurement, but the stories give it various weights and lengths, varying according to the distance from the shore when the story is told. It got entangled in Hennessey's pound nets.

There was a fire Wednesday evening in the ice house on the premises of GGeneral Thomas T Eckerts at Elberon, which threatened for a time to spread to hist costly villa, but it was finally extinguished with a loss of $400.

KOMURA AND PRES. CONFER.

The Japanese Envoys Pay a Visit to Sagamore Hill.

Oyster Bay, July 28—Baron Komura and Minister Takahira were received by President Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill yesterday.

While the visit is looked upon as being of the utmost importance in connection with the peace negotiations, the coming and going of the two envoys was most unostentatious. Baron Koruma and Mr. Takahira arrived here a little after noon. At the station the President's carriage was in waiting. Minister Takahira, who has been her often enough in the last fortnight to know his way about pretty well, conducted his colleague to the carriage.

Big Railway Deal.

A deal may have been closed on board the White Star steamship Baltic, which sailed from New York yesterday, by which the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which already controls the elevated and subway lines of Manhattan and the Bronx, will absorb the Metropolitan surface lines in the borough of Manhattan. The deal has been rumored many times before in Wall street and as many times denied.

WIND UP EQUITABLE'S AFFAIRS.

J. W. Brown Serves the Society With an Amended Complaint.

Asking that a receiver be appointed for all the assets of the Equitable Life Assurance Society in New York, that the officers and directors be restrained from the further handling of its funds, that an accounting be had of them of their management of the society's affairs, and that the affairs of the society be wound up, counsel for J. Wilcox Brown, of Maryland, holder of an Equitable policy for $25,000, yesterday served upon the society an amended complaint in the suit first brought for a receiver for the Equitable's surplus.

The amended complaint contains a general arraignment of Equitable management in the past, and questions the good faith and probable success of the efforts now being made for the rehabilitation of the society. It is on this latter ground principally that the receiver is sought, although the complainant takes the position that the entire theory on which the Equitable has been and is administered conflicts with the right of the policy holders to the entire surplus, and makes it imperative that the court declare a trust be declared to exist in favor of the policy holders, past and present. The bill as amended will be filed in the United States Circuit Court in New York today.

SUMMER DRINKS.

Ginger Lemonade.

Put a tablespoonful of powdered sugar in a glass and over it squeeze the juice of half a lemon and fill up the glass with ginger ale that has been thoroughly chilled on ice.

Soda Cocktail.

Fill your glasses with lemon soda, adding as much raspberry syrup as desired with a very thin slice of pineapple on top of each glass.

Soda Lemonade.

Dissolve twelve lumps of sugar in a little water; add the juice of four lemons. Pour into a pitcher over cracked ice, add three bottles of club soda thoroughly chilled and one and one-half lemons sliced very thin.

Currant Shrubs.

Wash and stem sufficient quantity of ripe currants to make a quart of juice when mashed through a coarse sieve, then strained through cheese cloth. Add a quart of water and sweeten to taste. Stir until sugar is dissolved; then strain again and serve with shaved ice.

Ching Ching.

This sounds refreshing and is worth trying. Fill glasses two-thirds full with shaved ice and over this pour the juice of a large orange, sweetened with four lumps of sugar, and flavor with a few drops of essence of cloves and peppermint. Serve at once.

Bengal Punch.

Put a pint of water and a pound of sugar to boil, stirring until sugar dissolves; then boil without stirring for five minutes. Remove from the fire and when cool add half a cup of strained lemon juice, half a cup of strained orange juice and a cup of moderately strong tea of your favorite blend. Strain and serve with cracked ice in glasses with tiny little sandwiches of candied orange peel chopped fine.

ALMOND ICING.

This underlay is a decidedly unique feature. Beat the whites of six eggs to a stiff froth. Work two pounds of almonds which have been blanched and pounded in a mortar with rosewater to a stiff paste. Mix the almond paste and egg whites together and add by degrees two pounds of pounded loaf sugar (confectioners' sugar may be substituted). When the cake is done spread the icing smoothly over it and place in a cool oven to brown.

A NEW FAD.

Fashionable women are using none but Japanese flower decorations for their table this summer. To be up to date and in the swim one must imitate things Japanese, consequently a clever young woman who understands the work has all the employment of the kind she can attend to. Florists who up to now have had a monopoly of the trade are anxious at the prospect. This particular young woman is the only woman available in the city who understands the arrangement of flowers in the Japanese way, and, as it took her seven years to learn it, it looks as if she would retain her monopoly for the present.

VEGETABLE SOUP.

Put two tablespoonful of pearl barley to boil in one quart of water; boil gently for two hours. Add one quart of good beef stock and the following vegetables cut very fine: One white turnip, on carrot, a half head of celery, two onions and a little cabbage. After boiling an hour and a half longer, add three potatoes cut fine and season with salt and pepper. Then cook an hour longer.

MILK MELONS.

One of the latest French agricultural fads is being agitated by a farmer near Marseilles, who declared that watermelons supplied with milk freely poured around the roots will grow twice their normal size, and offers proof in the shape of prizes from many fairs, which, he asserts, he was enabled to win through this practice.

According to his theory the melon is provided with the proper combination of foods in exactly the right proportions, and is enabled to throw all of its energy into its growth instead of sending forth long roots in order to draw from the soil what it requires as food.

The process is said not only to increase the size of the melon, but insure firm red pulp of delicious flavor.

POTATO SOUP.

Boil six good potatoes. Put one quart of milk in a double kettle over the fire to boil, with one small onion chopped fine, and the same bulk in celery cut into small pieces. When the potatoes are cooked mash thoroughly and mix with the milk. Add a teaspoonful of butter and a little salt, black pepper, and a pinch of red pepper. Rub the soup through a strainer, add a little cream, if you like, and serve immediately.

SAVE SISTER.

Two Girls Volunteer to Give Cuticle to Victim of Acid Throwing

Minnie Mertz, of Paterson, the victim of a mysterious acid throwing, will recover with the aid of her two sisters, who have volunteered for a skin-grafting operation. Miss Mertz is eighteen years old. She made her home with her married sister at Bloomingdale.

One night three weeks ago some one entered her bedroom and threw acid in her face while she was asleep. The young woman was taken to the Paterson General Hospital. Her face and neck were terribly burned. The operation will begin at the hospital today.

SELF RELIANCE.

A Virtue Which Many American Women Lack Woefully.

"She always goes right ahead and does things without consulting anybody!" remarked the elderly woman disparagingly.

"Humph! I wish I had her in my family!" retorted another woman.

"You never know what she is going to do next."

"Again I say I wish I had her."

Noticing the looks of surprise that were cast at her, the last speaker went on: "Did you ever find yourself in a position where your advice was asked fifty times a day? That's where I was after I married John and came to this town to live. I don't suppose the people of the town and those of his family were any less self reliant than you find them elsewhere, but I certainly seemed to get the benefit of whatever lack of self reliance there was. If his sister wanted her jacket sleeves remodeled she couldn't rip them out and cut them by a pattern. Oh, no! She was no good at those things. She had to bring them to me. If anything went wrong every one had to be helped to solve it. Even new acquaintances would drop in to state their troubles. Just think of the delight of having as a close associate a woman who never consults you about anything she does! What a blessed relief!"

"OH, DO COME WITH ME!"

A girl has to go downtown either to select a hat or to find a position. She can't bear to go alone, so she turns to another girl who is perhaps very busy herself, and she says, "Oh, do come with me!"

That's the spirit of it all. "Oh, do come with me!" "Oh, do write this disagreeable letter for me!" or "Tell me how I can make my living." or "Show me how to do it without much trouble."

Some girls are not born that way, to be sure, but self reliance can be drilled even into the youngest child, and what a blessing it will be to her.

HELEN CLIFTON.

SENSIBLE DESSERTS.

A Few Timely Hot Weather Suggestions For the Tired Housewife.

Why bend over the hot stove any more than is necessary in this weather? Cold meats and salads are surely healthier than hot dishes, and how many desserts may be made independently of the kitchen stove?

There is that loaf of cake, for instance. Take it out, slice it and then with a cooky cutter divide the slices into round and heart shaped figures.

CHOPPED FRUITS AND NUTS.

Spread each with mashed red raspberries and then cover with whipped cream. This is delicious.

Take strawberries, raspberries and sliced bananas, with the addition of some pecan nuts, chop the whole with some shaved ice and serve in long glasses, covering the top with a bit of whipped cream.

Have you tried muskmelons iced very cold and filled with a mixture of shaved ginger, marshmallows and whipped cream?

Charlotte russe is an ideal hot weather dessert. Make the cake part of lady fingers and flavor the whipped cream with raspberry or strawberry juice, which also gives a delicious pink color.

BEATRICE MILLER.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

"Oh, I ought to have known how it would be if I left you a moment!" she cried, despairingly, on her reappearance, a little folded paper in her hand. "But at least you must stay half an hour. We can telephone direct to the dock and secure the staterooms, if you must go on the Doric. Yes," she continued, lowering her voice, "they are not going farther until Col. Frost comes. Mrs. Garrison explains that her sister was really too ill and too weak to come out here, but she thought the drive might do her good. She thought best to slip quietly away with her, and bids me say good night to you all."

So, when next day the Doric sailed, four new names appeared upon the passenger list, and the last men down the stage, already "trembling on the rise," were two young fellows in white uniform, who turned as they sprang to the dock and waved their jaunty caps. "Join you in ten days at 'Frisco!" shouted the shorter of the two, gazing upward and backward at the quartette on the promenade deck. "Oh! beg a thousand pardons," he added, hastily, as he bumped against some slender object, and, wheeling about to pick up a flimsy white fan, he found himself face to face with Witchie Garrison, kerchief waving, beaming, smiling, throwing kisses innumerable to the party he had so lately left. The hot blood rushed to his forehead, an angry light to his eyes, as she nodded, blithely, forbearingly, forgivingly at him. "Dear boy," she cried, in her clear, penetrating treble, "how could you be expected to see anyone after leaving—her?" But Gov's arm was linked in his at the very instant and led him glowering away, leaving her close to the edge of the crowded dock, smiling sweetness, blessing and bliss upon a silent and unresponsive group, and waving kerchief and kisses to them until, far from shore the Doric headed out to sea.

They were nearing home again. Day and night for nearly a week the good ship had borne them steadily onward over a sea of deepest blue, calm and unruffled as the light that shone in Amy's eyes. Hours of each twenty-four Armstrong had been the constant companion, at first of the trio, then of the two—for Mr. Prime had found a kindred spirit in a veteran merchant homeward bound from China—then of one alone; for Miss Prime had found another interest and favor in the eyes of a young tourist paying his first visit to our shores, and so it happened that before the voyage, all too brief, was half over Amy Lawrence and Armstrong walked the spacious deck for hours alone or sat in sheltered nooks, gazing out upon the sea. The soft summer breezes of the first few days had given place to keener, chillier air. The fog ahead told of the close proximity of the Farallones. Heavier wraps had replaced the soft fabrics of the Hawaiian saunterings. But warmth and gladness, coupled with a strange, new shyness in his presence, were glowing in her fresh young heart. One day she had said to him: "You have not told me how you came to leave there—just now," and it was a moment before he answered.

"That was the surgeons' doing. They sent me back from the front because the wound did not properly heal, and then ordered a sea voyage until it did; but I turn back at once from San Francisco."

She was silent a few seconds. This was unlooked-for and unwelcome news. "I thought," she said, "at least Gov. heard Dr. Frank say it would be four months before you could use that arm." She plucked at the fringe of the heavy shawl he had wrapped about her as she reclined in the low steamer chair; but the white lids veiled her eyes.

"Possibly," answered Armstrong; "but, you see, I do not have to use it much at any time. I'm all right otherwise, and there will soon be need of me."

"More campaigning?" she anxiously inquired, her eyes one moment uplifting.

"Probably. Those fellows have no idea of quitting."

Another interval of silence. The long, lazy, rolling swell of the Pacific had changed during the day to an abrupt and tumultuous upheaval that tossed the Doric like a cork and made locomotion a problem. The rising wind and sea sent the spray whirling from her bows, and Mildred's young man, casting about for a dry corner, had deposited his fair charge on a bench along the forward deck house and was scouting up and down for steamer chairs. Armstrong had drawn his close to that in which Miss Lawrence reclined, her knitted steamer cap pulled well forward over her brow. His feet were braced against a stanchion. His eyes were intent upon her sweet face. He had no thought for other men, even those in similar plight. His gaze, though unhampered by the high peak of his forage cap, comprehended nothing beyond the rounded outline of that soft cheek. Her eyes, well-nigh hidden by her shrouding "Tam," saw the searching son of Albion and told her his need. The best of women will find excuse for interruption at such moments when sure of the devotion of the man who sits with a fateful question quivering on his lips; and, even when she longs to hear those very words, will find means to defer them as a kitten dallies with a captured mouse or a child saves to the very last the sweetest morsel of her birthday cake. Not ten minutes before, when Hon. Bertie Shafto had started impulsively toward the vacant chair by Armstrong's side, a firm hand detained him, and Miss Prime had hastily interposed. "Not on any account!" said she, imperiously. "Can't you see?" And Mr. Shafto, adjusting his monocle, had gazed long and fixedly and then, transferring his gaze to her, had said:

"You have not told me how you came to leave there."

CLOSE TO THE PEOPLE.

Health Bulletin.—A. M. Vicars was on the puny list several days last week.—Wise (Va.) News.

Restored Youth.—Paris Dugger passed through Vose Monday all smiles. Paris says he feels like he is sweet sixteen since he blacked his hair.—Laurel County (Ky.) Local.

In Editorial Succession.—Don't be disappointed if the paper is not better than usual or not so good this week, as the old king Hornet has been away most of the time trying his hand at the statehood business, and the younger Hornet has had his hands full in the mechanical department. When dad went away he left copy enough for two issues, with instructions to cut all that was objectionable to the readers that called, and he had barely got out of town till the office was overrun with readers that wanted to see the proofs, and the slashing began. We saved a little out of the wreck, and place it before you without further apology. —Waukomis (O. T.) Herald.

Horse Dentist in Line for Hero Medal.—George Washington Gregory, the famous horse dentist, was down from his farm north of Aline, Wednesday. George comes down occasionally to tell them how it is. They had a small Fourth at Aline and George attended. During the day an incident happened in which George figured as a real hero. A lady's skirt caught fire from the explosion of a firecracker, and she was soon enveloped in flames, and George was the only one who had the courage to rush to the rescue. By a superb effort he succeeded in extinguishing the fire, and thereby saved the lady from a horrible fate. If Congressman Victor Murdock is to have one of Carnegie's hero medals for rescuing two women who were floundreing around in water two feet deep, we shall insist that our own George Washington Gregory be remembered in the same way.—Cleo (O. T.) Chieftain.

WHERE'S THE GIRL?

Keating Knows What Became of the Ring He Lost in 1876.

Gloucester, Mass., July 28.—William Keating, who gives his address as New Jersey, claims that he was the owner of a plain gold ring found by William E. Ansell in the pouch of a codfish which he was dressing at a wharf here in February, 1876. Keating says that in 1876, when he was living in Beverly, he exchanged rings with a young woman to whom he was attentive. He was fishing in the sloop Siren of Beverly, and while on the banks one day, wringing his hands to keep them warm, the ring slipped off and disappeared in the ocean.

Keating said he never thought anything about the incident all these years, but, picking up one of the fishermen's books of the period while in this city the present week, he happened to turn to the paper relating the finding of the ring in the codfish's pouch. From the description he is satisfied it was his ring which the fish found and swallowed, but could not digest.

MAUD GONNE'S DIVORCE.

Counsel Denies Charge that She Is Not of Genuine Irish Birth.

Paris, July 28.—The hearing of the suit for divorce brought by Maud Gonne, the "Irish Joan of Arc," against Major McBride, formerly of the Boer army, has begun before the Civil Tribunal of the Seine. Maitre Cruppe represented the wife and Maitre Labori the husband.

Maitre Cruppe severely denounced Major McBride's alleged unfaithfulness and denied the husband's charge that his wife is not of genuine Irish birth.

The case attracts much attention owing to the prominence of the parties in connection with Irish agitation.

LITERARY.

Baron Jutaro Komura is one of the most remarkable of the younger statesmen of Japan. He comes from the ministry of foreign affairs, a post which he has filled with dignity and success since 1900. He conducted the Manchurian negotiations which led up to the war in a manner highly satisfactory to the Emperor and the entire people. Baron Komura is a Harvard man, and speaks English with a strong Boston accent. He won his spurs in Korea, in 1895, when Japanese diplomacy was so discredited. Five years later he went to Peking, and participated in the peace conference there, as a result of the Boxer rebellion and the expedition of the allied powers. During his stay at the Chinese capital he won the confidence of China so largely that there has existed an unpublished but effective alliance between Japan and China, which has been very helpful to the former during her war with Russia. Baron Komura was Japanese Minister to Washington preceding Mr. Takahira. His greatest triumph may be said to be the long and delicate negotiations which he, as foreign minister, conducted with Baron Rosen, then Russian minister, which culminated in the great struggle between the two powers.—From "The Peace Negotiators at Washington," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for August.

J. V. BERKAW DEAD.

Passed Away at His Home on Jackson Avenue This Morning.

John V. Berkaw, for many years a well known resident of the borough, died this morning at his home on Jackson avenue. He had been ill for a long time with dysentery and a complication of troubles.

Mr. Berkaw was in his forty-ninth year and at one time conducted a shoe store on West Front street, opposite Somerset. Of late years he had been employed by Morse & Rogers, wholesale shoe dealers, of Duane street, New York. He leaves a widown and one sister, Miss Mary Berkaw. He was also a brother to the late Mrs. J. A. Smith.

The funeral will be held from his late home Sunday night, and the interment will be made Monday morning in the family plot at Flemington

Football Guide Out.

Spalding's Official Football Guide for 1905, edited by Walter Camp, has just been issued for the coming season in Spalding's Athletic Library No. 240. Besides the newly revised official playing rules, the contents also include Mr. Camp's All America team and review of season of 1904; All America teams from 1889 to 1904; All America selections from leading newspapers; Middle West all star for 1904; All Eastern college elevens for 1904, by Charles Edward Patterson, of Princeon; records of all the leading teams; scores of the games between prominent colleges since introduction of Rugby football; review of special annual college matches in 1904; a short description of the game; special chapters on the state of the game in the following sections of the country; Middle West, by Charles Baird, of the University of Michigan; Middle States, by Geo. Orton, of Pennsylvania; New England, by Joseph B. Pendleton; Colorado, by A. W. Risley; Pacific Coast, by H. L. Baggerly; the South, by J. L. de Saulles; the Southwest, by Martin A. Delaney; forecast for season of 1905, by E. B. Moss, of New York. A feature that will be much appreciated is the schedules of college games for 1905 arranged in chronological order. The names of the captains of leading college teams for 1905 are also given, and the pictures, of which there are nearly one hundred pages, embrace over 2,500 individual players.

Injured Italians Recover.

Two of the three Italians who were injured in the cave-in at the Netherwood station recently, have been discharged from the hospital and expect to return to work soon. The third Italian is improving rapidly and hopes to leave the institution within a few days.

VACATION DAYS.

Miss Mary Compton, of West Front street, has returned from a delightful automobile trip through Vermont with her sister from Brooklyn.

Charles C. Dufford, of Middel Valley, Hunterdon county, has returned home after a visit of six weeks with Elijah Dufford, of Wset Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wean, of West Fourth street, are out of town on their annual vacation, a portion of which is being spent in the mountains.

Elston M. French, of Somerset street, who has been abroad for a number of weeks, expects to sail on the return trip on Tuesday, August 15, arriving home on August 22.

George Hooley, of the borough, has returned from Barnegat Bay, where he has been for a month past. September first he will go to work at the Carteret Chemical Company's plant, where he proposes to learn the business.

Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, left yesterday for North East Harbor, Mt. Desert, Me., where she will remain for some time with her daughter, Mrs. Aubrey Weightmann, of Philadelphia, who is spending the summer there.

Mrs. Catherine Schenck, mother of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, has gone to New Brunswick, where she will visit her son, Rev. Isaac Schenck. Next week Dr. Schenck starts on his vacation for a month. Mr. Schenck and family will spend some of the time at Southampton, L. I.

Division of Spoils.

Judge Runyon, of Plainfield, has decided to "shy his castor" into the Republican Senatorial arena, and push ahead for the nomination. It was announced, after former Mayors Fisk and Gilbert, of that city, had refused to enter the contest, that the leaders would unite on Runyon, but there are some indications that former Assemblyman Newcorn is being groomed by the faction who have before opposed the Judge. The Summit Republicans hold the statement that there was a fair understanding at the convention last fall, that they should have the candidate for sheriff, and Plainfield the Senator, this fall, and if things don't go that way there will be something doing again on the lines of 1903.—Rahway Union-Democrat (Rep).

—Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., met this week for the first time since early summer, to plan for the coming year's work. The regular meetings will be held from now on.

POLICE DOUBT GIRL WHO LIED BEFORE

FANNIE HAYDEN SAYS SOME ONE THREW ACID IN HER FACE.

Somebody has been good a threat in a recent letter to mar the beauty of Fannie Hayden, 16 years old, of 214 Marshall street, Elizabeth, according to the story told by the girl to the police yesterday. Her face is marked with scars by sulphuric acid, which she claims was thrown on her as she walked along Second street Wednesday night. The police, however, believe the girl mutilated herself to make good the threat which was given much publicity and which the police say was her own invention.

Miss Hayden is the girl who was found under a pile of boards in a vacant lot several weeks ago and who then maintained that she had been sandbagged and placed there by an unknown man. To substantiate her story she produced a bundle of threatening letters, the writer of which professed to be angry because the girl hal left the Fulton Street Methodist church in the midst of the big revival there.

When the police gave the girl the third degree she confessed that she was the author of the letters herself and also admitted that she had crawled beneath the pile of boards and inflicted some slight wounds on her head to give credence to her story. When friends who believed in her asked her what she meant she withdrew her confession to the authorities, claiming it was made under pressure.

She had not been out of the house for several weeks until Wednesday night, when her mother sent her on an errand. On her way home she stopped at the office of Dr. Bunting with her face burned from the corner of her left eye to a spot under her chin. Dr. Whitehead, who is a police commissioner, was at the office of Dr. Bunting when she called and he reported the case to headquarters.

According to the girl's own story, as she passed a fence which shut off a dark passageway she felt something strike her in the face and then was conscious of a liquid burning her flesh. She admits that she did not see any one throw the acid, nor did she hear any one running away. Inquiry among the neighbors did not reveal anything to substantiate the girl's story.

The fact that the girl has not been out of the house for several weeks operates against the theory that any one had been lying in wait for her. Dr. Whitehead and the police freely assert that she put the acid on her own face.

$100 REWARD OFFERED.

Aged Man Missing from Newark Home Since July 13.

The Bureau of Information at Manhattan Police Headquarters received yesterday a notice from Chief of Police Adams, of Newark, that $100 reward was offered for information leading to the discovery of John Laubenstein, seventy-one years old, of 104 Garrison street, Newark, who had been missing from his home since July 13. Laubenstein is described as five feet seven inches tall, 170 pounds in weight, with gray hair and brown eyes; with gold rimmed spectacles and a crook-handled cane, wearing a dark checked coat, black trousers, blue striped outing shirt and black leather slippers. He had no waistcoat, collar or tie.

Iced Up the Thermometer.

During the scorching hot weather of last week Long Branch produced the claim that it was the coolest resort in New Jersey, and, according to the figures which it then produced, it was. But Red Bank is trying to do better, and the Mail and Express of that place makes the claim that that staid inland town was one degree cooler than Long Branch. We might as well let them have their way, for they will never be happy unless they get it. Probably they hung their temperature gauges in a refrigerator.—Asbury Park Journal.

Westfield Dogs All Happy.

The dogs about town who have the neat, new license tags attached to their collars are enjoying a sense of security thereby, while the tagless ones are indulging themselves in equally pleasant contemplations regarding the non-existence of a dog warden. So they are all happy.—Union County Standard.

—Rockdale print and creamery butters have proven their superiority over all others as thousands of users will testify. Neuman Brothers are the local selling agents.

SUN ON B. B. DECISION.

Sporting Man's Opinion on Local Dispute.

One of the Plainfield fans wrote to the sporting editor of The Sun this week for an opinion regarding the questionable decision given by Umpire Merity in the Plainfield-Westfield game at Crescent Oval on Saturday, and this morning's Sun answers the query thus:

"It counts as a third strike, and the batter goes as far as he can."

It will be remembered that Ed. Stallings, the second baseman, was at the bat and he had two strikes and no balls on him. The next ball delivered by Deegan was ant out-drop which struck the corner of the plate and bounced over O'Neill's head. At the same time or just after hitting the plate Stallings struck at the ball.

The question was asked "does the play count as a third strike, and by such the batter reaches third base, or is it a dead ball, because it was not fairly delivered and should the batter return from third base, which he received before the ball was recovered and go on batting."

Realty Change.

John W. Murray and Joseph A. Hubbard, who owned a portion of the property on the east side of Park avenue, between Fifth and Sixth streets, including the dwelling occupied by Mrs. DuBois, has sold the house to James C. Pope and Howard A. Pope as an investment. Mr. Murray and Mr. Hubbard still own that part of the property between the DuBois house and the one new being built by F. A. Pope.

At the Netherwood Home.

George McNeeley, of New York, led the weekly prayer meeting at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home last evening. Hymns formed a large part of the programme.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

It was Harry B. and not Chester Dennis who spoke about Northfield and the Northfield Student Convention at the Trinity Reformed church on Wednesday evening.

Rev. John J. Wicker, of Trenton, who will address the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday afternoon, is a courageous, earnest and able speaker. Miss V. Lilian Perry, a gifted soloist, of Scranton, Pa., will sing two selections.

Still Hold Fenning.

Chief Weiss, of the borough police, had not received a reply from the Newark police this forenoon in answer to his inquiry regarding the supposed sister of E. C. Fenning, the weak-minded old man found wandering in the borough Wednesday night. If the clue contained in the slip of paper found on the old man turns out to be fruitless, the Chief will send Fenning to the Smalley farm, to where the old man says he was going, and leave him there until Smalley, who is away from home, returns.

THEATRE NEARLY READY

Manager Announces That Play House Will Open on Date Set.

BOOKING GOOD SHOWS

Balcony and Gallery Now in Place—Decorating Work to Start Next Week—Some Good and Poor Shows.

With the night set for the opening less than four weeks away, the spirit of "hustle" has taken possession of the large gang of workmen engaged in constructing the new Plainfield theatre and today there is more reason than ever to believe that the plans of Managers Counihan and Gelatt will be carried out to the letter. The alterations have now reached the stage where outsiders get a definite idea as to what remains to be done and yet realize what great progress has been made. The change in so short a period has been a wonderful feat but it has been at no cost to the final result.

Both the balcony and gallery are now in place and yesterday the greater part of the plastering was accomplished. The plaster boards are now going on and Monday will see the start of the electrical work and the panelling. After that comes the decorating and installation of furnishings, all of which have been arranged for. Not a moment has been lost nor will be and the local public can rely on the bills which state "Will positively open on August 24."

So confident is Manager Gelatt of the completion of the house that he has continued to go ahead with bookings and has added many more to the list of high class attractions given out. The initial performance at the theatre of "The County Chairman" is to be followed on the next night by Jessie May Hall in "The Street Singer," the play that Florence Bindley has starred in for two years. There are other big productions coming on the last days of August and September will see plenty of Broadway successes. Klaw & Erlanger's Drury Lane spectacle, "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," comes on the 11th; "Marching Through Georgia" is promised for the 16th; Thomas W. Ross and "Checkers" will appear on the 18th and "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," with dainty Alberta Gallatin, will be the attraction on the 22d. Watson, Bicke and Roth, the greatest trio of funmakers in the country, will present "Tom, Dick and Harry" on September 19 and others equally as good are being negotiated for.

Coming later in the season are "Babes in Toyland" and George Sidney in January; Denman Thompson and "The Old Homestead" on April 14 and McIntyre and Heath in "The Ham Tree." For Saturday nights during September and October Manager Gelatt has secured a number of Al Wood's big scenic productions, among them "In Gay New York," "Dealers in White Women," "Tracked Round the World" and "Fast Life in New York."

"Belle Hayes" Does Mile in 2:21.

"Belle Hayes," the speedy bay mare until recently owned by J. W. Van Sickle, of East Third street, showed up in splendid form at a race meet on Long Island Thursday by trotting a mile in 2:21. She did it with apparent ease and caused many old-time horsemen to sit up and take notice. Immediately after she left the track her owner received an offer of $600 for her and later $1,000, but he declined to sell. He has great confidence in her ability and declares she will make a record of 2:15 before the season is over.

VOCALIST FAVORITES PLEASE AT BAND CONCERT

DRISLANE AND FITZGIBBON FEATURES OF THE PROGRAMME.

Though well known to Plainfielders because of several previous appearances, Jack Drislane and Bert Fitzgibbon took greater bounds into local popularity at the usual weekly band concert last night. The versatile young vocalists were in excellent voice and their method of rendition was exceptionally pleasing. Mr. Drislane, who is known as the composer of "That's What the Brass Band Played" and other familiar songs, sang "Listen to the Leader of the German Band" and the season's hit, "My Yankee Irish Girl." He got a "big hand" after each number and Mr. Fitzgiboon fared as well with "Don't Be So Mean" and "Jasper Johnson," both his own compositions. In the latter, the singer interpolated a number of lines that were composed on the spur of the moment but which caught the fancy of the crowd.

Another big feature on the programme was the second appearence of John S. Leick, the world famous cornettist. He played Jules Levy's "Grand Fantasia" and for an encore gave "Killarney." Mr. Leick is without exception one of the most skilful artists who has ever appeared in the city and he has added great strength to the concerts. He will be on the programme again next week but the folowing week will be absent because of an engagement at Proctor's Newark theatre.

The crowd at last night's concert was not a record breaker because of threatened rain but numbered about 2,000 people.

DOUBT OF OLD MAN'S IDENTITY REMOVED

DAILY PRESS REPORTER FINDS MAN WHO KNOWS E. C. FENNING.

Positive identification of the helpless and weak-minded old man found wandering about the borough streets Wednesday night was made by a Plainfielder for a Daily Press reporter yesterday afternoon. The identifier said there was no doubt at all that the old man was E. C. Fanning, or Fenning, and that he had lived with and worked on the Smalley farm, near New Brunswick, for thirty years. He did not want to become mixed up publicly in the case, because, he said, the old man will have to be sent to an asylum in any event, and he did not see that any good could come from his becoming known in the matter.

"I know the old man well," he said. "I saw him here early Wednesday night and recognized him. He has lived off and on with the Smalleys on their farm near New Brunswick for the past thirty years.

"Smalley conducts a hack business at Asbury Park every summer, which explains the old man's reference to Smalley being 'at the park,' which puzzled the North Plainfield police. From what I know of Fanning's family, I don't believe he was living, as he says, with a sister in Newark. That's one of the things the poor old chap has been dreaming. The slip with the Newark address on it is another result of his mental wanderings.

"The thing to do with the old man is to send him without further delay to an asylum. He is incapable of caring for himself, and there is no one to take care of him outside of the State institutions. If I were the borough official who has the say-so in such things, I would have Fanning sent to the asylum immediately."

In answer to the communication of Chief Weiss to the Newark police, two sisters of Fenning came to North Plainfield at about 6 o'clock last evening. One of them, who gave her name as Mrs. Anna Eston, of South Seventeenth street, Newark, said that Fenning was a heavy drinker and that fact coupled with his old age was the cause of his mental derangement. He was in the habit of getting on a trolley car and riding on till the spending money which the sisters gave him was used up.

The Chief said this morning that he thought Fenning could be as sane as possible when it was to his own interest, and he practises his curious antics only as a tool to ward off questioning.

A Big Day at the Shore.

Plan to accompany Trinity Reformed church Sunday School to Asbury Park on Thursday, August 3, and you will have an enjoyable day's vacation. The excursion will go, rain or shine.

At The Netherwood Home.

The Christian Endeavor Society of a church at Elizabeth had charge of the half-hour prayer service last night at the Netherwood Home.

DAUGHTER OF BRET HARTE TO GET FUND

TITLED ENGLISHMEN START IT IN INTEREST OF FORMER PLAINFIELD GIRL.

A cablegram from London announces that Miss Ethel Bret Harte, formerly of this city, is to be the beneficiary of a fund which is being instituted by a large circle of her father's friends to aid her in regaining her health, which has lately been seriously affected.

Miss Harte was born in Morristown during the residence there of her famous father, whom she is said to greatly resemble. The family later removed to this city. A short time ago she made her debut as a singer on the concert stage in London, and a brilliant future was predicted for her, as her voice is a clear, sympathetic sporano and is augmented by a natural charm and grace of manner acquired during an experience of several years on the stage.

Like her father, Miss Harte has blue eyes and brown hair and a talent for making friends.

Among those prominent in securing the fund are Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Sir Gilbert Parker, Sir George Newnes, George Meredith and other literary friends of Bret Harte.

POLICE UNABLE TO TRACE BRUTAL NEGRO

ASSAILANT OF LITTLE ANNIE WAGNER MADE GOOD HIS ESCAPE.

Not a single clue to the identity or whereabouts of the negro who attacked nine-year-old Anna Wagner, one of the Fresh Air children, on Leland avenue early yesterday morning, while the child's aunt was taking her to the Netherwood station, could be obtained by the police after a search over the neighborhood that lasted from 11 o'clock in the forenoon until late in the afternoon.

Sergeant Frederickson was sent to the scene of the attempted assault as soon as it was reported to the police, and he went over the ground foot by foot, besides searching for clues in every possible place that promised results.

He could find nobody who had seen a suspicious looking negro in the neighborhood at the time of the attempt nor in the sections around it later. The man could easily have avoided observation, however, because it was not a time at which many people were out, and there are a number of back ways of escape in the vicinity.

Frederickson was handicapped by lack of a complete description. Neither the aunt nor Miss Curry, the camp matron, was in the city, and none of the children or the grown-ups at the home could give him any information. As a matter of fact, the officer could find no one at the latter place who had any definite knowledge of the assault and the circumstances surrounding it.

The police are inclined to regard the report of the assault, in all its alleged details, with skepticism. They are sure of ony one thing, that the aunt and the child had an encounter of some sort with a negro. They believe that the woman, hysterical over the fright she received, magnified the affair.

This feeling, however, will have no bearing on their search for the negro. Every effort will be made to run him down, and if it is found that he made any such attempt as is imputed to him, the officer will bend every energy to giving him swift justice.

NEW BUILDING PLANS.

Work of Demolishing Old Park Avenue Structures to Begin Soon.

It is expected that the work of demolishing the old buildings now standing on Charles W. McCutchen's property on Park avenue will be started soon, as Mr. McCutchen is anxious to begin operations on the new structures he has planned to erect there this year. The buildings to be torn down comprise those formerly occupied by the late Joseph Carbone, the one now used as a pool room, the one adjoining and occupied by Thomas L. Walsh, and the vacant one formerly occupied by M. C. Dobbins. With these buildings out of the way and the brick building formerly occupied by Charles Schanz moved to West Second street, the work of construction can go along unhindered.

As recently stated, Mr. McCutchen plans to erect a two-story brick and stone building adjoining that of the Plainfield Trust Company property, the upper floor to be used for offices and the ground floor for stores. The plans have been drawn and estimates are now being obtained for the construction work.

POLITICIANS' EXCURSION

Big and Little Fry of Union County Are Enjoying an Outing.

LAUNCHING BOOMS.

Kean Brothers, Fowler and Other Bosses of the G. O. P. in the Party—A Big Dinner.

About thirty local Republicans, including Mayor James F. Buckle, County Chairman F. H. Smith, John W. Murray, Jr., Herbert W. Buxton, City Judge William N. Runyon and George Tobin and other greater and lesser lights left Plainfield this morning to join with Republicans from other parts of the county on the annual outing to Witzel's Point View Island, in Long Island Sound. Some of the Plainfielders left on the 8 o'clock train, while the others got away at 8:36. They went to Elizabethport where the steamer "Isabelle" was in waiting to take the G. O. P. to the objective point.

The steamer left the Port at 9:30 o'clock and most of the day will be spent in the sail up and down the sound, a stop being made at Witzel's just long enough for dinner.

Among those who went from here were several who are members of the Plainfield Republican Club, and they will not lose the opportunity to gain friends and support for William N. Runyon, who is being boomed for the senatorial nomination.

Included in the party are Senator John Kean, Congressman Charles N. Fowler, Surrogate George T. Parrot Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, County Clerk James C. Calvert, Former County Chairman Hamilton F. Kean, Assemblyman Randolph Perkins and Peter Tillman, Dr. W. B. Lawrence the candidate for sheriff to succeed Mr. Coriell and a host of others.

LAW'S CLUTCHES ON AN EQUALIPLOS MAN

PROFESSOR WALTER CONJUNCTION AMAZES WITH HIS ERUDITION.

Nine chickens belonging to Mrs. Mary Galbraith, of 524 West Fourth street, disappeared from her coop last Saturday night. That same evening "Professor Walter Conjunction" Jones, colored, sold several pairs of chickens at bargain prices to colored epicures. "Professor" Jones has a spotted record, and the police had no hesitancy in putting the robbery up to him when they heard of the coincidence. He was arraigned before Justice Mosher in the city court this morning.

The professor earnestly denied any tendencies to chicken stealing. The fowls he sold, he said, were raised by himself on a truck patch allowed him by a generous employer in New Market.

"How is it you happened to be selling your chickens at night?" asked the justice. "Are you a nocturnal huckster?"

"A huckster? No, suh; I'm a farmer; I'm a equaliplos man."

"A what!" asked the amazed court.

"Equaliplos, equaliplos, equaliplos. Dat means I'm equal to every evention from the first evention."

"That gets me," gasped the justice. "I've been on the bench fifteen years, but this is the first time I've run across this sort of thing. I'll hold you under $200 bail. Can you get it?"

"I have some frens, but sca-cely like dat," said the professor, sadly.

"That's sort of equaliplos, isn't it?" asked the court.

The professor borrowed a package of chewing tobacco from one of the witnesses and went sorrowfully to a cell.

LOSES WIFE AND CHILD.

Two Deaths Within a Week in Charles Drake's Family.

Charles Drake, of Greenbrook road, has lost his wife and an infant son within a week. Mrs. Drake died at Smalleytown on Sunday and the boy, John Drake, succumbed to dysentery at the home of William McMillan, on Harrison street, last night.

Funeral services over the little fellow will be held from Mr. Drake's home Monday morning at 9:30 and the body will be laid alongside of Mrs. Drake's in St. Mary's cemetery.

Feast of Watermelon.

After the business session of Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., the good and welfare committee furnished the members with a generous suply of watermelon. There was also vocal and instrumental music.

OVER 200 CHILDREN ENJOYED FREE OUTING

POOR ONES HAD A JOLLY TIME AT BOYNTON BEACH.

The outing given for the poor children of the city at Boynton Beach by the Salvation Army, yesterday, was a great success. Including Ensign and Mrs. Magee and other members of the local corps, who had charge of the outing, there were 230 in the party, occupying three box trolley cars. At the beach Mr. Boynton furnished Ensign Magee with free tickets for the children. Through the generosity of local friends the trip was made possible and there was no deficit.

Ensign Magee takes exception to the statements made that many of those on the excursion were not included among Plainfield's poorest. He says that he personally visited the families who benefitted by the outing and knows for a certainty that everyone of the children taking the trip yesterday are among the poorest class and will not have an outing during the year through any other channel, unless some person or persons are induced to give them such a trip. Mr. Magee says that his object has been to get this class interested in their work and benefit them to such an extent that they will be inclined to help themselves.

Not an accident of any kind occurred on the trip to mar the pleasure of the party and they arrived home at 6 o'clock last night, on time.

SERVICES IN AID OF FRESH AIR HOME

MEETINGS AT GRACE EPISCOPAL AND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES.

In the interest of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home a special meeting will be held at Grace church, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Children from the institution will speak and sing and an offering will be received for the work. The speakers will be Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, Winfield S. Angleman, Esq., Miss Sara Curry, matron of the Home, and possibly James F. Parker.

Tomorrow afternoon an outdoor service will be held at the Home, when Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church, will speak, and the choir of that church will furnish the music. The public is invited to both of these services.

Another meeting will be held in the interest of the same institution at the Congregational church tomorrow night.

THE COOK'S LARK.

Strong Drink Convinced Her that She Was Mistress of the House.

Margaret Hickey, employed as a domestic by Tax Collector John Y. Hetfield, of Bartle avenue, Scotch Plains, imbibed too freely in the cup that cheers yesterday morning. Margaret's hallucinations led to her believe she was running the house, so she started in to break up the bric-a-brac, etc. Mr. Hetfield sent for Chief Pangborn to arrest the unruly cook, but she refused to go with him unless she could go in style, so the chief was obliged to press a passing delivery wagon into service before Margaret was landed in a cell. Recorder Clark called to prescribe for Miss Hickey sometime later but when arraigned before him she was still so helpless that she scarcely knew her own name. The recorder had her put back in a cell and the hearing postponed until night. By this time Margaret was in better condition, penitent and tearful. The court, after administering a lecture upon the evils of intemperance, gave her the option of paying $5 or taking 10 days. The fine was paid by her former employer, Mr. Hetfield, after which Margaret promised to leave town at once.

Mr. Burke's Denial.

Frank Burke, who has charge of the repair work on gas pipes in Dunellen, indignantly denies the charge that he was responsible for the escape of gas from the pipes of Willard Apgar's house, Dunellen, which resulted in the partial asphyxiation of a servant Wednesday night.

Mr. Burke says the assertion that he was drunk does him a grave injustice, as he neither drinks, smokes nor chews. There was no leak in the pipes when he left the house, he says, and the flow must have come from a cock turned on after he went away. The Public Service Company does not figure in the case, because while Mr. Burke is an employe of the corporation, he went to the Apgar house after working hours and at the personal request of Mr Apgar to look for leaks.

Lord's Supper Observance.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed tomorrow night at Trinity Reformed church.

AUTO ACCIDENT VICTIM IS BORNE TO GRAVE

FUNERAL SERVICES OVER MRS. WILLIAM A. WESTPHAL.

Simple in form, but viewed by a gathering of relatives and friends that occupied every seat in the structure, the funeral services of Mrs. William A. Westphal, the victim of Sunday night's fatal automobile accident, were held in the Church of the Holy Cross yesterday afternoon. Rev. W. Montgomery Downey, of Merrick, L. I., the former rector, was in charge and conducted every detail as Mrs. Westphal had requested just previous to her death.

The full church choir was in attendance and rendered "There Is a Blessed Home" and "Peace, Perfect Peace." In addition "Lead Kindly Light" was contributed by the quartette from the choir of Grace church, of which Miss Ada Westphal is a member. It was composed of Miss Cornelia Miller, Miss Ada Clark, Fred Tallamy and Bertram F. Tallamy. Mrs. Westphal was a member of Holy Cross choir, and the seat that it was her custom to occupy was draped in greens and flowers, with a lily setting them off. Mrs. Odell presided as accompanist.

The floral tributes were very profuse and comprised many large set pieces. Among them were emblems from the altar committee and the Women's Guild of Holy Cross church, of which Mrs. Westphal was a member at the time of her death, and Iona Council, No. 14, D. of P.

Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, the service at the grave being in strict keeping with the Episcopalian form. The casket was borne by Frederick J. Pope, Frederick Huff, Frank Platts, Andrew J. Stiglitz, Charles L. Holstein and C. D. Taylor.

"PROF" GOLF TOURNEYS BECOMING POPULAR

BENEFICIAL RESULT OF CONTEST AT VAN CORTLAND PARK.

There is no doubt but that the open professional golf tournament recently held over the Van Cortland Park public links has resulted beneficially to the game in several ways. Charles Kirchner, of this city, who was responsible for this event, states that it has started a fresh movement toward public links in other cities. Some time ago plans were submitted for a public course at Newark, while up at Syracuse it has been definitely decided to go ahead along similar lines.

Those who had charge of the Van Cortland tournament feel so encouraged that they have determined to make it an annual affair. A meeting will be held soon, when a definite organization of "pros" will be effected. William Freeland, of New York, who has long championed the cause of golf, has been elected to membership and he will assist Mr. Kirchner in forming a permanent organization.

Others who are prominent in the organization are Marty O'Loughlin, of the Plainfield Country Club, and David Patrick, of the Westfield Golf Club. O'Loughlin, it will be remembered, caused a sensation at the recent tournament of "pros" by leading the entire field in the opening play. He has a bright future before him in golf and will undoubtedly enter the open tournament to be held this season under the auspices of the United States Golf Association.

WALTER VAN WINKLE BURIED.

Four Uncles Carry the Casket to Grave at Hillside.

At the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Winkle, of West Fourth street, funeral services were held yesterday afternoon over the body of Walter Van Winkle, who died soon after being taken ill at Asbury Park. They were in charge of Rev. A. E. Finn, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, and were attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. The floral tributes included a wreath from the young man's class in the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday School.

Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, those who acted as pall bearers being Dudley Miller, Jeremiah, Nelson and Daniel Van Winkle, all uncles of the departed.

LAWYER AND JUDGE CLASH

Lively Little Tilt Between Recorder Doud and S. S. Swackhammer.

"THE BLACK MAN."

Counsellor Accuses Court of Assuming Role of Prosecutor—Complaint Dismissed After the Exchange of Amenities.

Charles Barry was arraigned before Recorder Doud in the borough court last night, charged with violating the ordinance that forbids the tethering of cows in the street. Counsellor S. S. Swackhamer defended him. The lawyer succeeded in tearing large holes in the complaint and secured a dismissal.

The charge against Barry was not generally known, and there were no reporters present at the hearing. The regular hangers-on at borough police hearings were there, however, and lurid tales of lively clashes between the Recorder and the Counsellor were in general circulation over the brook after the trial.

Mr. Swackhamer recounted the story of the occurrence this morning:

"I have only this to say: When my motion to discharge my client for lack of evidence to convict him was met by the Recorder with the sneers, 'You come here with your little legal knowledge and tell me what to do,' 'I know you are a great constitutional lawyer that always sees some contemptible little technicality to creep out of,' 'You come into this court and pick up a paper (imitating) and tell me it is no good,' 'Have you got your Little Black Men with you?' etc., I let these personalities pass without notice. But when he declared that if he discharged my client he would get up a dozen other charges and have papers drawn that would hold him and would make him pay dear for his discharge, and that he would give me a chance to defend him, if that was what I wanted to do, then I felt it my duty to call upon the citizens present in court to witness the threats the Recorder had made, and to tell him that he was assuming the role of a prosecutor rather than that of a magistrate, and that it would be well for him to consider the attitude he had assumed.

"I did not mind his abuse and his insults myself," continued Mr. Swackhamer, "but when he made those threats against my client I thought it was time to protest." He had risen from his chair and stood over the rail, thumping with his fist, and I went up to him—close up to him.

"'You sit down,' I said, 'and listen to me.'"

"'You sit down,' I said, 'your place is on that bench, and you will get back there and listen to what I have to say.'

"He sat down.

"'Now you listen to this,' I said. 'You have gone outside your place as judge and have pre-empted the role of prosecutor. Now I call on everybody in this court room to witness and mark well what you have just said. Now you can do as you see fit; I have witneses to your statements.'

"'Do you say that I must dismiss this complaint?' he asked.

"'You can do as you see fit,' I replied, and left the court room.'

"'I do not want to figure in any personal controversy,' said Mr. Swackhamer, and the Recorder's references to me I overlook entirely, but I will protect my client from any atempt to persecute him. If the Recorder should act on another complaint, as he threatened, and impose any sentence on Mr. Barry, I believe that the proceedings would be upset by the higher court in very short order. He has publicly prejudged Mr. Barry, and the courts will not allow that sort of thing. In other words a magistrate is not allowed to sit on a case he has prejudged."

A reporter endeavored to locate Recorder Doud this morning to obtain his version of the affair, but found that he is out of town. At the Recorder's home it was said that Mr. Doud was at either Cranford or Westfield and would not be back until late this afternoon.

LITERARY.

If you want to know what newspaper work in New York is like, read "The Mill of the Tin Gods," by David Gray, in the August issue of Appleton's Booklovers Magazine. A former newspaper man says that it is the truest picture of the life he has ever read. The following is an extract:

"Sick?" inquired Livingstone.

Holden nodded. "And hungry," he said slowly.

Livingstone put down his coffee cup.

"Do you mean that?" he asked.

"Yes," said Holden. "It isn't very uncommon. You see there is a curious fact about the personnels of the newspaper business. There is hardly a New York newspaper man in New York. We've all come here from the country without friends or money and we've nearly all had experiences. Unknown men can't get regular places. They write special stories and sometimes they sell them. My city editor, who is one of the best newspaper men in town, walked the round of the offices for three months before he got a fifteen-dollar-a-week job, and he was a man who knew the business when he came here. In time the strongest or the luckiest get into the mill and the rest disappear."

BETWEEN HUSBAND AND WIFE.

To my mind, almost the greatest requisite to marital happiness are frankness and a strong sense of justice, for they touch almost every phase of the dual life, writes a contributor to Good Housekeeping. Where both husband and wife possess a strong individuality it is unreasonable to expect that there shall be no friction, but if there be frankness and a willingness to look fairly at both sides of the subject, matters cannot well go far wrong. To be really "just" implies that one shall be just in thought as well as in action.

From the beginning of my married life I made up my mind never to allow myself to brood over any grievance, but after my resentment had subsided, to ask myself honestly if it were a real grievance or injustice, and if so, to go to my husband and in a calm manner point it out, and allow him a chance to explain or justify his words or actions. To approach a man in a spirit of anger or bitterness seldom has any effect except to increase the existing trouble. On the other hand, the right sort of man cannot but feel increased respect for a wife who refusing to allow herself to harbor unkind and perhaps unjust thoughts toward him, causes him to feel that, in her opinion, his errors in his treatment of her result from a lack of knowledge of her woman's nature rathen than her woman's nature rather than Next Council Meeting.

The next meeting of the Common Council will be held Monday night, August 7. Several matters of more or less importance will be considered at that time, including the presentation of the reports from the sewer commissioners and those having charge of assessing benefits and damages for the macadamizing of certain streets provided for in an ordinance adopted by the Common Council.

Begin Handsome House.

Ground was broken yesterday for the handsome residence to be erected by J. D. Phillips, of South avenue, on a spacious lot on Denmark road. The house is to be one of the handsomest in the city, two story and attic, half shingle, and surrounded by a large lawn. It will be completed by December, and the Phillipses will move in immediately. The architect is F. L. Lancaster.

The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hopatcong is the gem of places. Why Not Try It Here?

The recall system, either in the hands of the people direct or entrusted to the Governor of the State or the Mayor of each city, seems to be a powerful incentive to conscientious, aggressive official action. Los Angeles does not seem to want to part with it, and Indiana has found it marvelously effectual in the enforcement of the laws. Why not try it in New Jersey?—Newark News.

The game at Westfield this afternoon will be called at 4 o'clock.

Jack Rothfuss has been elected captain of the Lancaster, Tri-State League club.

Cheer long and loud for the Plainfield team and encourage them to win the third contest.

Managers Daab and Denman will have plenty of oil on hand to quiet the troubled waters today.

Manager Denman cannot find the lucky rabbit's foot that brought him so many victories last year.

Have you noticed how "Pete" Cregan has been hitting the ball? He certainly does do his share.

"Billy" Beck says that he is confident that he can beat Westfield and is only too anxious to do the trick.

"Jack" O'Neill declares that he has not seen such rivalry or excitement since the old days of the Orange A. C.

Barring the errors made by the locals in last Saturday's game, Beck should have won his game in nine innings.

"Happy" Kiernan played eleven innings without getting a hit, but in the twelfth, just when it was needed, he lined out a pretty drive for a single.

Those who intend to witness the Plainfield-Westfield game today are advised to confine themselves to legitimate rooting and cut out the personalities.

A commendable feature of a ball game is the absence of questionable tactics in play. The use of these brings a team into disrepute. The Morristown-Chatham team has lost its good reputation because of this.

Commencing at 2 o'clock this afternoon and continuing until 3 o'clock the Public Service Corporation will run extra trolley cars, two every fifteen minutes, to Recreation Park, Westfield, returning right after the game.

By the way, O'Neill claims the honor of having brought out "Willie" Deegan as a pitcher. They were both brought up in the same place and accidentally Jack discovered that Deegan possessed all of the curves with good control.

GOLF.

There will be the weekly competitions at the Plainfield Country Club and Park Golf Club, today.

Robert Abbott's performance at Southampton, L. I., when he returned the low score of 78, shows that he is steadily improving in his game.

In the weekly play for the Gaston cup at the Plainfield Country Club on Thursday, there were two contestants, Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, who returned a score of 84, plus 2—86, and won the first three points, and Miss Daisy Elsberg, who posted a score of 106, 14—92, taking two points.

Didn't See So Much of Her.

"I haven't been seeing so much of you this year as I did last."

"Trust a man to notice the difference every time."

"What difference? I don't understand."

"Papa said if I wore such a small bathing suit this year he would take me home."—Houston Post.

Skeptical.

Farmer Ryetop—Thar be a lot of this here "tainted money" going around these days.

Farmer Wheatly—I don't believe it. To make sure I bit every silver dollar I got for my crop of wheat, an' I ain't found one with a taint yet.—Chicago News.

SECOND REGIMENT PRACTICE PERCENTAGES

ONLY TWO COMPANIES SHOW UP 65 PER CENT.

Brigadier-General Bird W. Spencer, inspector-general of rifle practice, has sent to Captain John M. Rogers, adjutant of the Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., the percentage of men in each company in the regiment who have participated in rifle practice on the State range at Sea Girt this summer. Up to date only two companies have made a showing of sixty-five per cent. or better, which is the requirement of the State military authorities.

Accompanying the report was a letter calling attention to the small percentages and stating that an attempt should be made by each company to meet the standard on the days allotted to the regiment for practice. The percentages of the companies follow:

Company A, strength 57, number on range 25, percentage 43 49-57; Company B, strength 71, number on range 43, percentage 60 40-71; Company C, strength 57, number on range, 25, percentage 43 49-57; Company D, strength 60, number on range 26, percentage 43 1-3; Company E, strength 55, number on range 28, percentage 50 10-11; Company F, strength 56, number on range 37, percentage 66 1-4; Company G, strength 56, number on range, 18, percentage 32 1-7; Company H, strength, 61, number on range 29, percentage 47 33-61; Company I, strength 60, number on range 37, percentage 56 2-33; Company K, strength 61, number on range 39, percentage 63 57-61; Company L, strength 64, number on range 43, percentage 67 3-16; Company M, strength 56, number on range 17, percentage 30 5-14.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEAD.

Rich Financier First Reader of New York Congregation.

A rich retired New York business man has been chosen first reader in the new Christian Science church at Ninety-sixth street and Central Park West, New York, the finest edifice of all in Mrs. Eddy's cult. He is Edwin T. Hatfield, who has been a student in the New York Christian Institute under Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson.

His assistant, or second reader, will be Miss Sibyl Huse, daughter of the late Colonel Caleb Huse, of West Point. Miss Huse has been a sister pupil of her elderly superior in the Christian Science chool.

According to the by-laws of the sect new readers are elected for each congregation every three years. Those retiring this year are Miss Laura C. Lyman, first reader, and Steuart C. Rowbotham, second reader.

Mr. Hatfield is the son of a noted New York clergyman, who officiated some twenty-three years at the Seventh Presbyterian church at Broome and Ridge streets, New York, and afterward at the North Presbyterian church, at Ninth avenue and Thirty-first street, that city.

Mr. Hatfield's business life commenced in the office of his uncle, Moses Taylor, who was one of the ablest and most respected merchants of his day. He was incidentally associated with Cyrus W. Field in financing the laying of the first Atlantic cable.

Later in life Mr. Hatfield became president of the Lackawanna Iron & Coal Company, of Scranton, Pa. He has long since, however, retired from active commercial business.

FEAR OF PUBLICITY CHECKS CORPORATION CORRUPTION DECLARES THIS EVIDENCE

New York, July 28.—Cardinal Gibbons, who is spending his vacation at Southampton, L. I., has issued a statement concerning commercial corruption which is likely to attract much attention.

"Corporation corruption is a fixed evil that we must reckon with just as long as the present condition of society exists in this country," said the cardinal. "Whenever there is an amalgamation of great capital, or a large collection of men interested in one money making concern, there is sure to be corruption. It is not a new story. It is a story as old as the world's history. The only reason that it comes so much to the fore at present is that the methods of its detection are daily growing stronger.

"Corruption has always existed. Corruption, I am afraid, will always exist as long as human nature yields to the attributes that lead to temptation.

"The bright spot in the whole swamp of the present moral degradation is the fact that the degradation is made known. Corruption cannot exist nowadays without being discovered after a while. The greater the evil the greater the possibility of remedy. And that possibility of remedy has now become such an assured fact that it counterbalances, almost, the evil which the present condition of money madness creates

"The fear, the dread of exposure, is the counterbalancing element, and that dread, that horror of having a name once respected dragged down is due to the efforts of the press.

"It may not be good theology, it may not be good ethics, but it is certainly a good moral element that the fear, the dread of exposure in the public press keeps many a man sticking close to the path of rectitude, who otherwise would stray off into the byways of personal graft."

TELLS W. C. T. U. GIRLS SHOULDN'T MARRY MEN TO WHOM THEY WILL NOT RENDER OBEDIENCE

Ocean Grove, July 28.—"Obedience to Husbands" is the more or less out-of-date lesson which Mrs. A. M. Hammer has sought to instill into the State convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

"I believe this is a lesson we should teach our daughters," she said. "I know that you will smile at such old fashioned notions, particularly when you look at the suffrage colors still decorating this platform. But I believe if your good, pure daughter marries a man equally good there will be no need to interview the minister beforehand to request him to leave the word 'obey' out of the marriage service.

"I lived with my husband thirty-three years and I never was afraid to obey him in anything he asked me to do. When we couldn't agree we prayed over the matter—and he always got converted and told me to do just as I liked."

A general laugh, in which the men present took a leading part, greeted the speaker's effective climax.

"But I don't wonder some of the girls of today are afraid to promise to obey the men they marry," she continued. "Anybody would be afraid to obey them. But I would advise you, my sisters, instead of begging the minister to leave out the word 'obey,' to ask him to put some hitch in the service so the girl can't get married at all."

MOTHERS USE A STORE'S CROCKERY TO SETTLE FIGHT AMONG CHILDREN

Mrs. Benjamin Watkins, of 613 South Warren street, Trenton, made a complaint at the Second district police station in that city last night, before Judge Rees, against Bessie Greenberg, 622 South Warren street; Yetta Parker, 617 South Warren, and Kate Levy, 568 South Warren, charging them with atrocious assault and battery.

Mrs. Watkins claims that one of her children was hit by a stone and rotten apples thrown by the children of the other three women and that yesterday morning she went to the crockery store kept by Yetta Parker to inquire into the cause of the trouble. When she entered the store she found that both Bessie Greenberg and Kate Levy were there and the four engaged in a battle of words disputing the rights of their proteges, which ended in a free for all scrap. Pitchers and plates were scattered throughout the store. Mrs. Watkins says she was hit on the head by a plate and knocked insensible. A gash was cut in her scalp and a finger was broken. This put an end to the fight and Mrs. Watkins went home.

TOBACCO KING DUKE IMPROVING HIS ESTATE

NINE-ACRE LAKE IS TO COST $50,000.

The latest big undertaking on the estate of J. B. Duke, at Raritan, is the big nine-acre lake, which was begun last week. The lake is to be about ten feet deep, and the excavation is being made directly in front of Mr. Duke's residence.

The contractors are doing the work in the most modern manner. The excavation is being made with a gigantic steam shovel, which digs the hole and loads the dirt on cars at the rate of twenty-seven yards in seven minutes.

The steam shovel is worked by a half dozen men, and the dirt is dumped on three yard cars, that run on a temporary railroad alongside the excavation. Nine of these cars are loaded in just seven minutes and then, with a small locomotive, are rushed away to the place where the dirt is dumped. Not a horse is used on the job and the contractors at this rate expect to finish the job in about eight months. The cost for the excavation alone will exceed $50,000.

The intention of Mr. Duke is to have the lake directly in front of his new mansion, which will be built next year, on a knoll overlooking the lake from the south side.

Taken at His Word.

"Mr. Gruff," began Borem, "I don't want to disturb you——"

"Very considerate of you to come into my office just to tell me that," replied the busy merchant; "I appreciate it, sir. Good day!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Where He Wins.

"I didn't know Bumps was such a linguist. Why, he actually speaks Russian!"

"No, he doesn't. He just has the nerve to pronounce all the Russian names he reads without stumbling, and nobody has the nerve to correct him."—Detroit Free Press.

Ambiguous.

Mabel—Jimmy Rownder proposed last night.

Mamma—That young wretch? Well, I hope you sat down on him good and hard.

Mabel—I did. And he'll never propose to another girl as long as he lives.—Cleveland Leader.

STATE BUILDERS TWO YEARS OLD

THE ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED TODAY AT MORRISTOWN.

For some years prior to 1903, several master builders felt that a step in the right direction would be taken if a State association could be formed on equitable lines, in which each individual association would be represented. In the spring of 1903 Elizabeth took the initiative by asking for a conference to be held in Newark, and in May of that year a meeting was held, at which delegates from 27 associations were present. Temporary officers were elected, a committee on constitution and by-laws was appointed, and at the next meeting, July 1, 1903, the report of the committee on constitution and by-laws was accepted and adopted.

James C. McGuire, of Newark, was elected as first vice president; a vice president from each county was elected, together with a permanent secretary and treasurer.

At that meeting of the State association there were 539 members from 27 associations in ten localities of seven counties. Since then conventions have been held quarterly, and a year ago the association celebrated its first anniversary at a meeting at Long Branch. The Long Branch association rose to the occasion by inviting the visiting delegates to partake of a splendid clambake, with all its "fixins," served and enjoyed on the shore of the Shrewsbury at Pleasure Bay. Since then, Elizabeth, Montclair and Orange have done the honors, and today the second anniversary will be celebrated at Morristown.

The association has grown steadily and is to include every county of the State, and every association in the county. It now has over 1,300 members from 39 associations of 17 localities in eight counties, and applications are expected daily from several more.

Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Schomp, of West Front street, have been visiting Arthur VanPelt, of Millstone.

Mrs. Huff and son, William Huff, of West End avenue, returned home yesterday from a vacation spent in the country.

Plainfield, N. J., July 29, 1905.

There is no truth in the report that Congressman Fowler took a coal oil stove with him just to warm up a bit at the Republican outing today.

Commenting on today's game between Plainfield and Westfield, a paper in the latter town said yesterday, "Tomorrow night it will be another story." Right you are, but the result will be the same.

Elizabeth is acting altogether too generous as to the division of the nominations. Just to think of it, she asks for nothing, but will take an assemblymanship if the rest of the county insists on it.

After seeing the picture of the choice of the Asbury Park carnival committee for the baby parade queen we are led to the conclusion that the seashore people made a serious mistake in not visiting Plainfield before making a selection.

To those who wish to help the poor and sick little ones, we suggest that they send a contribution to either the Netherwood Fresh Air Home or the King's Daughters Baby Camp. Both are worthy institutions relying on the charity of Plainfielders. Help them along.

The Westfield Standard argues that the Jersey Central officials should name one of its new boats for that town, declaring that no place on the line has proven a better advertisement for the road. The editor overlooks the fact that the railroad has ordered ferry boats and not tubs.

The Newark News notes that the Hightstown man who favors the enactment of a law restraining newspapers from criticising politicians is a former officeholder. It remarks that therein is to be found the reason for his suggestion. Every political machine in the land would endorse the Hightstown citizen's scheme, but, then, the people have something to say, you know.

There was a time when the approved method of selling real estate was to clap a sign-board on the property and wait for a purchaser to happen along. The modern method is to carry the property to possible purchasers by comprehensively describing it in a first class newspaper. Many investors hesitate to put money into real estate because they believe that in time of need converting property into cash might prove a slow process, That notion dates from the period when newspaper advertising was seldom resorted to for the sale of houses and land.—Ex.

It is reported that among the attractions booked for the new theatre during the coming winter will be such shows as "Dealers in White Women," "In Gay New York," and "Fast Life in New York." If the managers want to make their undertaking a failure these are the kind of plays to bring here. Similar productions in Newark last season raised a storm of protest from the newspapers voicing the sentiment of the decent people. Every good citizen wants to see a success made of the local playhouse, but surely Plainfield will not stand for plays of the type mentioned.

Andrews Case Up Today.

Champe S. Andrews, a lawyer, charged with inducing Mrs. John S. Strosnider to deed over to a clerk in his office her house in Flatbush, in which she had an equity of $9,000, will have a hearing today before Judge Olmstead, of Special Sessions Court, in New York, sitting as a magistrate. Andrews was counsel for Dr. John A. Harris, of 112 Riverside Drive, who said he had been swindled out of $12,500 by Strosnider and George McKee.

Philadelphian to Preach.

PLAINFIELDERS HAVE THE TELEPHONE HABIT

SWITCHBOARD AT THE LOCAL OFFICE MUST AGAIN BE ENLARGED.

Manager C. W. Runyon, of the local office of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, is getting ready to install another section to the switchboard at the 'phone exchange on Park avenue. With this improvement it will be possible for the company to handle a large increase in business. For its class there is just one place in the State that exceeds the number of subscribers in Plainfield, and that is Montclair. The Essex county town has a few more subscribers than this city, but Manager Runyon does not propose that this shall continue. He is determined to pass the Montclair number before cold weather.

There are now about 1,500 subscribers here and there is a steady increase. Just now the company is behind in its work of installing 'phones already ordered, but Mr. Runyon hopes to catch up with this work in a few weeks.

One reason why Montclair has the advantage of Plainfield is that it covers a larger territory, comprising Upper Montclair and other nearby places and the population in this section is in some cases larger than here. Not only in Plainfield, but all along the line of the New Jersey Central there is noted an increase. The reduced rates now charged by the company has made it possible for lots of persons to afford 'phones, who at one time thought they were beyond their means, and besides they are now considered almost a necessity.

In preparation for the increased business the company is now instructing a number of young women how to operate so that when the new section to the switchboard is installed they will be prepared to go to work.

CRANFORDITES HAPPY.

Jersey Central to Name a New Boat After the Town.

Cranford, July 29.—The Central Railroad of New Jersey has decided to name one of its new ferryboats "Cranford," and there is to be a big time at Wilmington, Del., about the middle of September when the boat bearing the name of this town is to be launched.

A week or ten days ago a petition was circulated by prominent officials of the town and citizens which immediately got the signatures of the commuters and townspeople. The petition requested the railroad to name one of the new boats "Cranford," and Max O. Deering, who obtained an audience with the president of the railroad yesterday, returned last night and informed the township committee that he had been assured of the success of the petition.

Cranford is justly delighted over the fact that one of the important boats of the North River will carry its name. Just what arrangements are to be made for the launching is not yet definitely known, but it has been hinted that a prominent society woman of the town is to christen the boat and that Cranford will be represented by town officials and other invited guests.

Her Ninety-Second Birthday.

Glen Gardner, July 29.—Mrs. Susan McBirth, the oldest person living in this village, celebrated her ninety-second birthday Thursday, surrounded by a large number of relatives and friends. Among those present from a distance were the following children: John McBirth, of Jersey City; Mrs. L. C. Shepherd, of Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. David Carling, of Bloomsbury; Mrs. John Eveland and daughter, of Hampton Junction, and Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Carling. Mrs. McBirth resides alone, does all her own housework and is as active and spry as most women at sixty. She has always resided in Lebanon township. She was born on what is now known as Mt. Kipp, the site of the State Tuberculosis Sanitarium. She has six children living, also thirteen grandchildren and twenty-three great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

A Call-Down from Camden.

The effort of the Democratic opponents of Senator John Kean to get up a faction fight in Union county over the State senatorship seems to have met with no approbation anywhere. In fact, the pretty story that Congressman Fowler's friends were back of the move, with a view to pitting him against Senator Kean in 1910, has been utterly spoiled by Mr. Fowler, who states that he is in better business just now than practical politics and will be for some time to come. Democratic editors and would-be leaders ought to pay more attention to their own party and endeavor to put it on its feet so as to give the Republicans something to fight.—Camden Courier.

To Name Battleship Kansas.

The United States battleship Kansas, to be launched at the yards of the New York Shipbuilding Company, at Camden, on August 12, will be the largest battleship that has ever glided into the Delaware River, and will be christened by Miss Anna Hoch, daughter of Governor Hoch, of Kansas. Miss Hoch is looked upon by many politicians of her State as one of the strongest Gubernatorial influences.

WIDOW LEFT $300,000,000.

So Says the Adopted Son of Mrs. Brick.

Instead of being a well-to-do widow, living quietly in Brooklyn, the head of a secret syndicate that had Wall street under absolute control; instead of leaving a fortune of $300,000, a fortune of $300,000,000, property all over the world. That was the assertion made yesterday of the late Mrs. Julia E. Brick by Henderson Benedict, nephew and adopted son. The declaration was made simultaneously with Mr. Benedict's announcement that he was about to bring suit to set aside the will and to take other legal proceedings that will bring out the whole truth.

Mrs. Julia E. Brick was the widow of Joseph K. Brick, a New York business man, who died in 1867, leaving her well-to-do, the most of her property being in real estate, which increased in value. Mrs. Brick lived quietly and simply, and at her home lived young Benedict, whom she had taken to raise.

When she died two years ago, she left a will in which a legacy of $7,000 was bequeathed to Benedict. There was also a clause of revocation for any legatee that might contest the will. The Long Island Loan and Trust Company became executor, and when young Benedict instituted a contest over the will and lost it, the company regarded the legacy as forfeited and settled the estate according to the terms of the instrument.

Hoch Didn't Hang.

Chicago, July 29.—Johann Hoch, a confessed bigamist, sentenced to hang yesterday for the murder by poison of one of his wives, Mrs. Marie Walcker Hoch, was reprieved until August 25 by Governor Deneen, because friends of the condemned man came to the rescue at the eleventh hour, subscribed the $1,100 necessary to make the transcript of the case for an appeal to the Supreme Court and so advised the Governor by telephone at Springfield.

Miss Ella Coddington, of Grove street, is visiting friends in Harrisburg, Pa.

Apgar Left All to Widow.

All of his property "of whatever kind, real or personal," goes to the widow of Louis J. Apgar, the millionaire society man of Jersey City, who ended his life by putting a bullet into his brain, supposedly because of the exposures of a divorce suit in which he was named as co-respondent. Apgar committed suicide in his home, 94 Sip avenue, the morning after a decree of divorce was granted to George Morehouse Meyers. Apgar's will was probated yesterday before Deputy Surrogate John E. Moody, in Jersey City. It was drawn on April 7, 1894. At Mrs. Apgar's death, "whatever remains" is to be divided among their children, "share and share alike." No inventory accompanies the will. The property includes real estate in Manhattan valued at $1,000,000. The widow and Mahlon Apgar, the only son, are designated as executrix and executor.

Bonfire Burns Baby Girl.

Elizabeth, July 29.—While playing around a bonfire yesterday afternoon with some companions, Jennie Van Pelt, aged four, was badly burned by her clothing catching fire. Her playmates became frightened and ran away, leaving the child to her fate. Her screams were heard by some women living nearby, who went to her rescue, and probably saved her life. At the General Hospital, where she was taken, it was thought the little victim would recover. Her parents live at 64 Little Smith street, Elizabethport.

Gift to Eagles' Head.

Dennis J. Burke, past worthy president of Elizabeth Aerie, No. 667, Fraternal Order of Eagles, of Elizabeth, was Thursday night presented with a very fine medal by the members of the local order. The presentation was made by Colonel D. F. Collins, a member of the Eagles. Incidental with the giving of the memorial there was a barbecue of the good old-time kind, plenty of good things to eat and drink, and songs and merrymaking that made the hours from 8 to 12 glide away rapidly.

PRESIDENT VISITS CRIPPLES.

Chief Magistrate of Nation at Summer Home for Children.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt visited Coney Island yesterday, and Coney Island did not have time to wake up and howl a welcome before he was off again.

This was because he came in at the back door down at Sea Gate, unheralded and unguarded by detectives, and departed the same way.

But a hundred or more weak, ailing children at Sea Breeze, the summer home of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, were made glad by his presence, and were talking about the marvel of it until they were put to bed last night.

The distinguished visitors came from Oyster Bay on the steam yacht Sylph, which tied up at the pier of the Atlantic Yacht Club.

As the President and Mrs. Roosevelt landed they were met by R. Fulton Cutting, President of the association, and Jacob A. Riis, who conducted them to the clubhouse.

Sued for Alimony.

Suit has been brought in the Court of Chancery by Mrs. Harriet Britton, of New Brunswick, against Israel Britton, her husband, to secure alimony and have counsel fees allowed her pending the suit. Mr. Britton is the well known carpenter and he and his wife until recently have resided at 212 Townsend street. Mrs. Britton declares in the bill which she has filed in the Chancery Court that her husband has treated her cruelly and failed to maintain her. She alleges that his actions toward her have been such that she has been obliged to leave him. She therefore prays that the court may direct that her husband shall contribute toward her maintenance and support.

K. T. Field Day.

More than fifty members of Trinity Commandery, Knights Templar, have signified their intention to attend the annual field day of Knights Templar of New Jersey, which is to be held October 12 at Atlantic City. Arrangements will be made later for a hotel at Atlantic City for headquarters for the local delegation. Local members of the Mystic Shrine are talking of the meeting of the Imperial conclave, which is to be held May 11, 1906, at Los Angeles, and a large delegation from here will attend. The round trip fare for Shriners to Los Angeles will not exceed $75.

STATE CAMP CLOSES AT SEA GIRT TODAY

FIFTH REGIMENT WILL LEAVE THIS MORNING—FIRST BRIGADE OUT.

The State encampment at Sea Girt will close this morning, when the Fifth regiment will break camp. This year the First brigade, Brigadier General Campbell commanding, held its camp at the shore. The First, Fourth and Fifth regiments of infantry, the First troop, Signal corps and Battery A comprise the brigade. Each regiment with one of the smaller outfits has had a week at the shore.

Next year the Second brigade will go to camp. The two brigades go in alternate years.

Governor Stokes and his staff have spent most of their time during the three weeks at the camp.

Although the State soldiers will leave today Sea Girt will not be deserted.

Many of the State's soldiers have yet to shoot on the rifle ranges and the United States army, navy and marine corps will also be on the ranges.

The last week in August and the first week in September will be big weeks at Sea Girt, as the National rifle teams compete. Every state in the union will be represented and Canada will probably have a team.

In all there will be about 200 riflemen who will camp at Sea Girt.

Governor Stokes will go to Trenton on Monday, but he will spend some of the remainder of the summer at the "Little White House" at Sea Girt.

The Fifth regiment checks were delivered by the regimental officers at Sea Girt yesterday by Major Samuel S. Armstrong, paymaster.

John A. Clifford, the architect of the New Jersey building at the World's Fair at St. Louis, was at Sea Girt yesterday morning, and with the governor and others talked over the erection of the building there. It seems to be the opinion of all of the officers that Robin Lawn is the only place on which the building can be placed, and, with the exception of Governor Stokes, all thought it should be placed facing the east. Governor Stokes thinks that the building should face north, as the present "Little White House" does. There are but few buildings along the coast, except those on the ocean front in the various resorts, that do not face either north or south, and Governor Stokes is considered right in the matter by many who were not interested in the discussion yesterday morning. If the plans talked of yesterday morning are put through the building will be placed about fifty or sixty feet to the west of Robin Knoll, so that it can still be used for band concerts and church services. Mr. Gifford and Lieutenant Colonel Lewis T. Bryant paced off the ground this morning, and it is thought that the actual work of putting the building together will be started in a few weeks.

PERTH AMBOY LEADS.

Has Largest Percentage of Increase of Any City Thus Far Reported.

Of the returns thus far made public by the Secretary of State of the census of 1905 Perth Amboy shows the highest percentage of increase.

Perth Amboy's growth shows that it has increased from 17,699 to 25,895 in five years. This is an increase of 46.30 per cent. and exceeds what was regarded as a phenomenal growth by Atlantic City, which increased from 27,838 to 37,595, or 35.04 per cent.

Between 1890 and 1900 the population of New Jersey increased 438,736, or 30.4 per cent. Twelve cities returned in the census of 1905, each having a population of more than 10,000, or an aggregate of 636,574, shows an increase of 80,805, or 14.53 per cent. Should this proportionate increase hold through the State it would be greater than that of the corresponding period of the last decade, and should it continue for the next five years would give an increase for this decade of 31.17 per cent., or 77 per cent., more than that of the last ten years.

LAST DAY AT BRIGHTON.

Season Opens at Saratoga on Monday.

This is the last day of the summer meeting at the Brighton Beach track, the racing scene changing on Monday to Saratoga. Although two rich events are carded, the Brighton Derby and the Winged Foot Handicap, the sport will be lacking in interest because Sysonby in the former race seems to be the winner, barring an accident, and George C. Bennett holds a mortgage on the latter event.

If ever a horse seemed to be a "certainty," it is Sysonby to win the Brighton Derby. In all his races he has shown both speed and stamina. He easily defeated Agile at Sheepshead Bay, and there is no reason why he should not repeat the performance. He is in perfect physical condition, and as both carry the same weight—126 pounds—he ought to gallop his rival to a standstill early in the struggle and beat him home in a romp. Agile should beat Migraine just as easily for second honors.

Harvey Morrison, of East Fifth street, will leave on Monday for a week's stay at Asbury Park.

FORESTERS TO MEET AT SHORE MONDAY

PLAINFIELD TO BE REPRESENTED AT ATLANTIC CITY CONVENTION.

The triennial session of the Supreme Court, the highest governing body of the Independent Order of Foresters, will be held at Atlantic City, beginning Monday and continuing one week. Plainfield Foresters will be in attendance.

Delegates from all parts of the world will be present. About 230 delegates comprise the Supreme Court.

The last session convened three years ago at Los Angeles, Cal.

The supreme officers, all residents of the United States, constitute the committee of arrangements. They are: High chief ranger, David T. Howell, Newark; high physician, A. J. Mitchell, Newark; high treasurer, Walter Williams, Jersey City; high counselor, Asa F. Randolph, Plainfield; high vice chief ranger, Frederick Storm, Jr., Jersey City; past chief ranger, Henry H. Lowrie, Plainfield; high secretary, F. A. MacKenzie, Elizabeth.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the reception of the delegates. An extensive programme is also being arranged for the week's stay at the city of the sea.

Local members are planning a trip to Atlantic City on Thursday, August 3, when a reception will be tendered them by the Supreme Court during the afternoon. In the evening they will attend a function, at which there will be ample entertainment provided.

The State High Court of the order in New Jersey will convene on Wednesday, September 27, at which all the local courts in the various communities will be represented.

The Independent Order of Foresters was instituted in Newark in 1874. It began with less than 400 members. It was then an assessment order, but in 1881 this plan was abandoned and the level premium system adopted.

The present membership is about 232,000. Of this number New Jersey has over 10,000. The surplus on hand is $8,850,000.

R. A. RATES APPROVED.

Justice Pitney and Judge Cutler Indorse Them After Investigation.

Loantaka Council, Royal Arcanum, of Morristown, of which Supreme Court Justice Mahlon Pitney is a member, requested the justice last month to speak before the Council on the new rates which the Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum had adopted at its session in Atlantic City in May. The justice, securing the necessary information and literature, gave a careful study to the subject and, at a largely attended meeting, made an elaborate argument, showing the necessity of the new rates, and that unless accepted by the membership the order would probably disintegrate and cease to exist in a few years' time.

He strongly urged all the members to be loyal and stand by the order and pay the cost of protection, which, by the mortality table and new rates deduced therefrom, he said, he believed absolutely necessary. At the same time he suggested to the Council that it appoint a special committee to further investigate the question and make a report at a subsequent meeting. Justice Pitney was appointed chairman of this committee and former Judge Willard W. Cutler was one of his colleagues.

TONIC BATHS REST FOR TIRED NERVES

Of all the methods tried by human animals to cool themselves when the mercury climbs skyward and humidity is pressing down the air nothing has yet been discovered to equal baths unless it is electric fans. But fans have one disadvantage, which is that, though cooling, they are not freshening, and for this one must have water, perfumed or plain.

For those who can stand it there is nothing like surf bathing, and when fighting with waves and undertow brings exhaustion so great that is takes hours to recover ocean bathing should be abandoned, and the best imitation of sea water to be had. In all druggists' shops now sea salt is to be bought, and a pound or more is used at a time, according to individual wish. It is simply dissovled, and a bath taken as ordinarily except that soap is not used. Many persons believe in washing off the salt by another fresh bath, but I do not. Allowed to dry into the skin, which is softly patted with a bath towel, the salt is invigorating and a distinct tonic. An imitation sea salt bath is made by mixing a pound of sulphate of soda, one-quarter of a pound of chloride of lime and one-quarter of a pound of chloride of magnesia. This is dissolved in a gallon of hot water and then poured into the bath.

Temperature Varies.

Whether the person is to take a hot or cold bath must many times be decided by the individual. I have known persons who could sit in a tub of cold water for three-quarters of an hour without feeling any ill effects. The temperature of the body is, of course, greatly lowered by this, which is a method few should try. Other persons can stand a cold shower and feel invigorated without being warmed. Those of abundant vitality will be made warm by such a bath, for the reaction is very slight, as with some persons not over strong, a cold shower in summer will cool without exhausting.

Hot baths are prescribed to lower temperature on the theory of the perspiration they induce bringing about relief from heat, but that is not a means that I like. Even though one may perspire profusely the body is not cooled by the body's immersion in a hot bath, and there is not the refreshment that comes from another kind. On the other hand if one is physically or nervously exhausted, and working in hot weather, a hot bath will be the best tonic, because it relaxes nerves and body. It may then be taken and followed by a cold one later, if one wishes.

A decidedly refreshing bath for this season that will act as a tonic at the end of a hard day's work is made by mixing one ounce of tincture of camphor with one-half ounce of tincture of benzoin and two ounces of cologne or bay rum. Put enough into the tub to make the water milky.

A girl who has been hurrying around town all day, or who arrives exhausted at the end of a long journey, is to be congratulated if she can get an aromatic herb bath. To do this there must be put into a gallon of warm water a half pound each of lavender, thyme and rosemary, with half an ounce of peppermint, cloves and cinnamon. The spices should be ground. This is to stand for twelve hours and then be strained. This quantity is necessary for the usual bath.

Aromatic Salt Baths.

An aromatic salt bath is one that a girl inclined to nerves and fatigue should know how to prepare. Make it by taking 200 grams of dried thyme, the same each of dried rosemary, mallows, linder and rose petals. To this add 250 grams of bicarbonate of soda. The herbs are steeped in hot water for three-quarters of an hour and the liquid is poured off. Dissolve the soda in this and add the rose leaves. Put into a bath not enough to open the pores, let it dry without wiping and then take a cool shower if desired.

Even a simpler is a gelatine bath, distinctly nourishing to the skin and soothing to the nerves. It is made of fifty grams of sulphate of potassium, 100 grams of sub-carbonate of soda and forty grams of best gelatine. Dissolve the gelatine in three pints of hot water and the other ingredients and use in a hot bath. This is excellent for a business woman worn out at the end of a day.

For a girl who has ben playing tennis or exercising in the country, there is nothing better than a benzoin bath that will tone her skin, soften and perfume it. To prepare it mix toilet vinegar and tincture of benzoin in the proportion of half as much vinegar as tincture and add to the bath until the desired perfume is attained.

Oatmeal and mallows are both most delicious for the bath and are put into bags. One of the best of these is made of one-half pound of marshmallow flowers, one-quarter of a pound of hyssop herb and four pounds of oatmeal, one of the ready to serve" variety, or the old fashioned kind boiled for fifteen minutes and then dried. Mix the ingredients and put into cheese cloth bags about four inches square. Make them half full.

These are put into the bath, soaking for a few minutes, and then rubbed on the skin. The same bag may be used twice.—Margaret Mixer.

EAT WHAT HE LIKES.

A writer in the Lancet implies that there is no excuse for ladies whose husbands complain about the monotony of the food served at their meals. A man might justly object to an eternal course of mutton and potatoes when there are so many more interesting things in the world to eat.

The Laplanders, for instance, eat dirt. The Russian peasant uses a flour made of rocks. When put to it, the poorer classes in Hungary devour earth with a relish. There are numbers of seaweeds and mosses which have a nutritive value and are eaten greedily by those smart enough to know, says an exchange.

Do not the Chinese eat birds' nests? Is not the snail known in some countries as the poor man's oyster, and in Paris is not this slimy creature regarded as a special tidbit for the gourmet? Consider also turtles and frogs' legs—really delicious. Furthermore, the Lancet goes on to assure the interested housewife that some persons have eaten coal without serious damage

It is hereby added, on deponent's own authority, that there was once a woman, not very far from Philadelphia, who craved brown, loamy earth and ate it with relish when her physician allowed her. Also, instances have been known of children making a bee-line for a cake of soap and nibbling portions of it with equanimity.

Every one knows that John the Baptist ate wild locusts, and in some quarters fried grasshoppers are still highly regarded, while those who have tried them affirm that no epicurean dainty can beat a nice, juicy mess of fried ants. Worms have died and men have eaten them, but not for love—just for variety. And it was not so long ago that some high dignitaries had a feast of horse, and enjoyed it immensely.

Arctic explorers have been known to eat their boots, and many a man has been heard threatening to eat his hat, though there is no record of his ever having carried this threat into execution.

By accident, people have eaten buttons, thimbles, nails, needles and divers curious objects. By deception, they have probably eaten glue for gelatine and cat for rabbit. By deliberate intention they have eaten sawdust; alias health foods.

In the face of this infinite variety, a woman certainly lacks resources who sets her family down to meat, fruit and vegetables day after day. If there is anything of which there is a plenty of it, it is earth and weeds, worms and snails and ants. Coal is sometimes scarce, but doubtless enough could always be found to serve up as a nice little entree. As for birds' nests, the woods are full of them. All these things are cheap, too —cheap as dirt.

The next time a weary man is confronted at his own table by a monotonous roast and potatoes and salad, he can opine, with good reason, that he is not being treated to the variety of food which the earth and the waters under the earth afford.

TRAINING OF GIRLS.

Almost before they know it, parents find that their daughters have slipped beyond their control. The spirit of insubordination is in the air, and it is fostered by current educational theories; until what with the fear that the dear child will have her "individualty" suppressed by hearing a good, round "Don't!" and what with the desire to turn all work into play, to level every Hill Difficulty, even at the expense of never reaching House Beautiful, many parents are hard put to it to force themselves to even attempt at discipline. Then some day they wake up to the fact that if their daughters are to be controlled it must be by some other hand than theirs. This be wholly their own fault. Or it may be partly the result of those subtle antagonisms of blood that sometimes arm children against parents —kin against kin—and make sympathy and confidence impossible, even in the presence of loyal love and trust. Whatever the cause, when the home does not teach the lessons of respect and obedience, the girl must learn them elsewhere or the discipline of life will find an unready and rebellious subject. Sometimes, until she goes away to school, the poor child does not know what it is to obey. Then the school, with its steadying routine, its quiet insistence upon unquestioning obedience, its unspoken demand for respect for authority and those in authority, lays its hand upon her, and almost before she knows it, she is quieted, humbled, started toward self-control.—Good Housekeeping.

Not News to Her.

"I never would have proposed to you if you hadn't roped me in," declared the irate husband.

His wife remained perfectly calm, and her smile was exasperating.

"Why, don't you suppose I know that?" she replied. "That's the reason I roped you in."—Detroit Free Press.

Notable Women

Mrs. S. A. Kidder, Railroad President

A monument to the courage, resourcefulness and public spirit of womanhood is the "crookedest railroad in California," twenty-four miles long, a narrow gauge road connecting Nevada City with Colfax. The president of this road is Mrs. S. A. Kidder, widow of its former president. From its beginning in 1876 Mrs. Kidder was identified with the road. She aided her husband in his undertakings and knew as much about them as he did. After his death in 1901 the stockholders of the road met and unanimously elected her president. The roadbed of the little traffic way was wretchedly out of repair, and in spite of not being able to carry nearly all the freight offered to it a heavy debt hung over it, and for eighteen years it had paid no dividends. President Kidder took hold of affairs energetically. She increased the carrying capacity of her road, got new cars and waked up things. She encouraged the development of the rich mines that lie along her line, the planting of great orchards, the stocking of new ranches. Now that crooked little road pays 10 per cent dividends and has no bonded debt. Mrs. Kidder herself owns a controlling interest in the stock and is not afraid to invest still further in it whenever any is for sale. All this a woman railroad president has done in four years honestly and fairly. The only crooked thing appertaining to this railway is the road itself. Mrs. Kidder's home and office are in Grass Valley. She herself buys all supplies for her road.

Frances Baker, Professional Diver.

Captain H. W. Baker of Detroit is the owner and commander of a wrecking ship which carries machinery that enables divers to descend to the bottom of a body of water and locate and bring up sunken treasure. Captain Baker has a daughter, Miss Frances, who took to her father's occupation as naturally as a duck swims.

Her first deep dive is said to have been after a diamond ring that lay in a box upon a little table in the cabin of a sunken wooden barge in Lake Huron. She got the ring and the owner of it was so pleased that he gave it to her at once. But Miss Frances has done things much more important than fishing up a ring from the deep. She located a sunken copper laden ship off Point Burwell, Lake Erie, and received a check of $5,000 as her share of the $50,000 treasure that was recovered through her sagacity and intelligence.

English Women Botanists.

The Linnaean society of London, an organization of botanists, now admits women to full membership. Great Britain has numerous distinguished women botanists, more than are to be found in America. Mrs. Farquharson is the woman who obtained for her sex the honor of membership in the Linnaean society. She herself is a distinguished botanist and microscopist. Eleven women are members of the botanists' society. One of them is the Duchess of Bedford. She is an expert in natural history as well as in botany.

Still another distinguished one of the eleven is Miss Ethel Sargent, who has made a microscopic study of vegetable cells. Miss Margaret Benson is examinex in botany for the University of London.

A Filipino Great Lady.

For hundreds of years Chinese men have been intermarrying with native women in the Philippine Islands and the children have become Christians. The result is the strangest mix of Chinese and Malay superstitions and customs and Christian religion to be found on the earth.

At Silay, island of Negros, a young American woman teacher found the great family of the province was that of Ming Lee, of Chino-Malay blood, and the head of the house was not a man, but a woman, Senora Ming Lee, eighty years old, six feet high and weighing 250 pounds. Senora Ming Lee is Chinese in dignity and in her love of sitting tailor fashion on the floor or on a table and eating fish and rice with her fingers, Malay in her light and airy dress and her habit of never wearing stockings, and devoutly religious in the matter of pictures and in her attendance at church.

MARCIA WILLIS CAMPBELL.

[Copyright, 1899, by P. Tennyson Neely.]

"Eh—eh—yes. It's not ours, I suppose you mean."

But now Amy Lawrence was beckoning, and he made a rush for the rail, then worked his way aft, hand over hand. Every movable on deck was taking a sudden slant to starboard, and the sea went hissing by almost on level with the deck as next she spoke. "Surely a soldier needs both arms in battle, and you— Oh, certainly, Mr. Shafto, take that chair," she added. Armstrong glanced up suddenly.

"Oh! that you, Shafto? Yes; take it by all means."

Anything, thought he, rather than that they should come here. The young Briton stepped easily past between them and the rail—behind there was no room—and, swinging the long, awkwardly modeled fabric to his broad shoulder, started back just as a huge wave heaved suddenly under the counter, heeled the steamer far over to port, threw him off his balance, and, his foot catching at the bottom of her chair, hurled him, load and all, straight at Amy's reclining form. One instant, and even her uplifted hands could not have saved her face; but in that instant Armstrong had darted in, caught the stumbling Briton on one arm, and the full force of the shooting chair crushing upon the other, already pierced by Filipino lead.

When, a moment later, she emerged safe and unscratched, from the confused heap of men and furniture, it was to cut off instantly the stutter and stammer of poor Shafto's apologies, to bid him go instantly for the ship's doctor, and, with face the color of death, to turn quickly to Armstrong. The blow had burst open the half-healed wound, and the blood was streaming to the deck.

Both liner and transport turned back without Stanley Armstrong. Dorie and Sedgwick sailed unheeded, for the highest surgical authority of the department of California had remanded him to quarters at the Palace and forbidden his return to duty with an unhealed wound. He was sitting up again, somewhat pallid and not too strong, but with every promise, said the "medico," of complete recovery within two months. But not a month would Armstrong wait. The Puebla was to start within the week, and he had made up his mind. "Go," said he, "I must."

They had been sitting about him, the night this opinion was announced, in the parlor of the suite of rooms the Primes had taken. Billy Gray had gone with his father to the club, Shafto had been hanging about in the agonies of an Englishman's first love. Gov disappeared a moment and came back with tickets for the Columbia, bidding Mildred get her hat and gloves at once, and whispering to Shafto that he had a seat for him. As the little mantel clock struck eight Amy Lawrence, lifting up her eyes from the book she was trying hard to believe she meant to read, saw that Armstrong was rising from his easy chair, and, springing to his side, laying her white hand on his arm, she faltered: "Oh, please! You know the stipulation was that you were not to stir."

But then her heart began to flutter uncontrollably. The blood went surging to her brows, for all of a sudden, as through impulse irresistible, her hand was seized in his—in both of his, in fact—and the deep voice that had pleaded at her behest for the cause of Billy Gray was now, in impetuous flow of words that fell upon her ears like some strain of thrilling music, pleading at last his own. Ever since that day in the radiant sunshine of the park she had learned to look up to him as a tower of strength, a man of mark among his fellows, a man to be honored and obeyed. Ever since that night at the Palace, when she saw his glowing eyes fixed intently upon her, and knew that he was following her every move, she had begun to realize the depth of his interest in her. Ever since that day when the China slipped from her moorings, with Witchie Garrison singling him out for lavish farewell favors, she had wondered why it so annoyed and stung her. Ever since the day she read the list of killed and wounded in the first fierce battling with the "insurrectos" she knew it was the sight of his name, not Billy Gray's, that made her for the moment faint and dizzy and taught her the need of greater self-control. Ever since that moonlit night upon the Marsdens' lanai, when her heart leaped at the sudden sound of his voice, she had realized what his coming meant to her, and ever since that breezy day upon the broad Pacific, with the sailors' song of Land, ho! ringing from the bows, and he, her wounded soldier, had sprung to shield her from the crash of Shafto's hapless stumble, and the deck was stained with the precious blood from that soldier's reopened wound, shed for her—for who so revered him—she had longed to hear him say the words that alone could unlock the gates of maidenly reserve and let her tell him—tell him with glad and grateful heart that the love he bore her was answered by her own. Hovering over him only one minute, her lips half parted, her eyes still veiled, her heart throbbing loud and fast, with sudden movement she threw herself upon her knees at the side of the low chair, and her burning face, ever so lightly, was buried in the dark blue sleeve above that blessed wound.

THE END.

WICKED-LOOKING WEAPON.

Description of the Mauser Pistol That Is to Be Used by United States Cavalrymen.

"The new Mauser pistol, with which our cavalry is about to be armed, is a horrible looking piece of machinery," said an esthetic sportsman the other day. "It doesn't resemble a firearm at all, but looks like some strange scientific instrument, such as one might see in a laboratory. Imagine a cigar box, japanned black, with a handle at one end and a short tube at the other, and there you have it. The box contains the mechanism and the tube spouts bullets. The cavalryman of the past was a dashing figure. He wore a steel cuirass and a helmet with nodding plumes, and while he carried a brace of pistols in his holsters, his real weapon was his trusty saber. Do you remember the splendid fellows who are galloping past Napoleon in Meissonier's '1807?' Since then science has gradually sucked all the poetry out of war and the Mauser pistol is the last work of brutal utilitarianism. The cavalryman of the future will carry nothing but a small black walnut box, and will closely resemble a surgeon going out to operate for appendicitis. When he gets to the right spot, designated by the engineer corps, he will dismount, open the box, take out his hideous Mauser machine, hook the case to one end, so as to form a shoulder rest, spray a few quarts of projectiles in a given direction and go home again to rest after the fatigue of the fray. If the calculations of the range finder are all right his bullets perforate somebody a mile away. That will be war a la mode. In some respects it is a great improvement on the old style, but it will inspire no poets. Imagine Tennyson writing the 'Charge of the Light Brigade' about a cavalry regiment armed with Mauser automatics."—Chicago Chronicle.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION

Poet Holmes' Observation.

Colonel Van Cleef's poem criticising the system of drawing juries in Mercer county has been put on ice until next fall. To be taken seriously is the worst thing that can happen to a verse writer.—Trenton State Gazette.

Saved His Money.

There is a man in Burlington who is the whole push so far as he is concerned. That is, he belongs to no lodges and don't carry any life insurance. At about the age of 21 he systematically set out to lay up cash against a rainy day and he put in bank the money most young fellows put into lodges, etc. He is now a man of 40 and don't ask any boot off of any of them.—Burlington Gazette.

The Season at Atlantic City.

The season of 1905 bids fair to rank with the most prosperous years of the past and may even outstrip them all. As evidence of this the accumulated funds in the banks are incontrovertible. This is Atlantic City money, deposited by our own business people, and a part of the wealth of the resort. In further though less compact form are the crush of visitors, the overflowing hotels and the aspect of life, gaiety and merrymaking on every hand. Altogether the business revival of 1905 is a spectacle full of encouragement for those interested in Atlantic City.—Atlantic City Review.

Population and Voters.

Passaic city's population under the new State census is 37,852, a gain of 10,075 in five years. At the last election Passaic cast 4,333 votes for the two principal candidates for Governor. That is one vote to every 8.6 population, which is probably a lower rate than that of any municipality in New Jersey. In Perth Amboy the rate is one vote to 7.2 of population. In both cities there are large foreign populations. These figures prove that it is not always safe to estimate the number of inhabitants of a city on the basis of five and one-half residents to each voter.—Trenton Times.

The Voting Machine's Cost.

The State voting machine commissioners have $50,000 in hand with which to purchase voting machines for use at the next election. This sum will, at the price hitherto paid, purchase about 100 machines, and when these are in use about one-third of all the voting districts in New Jersey will be supplied with them. They are an excellent invention, well adapted for the purpose intended, and they are competent, honest, unbiased and incorruptible; in these respects being quite different from some election officers of a too common type. The objection to these machines is their price. Nothing in their mechanical make-up or cost of manufacture warrants the demand of $500 for each machine. It is the price agreed upon by the makers of the different machines to keep up profits. The wonder is that some inventor has not evolved a perfect machine that can be made and sold at a big profit at half the money. Tremendous prices used to be charged for sewing machines, bicycles, etc., when they were first invented, and before their patents expired, but now they can be bought for very reasonable figures. It will be so with automobiles when a standard pattern is evolved; it will be so with the voting machine when the standard is reached. But it is worth its cost, even at $500, because it is honest.—Newark News.

No Trouble in Union.

Reports of a renewal of the Kean-Fowler factional warfare in the Republican party in Union county have been sent out from Democratic sources in that county and are being eagerly repeated by Democratic newspapers throughout the State. The unfortunate death of Assemblyman Edward S. Coyne necessitates not only the selection of a new man for the Assembly, but also the selection of a new chairman of the Republican County Committee. From the political point of view the latter position is the most important by far, and if there was to be any factional demonstration it would center on the selection of the new chairman. There seems to be no opposition, however, to the advancement of Vice Chairman Frank H. Smith to the position made vacant by Chairman Coyne's death, and this in itself discounts the Democratic report of a factional disturbance. From Republican sources come more truthful reports. They show that there is not a sign of factional warfare in Union county and that the indications point to the naming of a ticket this fall without a contest. The leaders have agreed upon fair consideration of geographical claims in the makeup of the ticket. The candidate for Senator will probably come from Plainfield and an Elizabeth Republican be named for the Assembly to succeed the late Mr. Coyne, while Assemblymen Tillman and Perkins are to be renominated. This is the situation as presented by a Union county Republican leader, and is extremely gratifying from a Republican point of view. The Democrats have little chance of electing a single county candidate in Union when the Republican party is united, and it seems to be in a condition of harmony at the present time, Democratic reports to the contrary notwithstanding, and being easily gauged as partisan attempts to create trouble in the opposition camp.—Camden Post Telegram.

GRANT'S WAR SASH IS WOMAN'S PRIZE

MEMOIR PRESENTED TO GENERAL RAWLINS NOW PRICELESS RELIC.

Mrs. George W. Holmes, Jr., of Barnegat Park, N. J., daughter of General John A. Rawlins, who was General Ulysses S. Grant's chief of staff and his first Secretary of War, has a priceless relic as a memoir of the late President. It is General Grant's sash, and bears an autograph inscription written in indelible ink.

This inscription reads:

"This sash, worn by me through all my battles and campaign from and including the battle of Belmont, to and including the surrender of Vicksburg, July 4, 1863, is presented to Brigadier General John A. Rawlins, my chief of staff, in evidence of my appreciation of him as an officer and friend.

"U. S. GRANT,
"Lieutenant General U. S. A."

So highly is the sash valued that the management of the World's Fair recently offered to place $50,000 on deposit as a guarantee of the relic's safe return, but the offer was refused.

FEVER SUSPECTS IN N. Y. BAY.

Quarantine Immediately Ordered Against Ports South of Savannah.

Taking precautions against the yellow fever raging in the South, Dr. A. H. Doty, of New York, Health Officer of the Port, held up two steamers arriving from Galveston. From one, the Alamo, of the Mallory line, eight persons were taken to Hoffman Island for observation. Their temperatures were found to be higher than the normal, the first symptom of yellow fever. Aboard the other, the Cid, of the Southern Pacific Steamship Company, all the passengers were found to be in perfect health and were allowed to land.

At the same time Dr. Doty declared a quarantine against all steamers arriving from points south of Savannah.

Athough he believes there would be small chance for the growth of the fever in New York city, Dr. Doty is determined to take no chances, and therefore every vessel from a Southern port will be treated as though it came from a plague stricken port.

A telegram was received last night, signed by the city physician, saying there had been no cases resembling yellow fever in Galveston

Miss Edith Buxton, of Peoria, and Miss Eva Easton, of Fredonia, N. Y., are visiting Miss Buxton's brother, Herbert W. Buxton, of West Front street.

Fiend Attacked Child.

The colored girl who William Willis, a negro, tried to feloniously assault in the Eighth street swamp, in Camden, Thursday afternoon was Ernestine Williams, aged 9 years, of 707 Van Hook street, that city. When Willis, who was captured by Policeman Cornog after an exciting chase in which several pistol shots were fired, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday he was as silent as the proverbial clam, declining to say a word when called on to plead.

IS ICE CROP SHORT?

President of Wholesale Concern Says He Knows Nothing About It.

NO ARTIFICIAL ICE.

Likely That the Contemplated Raise In Price Will Not Be Made—How Long Will Crop Last?

It being reported that Plainfield's ice crop would not last over the first or second week of September, a reporter for The Daily Press interviewed Peter McDonough, president of the Plainfield Natural Ice Company, which supplies all of the ice used in this city, and put the question to him. Mr. McDonough's reply was:

"I have not visited the company's ice houses lately. I do not know how much ice there is in the houses and I do not know how long it will last."

It is said that the recent hot spell caused a tremendous shrinkage in the ice crop stored at Watchung.

There has been further talk about increasing the retail price of ice to fifty cents a hundred, but some of those interested do not favor the advance this month, or until it is absolutely necessary.

Plainfield is now using natural ice entirely. The plant of the Plainfield Hygeia Ice Company on South avenue, now owned by the Plainfield Natural Ice Company, is closed, and will remain so, it is said, unless the crop of the natural article is so poor that it becomes necessary to manufacture ice.

McDonough Brothers, who formerly harvested the ice from the South Plainfield pond, can do so no longer, as the water rights there are now controlled by the Middlesex Water Company, of which H. G. Runkle, of this city, is a member.

MASTER PAINTERS ADJOURN.

Resolutions Making Requests of Manufacturers Features of Closing.

Asbury Park, July 29.—The New Jersey State Association of Master Painters and Decorators closed its convention here yesterday, after adopting a resolution changing the times of meetings from August to July and from February to January, so as not to conflict with the international assemblies.

The committee on resolutions reported a resolution that the association and various locals connected therewith request all manufacturers and dealers in wall paper to refuse to give sample books to any one not a member of the association or its locals or where no association exists, these books to be supplied only to those engaged in a legitimate painting or decorating business, also that the manufacturers refuse to give discounts to any except association members and legitimate dealers.

The final resolution is suggestive. It pledges the members not to purchase goods from any manufacturer who refuses to support the association in the requests set forth.

Greater Plainfield.

A protest is due from North Plainfield. One of the Plainfield papers has had the audacity to say that "Greater Plainfield has 24,084 inhabitants." This, of course, includes the belligerent borough of North Plainfield, which has a population of 5,616, the majority of them bitterly opposed to any plan, scheme, device or statement that will annex them to and consolidate them with Plainfield. Not even the alluring and enticing phrase of "Greater Plainfield" is acceptable. What makes the matter worse is the fact that while Plainfield's increase since 1900 has been a little over twenty per cent., making its population 18,468, that of North Plainfield has been about eleven per cent., and to be patronized by the larger city is, under such circumstances, an aggravation not to be tolerated. Whether North Plainfield's belligerency has had anything to do with its slow growth may be a debatable question, but certainly something has had a serious effect upon the borough's normal increase. Rarely, indeed, is a town flourishing when it is divided into factions. Prosperity seems to be one of the victories of peace.—Newark News.

Would Deny Funerals.

Syracuse, July 29—Former Ambassador to Germany, Andrew D. White, has written Bishop P. A. Ludden, of the Syracuse Diocese of the Catholic Church, from Ithaca, commending the bishop's stand in refusing to allow "the honors of Christian burial to those who die by accident on the Lord's Day, having culpably violated its duties and obligations." Mr. White calls attention to the tendencies in our large cities toward a complete paganizing of American life as regards the observance of Sunday. He says the bishop's action will have a beneficial effect outside his own diocese.

Mrs. Woodland's Funeral.

Mrs. Rena Woodland, wife of John Elston Woodland, formerly of North Plainfield, who died Thursday evening as a result of injuries received in a runaway at Asbury Park, a week ago, will be buried from her late residence, 207 Fourth avenue, Belmar, N. J., on Sunday. Interment will be private.

P. S. C. IMPROVING GAS AND ELECTRIC SERVICE

EXTENDS ITS LINES AND BETTERING ITS PLANTS.

For the purpose of being better able to take care of the increase in business in this part of the State, the Public Service Corporation is replacing some of the old wires with new ones. In the way of construction work, the old lines between Bound Brook and Metuchen are being removed and new ones substituted, while a considerable amount of power is sent from the local plant to points between here and Metuchen.

During the past year the company has increased its business a great deal in the outlying country districts, families now being able to light their homes by electricity where for years such a thing was impossible. New Market, South Plainfield and Oak Tree are all covered by the Public Service Corporation and the improvement is greatly appreciated. To handle this extra business improvements have constantly been made at eh local plant in West Second street.

The company has also made great improvements in the manufacture and distribution of gas. The quality is much better and thousands of dollars spent in new machinery and the extension of mains to various parts of the city. During the past few months these mains have been extended in the west end of the city, one large main being laid in South Second street, from which numerous branches have been laid in the side streets running into it. In this way hundreds of families have been able to secure gas. The South Second street main extends through to Dunellen, Bound Brook and Somerville, it being the intention to supply a large part of the gas in these places from the local plant.

PENNANT COMES NEARER

Westfield Unable to Check the Advance of the Coming Champions.

3 TO 1 THIS TIME.

Fast Fielding and Heady Base-running Hold the Pirates In Subjection—A Punctured Rally.

Careering along on their cute, cyclonic way, Captain Dave Driscoll's coming champions handed another jolt to the Hon. G. Mallen's Pirates at Westfield Saturday afternoon. In the presence of 2,000 paid-up, dividend-bearing spectators, the dazed and shaken champs were painfully mauled, 3 to 1. The game was not as close as the score. The Pirates were not as lively along the alleys or in the field as the Hoboken Commuters, and from the breakaway, when the scoring began, the interested populace had a mental picture, neatly framed and ready for hanging, of "Bill" Beck.

Westfield, reposing in the hollow of Plainfield's hand.

Near the close of the thumping, the Pirates stung by the approach of their fate, paused in the act of walking the plank to turn fiercely on the remorseless enemy but they were sternly suppressed. To rebuke them further for their sassiness, J. Pluvius turned the hose on them. A large-sized inundation washed away Westfield's chance at the bat and a tie-up in the ninth. It sure looks as if the luck had changed. George Johnston who managed the Plainfields last year, is now in the Westfield Association. This makes out a terrible hoodoo case against George.

Bill Beck flung for the Commuters and the way the Great Beck-Bubble Busting Act, sighted and advertised by G. Mallen, didn't materialize was painful for the eminent prognosticator. Bill was hit only six times, and not once for an extra base. J. Waller, the great untamed prodigy, was soaked for seven welts, one a lovely two-bagger by Dan Connolly. Bill's support was decorated with gilt and expensive big league trimmings; barring one nasty fumble by Wally Cosgrave that helped along the Pirates' lone run and energetic rally. Pete Cregan made the two head-liner catches on the run and Dave Driscoll nailed a foul fly by a great sprint and sensational grab into the crowd along the rightfield bleachers.

Harry McCormack, an eminent outlaw, who once played sub-utility man on the New York Nationals graced first bag for Westfield, vice Mike Rotchford, resigned. Mike has gone to Utica, on the New York State league. Harry made one error and no hits. His utility as a real substitute for the agile Mike was not apparent so as you could notice it much. Our old friend Tim Patience cavorted around short. Tim made a bum error, turned off a pretty bunt, and scored the one run.

Among the spectacular features presented to the assembled multitude was a fierce praisie fire at least four feet square, in the corner of left field, up against the fence. The fire was discovered at the beginning of the fifth inning. Intense excitement reigned, and spectators and athletes knocked off work to watch immense bellows of smoke, at least seventeen inches in diameter, roll toward the devoted head of Cassabianca Bertwhistle. Bert, with calm heroism, stuck to his post, although some of the billows made him cough and spoiled the taste of the gum. Frank Littlemeyer, of the Westfield Association, rescued the heroic Bert single-handed with one pail of water. The Westfield management said small boys started the fire, but this did not fool the wise Plainfield fans. They knew Charley Denman started that conflagration for some deep and horribly unsportsmanlike purpose, and were openly skeptical of the explanation. This illustrates the value of being known as a lover of sport for sport's sake.

Four innings before the Fire Dem-

NOW DEMOCRATS ARE READY FOR OUTING

LOOKING FOR THE BIGGEST KIND OF A TIME ON AUGUST 23.

The outing committee of the Democratic Club met last night at the club rooms and reported that the preparations for the eighth annual outing to Duer's Park, Whitestone, L. I., on Wednesday, August 23, promised the most successful jollification the organization ever enjoyed.

The iron steamboat Cygnus has been chartered for the occasion, and there will be music, eatables, drinkables to suit the most exacting appetite. Arriving at the grounds the merry one thousand who have already been booked to go will indulge in athletic contests of all sorts. Every prominent Democrat in the county, with the more notable of the State and nation, are expected to attend. The members look for a big time, and they say there will be big results, too. Of course J. E. Martine will be on hand and so will all other "life-long Democrats."

HIS FINGER WAS OFF, BUT THE COP WAS ON DESERVING YOUNG MAN COMES TO GRIEF AND GOES TO JAIL.

John Barr, who claims New York as his home, came into Timbo's restaurant on North avenue at dinner time yesterday, with his hand bound up in many folds of cloth. His face was the picture of weariness and pain, and his gait slow and halting. He passed a paper among the diners that said Mr. Barr was a deserving and injured young man who merited help in an effort to get back to his friends.

Officer John Payne was among the diners. He called Barr to him and asked for a glimpse of the injury.

"My finger has just been cut off, bandage and oughtn't to be disturbed," protested Barr.

"I think it can stand one look," said Payne, and snatched the wrappings off.

There was a finger missing, but the stump looked as if it had healed twenty years ago. Payne took the deserving young man to the station house.

Judge Runyon sent him to the county jail for forty days this morning.

DIVORCE FOR MRS. CLARK.

Desertion Twenty-five Years Ago Named in Her Petition.

Mrs. Catharine Clark, of this city, has been granted an absolute divorce from her husband, Elias Clark, by Chancellor Magie, on the grounds of desertion. The divorce was advised by Vice Chancellor Emery on the report of Nelson Runyon, Special Master in Chancery.

The defendant now resides at Mine Brook in Somerset county and he deserted the petitioner twenty-five years ago. The evidence in the case was very sensational, the circumstances being more peculiar than any divorce case in the county in many years. Horace Codington, of Somerville, was counsel for the petitioner.

JOHN BERKAW'S FUNERAL.

Body Taken to Flemington for Burial in Family Plot.

The funeral of John V. Berkaw took place last night at his late home on Jackson avenue with a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church. A quartette composed of Morris C. Van Arsdale, Mrs. Charles E. Steiner and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McDonald sang "Abide With Me" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

The body was taken to Flemington this morning where interment was made in the family plot.

Who Is E. F. Ransdale?

The police received a telephone message from Jersey City at 10:30 o'clock last night, from a man who have his name as John Shield, to the effect that C. M. Conrad had been struck by lightning in Homestead and wanted E. F. Ransdale, of this city, notified. The message said Conrad was at Christ Hospital, Jersey City. The police were unable to find E. F. Ransdale up to noon today. His name is not in the directory.

A Parish Picnic.

More than 150 members of St. Stephen's church, mostly children, enjoyed an outing Saturday afternoon on the back lawn of the Hotel Netherwood. The afternoon was spent in playing tennis, croquet and other games. Ice cream and cake were furnished by the women. When the rain came up, the party continued the picnic on the hotel porch.

TWO DROWNED; ONE SAVED

Plainfield Girl Rescued But New York Man and Daughter Lost.

AT MANASQUAN.

Boat Upsets and Two Go Down—Plainfield Men Figure As Life-Savers.

Miss Josie Todd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Todd, of East Third street, was rescued from drowing while bathing at Manasquan, yesterday afternoon, and Frank F. Brown, of Broklyn, a clerk in the Chemical National Bank, Manhattan, and his daughter, Eva, were drowned in sight of Mrs. Brown, another daughter and hundreds of people who were on the beach watching the bathers. Dr. F. C. Herbert, brother of Mrs. Brown, Sergeant Albert I. Littell and George Ballentine, all of this city. Ballantine, a driver for Stern Brothers, and Roy Wyckoff, of Manasquan, were among those who worked heroically to save Mr. Brown, his daughter and Miss Todd. It was only after the greatest effort that Miss Todd was brought ashore.

Dr. Herbert got a boat and accompanied by Littell, Ballentine and Wyckoff, pulled out to the rescue. When they reached Mr. Brown and the girls the latter were exhausted and were only kept above water by Mr. Brown's strength. The effort had exhausted them, and Dr. Herbert and hsi companions just managed to drag them into the boat in time to prevent them from going under.

Mr. Brown and his family went to Manasquan a week ago to visit O. H. Herbert, Mrs. Brown's father, who has a cottage at the inlet. This afternoon, with dozens of other cottagers, Mr. Brown and his daughter went bathing in the ocean. Miss Josie Todd whose father has a cottage there and who was a friend of the Browns, went into the surf with Mr. Brown and his daughter.

Mrs. Brown and an elder daughter did not go in. They sat on the beach and watched Mr. Brown and the two girls swimming. About 1 o'clock, when the tide was running out strong Mr. Brown, his daughter and Miss Todd were about 200 yards from the shore. Those on the beach saw them start to swim in and then heard them call for help. Mr. Brown had hold of the girls and all three were making desperate efforts to fight their way back to shore.

While those on the beach ran for boatmen and several started to swim out to the three struggling against the tide, Mr. Brown and the two girls were carried further and further out. Mrs. Brown became hysterical and fainted.

The water was rough and the waves were running high. While Ballantine was pulling the boat into shore, in some way, the survivors can't tell just how, it was overturned and rescuers and rescued were pitched overboard. Ballantine could not swim and managed to get a grip on the boat. Dr. Herbert, who is a good swimmer, supported Miss Todd, while Mr. Brown who was weak from his fight against the tide, tried to save his daughter. He hadn't enough strength left, and Miss Todd was so overcome that Dr. Herbert couldn't go to his aid. While a boat was on the way to their assistance from the beach Mr. Brown and his daughter sank.

Roy Wyckoff and Albert Littell managed to get Dr. Herbert and Miss Todd into the second boat. Then they dived for the bodies of Mr. Brown and his daughter. They found them in two or three minutes. Dr. Herbert was able to row Miss Todd to shore, and Wyckoff and his companion got the bodies of Mr. Brown and the young woman into their boat and pulled as hard as they could for the beach in the hope that the two could be resusticated.

Doctors were summoned and they worked over the bodies for an hour, but life was extinct.

Coroner Queeney came from Freehold with an undertaker and took charge of the bodies. The cottagers made a hero of Dr. Herbert and his companions on account of their rescuing Miss Todd and their brave fight to save the others.

It is supposed that Miss Brown was seized with cramps and that in supporting her Mr. Brown found it impossible to make way against the tide. Miss Todd was so unnerved by her experience that she could not give a coherent account of how it happened.

Mr. Brown was forty-five years old, and his daughter was seventeen. The bodies will be removed to Marlboro, N. J., where the funeral services will be held. Mr. Todd is the manager for Boice, Runyon & Co., of Park avenue.

FIXING RESPONSIBILITY

Union County Joins Middlesex in Investigation of Auto Accident.

DRIVERS DISAGREE.

Each Puts Entire Blame on the Other—Both Allege Drunkenness and Recklessness.

Union County as well as Middlesex, has begun an investigation of the accident that resulted in the death of Mrs. W. A. Westphal, on West Front street, yesterday a week ago, when William Stanberg's auto and Oscar Harrison's runabout crashed together. Each of the drivers insist that the other was wholly to blame.

Prosecutor Berdine says that inasmuch as the accident happened in this county his office is looking the matter up, but that as the woman died in Union County, he has turned what information he has over to Prosecutor English, of Elizabeth, who is also making an investigation of the case.

The Middlesex Grand Jury last week did not take the matter up. Both William Stanberg, the driver of the automobile, accompanied by his counsel, Samuel S. Swackhammer, and Oscar Harris, the driver of the wagon, with his counsel, former Senator Robert Adrain, and Lawyer Sandford, of Trenton, have presented their sides of the matter to the Prosecutor, and the Prosecutor finds that there is a great difference in their claims.

According to Stanbery, the auto party saw what they believed to be a runaway wagon coming toward them. They caught glimpses of it, but it was hidden at times because of a trolley car in the way. He claims that they pulled over to the side of the road and almost stopped, but the wagon came on and crashed into them. He points to the fact that it was the rear side of the auto that was struck as proof to bear him out.

Harris claims that auto was being driven recklessly and that the accident would not have happened if ordinary care had ben taken by the driver. He denies that he was in any way at fault.

There is considerable feeling in the case, as each driver has charged that the other was under the influence of liquor at the time, and both drivers strenously deny the charge.

When Detective Mulvey went to Dunellen last week to investigate the case he found Detective Manley, of Prosecutor English's office also there, and they worked together on the case.

STORM CRIPPLES 'PHONES

Much Rain Fell But Little General Damage Was Done.

FALL WAS 4.48

Streets Flooded and Trolley Service Slightly Affected — Month's Moisture Record Goes Above Normal.

Fear that the July rain average would be less than normal, which has been haunting the soul of the weather man for weeks, disappeared Saturday afternoon. A general bust-up of a huge mass of inky black clouds, at about 4.30 o'clock, jumped the average .73 inches above the normal in about 2 hours. The thunder and lightning figures kept pace with the moisture. Another deluge hit the drenched and dripping town at about 10 o'clock Sunday morning, and boosted the rainfall record to 7.01 inches. This second fall was even heavier than that of the afternoon, for the length of time it lasted. The normal average for the month is 5.94.

The storms made work for Street Commissioner Gavett, the telephone people and the fire department. Streets were flooded, particularly in the East End, which is a natural water basin, and were super-flooded in the night. The corner of Richmond street and Fifth streets, disappeared under a turbid stream that almost flowed into Keenan's grocery and the homes on that side. The electrical department of the storm bureau got at the telephone circuits and put a lot of wires out of business. Houses were struck, and the trolley service was somewhat kinked.

The unhappiest people in the storm struck area were tne Plainfielders at the baseball game in Plainfield. The downpour was on in full rush when they started for home, and they had what Mr. Mantalini would have called a blamed moist and unpleasant time getting back to shelter and supper. Fans who travelled in carriages and autos had the last vestige of enthusiasm washed away.

The early morning rain was a fearsome thing in volume. The water came down in chunks, and none of the few pedestrians out had nerve enough to venture into it. Even the cops fled to shelter.

The total rainfall for the twenty-four hours was notable in the records of the local weather station. The two storms registered 4.48 inches. Only twice in the past thirteen years has this 24-hour record been exceeded. The high mark was reached last September between the 14th and 15th, when 6.70 inches fell.

The trouble the storm made for the telephone people was serious. Three hundred 'phones were put out of business, and the system was badly crippled. The repair men were sent out yesterday and the officials hope to have the system back in shape by tonight.

Street Commissioner Gavett's office reports strenuous times, but no serious trouble. The streets were beautifully washed and several culverts nearly burst from the volume of the washings and the water, but nothing gave way. Loosened top dressing was washed away all over the city and minor repair jobs will have to be be done. Commissioner Gavett went out at the head of his force Saturday night, and again yesterday morning and today watching for danger signs and coaxing the waters to behave themselves.

Yesterday afternoon's shower, while an industrious little thing, did not figure in the same class as the others. Only a half an inch of rain fell. This brings the month's total up to 7.50 inches.

Weather Clerk Neagle gave out the following figures, showing rainfalls of three inches or over in twenty-four hours, for the past thirteen years:

	Amount.
Dec. 16, 1892	3.83
Aug. 23-24, 1893	3.63
February 6-7, 1896	3.60
July 28-29, 1890	5.52
May 18-19, 1900	3.50
Sept. 16, 1900	3.14
August 24, 1901	3.83
June 12, 1903	3.93
August 4-5, 1903	3.81
August 5, 1904	3.07
August 20, 1904	3.21
Sept. 14-15, 1904	6.70

Total rainfall for this month was 13.92.

At Elizabeth the storm yesterday was felt in several places. The steple of the First Methodist Protestant church was struck and several houses about the city were hit by bolts of lightning.

The home of Frank Krewson on Summit avenue was struck by a lightning bolt. It ripped a few bricks off the chimney and tore the roof slightly but did no other damage. The occupants and neighbors felt the shock.

Franklin Lane, of Fairview avenue, who has been very ill with dysentery is slowly recovering.

THIRTY-FIVE STATES WILL SEND TEAMS TO SEA GIRT

HAWAII WILL ALSO BE REPRESENTED IN ANNUAL RIFLE SHOOT.

It is announced today that thirty-five states will send teams of twelve men to the annual rifle shoot for the Government trophy at Sea Girt, August 24 to September 9, inclusive. The states include New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Ohio and New Jersey, representing the Middle States and a team from Hawaii.

This will be the first time a team from Hawaii has ever shot in the annual tournament held under the provisions of the 1903 Act of Congress, which provides ammunition and expenses for rifle teams from the army, representing the infantry and cavalry and one from the navy. One of these will be composed of cadets at West Point and the other of middies from Annapolis. The entries this year show that interest in rifle practice has grown from fifteen teams in 1903 to forty-one teams in 1905.

LAKE HOPATCONG STEAMERS ASHORE

SUMMER PASSENGERS AT THE RESORT HAVE AN EXCITING TIME.

The sidewheel steamer Musconetcong, one of a fleet of three similar boats plying Lake Hopatcong, struck a rock in the River Styx, leading into the Lake, Saturday afternoon, puncturing a hole in the bottom. There were about 150 passengers on board, men, women and children, and Captain Flowers run the boat ashore, where the passengers were all landed safely without any trouble by the aid of the crew. Grossly exaggerated accounts of the accident appeared in yesterday's New York papers, describing the boat as turning upside down and their rescue in most heroic fashion during a wild panic on board.

The accident was due to the fact that the lake is about four feet below its usual water mark and there are a number of rocks in the River Styx. Yesterday the Steamer Hopatcong, of the same line, run on a shoal while carrying a large number of passengers to the Hollywood Hotel for dinner. A sister boat came to the rescue, took off the passengers and the stranded boat floated into deep water. It is said that the boats of the White Line were condemned by the Government inspectors last week and ordered out of service. In view of this there has been much adverse to criticism.

BATHING POOL OPEN.

The Small Boy Now Enjoying its Privileges.

The swimming pool on the Compton property in the West End, was practically opened to the public on Saturday, an dever since the place has been well-occupied with boys of all sizes, as well as men. The bathhouse was completed on Friday night and the boys could scarcely wait for the opportunity to take a dip, under the sanction of the city authorities. The bath-house is on the city side of the brook and is amply large for an ordinary crowd. It is provided with hooks upon which the bathers can hang their clothes. There have been a few instances where some of the bathers have appropriated the clothes of others, but generally speaking all behave themselves.

This swimming pool was made possible through the agitation of the Board of Trade, which donated $25 toward the enterprise. Others were led to contribute and finally one public spirited citizen gave $60, a sufficient sum to complete the improvements. The pool is far enough removed to prevent disturbance of residents on the part of the bathers and the boys appreciate what has been done for them. Despite the seclusions of the place, one of the rules is that the bathers must wear tights, and there has been no objection to this restriction on the part of the boys.

Terrible Storm at Carteret.

Probably the worst storm that has visited New Jersey swept everything before it at Carteret yesterday afternoon. Trees were uprooted, and houses lifted from their foundations. In one field two cows were carried off their feet bodily. After the storm, dogs, cows and horses were found dead in the fields. One house was blown half a mile from its foundations.

Archie Davis, D. and D.

Archie Davis, an old offender, of Manning avenue, was arrested in the borough Saturday evening for intoxication and disorderly conduct. He will be given a hearing before Recorded Dour tonight.

POLITICIANS' BIG TIME

Union County Republicans Enjoyed First Annual Outing.

AND BOOMS GALORE.

After Day at Grove, Boatload of Excursionists Saw Battleships on the Hudson River.

Tired out but fully confident that the affair had been one of the most successful ever conducted by the organization, the 300 faithful who attended the first annual outing of the Union County Republican committee, landed at Chancellor dock Elizabethport, at 9 o'clock Saturday night. Though the weather had been rather unpropitious from the start it was ideal for sailing and the trip through Staten Island sound, New York bay, the East River and Long Island Sound was one long to be remembered. The committee had made every preparation to please its guests and beside the excellent dinner at Witzel's Point View grove at College Point the boat was loaded to the paddle wheels with refreshments in two varieties.

Of course, politics were discussed from the time the steamer "Isabel" drew away at 10 o'clock in the morning until she tied up at night but it was all done in groups of two or three "Ham" Kean was there but those who attempted to draw him out on his view of the chances of this one or that one had poor luck.

"It's all up to the delegates," was all he would say and they had to let it go at that. Judge Runyon was present, so was City Clerk James T. MacMurray, and the news they heard regarding the former's standing outside of Plainfield for the Senatorial nomination will carry joy to his local supporters.

"You can take this from me," said one Elizabethan, "our place won't be solid for anybody. Judge Runyon stands high downtown and he can get the votes in several wards for the asking. Uptown he is not a favorite as that bugabo of two years ago is still a thorn in their sides."

In a canvass about the boat it seemed as if every other man on board wanted to succeed Sheriff Coriell. Summit had a big delegation on hand that howled "Dr. Lawrence" every time the shrievalty contest was mentioned. Elizabeth claimed that Captain "Bob" Kirkland is the only man to whom the juicy plum should go; Rahway trotted out William H. Wright, son of the chief of police and the assistant postmaster while Cranford came out strong for Freeholder Emmor K. Adams who has had the be in his bonnet for four years and who has been told to "go way back" every time. The odds seemed to be with Laurence and Kirkland.

The three candidates for the vacancy caused by the death of Assemblyman Coyne did some lively logrolling. They are Everard K. Tucker, former School Commissioner Robert M. Kellogg and Charles A. Trimble all from Elizabeth. It was conceded by the party leaders that Assemblyman Peter Tillman of Rahway, and Randolph Perkins of Westfield, will be renominated. As a whole the political discussions were breezy and the Plainfielders gained some new suggestions for conducting their end of the campaign.

Witzel's was left for the return trip at 5 o'clock and the battery was reached an hour later. The boat did not proceed directly home but sailed up the Hudson as far as Grant's tomb in order to let the crowd see seven of Uncle Sam's battleships at anchor. Patriotism was rampant when the "Isabel" hove alongside the big fighters and Dater's band, which had been on board all day, played the "Star Spangled Banner" with everybody joining in the chorus. The marines' bands returned the salutation and the spectacle was one of the features of the day.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the outing consisted of Andrew McCardell and William Newcorn of this city; Captain Kirkland, Edward Bauer and Joseph White of Elizabeth.

Among the Plainfielders who attended the affair were Mayor James F. Buckle, City Clerk James T. MacMurray, City Judge William N. Runyon, Councilman Frank Randolph, former Assemblyman William Newcorn, Register of Deeds Frank H. Smith, State Factory Inspector Andrew McCardell, Sheriff B. F. Coriell, Postmaster Elias H. Bird, State Supervisor of Roads Robert A. Meeker, John W. Murray, Jr., Herbert Buxton, Overseer of the Poor Aleck Ayers, Chief McDuff, James Morrison, Amos Andrews, George J. Tobin, Dr. J. P. Brennan, John A. O'Keefe, George Johnson, James Stewart, John H. Cose, Francis J. Blatz, Joseph Brown, Charles Foster, John Traynor, William Craig, Robert Craig, William Clifton, Jack Clifton, Clarence Mundy, James Gray, Edward

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The heavy rain which fell in the towns in this vicinity Saturday and Sunday, visited here also and came very near doing serious damage, as three or four places were struck. George Huff's house was first struck and the result is a bad hole in the roof. The meter box in front of Taylor's hotel was also disabled as was the one in front of Reusch's store, this one being the supply electric power box and the town was in utter darkness all night as a result of this until 1 o'clock in the morning. The only other damage was the burning of the feed box at the loop and before any damage was threatened Conductor Woods beat out the fire. The cause was a cross in wires.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

Robert Moore, of this place, was arraigned before Recorder Clark Sunday morning, charged by his wife with beating and abusing her Saturday night at their home on Stanbery avenue. Mrs. Moore's appearance bore out her statements when she appeared before the Recorder to swear out a warrant for her husband's arrest, her clothes being covered with blood and her face bruised and bleeding. Moore had been before the court on the same charge before, so Officer Shackleton was put on the case at once. Moore was arrested at his home and after a night in the town lockup pleaded guilty when arraigned. The court held him under $200 bail to await the action of the October Grand Jury. Moore was still in the cell last night, having ben unable to secure the necessary bondsman.

The local baseball team had an Recreation Park Saturday afternoon, when the "Daubsters" took the third game of the series with Westfield, by the score of 3 to 1. The enthusiasm of the victory was dampened somewhat by the heavy showers, as hardly a local fan returned without a thorough wetting.

Travel on the trolley was delayed Saturday night by a car jumping the track at the Terrill road switch. The wreck was caused by the spreading of the rails, the heavy rain having made the roadbed at this place simply a mud hole.

The local baseball teom had an off-day Saturday afternoon and fell easy victims to the Cuban Giants, of Westfield, in a five inning game, the Westfield team winning by the score of 9 to 1.

VREELAND ACCOUNTS PASSED.

Residuum of Estate Goes to Rutgers College.

Somerville, July 31—The final accounts in the estate of the late Jacob J. Vreeland, of Rocky Hill, were passed and allowed in the Somerset County Orphans' Court Sautrday. The property is worth about $40,000 and the residuum of the estate is left to Rutgers College, New Brunswick.

The testator died in February, 1901. He was a former freeholder of the county. There was much litigation in the estate here and in the Prerogative Court in Trenton. A counsel fee of $200 was allowed Horace Codington, proctor for Jennie W. Kenyon, one of the beneficiaries; $100 to Bartine & Beekman, proctors for the executor, Jacob Vreeland, Jr., and $100 to John E. Edmendorf, the proctor for Rutgers College.

He was among the batch of prisoners sentenced at the same time John Waller, the "gentleman" burglar, was sent to State Prison. Waller was released last week.

Kelly's second offense was stealing a pair of pantaloons and a belt from John Bergen at Bound Brook. He will probably be kept at the reformatory for several years now.

The Historic Hudson.

The Hudson River has a renowned reputation in more ways than one. Its business interests are more widely known than any other stream, while for excursions and outings it has no equal. There are sights galore—the palisades—the U. S. Military Academy at Sing Sing and interesting Newburg. The scenery in every direction is superb and the steamers which convey the excursionists are commodious and comfortable. The last article which the prospective vacationist buys and the first which she needs on reaching her destination are the little trifles which make correspondence not only possible but pleasant; yet the shops never offered so many conveniences for tourist and vacationist as they do this year.

The overland tourist will find very convenient the pads of paper which can be folded and sealed like an envelope. These are blocked and enclosed in a case inscribed "A Hasty Line." With a fountain pen to slip into the leather slide on the side of the pad, and postage stamps to tuck into another flap, friends can be notified of the traveler's progress in fully as convenient and in far more dignified fashion than by the use of postals.

A book of this sort made at home had a red denim cover inscribed with gilt letters, while hand-made books in soft leather bindings of green or blue are titled with silver script and are light as a feather.

The old-fashioned portfolio has come back in new and fascinating forms. Bright red leather covers the most stunning of these lap desks, both in the stiff box design and in the flexible book form. Hunting scenes under glass adorn the more expensive ones and a strap at the back makes them handy to carry about.

Glazed leather covers have the edges outlined with art nouveau figures set with large imitation opals, and a hand-made portfolio which has anything but a home-made appearance is built entirely of bead-work, the background of clear white beads showing a center of red Dresden tulips.

Especially welcome to the absent-minded tourist are gifts of writing paper neatly inclosed in the most charming white boxes. These are decorated with reproductions in black and white of popular Gibson and Christy pictures, and are marked "Bon Voyage," or "Au Revoir." Boxes of small note paper for children's use are printed with typical Japanese scenes, and each sheet shows Japanese children at their different sports.

The vogue in stationery is to have it resemble summer fabrics, and new fibers are known under the name of crepe de Paris, batiste, liberty silk, etc. Women who follow the dictates of fashion even in the cut of their writing paper are using envelopes long and narrow, with very deep-pointed flaps, while the paper to match is almost as wide as it is long.

One original authoress inscribes her particular notes on dark brown stationery, somewhat similar to butchers' paper, and her monogram, instead of being at the head of the sheet, is in gold letters on the lower left-hand corner inside the fold.

Among new memoranda books for the summer girl are "Motor Trips," "Log Book," "Outward Bound and Homeward Bound," "Places Seen" and "My Vacation." These are bound in the most flexible leather, in serviceable shades of red or blue or green.

RARE BOOKS AND THEIR COLLECTORS

SOME COSTLY AND CURIOUS VOLUMES FOUND IN PRIVATE LIBRARIES

The truth of the Biblical statement that "of making books there is no end," is strongly accentuated when chatting with an ardent and discriminating collector. An hour's conversation with him is a liberal education in "the tricks and the manners" of the bookmaker, book-buyer and bookseller, says the New York Evening Post.

Since the time of his first inoculation with the book collector's germ one such man, who makes a business of selling only rare and curious volumes, has not only passed through the various stages of the disease himself, but has made a close study of the conditions and habits of other collectors. Among the best known in this country are J. Pierpont Morgan, Richard Hoe, E. D. Church and F. R. Halsey, whose libraries are of immense value.

One would hardly expect such a busy man as Mr. Morgan to be a bibliomaniac of a pronounced type, but he is. In 1899 he added to his library four thousand choice volumes which had been collected by James Toovey, a well known bookseller of the sixties. This collection, chiefly notable for its choice variety of bindings, cost Mr. Morgan at least one hundred thousand dollars. Among the collection were a presentation copy of Izaak Walton's "Lives;" a first folio Shakespeare (Mr. Morgan is said to possess three others); Wynken de Worde's imprint of "The Boke of St. Albans," printed in 1486, with Caxton's type, and many other choice volumes.

Mr. Morgan is also reported to be the owner of two fine copies of the Mazarin Bible. This, if authentic, gives five to the city of New York, the oldest from point of possession being the one owned by James Lenox.

Another rare work in the possession of Mr. Morgan is the Fust and Schoeffer Psalter of 1459, printed on vellum. No one but Mr. Morgan and the London dealer from whom he bought it knows the amount received for this valuable book, but the asking price for many years was 5,000 guineas. Mr. Morgan has recently allowed Columbia College to exhibit it.

Mr. Morgan's most valuable volume is probably the great jeweled edition of the four gospels. The manuscript is bound most richly, the upper cover being studded with 327 emeralds, sapphires, carbuncles, pearls and various other precious stones. The lower cover is composed of a "croix pattee," formed of Mosaic enamels, set with thirty-five precious and brilliant gems.

All who have seen this manuscript declare it the most wonderful specimen of its kind the world can produce. The British Museum authorities bitterly lamented their lack of funds at the time it was sold, as they coveted it for their famous collection. Its original price, when sold by the Earl of Ashburnham's family, who owned it for sixty years, was £10,000, the highest price ever received for a book.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sr., although not so widely known as a collector, was interested in rare books, and was the owner of the Bay Psalm Book, which would doubtless bring several times its last selling price of $1,200, if again put upon the market. Only ten copies of this famous book are known to exist.

Richard Hoe owns Wynkin de Worde's issue of "The Story of Helias, Knight of the Swanne." This middle age romance is said to be one of the oldest and most popular of its period. Mr. Hoe's copy, printed on vellum, is the only one in existence so far as known.

Bibliographers give precedence to manuscripts. They are entitled to the greatest consideration of any form of book. Mr. Hoe is the possessor of such a large number of old illuminated volumes as to make his library in this respect the superior of any other private or public collection in America. Vellum printed books were almost all produced prior to 1500, and the perfect condition of most of these manuscripts is truly wonderful.

Not until manuscripts were illuminated with miniatures did they gain their transcendent value as works of art and become prizes to reward the bibliophile's eager search. The most notable example of the beautiful manuscripts of the renaissance possessed by Mr. Hoe is St. Jerome's Latin Version of the Bible. Although written soon after the year 1200 the ink is still jet black, in striking contrast to the whiteness of the vellum. The manuscript is ornamented throughout with hundreds of initial letters painted in gold and colors, many of them embodying small but exquisite miniatures with backgrounds of great interest, believed to have been in the possession of St. Louis at Aigues-Mortes in 1248, just before he departed for Egypt and the Holy Land, on his first unfortunate crusade.

Ancient learning is represented in this library by several manuscripts of classical authors; a folio Horace, for example, was written on vellum in the fifteenth century, and represents some of the best Italian work, as do also the manuscripts of Ovid, Cicero and other classical writers which are in this collection. The crowning charm of this, as well as of every other extensive collection of medieval illuminated manuscripts, must ever remain the lovely Missals, Psalters and Books of Hours, many of which are included in the 150 manuscripts which have been gathered together by Mr. Hoe. Printing was born in Germany, but the full flower of its early development was reached in Italy. Mr. Hoe's library is rich with treasures from both countries. Printing and Aldus (one of its greatest disciples) are supposed to have been born in the year 1450. Aldus lived in Venice, and his editions have always been prized by book lovers; they are well represented on Mr. Hoe's shelves. His library also abounds in the workmanship of Louis Elzevir of Leyden.

on ravaged the left garden corner, to wit, namely, the initial stanza the Commuters started their small but profitable collection of tallies. After Kiernan had succumbed, Barry to McCormack, Cosgrave banged a hot one at first. McCormack fumbled and Wally bore down on the bag like a gasoline buggy after a record. Harry, rattled by the clatter of Wally's spikes, tossed the ball to the bag without waiting to see if anybody was on it, which there was not by a scandalous distance. Before the globule was retrieved Walter roosted on second. "Kid" Brogan, continuing his stick gait of the last game rapped out a smashing left and Wally hiked in. Connolly forced Brogan as Pete Cregan expired second to first. Driscoll scored the second run in the fifth. He walked and stole second aided by a high throw.

Jack O'Neil drove a liner into Patience's glove. Dave was lying off a little too far for an easy jump-back as he went down the alley. Patience stumbled and fell, and made a bum chuck to Stallings in the wild hope of catching Dave at the bag. Dave went on, and dented the rubber on Stalling's wild sling to Barry.

Leonard started the seventh with a single to left, and stole second. Driscoll was rewarded for looking 'em over carefully. O'Neil hit to short and Mike was nailed at third, Jack getting his bag, and Dave going to second. While Beck was waiting for one to his taste, the runners executed as pretty a double steal as the populace ever said. Bill saw one he liked and rapped a smasher to short that let Dave in. Kiernan poked an easy one at Stallings.

Amid a prodigious amount of noise some hits an error, and hairbreadth umpiring the Pirates squeezed in their tally in the eighth. Patience, first up, laid down a beautiful bunt to and lid to safety. Patrick Aloysius Cotter binged one to center, which Wally Cosgrave grievously mishandled. When the ball finally got in the diamond Patience was on third. Waller poked one at Beck. Bill threatened Patience as long as he dared and then threw to first. Patience took the chance on the throw in, and the umpire gent said he made good. The decision hurt Jack O'Neil's feelings and he likewise intraged the youthful Mr. Brogan. They opened a debate in which the populace joined and sundry of the latter flowed into the sidelines, and the whole available Westfield police force, consisting of one refined looking young man, was necessary to quiet them. When legalized hostilities were resumed, Mr. Cotter reposed on second, and Mr. Bertwhistle, the fire hero, clutched the handled of the stick in commission. Bert soaked the joymaker into rightfield for a sack, but Dan Connelly flung it to the plate in time to score Mr. Cotter back to third. The Westfield fanatics with one voice assured Bill that he was very high up in the circumambient and going higher, but William smiled calmly, wiped the sap from his brow, and fanned Barry. Then he fed McCormack a drop and Harry lifted one to Cosgrave. Thus, in the vigor of its first rally, Westfield expired.

In the next inning, after Cregan and Leonard had been nailed down, the lowering clouds busted with a loud noise and considerable illumination. Despite the plaintive protest of Captain Mallen, Umpire Henning called the game. Mallen said the rain didn't amount to anything and the team that was two runs ahead oughtn't to mind a little thing like rain, anyway. When the Chief Pirate made this conservative statement chunks of water as big as his fist were hurtling through the air so thick you couldn't see seven inches ahead. But fate punished George He couldn't find anybody who would lend him even part of an umbrella and he had to stay in the grand stand for over an hour until the deluge thinned out.

Manager Daab sat quietly on the bench, wearing a satisfied smile.

"Red" Waller has yet to defeat the team now playing for Plainfield.

Manager Daab's instructions to his team are to take no chances, but win every game.

Mallen says his team will yet catch the locals and give them a drubbing they will remember.

Beck's graceful tipping of his cap to Henning for calling a strike, showed true appreciation.

A commendable feature of the contest was the fact that the Westfield players refrained from talking to the crowd.

"Mike" Rochford getting tired of playing with a losing team, has left Westfield and is now with the Utica, N. Y., team.

If Westfield gets a new player in each game the management will have a new team by the time the tenth contest is played.

"Pete" Cregan's work in the field was a decided feature. He fairly picked the balls out of the air and he had some difficult ones, too.

Manager Denman remarked recently: "If Beck pitches our team will bat him out of the box." This failed to happen on Saturday.

Manager Frank Burke, of the Elizabethport Stars, sat on the player's bench and rooted for Westfield. He remembers how his team was defeated on Crescent Oval.

"Handsome Harry" McCormick, who played with Pittsburg last year, seemed as much out of his class as the rest of the Westfield team, and his work on first was very ordinary.

Those who doubted "Billy" Beck's ability to hold Westfield down are referred to the detailed score of Saturday's game. Six hits, eight assists, two strike outs and no free passes is a record to be proud of.

Wonder if Manager Denman still thinks Captain Driscoll a weak player. "Dave" is putting up the best game of his life, his work on Saturday being exceptionally brilliant. He certainly works every point.

Dalton, Plainfield's new second baseman, who was injured at Hoboken two weeks ago, was a spectator at Saturday's game, having come down from his home in Yonkers. He is very anxious to get back to play. His ankle is much better and he hopes to join the team soon.

ROCKS OF GIBRALTAR FOR PRUDENTIAL MEN

PIECES OF THE GREAT TO BE MADE INTO LOCKETS FOR AGENTS.

Preparations have been made by the Prudential Insurance Company to reward the members of its vast field and office forces for good work with novel keepsakes, which will always be a reminder of the leading feature of the extensive advertising of the company, the Rock of Gibraltar. By arrangement with the British Government about a ton of the rock from the famous English fortification on the Mediterranean has been quarried and brought to this country under the direction of special agents, who also brought with them official certificates of its genuineness.

In accordance with a long-ago formed plan the company has given a contract to a Newark [illegible] manufacturing firm to make up a large number of lockets, in each of which will be a small piece of the rock of Gibraltar, set in gold. These will in time be distributed among the employees of the company in accordance with their accomplishment of certain stipulated work. The terms have already been made known and efforts are already being put forth by those anxious to be among the first to acquire the unique lockets.

AID FRESH AIR HOME.

Special Services at Congregational and Grace Churches.

Services for the benefit of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home were held in two local churches last evening. In spite of the heavy rain, the attendance was good at both edifices, the Congregational and the Grace P. E. church.

Services were held first at the Congregational church in the Christian Endeavor Society rooms. A large delegation of children were present and they were brought to the church in a stage furnished by the society of the church. Miss Lulu Fuller was in charge of the services, and after a few hymns were sung the programme by the children followed. A collection was taken up after the service and the matter of appropriating a sum toward the work of the home was left to the executive committee of the society.

The children then went to Grace church and arrived just as the regular service ended. Dean Rodman introduced Miss Curry and her charges and again encouraged the congregation to give its heartiest support.

W. S. Angleman, a member of the executive committee of the work, was the first speaker. He showed how every little amount helped in the work and that if anyone helped these children, he would in turn help his own, according to the saying in the Bible.

The children gave their part of the programme and Miss Curry then spoke.

D. M. Torry was the last speaker and his words were directed to the goods that comes from the money which the camp receives. He solicited more aid most of all. A collection for the camp was then taken up.

Wilson Visits Roosevelt.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 31—It was learned here last night that Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is expected at Sagamore Hill today for an important conference with President Roosevelt. This visit, following so closely upon Mr. Wilson's denial of the report that he was about to resign, is taken here to indicate that the President intends to ask him to bring about in the Department of Agriculture the drastic reforms the President deems necessary in view of recent disclosures.

Four Track News.

Canadian emigration agents expect fully 60,000 American farmers to move into the Canadian Northwest this year. While this section of the country undoubtedly posseses great agricultural possibilities, it seems a little hard that America should lose 60,000 good farmer-citizens and take in from Europe a horde of uneducated, ignorant, penniless immigrants who are incapable of any but the lowest kind of work. It would be so much more sensible to keep our farmers and let our northern cousin educate the foreign influx. Something is out of joint somewhere.—From "In the Trail of the Traveler," in Four Track News for July.

C. G. VAN CLEEF DEAD.

Well Known Millstone Resident Had Relatives Here.

Cornelius G. Van Cleef, aged sixty-nine years, formerly a member of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, and well-known in this city died at his home in East Millstone on Saturday, following a long illness with cancer of the stomach. He was a brother of the late Joseph Van Cleef, of East Millstone, who was foreman of the jury which tried George Wood for the murder of George Williams, at Watchung, and who died two weeks ago.

Mr. Van Cleef was engaged for several years in running a large hay press and feed mill at East Millstone. He was born in that place and lived there all his life. Besides several relatives in this city, he is survived by a widow. At different times he held several township offices

Circus is Coming.

What might be aptly termed a whirlwind act in that of the Twelve Toozoonin Arabs who are with the Hargreaves' Shows. These agile and lithesome sons of the desert give an astonishing acrobatic performance that is as thrilling as it is novel. They not only do the ordinary tricks of the average performer but they introduce many new feats never before shown. One of these is especially interesting. A pyramid of twelve men is formed the base of which is a swarthy Arab who smiles serenly as he supports his companions The finish of their act never fails to make any audience cheer loudly Starting on the Hippodrome track they begin turning somersaults and continue all around the huge semi-circle until the air is full of twisting turning bodies. It is a sight well worth seeing and yet is only one of the many unduplicated features to be seen only with Hargreave's Shows which exhibit here on August 3d.

Rev. Mr. McCrea's Vacation.

The Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church will leave today on a six weeks' vacation. He will first go to the Cumberland mountains in Pennsylvania, where he will join his wife and son. Later they will visit Asbury Park and then the coast of Maine.

HOBOKEN SHUT-OUT BY JERSEY CITY TEAM

IN FIVE INNINGS DEEGAN IS TOUCHED FOR TEN HITS.

Hoboken met Jersey City, of the Eastern League, at St. George Cricket Grounds, yesterday, receiving its worst defeat of the season, the Skeeters winning by a score of 7 to 0. "Willie" Deegan was on the firing line for Hoboken, but he only remained there five innings, when he was replaced by "Billy" Beck. In five innings the Skeeters made seven runs and touched Deegan for ten hits. Beck went in the game in the sixth inning and he was a complete puzzle to his opponents. Only three scattering hits were made off his delivery. Connolly made the only hit for Hoboken, Pfanmiller having perfect control and being invincible.

NETHERWOOD HOME SERVICES.

Rev. Dr. Schenck Makes the Address.

The attendance at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home at the afternoon meeting yesterday, consisted of 150 people. Fred Smith, of Trinity Reformed church, had charge of the services.

The sermon of the afternoon was preached by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of the Trinity Reformed church. His text was based upon the "Sermon on the Mount," and he talked in a general way on "Flowers and Birds," likening the children to these and telling that they too were to be supported by those about them as the shrubs and insects of nature were taken care of by God.

The music was very good. Horace Martin gave a solo. DeWitt Frazee again acted as accompanist on the cornet and interested the entire audience with a solo. Miss Lucy Coriell presided at the organ.

The usual collection was taken up and then the people spent some time wandering around the grounds and talking to the children. There are now 280 children at the camp.

Week at Fresh Air Home.

Another season of devotion will be held at the Netherwood Home, this week. Mrs. Gilbert Van Name will address the mothers at the meeting tomorrow evening. E. society of the Dunellen Presbyterian church will be in attendance. Fred. Lounsbury, Jr., has charge of arrangements on Saturday, but the programme for Sunday has not yet ben completed.

TROLLEY RIDE POINTERS

Some Pleasant Trips About This Section at Little Trifling Cost.

NEWARK AS CENTRE.

Sights and Scenes in Town and Country Make the Outings Particularly Enjoyable.

Long trolley rides in and around New Jersey are as much in favor with Newarkers this season as ever before, and many persons who in other years have hastened by fast train or boat to the places selected in which to spend their vacations have changed their methods of travel. They ship their large baggage to their destination and then make the trip over the various electric lines by easy stages, consuming anywhere from one to three days of their time. In that way they see much of the country at short range, which they would otherwise not come into contact with, and at an expense which is no greater than train traveling would be.

From Market and Broad streets, in Newark, to Manhattan and thence northward through the metropolis, and up through New York State is a favorite trip. Many persons go even farther, the route lying in an easterly direction to and through New Haven, Bridgeport, Stamford and other parts of Connecticut, to Providence and the surrounding country in Rhode Island, and on up through Massachusetts, to and around Boston. There are very few breaks in the farreaching system of trolley lines, and few, if any, changes have to be made from the electric cars to steam trains. If a trip in a southerly direction is desired, the route from Newark to Trenton and Philadelphia is a delightful one. From the latter point the trolley lines radiate in every direction, the favorite trips being westward through Pennsylvania, through wild country rich with magnificent scenery and into many cities and towns, in every one of which there is much that is of interest.

If a less extensive trip is the aim of the rider the route from Newark to the various Jersey coast resorts is probably the best. It lies through a dozen or more cities and towns of varying sizes, and the lines traverse sections given over to business, to manufactures, to fine residences and grounds and through some of the finest farming districts to be found anywhere in the country, with fruit orchards of various kinds galore, great fields of potatoes and of corn and wheat and other grains. Along the route are also encountered attractive poultry farms, where chickens and eggs are produced as a business and not merely as they are in an ordinary farmyard; large pasture fields with browsing herds of magnificent cattle, and stock farms where horses and dogs of the best strains of blood are bred and raised. There is, in fact, something to please everyone between Newark and Asbury Park if you follow the trolley lines, from the boom town of Lincoln, a short distance below Elizabeth, over which Mayor Silas Dewey Drake presides, to the beautiful scenes along the Raritan river before you come to New Brunswick, with the two large stone arch bridges at the latter city; the brickmaking establishments and the great clay heaps at and near Sayreville; the splendid country between South Amboy and Red Bank; the oyster boats and canning and packing establishments at Keyport; the pretty country of Eatontown and the adjoining places on the ride from Red Bank to Long Branch, and, finally, the glimpses of seashore and country from the latter place, until the traveler leaves the car at the foot of Asbury avenue, in Asbury Park, and, with a score or two of steps, finds himself in the handsome new Casino on the boardwalk and within sight and sound of the booming breakers on the beach.

By making this particular trip on Sunday there is more to see in some ways and less in other ways than at other times. Fields, factories and other places are without their customary hordes of busy workers, but on the other hand the cars and streets are well-filled with well-behaved crowds in quest of rest and pleasure. In most of the larger cities through which the route lies the scenes at the chief trolley changing points are animated and there is as much to study in human nature as there is at other points in the inanimate and more quiet things of life. In Broad street, Elizabeth; at the Public Service Corporation station at the intersection of the two main streets in New Brunswick; at the point in South Amboy where the change is made for Red Bank; at the Beach Pavilion in Keyport, where all the cars run; near the railroad station in Red Bank and at the Long Branch trolley changing point there are waiting crowds from early until late on Sundays. This is also true of Main street and Cookman avenue in Asbury Park, where change is made for the cars to Belmar, Avon and other points along the coast, south of the Twin-Cities-by-the-Sea.

Some of the riders are on long trips, but the majority are merely out for short journeys from one town to another to visit relatives or friends, or to some one of the many inland pleasure resorts which are to be found between Newark and Asbury Park. Within a mile or two of nearly every city or town of any size on the route is one or more picnic grounds, with music and other features, which go to make up an up-to-date amusement park.

Without counting anything for a possible stopover in some town or trolley division in which one fare has been paid and another will have to be paid when the trip from any point is resumed, the cost of the ride from Newark to the beach at Asbury Park is $1.10, or two cents more than a single trip ticket on the steam railroads. If good connections are made the time consumed by the journey is about seven hours.

WOMAN'S FASHIONS.

The mater of neck dressings is a very important one in these days, and never has there been a time when taste, skill and ingenuity were at such a premium for the production of novelties wherewith to deck the summer girl's throat.

It has become quite a fashionable fad to make one's own neck dressings in these days, and the most modish piazza work for the summer resort will doubtless be the fashioning of dainty collars and stocks and cravats in all sorts of materials and drawn work. Mexican and Madeira work, with as many more as can be learned or copied for their better adornment.

With the plainly tailored shirt waist that accompanies the smart tailor made skirt or suit the collar and cravat of linen, more or less decorated with plain or fancy stitches, is the correct thing.

The shape and the fit is all in all in these, and one must find out by careful experiment just exactly what form of collar best suits the face and the type of features, and stick determinedly to this.

The Parisiennes are indulging in an extreme fad for the stiff linen collars and cuffs, and they are wearing them with all but the dressiest of frocks. But with their characteristic touch they are making even the plainest and stiffest of these take on some air of elaboration. The sets are finished with hemstitched hems instead of machine stitching. French knots, embroidered polka dots, little sprays of flowers done in raised blind work, as well as the excessive popular brodiere anglaise, or English eyelet embroidery, are called upon to mitigate the severe plainness of this style.

There are two very distinct styles in the summer neckwear. They are the stocks, finished with either a rabat or a bow, which demand some little starch in their laundering to preserve the stiff finish, and there are the bands that fit in better with the prevailing mode souple, and which must rely upon those little rods of featherbone for their staying in shape.

Those featherbone foundations, that are really shaped collars of soft and sheer mousseline de soie correctly stayed with featherbone, and which one can purchase at any notion counter in a delightful variety of shapes, are, says the New York Telegram, a boon to the girl who desires to have a large number of different neck dressings without the labor of sewing the sustaining little rods into every one of them. At the best shops, of course, all of the stocks and collars are so supplied in the making, but where one fashions one's own the ready made foundation will prove quite an acquisition.

And here the need of finding the right shape can readily be filled, for one can try and determine just what shape is the most becoming. Then the collars can be adjusted to this with any number of those dainty little fancy pins that are such a rage at present, and one can have the comforting consciousness that the neck dressing is ever in order and the most becoming that could possibly be designed.

One might say something anent the style and fit of the fashionable collars and their wearers. The girl with the round and plump face would better select the foundation collar that has a very marked point right in the senter of the front. Her sister with the long and slender type of features should, on the contrary, select the plain round band, and the thinner the face the higher and better setting the collar must be, if she is to make the most of whatever measure of good looks may be hers. Some leaders of the mode on the other side of the Atlantic who are of this latter type are reviving that little lift to the collar right under the ears and finishing the back with the perkiest of upstanding ends. With this style, needless to say, the hair would better be dressed high, or if worn low, a net must be deftly pinned around the low knot on the neck.

ABOUT GLOVES.

The new gloves are closely related to the sleeves in many ways. There are less than twelve new varities of gloves, all of them calculated for wear with the new short sleeves, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

Very pretty gloves are finished with little frills of lace. They are wrist gloves with the lace frills setting out above them. Then, above the frills, come the bracelets, without which no wrist glove is finished. Another smart glove is finished with a band of velvet with a little frill set along the upper edge of the velvet. Still another pair of short gloves is made with a wide embroidered silk band around the top. There are ever so many neat finishings.

The long glove is admirable this year, for it is made so that it sets more or less snugly to the arm, and it is not as hard to manage as it might be. These long gloves come in kid, both glazed and suede, and they also come in silk and in a kind of silk which looks and feels like pongee. In length they are both elbow gloves and shoulder gloves, with a preference for the elbow sort.

The price of the elbow glove is not as great this season as last, and for that reason a greater number of people can afford these gloves. They come at all prices, from $2 upward, and you can get a very nice pair calculated to wear all summer ofr a reasonable sum. These gloves, which set snugly throughout their length, can be worn with or without bracelets. The bracelets, if worn, should be wide, and should fasten on over the glove in a smooth and becoming manner.

One of the newest bracelets shows a wide band of gold, into which there is set a big amethyst. This has a little chasing around it. Another bracelet has a monogram set in the middle in an open design, with just a twist of gold. The letters are in gold filagree and the band is heavy. This makes an exceedingly handsome bracelet for wear with a black glove.

DUST IN THE EYE.

Any foreign substance in the eye is exceedingly painful, but if it is merely lying there and not lodged it can easily be removed by drawing the upper lid well down over the lower and then allowing the eye to be slowly opened. This usually entangles the offending particle in the lower eyelashes.

If the substance is not got rid of at once it gives rise to great irritability of the eye, causing a flow of tears, an inability to raise the upper lid and face the light, and a distinct feeling of irritation and grittiness.

After its removal a drop or two of olive or castor oil should be put in the eye, a bandage applied and no attempt made to use the eye for at least a couple of days.

A particle of quicklime in the eye gives rise to very serious symptoms if not attended to at once.

The best application is vinegar and water, which should be applied freely.

When the pain has been allayed a drop of olive oil should be dropped in between the lids. A doctor should be consulted if relief is not obtained from these simple measures, for the eye is a most sensitive organ.

HOME INDUSTRIES.

A Women's Club Address That Has Something In It.

The last meeting of the Farm Women's club at Sunnyside was the best of the year. The task of one of the club committees was to point out methods whereby women in the country can earn money at home. It was this committee's day to report, and Professor Theodora Hilton of the State Agricultural college had been invited to address the club.

Miss Hilton began by saying that sociologists were seriously considering the question of how, under civilization's present economic conditions, the feminine sex might earn money without necessarily breaking up the home and ceasing to be mothers of families. In case of the country home the professor thought this could be achieved without great difficulty if farm women would get out of ancient ruts, which mean poverty and suffering, and become intelligent enough to grasp the new opportunities which are certainly before them. Much of the most exquisite art textile work and lacemaking, embroidery and rug weaving, resulting in products for which the wealthy in this country pay fabulous prices, is done in the poor cottages of peasants abroad by women with their families around them.

The Hen Industry.

With that introduction Professor Hilton went on to say there was a profitable industry peculiarly adapted to women on the farm in which the product did not begin to supply the demand in the United States. This is the poultry business in all its departments. Did the ladies of the Farm Women's club know that about 300,000 dozen eggs are annually imported into the States? At the same time probably a million farmers' wives are straining their lives out in suicidal toil, each trying to conduct half a dozen trades when the present conditions of life demand that all the woman's energies be concentrated on one if there is to be success in anything. It is the present scheme of the great hen trust to buy up for almost nothing the eggs in summer and put them in cold storage till winter, but strictly fresh eggs are always in demand at good prices. In winter in the large cities they sometimes reach 50 cents a dozen and are not to be had at that.

The woman who can successfully establish a paying industry at home can afford to release herself from the grind of mere domestic work by hiring somebody else to do it while she devotes her time and brains to money making. "Don't say this is the mere fancy of an unpractical student. It is not," emphatically remarked Professor Hilton. Let the farm woman study systematic and practical hen culture from books and through experience. Let warm quarters and suitable fresh food be provided for Mme. Hen in winter, and she will clear to her owner a profit of at least twice as much as she herself is worth. In the egg industry the right plan is to begin in a small but scientific way, learning as one goes along.

There, too, are ducks, geese and turkeys, all of which can be made profitable by the woman of intelligence.

Squab Raising.

In the large cities the supply of young pigeons for table use has never been equal to the demand. Like everything else, squab raising is comparatively easy after one understands it. It is best of course to begin with a small outlay of money, gradually enlarging the enterprise. Rather oddly, while pigeon rearing seems just the kind of "small business" a woman is fitted for, the large squab farms are in almost every instance conducted by men. There is, however, a lady near Philadelphia who makes a large income from the birds.

A part of an ordinary barn loft would do to begin. It should be set off to itself. The birds breed four or five times a year if they are protected from the cold in winter. Two eggs are laid and two young ones hatched at a time. One of the great squab rearers of the country receives not less than $10,000 a year from the birds. Nearly half of this is profit. They sell at the rate of about 50 cents a pair. Where much profit is to be had from the squabs special pigeon houses must be made. These birds require plenty of room and fresh air as well as plenty of water and exquisite cleanliness. The pigeon is a crank on bathing.

The pigeon house that is most approved has a large flying cage attached. It is made of ordinary meshed wire netting. Ten feet high, twenty-five feet long and eighteen feet wide are good dimensions for a flying cage. There are books that give instructions for squab raising.

CAROLINE ANDERSON.

Goodness Is Easy!

Is it better to be beautiful or good? asks an editor who is trying to write down to the level of the female intellect. Well, we'd rather be beautiful, if it's allee samee. We can all get the goodness for ourselves.

RASPBERRY DESSERTS.

Close treading on the tail of the strawberry's coat comes raspberry season. The fruit of the blackcap, which reaches high tide in its supply from Jersey and Long Island gardens early in July, makes the most delicious shrub-or vinegar and is the best of all raspberries for syrups and water ices and flavors in cold desserts. Red raspberries make a delicious jam with the addition of a little currant juice to counteract the extreme sweetness and is a clear second to the strawberry in the making of shortcakes and is a dish fit for the gods when served fresh for breakfast or tea. Many other desserts, too, may be made.

Raspberry Jam.

If made of raspberries alone, without currants, allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar to each pound of the berries. If currants are used, let the mixture of fruit and sugar be pound for pound. Put berries, currant juice and sugar in a porcelain line kettle, stir and mash well with a wooden spoon, then cook from half an hour to an hour from the time they begin to boil. Pack into small pars and cover with brandied paper when cold. For the blackcap jam mix with one-third their bulk in currant juice, allow sugar pound for pound and cook until thick.

Canned Raspberries.

Allow to every twelve quarts of raspberries four pounds of sugar. Fill the sterilized cans, which should have been rolled in hot water, with fresh ripe fruit packed as closely as possible. When the can is packed full pour in each one a scant half cup of currant juice or the juice of raspberries procured by heating two quarts of the fruit on the stove until the juice runs freely, then crushing and straining. Put the covers loosely on the jars without the rubbers, then place the jars on an asbestos mat in the oven or in a pan of hot water. The oven should be moderately hot. Cook ten minutes from the time the water surrounding the cans or the syrup in the cans begins to boil. Remove from the oven and fill with boiling syrup from a kettle or one of the other pars. Screw tight, wipe and seal. When cooling take care not to let them stand in a draught of air, which would be liable to crack the jar.

If preferred the filled jars may be cooked in a flat bottomed boiler, which should have a wooden rack in the bottom. Separate the jars from each other by coarse cloths or cotton rope, which can be easily coiled about each can.

The asbestos mat to put in the oven, if the fruit is cooked there, can be obtained at any plumber's shop.

Raspberry and Currant Frappe.

Mash a quart of berries, either black or red, with half as many currants. Sweeten with two and a half cups of berries, let the mixture stand two or three hours, then strain and freeze to a mush. Fill the glasses half full of the ice, heap with whipped cream and crown with a few red berries.

Raspberry Bavarian Cream.

Take a quart of ripe red berries, press through a sieve and mix with a cup of sugar. Stand away for an hour. Soak a box of gelatine in a half cup of cold water for the same time and whip a pint of cream to a firm froth. Pour a half cup of boiling water over the gelatine, stir until dissolved, then add at once to the raspberry plup and juice. Place the mixture in a large bowl set in a pan of crushed ice and stand in the refrigerator. When thoroughly cold and beginning to stiffen, fold the whipped cream through it and turn into a mould to form. Set the mould in the pan of crushed ice and when ready to serve garnish with whipped cream and a few fresh berries.

Raspberry Tapioca.

Soak one cup of pearl tapioca in two cups of cold water until it is all absorbed. Put over the fire with two cups of hot water and cook until smooth and transparent. Stir in lightly one pint of nice raspberries and sugar to sweeten, turn into a mould and set in a cold place to harden. Serve cold with whipped cream or a sauce made in this way: Heat a pint of berry juice to scalding, then stir into it a tablespoonful of corn starch dissolved in a little cold water. Cook until it thickens, add sugar to taste, strain and cool before using.

Raspberry Franchonettes.

Crush two cupfuls of red raspberries and cook with a cup of sugar until thick. Add the juice of a half lemon and set aside to cool. When cold stir in four crumbles macaroons, then beat the mixture by spoonfuls into the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs. Line a mould with blanched almonds, turn in the mixture, and having set the moulds in a pan of hot water bake half an hour in a moderate oven. When cool invert on a platter and serve with boiled custard sauce and fresh berries.

Cherries.

The sour Morello cherry makes a good preserve, but the sweet cherry is only suitable for canning. The latter becomes insipid when richly preserved in the old fashioned way. Some housewives think that cherry preserves are richer when the fruit is not stoned. If the fruit is preferred stoned, be sure when stoning it to save every drop of juice. Weigh the fruit, allowing sugar, pound for pound. Put a layer of fruit for one of sugar until all is used. Add the juice and boil it gently until the syrup begins to thicken.

A well known cook-book gives the following rule for a jelly containing both wild cherries and currants: Take for this jelly two-thirds of wild cherries (stones and all) and one-third of red currants, a pound of sugar to a pint of juice, and then follow a good rule for plain currant jelly. This writer adds that, besides being palatable and an excellent table jelly, it is "highly medicinal, good for coughs and any weakness of the digestive organs."

Roast Ham.

A roast ham is superior to a boiled one, as it is more full of gravy, has a finer flavor, and will keep longer. Soak the ham thoroughly for at least twelve hours, wipe dry, and cut away any rusty parts. Cover the ham with a flour and water crust, taking care that it is of sufficient thickness all over to keep in the gravy. Place in a good, steady oven, and bake for four hours.

Too Much Meat.

Physicians insist that after reaching the age of forty the majority of men and women eat much more meat than is good for them. This is hard upon those who are accustomed to eating too much of that staple article of diet, and are fond of it, but it is said that a little self-denial will prove that the effort is worth a trial. Do not stop it all at once—that would be bad for the general health—but gradually reduce the amount, taking care to substitute in its place a good menu, which will produce the necessary amount of sustenance.

Rhubarb Pudding.

Put a few thin slices of well-buttered bread in the bottom of a pudding dish. Moisten very slightly with boiling water, then put in a layer of rhubarb, cut in small pieces. Sprinkle thickly with sugar and gratings of lemon peel, continuing in this order until the dish is full. Put a few lumps of butter on the top and bake until a golden brown. Serve hot or cold, as preferred.

TOPIC TIPS.

The silk glove counter looks like a rainbow.

It is said the short round skirt is on the wane.

For real service the well dressed woman wears a plain brown face veil.

Your silk petticoat ruffles will stand out if you finish them with cable cords.

The too slender woman has her bodice trimmed inside with pink ruffings.

The girl who cannot embroider finds herself at a sad disadvantage this year.

Airy bits of elegance are the neck ruchings of maline in various colors, consuming a dozen yards in their pleatings.

If you have an old parasol frame in good condition it will cost little to have it covered with linen or gingham to match your frock.

Such bits of ribbon as are picked up at remnant sales may be embroidered with dots of wafer spots and thus converted into a pretty trimming.

The very coarse laces, such as guipures, are most in fashion for adorning linens, etamines and cloths.

A new elbow glove has the hand of silk and the arm from wrist to elbow of lace, to resemble a handsome sleeve.

Crushed tinsel velvet belts are very modish for elaborate gowns. They are a French fancy and their gleam and glisten seem very gorgeous.

Among the latest exclusive modes are the exceedingly high bust corselets worn with very short open coats, matching the skirts.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

TO REMOVE STOPPERS.

When a stopper has become fixed in the neck of a bottle wrap it with a cloth dipped in boiling water.

If the bottle contains smelling salts, put it into vinegar and water, or into a solution of citric acid and water. Leave it for a short time in a warm place and then stand it in hot water.

If this is unsuccessful, hold the bottle in the left hand and tap it on alternate sides of the stopper with a piece of wood, in an upward direction. Oil the bottle round the joint of the neck and stopper, then warm it, and repeat the tapping operation.

Pass a piece of string or woolen tape around the neck and then hold the bottle tightly, while two persons draw the tape backward or forward briskly.

Or fix one end of the tape by tying it to a hook in the wall or a bedpost, and rub the bottle over it quickly while holding it taut with the left hand. The hotter the glass becomes by the friction the sooner will the stopper be loosened.

Another plan is to take a pen or a strong needle, and to run this round the top of the stopper; then give the stopper a steady twist toward the body with the right hand and it will come out.

Morgan Wins Three Points For Committee Cup at Country Club.

STORM ENDS PLAY.

Competition for President's and Club Cups on the Park Golf Club Course — Howell and Carroll Make Good Showing.

C. B. Morgan won the first three points for the Golf Committee cup at the Plainfield Country Club, on Saturday, returning a score of 76, 2-74. E. B. Shoemaker finished second with a net score of 76, and J. F. Raymond got the one remaining point with a net score of 78. This was the first play under the revised handicaps and there was more than ordinary interest in the result. The local contestants showed that they were equal to the cut and good scores were the rule, the highest net being that of J. P. Murray, who posted a 91. Morgan has been improving his games steadily and he well deserved the honors in Saturday's play. The leading scores posted were as follows:

C. B. Morgan, 76, 2-74; E. B. Shoemaker, 76,0-76; J. F. Raymond, 96, 18-78; Henry D. Hibbard, 84, 5-79; Julius E. Erickson, 89, 10-79; W. D. Boggs, 99, 19-80; W. D. Riggs, 97, 17-80; G. M. Furman, 87, 7-80; W. F. Merrill, 98, 17-81; A. T. N. Streuli, 107, 25-82; Charles A. Stover, 92, 10-82; J. P. Murray, 104, 13-91.

There were many more players on the course, but the thunder storm drove them to shelter before they could complete their play. In consequence they could not return their scores.

The weekly competition for the President's and Park Golf Club cups at the Park Golf Club, attracted a large field of players, but here the heavy rain interfered with the posting of many scores. Six cards were returned and these scores were good ones. Joseph H. Howell won first honors for the President's cup, Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll finished second, while J. B. Betts, George T. Rogers and John L. Watson divided the remaining point. For the scratch cup, Raymond B. Carroll won first honors, Dr. Carroll second and Joseph H. Howell finished third. The six cards were as follows:

Joseph H. Howell, 100, 16-84; Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, 96, 8-88; J. B. Betts, 118, 29-89; John L. Watson 105, 16-89; George T. Rogers, 106, 17-89; Raymond B. Carroll, 88, plus 2-90.

TWO FIRE CALLS.

One Blaze Caused by Burning Garbage.

While Saturday afternoon's heavy storm was in progress the city fire department was called out on two different alarms.

The first came at 4.30 and was turned in by an East Second street resident who saw one of the trolley company's wires on Richmond street emitting blue blazes. The display was due to a break and a cross and the firemen called the repair men. The second alarm came at 4.50 from box 13 for an apparent blaze in the Belmont restaurant on North avenue. Chief Doane found that the employes were burning garbage on the premises which is a violation of the health laws.

Adolph Kahrman, of Jackson street, reported to Chief Doane later in the afternoon that the Campbell house on Johnson avenue had been struck by lightning and set on fire. He noticed the blaze from his home and taking several extinguishers that he had on hand, climbed to the roof to fight them. His prompt action prevented a heavy loss.

Mrs. S. W. Van Horn, of Summit avenue, has about recovered from a week's illness with dysentery.

TO REMOVE BUILDINGS.

Alex. Kane Purchased Old Structures On Park Avenue.

Alex. Kane has purchased the frame buildings at 218, 222, 224, 226 and 228 Park avenue, owned by Charles W. McCutchen, and he will commence the work of demolishing them today. These buildings extend from the brick building, formerly occupied by Charles Schanz to and including the one formerly occupied by M. C. Dobbins. Mr. Kane contracts to remove the structures in twenty-six working days from the time the articles of agreement were signed, which was on Saturday.

He may meet with some difficulty as it is understood that Thomas L. Walsh, who conducts a fruit store in a portion of the building, has a lease for twenty days longer, while Mr. McCutchen has given Mr. Kane complete possession, and an inventory of the building and contents. He says that he will ask for an extension of time allowed to remove the structures, or the refunding of a proportionate share of the amount he paid for the delay caused him.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Owing to the rain on Saturday, the First Presbyterian C. E. Society was unable to conduct the services which it had planned at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home.

Plain Girls Can Be Pretty.

Ask any one to explain why a certain girl is regarded as pretty, and see if you get a direct answer. Probably you will hear that "she certainly is pretty, but really I don't know why, for she has not a good feature in her face, and, now I come to think about it. I have seen prettier complexions."

She may have a good figure, but that does not alone make a girl worth looking at twice, and certainly does not gain her a reputation for prettiness. The "pretty girl," you will find, is immaculately fresh and neat looking. Her hair looks well brushed, and is well and becomingly arranged; her dress is well chosen in color, and, however simple in style, it is thoroughly trim at the neck, and there is never a suspicion of rags or untidiness about her skirt braid or her petticoat.

The "little things" of that girl's toilet are not slurred over, and her hands and feet are as dainty as care can make them, for her innate refinement makes her abhor the dictum of the sloven that "all that matters is the general effect, and little details are not worth bothering about."

Attention to these little details makes all the difference between the well and badly dressed girl.

Peck who has a first class dry goods store, has always held the reputation for selling the best kind of goods obtainable. His motto is to sell the best things at the lowest prices.

THE SUSPENDER DRESS.

The suspender dresses may be worn right into cold weather. They are very becoming and very easy to make. In truth you can take any shirt waist suit and turn it into a suspender dress.

A modiste who knows how to make pretty dresses turned a taffeta shirtwaist suit into a suspender dress with very little trouble. Taking a pair of scissors she cut away the front and the back of the waist right from the neck to the belt. This left the sides, the under arm seams and the sleeves. This was the foundation of her suspender frock.

Now with some insertion she borders the opening, trimming it prettily with a little beading and with flat bands of insertion. Finally she put wide straps of the insertion across the bust and across the middle of the back. This gave the suspender effect.

"The suspender dress amounts to really very little," said a dressmaker who has made dozens of these dresses. "It is an Eton sewed to the skirt and cut away a little front and back. It is one form of the bolero, you might say, for there is little more than a pair of arm holes, and the underarm pieces, and a strap across the front. The suspenders do not resemble the masculine variety in the least. It is only another way of bringing out a novelty dress.

"Will the suspender dress be popular?" I am asked. "To this I can reply yes, for it is a very pretty article and the idea will be utilized more or less for a luncheon gown all winter.

"How about the sleeve puffs, the epaulettes and the little cape sleeves? Oh, these are all brought in as part and parcel of the suspender dress, which can combine them all."

Women who are looking for novelties will hail with delight a new trimming for the skirt. Properly handled it may be very dressy. It consists of a band of taffeta, to each edge of which is sewed a border of little silk balls. They are fastened flat, not allowed to dangle, and they are of a color to match the taffeta.

Trimmings, consisting of flat bands of silk, will be seen a great deal. There will also be flat bands of velvet and flat bands of lace and handsome passementerie insertion. These flat bands will be bordered with this or that, sometimes with a narrow beading, again with a little fringe, or with a ball trimming, or something else that is novel and pretty in the realm of decorative trimmings.

It is easy to trim a skirt with a flat band, and the woman who is aiming to be her own modiste will find herself in a field in which she is fully at home.

"You are safe as long as you trim your skirt with flat bands or with shaped bands," wrote a French tailor to one of his pupils in this country. "And you are fashionable as long as you use flat trimmings," he added.
